President Hannah Defends University

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the complete text of the statement given by President Hannah at a conference held Friday in response to questions regarding the project article in which MSU was attacked for its project in South Vietnam during the past year.

Our first reaction to the article in the Minneapolis Star was to ask ourselves whether the idea of attacking the campus was entirely appropriate, especially in view of the fact that the author had not consulted us. We felt that if the author had taken the trouble to come to the campus to check his facts, he would have been able to get a better picture of what was really going on.

In an attempt to give the campus community an opportunity to express its views on the subject, we have been asked to participate in a series of discussions on this issue. These discussions are being held throughout the state, and we believe that they will provide an important opportunity for all interested parties to express their views.

I would like to begin by saying that I am not a neutral observer in this matter. I am the president of the university, and I have a vested interest in the outcome of this debate. However, I believe that it is important to discuss this issue in a rational and thoughtful manner, and I hope that the discussions will contribute to this goal.

I would also like to point out that the article in the Minneapolis Star was based on a number of assumptions that were not supported by the facts. For example, the author claimed that MSU was involved in a project in South Vietnam that was funded by the government. However, it was later revealed that the project was funded by private funds.

The article also included several other inaccuracies, and I believe that it is important to correct these errors. In my opinion, the university did not do anything wrong in connection with this project, and I believe that the public should be aware of this fact.

I hope that the discussions will serve to correct these errors and to provide a clearer picture of what actually happened. I believe that it is important to have open and honest conversations about these issues, and I hope that the discussions will contribute to this goal.

I would like to conclude by saying that I believe that it is important to discuss these matters in a constructive and respectful manner. I hope that the discussions will be able to achieve this goal, and I look forward to participating in them.

What is the critical issue in this debate?

The critical issue in this debate is whether or not the university was involved in a project in South Vietnam that was funded by the government. The article in the Minneapolis Star was based on a number of assumptions that were not supported by the facts.

I believe that it is important to correct these errors and to provide a clearer picture of what actually happened. In my opinion, the university did not do anything wrong in connection with this project, and I believe that the public should be aware of this fact.

What is the impact of this debate on the university?

The impact of this debate on the university is significant. It has caused a great deal of disruption and distraction, and it has taken away from the university's ability to focus on its core mission.

I believe that it is important to have open and honest conversations about these issues, and I hope that the discussions will contribute to this goal.

What is the future of this debate?

I believe that the future of this debate is uncertain. It is possible that the discussions will continue for some time, and it is possible that they will eventually come to an end.

I hope that the discussions will be able to achieve their goals, and I look forward to participating in them.

What is the role of the university in this debate?

The role of the university in this debate is to provide a clear and accurate picture of what actually happened. I believe that it is important to have open and honest conversations about these issues, and I hope that the discussions will contribute to this goal.

I hope that the discussions will be able to achieve their goals, and I look forward to participating in them.

Group Demands Right Of Dissent

In Washington, a Pin-America protest demonstration sought to have the draft ban lifted so that young men may have the opportunity to express their opinions on the war. The demonstration, attended by people from all over the country, was organized by the American Civil Liberties Union. The group hopes to have their voices heard and to influence the government to change its policy on the war.

COLUMBUS—The Spartans, behind open spread offense, put up 14 points in the first eight minutes. It was enough to give them a 7-0 lead.

The Michigan defense also scored in the first half. With three minutes left in the second quarter, Michigan had the ball on its own 30-yard line. The Wolverines ran a successful halfback option play and gained a yard. The Michigan defense then scored on a fumble recovery by center John Smith.

In the second half, Michigan, behind the running of Jim Costello and John Smith, played a much more conservative game. The Wolverines scored two touchdowns in the second half, increasing their lead to 14-0.

The Spartans, on the other hand, were unable to score in the second half. They had two possessions in the third quarter and one in the fourth quarter, but were unable to convert either drive into a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter, Michigan ran out the clock and sealed the victory.
LEAD IN CUP FINALS

Wings Beat Montreal, 3-2

A day after the Wings shut down the St. Louis Blues to win the Western Conference championship with a 5-3 victory, they were able to get past the Canadiens. Montreal was unable to score in the first period after allowing two goals in the final two periods of the previous game. Montreal will continue to play against Kansas City in the conference finals.

Crew Sinks Purdue

The No. 6 Crew Sinks defeated Purdue, 7-3, to keep their hopes alive in the Midwest. Purdue had a chance to win in the first inning, but a defensive error allowed the Crew to tie the game. In the third inning, the Crew scored three runs on three hits, including a home run by Danny Devereux. Purdue had a late rally, scoring two runs in the fifth inning, but the Crew held on to win.
