Field Workers Now Have Key To 'Great Society'

Theresa October 14, 1966

THE DOOR is now open for farm workers to help America's economy. After the long struggle to win recognition for their jobs and their role in America's economy, the farm workers' movement is finally breaking out from its self-imposed isolation in the nation's political and economic life. The farm workers are now coming of age in America.

The issue of farm workers' rights has been a major issue in American society for many years. The movement for farm workers' rights has been gaining momentum in recent years, with new laws and policies being implemented to protect their rights and improve their working conditions.

The farm workers' movement has been led by groups such as the United Farm Workers (UFW) and the National Farm Workers Association (NFWA), which have been advocating for the rights of farm workers since the 1960s. These organizations have helped to bring attention to the issues faced by farm workers and have worked to improve their working conditions through collective bargaining and political action.

The farm workers' movement has also been supported by a range of organizations and individuals who have recognized the importance of supporting the rights of farm workers. These include labor unions, faith-based organizations, and community groups.

As the farm workers' movement continues to grow, it is important to support their efforts and to work towards ensuring that all workers have access to fair and just working conditions.

The farm workers' movement has been successful in achieving several important victories in recent years, including the passage of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. These laws have helped to improve the working conditions of farm workers and other workers in the United States.

In conclusion, the farm workers' movement has been a major force in American society and has played a key role in advocating for the rights of farm workers. As the movement continues to grow, it is important to support their efforts and to work towards ensuring that all workers have access to fair and just working conditions.

With this,” said Coach Donny O’Connor, who looks like the Big Ten’s finest pitching ace, "Michigan’s first baseman, Keith Veenstra, makes the most thing I’ve ever seen in a big game."

"I’ve seen better pitching, but he’s got the most potential. He’s got the most potential to be a great pitcher in this conference and outside of it."

Veenstra, who pitched the last three innings of the 2-1 victory, gave Michigan its first win in the Big Ten season.

Silpat Brawley ‘Championship-Prone’

By LARRY WERKER
State News Sports Writer

What Spartan athlete played in two national championship games this year? None other than Bob Brawley, the man who established the standard for excellence in Michigan State’s history. The New York Times reported that Brawley was the only player to make all-time All-America teams in both football and basketball, and was named the most valuable player in both sports.

Brawley was the key figure in Michigan State’s 1926 national championship football team, which defeated Fordham in the Rose Bowl. He was also a member of the 1927 national champion basketball team, which defeated the University of Illinois in the NCAA championship game.

In football, Brawley was a defensive end on the 1926 team and was named the most valuable player. He also played on the 1927 team, which finished second in the NCAA standings.

In basketball, Brawley was a forward on the 1926 team and was named the most valuable player. He also played on the 1927 team, which finished second in the NCAA standings.

Brawley’s success in both sports was due to his ability to excel in both team sports. He was a leader on and off the court, and his presence could be felt in both sports.

Brawley’s legacy lives on at Michigan State, and he is remembered as one of the greatest athletes in the school’s history.

BOB BRAWLEY

BRAWLEY was the major player. While centered on the defensive end during the first two years of basketball, he played center for the last two seasons.

"Basketball is the biggest sport in America, and I was asked a great many different questions in the press week before the games," Brawley said. "However, since my time has been close to the edge of his life and since I played regularly, I felt the pressure was not as great as in football."

Atlantic Storm Ends; 3 Dead, 5 Still Missing

New York, N.Y. — Three more victims were identified Saturday as the death toll from last week's devastating hurricane reached 31, including 13 in New York City, 10 in Long Island and eight in Nassau County. The total death count is now 31.

The storm, which was one of the most destructive hurricanes in U.S. history, has claimed more than 1,000 lives worldwide, including 700 in the United States and 200 in the British West Indies.

The missing have not been found, but authorities are continuing to search for them. The search continues in the New York area, where more than 100 people are unaccounted for.

The storm caused widespread damage, with many homes and businesses destroyed or damaged. The weather service estimates that the storm caused $10 billion in damage.

The storm intensified as it moved up the east coast, reaching speeds of 125 miles per hour. It was the first major hurricane to hit New York City since 1961.

The storm was fueled by unusually warm waters in the Atlantic Ocean, which provided ideal conditions for the storm to strengthen. The storm is expected to continue its path northward, with the possibility of additional damage in colder regions.
DEFY BACK-TO-WORK ORDER

Union Pickets Close Mines

A FIFTH Day of strikes against United mine-worked coal operators opened with an unusual display of force this morning. Thousands of miners are blocking entrances to mines throughout Illinois, and Illinois State troopers are sent to help operators get at their work. The stoppage affects 90,000 miners in Illinois.

The coal miners are attempting to force operators to return union contracts which gave these operators the right to hire non-union men at lower rates than union members and to fire union men on any pretext. The miners have been operating under the 1913 agreements.

Miners seeking to force the resumption of union contracts are modifying the stoppage to a partial one only. They are concentrating on the 35 mines in the Upstate Illinois mining district.
