ASMSU Rules On Campaigns Change Today

By STEPHEN GATES
State News Staff Writer

ASMSU Student Council on Tuesday narrowly defeated a motion to ban three popular recruitment methods for student organizations. The group has continued its fight against what student leaders call "street-pressure campaigns," which are said to appeal to "disadvantaged" students.

Regulations altered by the board on Tuesday prohibit the following activities: recruiting in public places, using loudspeakers, and placing signs or posters in public places.

The council's decision has been criticized by members of student groups who oppose the regulations. They say the new rules violate free speech rights and discriminate against "disadvantaged" students.

The regulations, adopted at the council's request, are intended to prevent the use of "street-pressure campaigns" and to ensure equal opportunity for all students.

Promotion methods that have been prohibited in the past include the use of loud speakers, the distribution of literature, and the placing of signs in public places.

The regulations also prohibit the use of student organizations' logos or names in any promotion material.

The council's decision was reached after several meetings and discussions with student leaders and representatives of various groups.

The council voted 3-2 in favor of the regulations, with two abstentions.

Rhodesia Still Waits For 'Petro'

LONDON (UPI)—The British government today revealed a massive diplomatic offensive, beginning today, to persuade the leaders of the African nation of Rhodesia to adopt the "Petro" plan, which would involve the creation of a state-owned oil company.

The British government said that the "Petro" plan would enable the Rhodesian government to control its own oil resources and reduce its dependence on foreign oil.

The "Petro" plan was introduced in 1966 as a way of diversifying the country's energy sources and reducing its reliance on imported fuel.

The government has been pushing hard for the adoption of the "Petro" plan in order to reduce its dependence on foreign oil and to ensure the country's energy security.

The move will involve the withdrawal of approximately 20,000 German troops from France, as well as the transfer of some military equipment to other NATO countries.

Expansions Of Air War Near Haiphong

WASHINGTON—The American air war against North Vietnam has expanded in recent days, with increased bombing raids near the Chinese port of Haiphong.

The raids, which took place over the weekend, were aimed at destroying North Vietnam's air defense capabilities and at disruption of its economic infrastructure.

The raids were carried out by B-52 bombers, which dropped a total of 400 tons of bombs on targets near Haiphong.

The raids were part of a broader strategy to deny North Vietnam access to its ports and to disrupt its ability to supply its forces in the South.

The raids also took place near the city of Hanoi, which is North Vietnam's capital.

Michigan Condemns Emotional Drug Ads

ROCK RAYTOR, Flint, Mich.—The Michigan Food and Drug Administration took the unprecedented step of ordering a drug company to remove a television commercial aimed at women. The move was made after a consumer group voiced concern about the advertising techniques used.

Gordon Lloyd, a producer of the commercial, was ordered to remove the advertisement from television stations. The commercial features a woman sobbing and saying, "I feel so terrible."

The Michigan Food and Drug Administration issued the order after receiving complaints from several consumer groups. The agency said the commercial was misleading and did not provide proper information about the drug's potential side effects.

Gordon Lloyd, a spokesperson for the company, said they would comply with the order. "We take this very seriously," he said. "We are committed to ensuring that all of our advertising is truthful and not misleading."
Food Processing Machines
Hold Key To The Future

Modern food processing machines hold the key to the assur-
of Agriculture said a glowing address at the annual session of the Iowa Food Processors Association Tuesday.

“Food is an integral part of man’s economy. In a country where food is produced and consumed every day, the control of food is a basic need of the nation. Food is not just a matter of filling the stomach with sustenance;
it is a matter of health and longevity. The food industry must ensure that the food we eat is safe, hygienic, and nutritious.”

Merrow went on to explain the importance of food processing machines in modern agriculture. He highlighted how these machines have revolutionized the way food is produced, processed, and preserved.

Merrow also stressed the need for better training of food processing technicians, as well as the importance of research and development in the field.

The keynote speaker was followed by a panel of experts who discussed various aspects of food processing, including safety regulations, consumer behavior, and the impact of new technologies.

The panelists agreed that food processing machines are crucial to ensuring a healthy population, and that continued investment in research and development is necessary for the future of the food industry.

The conference concluded with a roundtable discussion, where attendees had the chance to ask questions and exchange ideas with the panelists.

In his closing remarks, the keynote speaker reminded participants of the critical role that food processing plays in our daily lives, and encouraged everyone to continue working together to ensure the health and well-being of all Americans.

It is believed, compared to the real thing, but the scientists hope it will contribute to the information being revealed for tornado research.

Catholic University's tornado was generated within a small room high and left in the area of 10 to 30 miles high.

The laboratory model was built under the direction of Dr. E. C. Chang, head of the University's Dept. of Space Sciences.

"This model," Chang said, "represents the first experimental program in generating scientific understanding for study under controlled conditions."
