In Political Campaign

IT TAKES MONEY to win. In short, that's really every prospectively pragmatic party worker's watchword. It's the rule. In the rules of the game, it's simply an unbreakable law. But even when the money is raised, there is another problem that hounds the candidate. James L. Hirsch, 22, known campaign worker for the Republicans, said of the U.S. Senate campaign he was in charge of in New Hampshire: "You can't present the issue to the public unless you have the money to finance it." He said of how to utilize the money to be raised, "You don't know how you'd spend it." There is no way to avoid financial backing. It means would have had a little chance of winning. He said that funds were raised in large quantities. Jerome Covenor or G. Warren Williams, the problem of raising funds was brought up in the Senate campaign. However, how they went about making an obligation to their student group, he was much more attracted to the Lewiston club. Hirsch said, "It's the rule of the game. It's the rule of the game.

MSU OWN LORIY KOENIGSTEN, chairman of the Biophysical Department, remarked that the financial problem of making money was just another one of the problems that faced the student groups. And he added, "It's the rule of the game. It's the rule of the game. It's the rule of the game."

New Members, New Goals—Union Board Look

New members and new goals are being considered in a new Union Board to replace the outgoing group of alumnus leaders.

Union Board discussed the purpose of the organization at its first spring-term meeting held Monday afternoon in the auditorium.

"We have a lot of new men with us," Union Board President Kathy McCarthy said. "The Board is eager to give the new members an opportunity to express their ideas and opinions." McCarthy said the Board hopes to incorporate new ideas and suggestions from the new members into its future planning.

"Our main concern is to promote a sense of community," McCarthy said. "We believe that the Union Board is an important part of this community and that it should be an active force in promoting it." McCarthy said the Board plans to discuss ways to increase student participation in Union Board activities.

Thomas Asks Students For Meaningful Action

In an effort to promote meaningful action, Thomas asked students to engage in activities that contribute to the community. "We want our students to understand the importance of becoming involved and making a difference," Thomas said.

"We hope to encourage our students to think critically and to take action on issues that affect them," Thomas said. "We believe that our students have the power to make a positive impact on their community and we want to provide them with the resources and support they need to do so." Thomas said the Union Board is committed to promoting meaningful action and will continue to work towards this goal.

The man from BELL is a very special character. He is known for his ability to help people in need. He is a kind and caring individual who always puts others first. He has a strong drive to help others and he will do anything to help them.

The story of the man from BELL started one day when he was passing by the Union. He noticed a group of people standing around the phone booth. He walked over to see what was going on and he saw that they were trying to make a call. They were having a hard time because the phone was not working.

The man from BELL knew that he had to help these people. He walked over to the phone booth and he started using his skills to fix the phone. He was able to get it working again and the people were able to make their call.

The man from BELL is a true hero. He is a person who truly cares about others and he is willing to do anything to help them. He is a great role model for all of us and we should all try to follow his example.
