CIA Man Tempers Statement

A Senate member of the CIA, as well as another member of the Senate, have made statements critical of the CIA involvement in the University of Michigan's Vietnam war protest. The member said that the agency had been too involved.

The senator, who requested that his name not be used, charged that the CIA had been too involved in the campus disturbance. The other member, who also declined to be identified, said that he had been concerned about the CIA's role in the incident.

The Senate committee, which is investigating the incident, has been receiving conflicting accounts from various sources.

Auto Industry Gives In; Joint Safety Program Set

The Auto Industry has agreed to a joint safety program that will be implemented at all major auto plants, according to the American Federation of Labor (AFL). This agreement is a significant step in the industry's efforts to improve safety standards.

The program includes the establishment of a joint committee comprising industry representatives and union leaders, with the goal of developing and implementing safety guidelines for all auto plants.

Nazi War Medals Back, But Question Is Why?

THE HERD INSTINCT revived its ugly head recently in the form of a small skeptically inclined group of war medals.

Various German medals—generally speaking, practically worthless—began to find their way into local hands. It was a rash move by local dealers in junk who sold them for a few dollars. The medals were worn by the German soldiers who pushed women and children into the gas chambers.

Most of the medals which were acquired by several local boys at a few dollars, were among those worn by the 3550 who participated in the Hinsdale High School's 1931. They were claimed to be an old German manufacturer.

ALL PEOPLE are potential victims of such a trick. There are no guarantees as to the legitimacy of any such deals, and we have to be careful when acquiring items which may have been sold.

THOSE YOUNGSTERS will unfortunately accept the iron crosses too readily. They are not aware of the fact that such a medal is worthless. They may consider it as a valuable addition to their collection, but what is worse, it is a reminder of a past war.

SITUATION is as serious as tomorrow, for the time after tomorrow.

Staff Writer Shields Tender Minds...

To the Editor,

Staff writer, John T. Lamont, apparently agrees with Professor J. J. in a recent letter in the News that "Joel's been around so many years that he should have some respect."

But Discussion Was Disappointing

To the Editor,

A recent letter by Mr. H. W. S. McMillan, Wednesday's Daily States News, is a letter that should be read by all citizens. It is a letter that emphasizes the importance of education and the need for it to be available to all people.

The letter begins by stating that the United States is facing a serious problem in providing education to all citizens. The problem is not only financial, but also geographical. The letter goes on to say that the United States needs to provide education to all citizens, regardless of their background or economic status.

The letter also addresses the issue of the cost of education. The author argues that the cost of education should not be a barrier to anyone seeking a good education.

Finally, the letter calls for action. The author asks, "What can we do to solve this problem?"

The letter is a call to action. It is a call to recognize the importance of education and to work together to provide it for all citizens. It is a call to action that we cannot afford to ignore.

...But Discussion Was Disappointing

To the Editor,

Your letter of March 25th is appreciated, particularly in light of the recent controversy surrounding the proposed reduction in the number of members on the Board of Trustees. It is refreshing to see a constructive and thoughtful discussion of this important issue.

The Board of Trustees has historically been a powerful and influential body, and its members have played a crucial role in the development and growth of the university. However, as the size of the Board has increased, so too has the complexity of its responsibilities and the demands placed upon its members.

Many argue that a reduction in the number of Board members would facilitate more effective governance and decision-making. It is important for the university to have a Board that is able to function efficiently and make informed decisions in the best interests of its students, faculty, and staff.

In conclusion, I support the proposal to reduce the number of Board members. It is a step towards ensuring that the Board is able to serve the university more effectively.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

"That's the most imaginative play I've seen out there," Michigan State coach Bob Apisa said yesterday. "I was impressed with the job he did, and I think it will be a huge plus for us." Apisa was referring to Michigan's new baseball player, Melvin "Spartan" Tomorow, who was signed to a one-year contract by the Spartans.

Tomorow, a 21-year-old outfielder, was selected in the first round of the draft by the Detroit Tigers but elected to sign with Michigan State instead. He was a two-time All-American at East Lansing High School and has been considered one of the top prospects in the draft.

"I'm looking forward to working with Melvin," Apisa said. "He's got a lot of potential, and I think he can make an immediate impact for us." Apisa said that Tomorow will be used primarily in center field, where he hit .400 last season.

In other news, Michigan State football coach John St殿gers said yesterday that he would be removing the "s" from the name of the team's quarterback, "Jim." St殿gers said that "Jim" has been inconsistent and that he needs to establish a consistent quarterback to lead the team's offense.

"We need to have a leader on our team," St殿gers said. "Jim" has been the starting quarterback for the past two seasons, but he has struggled with his accuracy and decision-making.

In other football news, Michigan State's defensive line will be led by senior defensive tackle "Bob" and junior defensive end "Jerry." Both players are expected to be key to the team's success.

Sailing Club in Finals After Victory At U-D

The Michigan State Sailing Club won the Mid-American Conference Championship yesterday, defeating the University of Detroit 6-4 in the final match. The team consisted of first-year students "Fred," "Jim," and "Bob." "Fred" was named the Most Valuable Sailor of the Tournament.

"I'm really excited about this," said "Fred." "It's our first year in the conference, and to win is just amazing." The team's victory was capped by a thrilling win in the last match, where "Fred" scored the winning point in the dying seconds of the race.

Early this week, the entire team was involved in a heated argument over the starting lineup for their game against Ohio State. The argument was so heated that it had to be broken up by the coach.

"I don't think anyone was thinking straight," said "Jim." "It was just a matter of ego and pride." The coach had to step in and calm everyone down.

The team was scheduled to play against Ohio State on Saturday, but the game was postponed due to inclement weather.

In other news, Michigan State's women's tennis team won their match against the University of Detroit 7-0. "Fred" was named the Most Valuable Player of the Tournament.

"I'm really proud of our girls," said "Fred." "They worked hard and gave everything they had." The team's victory was capped by a thrilling win in the last match, where "Fred" scored the winning point in the dying seconds of the race.

GRiffith MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMP

Tiger Dismayed In Loss

NEW YORK—"The best way to handle controversy is to ignore it and keep on winning." This was the philosophy of world middleweight champ Ken Griffith, a weightlifter and actor who had many critics and admirers. Griffith took this advice to heart and continued to train hard, despite the controversy.

Griffith, the weightlifter, was known for his strong and muscular physique. He had been a weightlifter since he was a young man and had won many awards and titles throughout his career. Griffith's most notable achievement was his gold medal in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

Griffith's success as a weightlifter was not without criticism. Many people accused him of being too big and strong for the middleweight division. However, Griffith continued to train hard and improve his skills. He was a natural fighter and had a strong will to win.

Griffith's success as an actor was also notable. He had appeared in many films and television shows, and was known for his roles in the movies "The Great White Hope" and "Spartacus." Griffith's acting career was just as successful as his weightlifting career.

Griffith's philosophy of ignoring controversy and focusing on his own performance has been a source of inspiration for many athletes. His hard work and dedication to his craft have made him a respected figure in both the weightlifting and acting worlds.

Defender Feud in Congress

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Defense Secretary Robert T. McNamara has warned Tuesday of the growing danger that the department's decision to place a limit on the sale of small arms may force the military to field an anti-ballistic defense.

It was a threat-McNamara's remarks were on Tuesday morning by a Congressional report.

Definitely, the defense department's legislation, which is the report's "distortion" of the arms race, is the one advanced by McNamara.

The comments were made by Richard Lutte, the campaign's co-chairman, during a news conference at the University of Washington.

It was the second time that McNamara had been present at the Legislative Day Washington meeting, which is held March 24.

Three Organizations Elect New Officers

The State Young Democrats, the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, and the English Department of the College of Arts and Letters elected new leaders recently.

Delegate to the Michigan Young Democrats' convention, John Hruno, was named second vice chairman of the newsletter. Also elected were Perry Jatungton, Dearborn junior, as second vice chairman and Tom Smith, Birmingham, first vice chairman. The newsletter is a student publication run by students for students.

The Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, whose members are students in the College of Arts and Letters, met recently to choose their officers for the 66-67 school year. Selected were: president, Dave Mercalds, Rapids junior; vice president, Paul Poldman, Dearborn junior; and treasurer, Mike Mann, Trenton senior. The fraternity's annual dinner was held in the fraternity house on Haslett Street last Sunday night.

The results of the annual evaluation of officers of the English Department were also announced. John L. Klop, professor of English, was named chairman of the faculty committee on English. The results were as follows: president, John L. Klop, professor of English; vice president, Robert R. Eddleman, assistant professor of English; and secretary, Robert E. Steward, assistant professor of English.

The English Department also held its final faculty meeting of the year. The meeting will be held the first open meeting of the year will be held next fall when the department will present over the fall.,
