U.S. Relaxes Rules, Promotes Red Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to promote more trade with the Soviet bloc, the government eased export restrictions Wednesday on a wide variety of nonstrategic goods ranging from chemicals and machinery to corset stays, hog troughs, bee hives, arsenic and lace.

U.S. firms now can export to the Soviet Union and her Eastern European satellites except East Germany, about 400 new commodities including caps for cap pistols, logging wagons, firemen's hats, mayonnaise and popcorn.

The action was in line with President

Johnson's announcement last Friday in New York City talk of the administration's plan to reduce export controls and promote more East-West trade.

Revisions in the export control list don't apply to the Soviet zone of East Germany with which the United States has no diplomatic relations.

They also do not apply to Communist China.

Exporters of the hundreds of commodities removed from the restricted list now can ship them to Eastern Europe without a special Commerce Department license. These goods can be moved under what the department calls a general export license.

Will reduce red tape

This will reduce paper work and administrative problems for businessmen and remove a requirement that firms apply for a license and wait until it is issued before agreeing to a transaction.

Before easing export restrictions, the department said it conferred with the Defense, State, Agriculture and Interior departments and what it called "the intelligence community," presumably the Central Intelligence Agency.

All commodities for which restrictions were eased, the department said, are peaceful goods which may be freely exported without any risk to U.S. national interests.

The goods fall into such general categories as textile products, metal manufactures and machinery, chemicals and manufactured articles.

Sails, ships and sealing wax

Broken down further, this includes fiberglass swimming pools, butter churns, auto jacks, chocolate homogenizers, non-rubberized corsets and brassieres, motor scooters and windmills.

There was little easing in the electrical field except for color televisions and radios, electric car heaters, spark plugs, ignition equipment for internal combustion engines, and electric supply meters.

The list goes on to include cotton gins, farm elevators, windshield wipers, shock absorbers, paraffin, canned hominy, used civilian clothing and breakfast cereals including the sugar-coated type.

During the first three months of this year, the latest period for which complete figures were available, U.S. exports to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe totaled $55 million.

O'Brien 'expected' arrest says University detective

University Police Sgt. Dan E. Hankins testified Wednesday that Sen. Bernard F. O'Brien said he "was expecting" the police the day he was arrested at the state capitol.

In a hot courtroom overflowing with press, students and curious onlookers, the third day in the trial of the 31-year old state senator also heard testimony by a Catholic priest, a state senator, two capitol building employees and another police officer.

Hankins, chief investigator for University police, said that Bernard O'Brien had admitted to him when he was arrested June 3 that he had met Marion Lukens, a 22-year old MSU coed the night before.

A constitutional rights form signed by O'Brien was submitted as evidence by the prosecution. Hankins said the defendant was advised of his rights at three different times, once immediately after his arrest.

O'Brien's defense claims a man named "Angelo" arranged the June 2 meeting between the Detroit senator and Miss Lukens who has charged him with asking her to pose for nude pictures and have sexual relations.

Prosecution witnesses, however, have testified that a man named "Mike" or "Larry Angelo", whom they identified in court as Bernard O'Brien, asked them to pose for "cheesecake" pictures.

Hankins and State Police Det. Jack Wuthrich arrested the Detroit senator

June 3 at the capitol building, and then drove O'Brien to the University police station for interrogation.

The senator repeated his story to them about being contacted by the man named Angelo, and being told to meet a girl named Marion at the corner of Michigan Ave. and Harrison Road at 9 p.m.

"I said, 'Senator, there's more to this than you're telling me,' and he just nodded his head in the affirmative," Hankins said.

O'Brien told Hankins that he had known he was being followed the night before, and had gotten rid of Miss Lukens when he realized she was not suitable secretary material.

In cross-examination, defense listed eight names of insurance lobbyists, asking Hankins if he knew any of them. Hankins said "no" to each name.

Late in the afternoon, State Sen. Michael O'Brien, not to be confused with the defendant, testified that he had seen "Larry Angelo" outside the state senate chambers a day before Sen. Bernard F. O'Brien was arrested on morals charges.

Michael O'Brien, also a Detroit Democrat, said that he had been called out of the senate chambers on June 2 by a note from Larry Angelo. When they met, Angelo said, "No, I want the big man down in front."

Michael O'Brien said he referred Angelo to Bernard O'Brien, who then came out of the senate chambers to meet him.

Michael O'Brien described the man who called himself "Angelo" as 5 feet 9 inches, 180 lbs., and about 40 years old.

Senator O'Brien had Roman Catholic Priest Fr. Donald Miller of Detroit testify on his behalf.

Donald A. Reising, Ingham County Prosecuting attorney, asked Michael O'Brien if he or anyone could possibly confuse

Board backs allocation for 18-year vote

By BEVERLY TWITCHELL
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU Student Board allocated $1,000 toward the campaign for a lower voting age in Michigan at its Tuesday night meeting.

The allocation was passed by a vote of seven to five with one member absent, following heated discussion by all board members.

The money is composed of $130 from ASMSU's general fund and $870 transferred from the Spartan Spirit account. This amount had been previously budgeted for the purchase of Block S capes.

Voting against the proposal were members - at - large John Cauley, Jim Sink, and Lou Benson, and the presidents of Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) and Men's Hall Assn. (MHA), Anne Osborne and John Mongeon.

The $1,000 will be used to purchase literature, postage, radio time and a press conference to support the 18-year-old vote campaign, Jim Graham, chairman of ASMSU, said.

He added that ASMSU is considered a donor to the Michigan Citizens' Committee for the Vote at 18, and no member of student government is committed except in a voluntary capacity.

Much of the dissent on the motion concerned the results of student opinion gathered by the members-at large and major governing groups.

Benson said that persons he talked to were not in favor of spending money on a political issue without the wholehearted support of the student body.

Other arguments included the question of a better use for the $1,000 and student government involvement in political affairs.

LBJ asks Congress to up Social Security

BALTIMORE Md. (AP) — President Johnson called today for congressional action next year to increase Social Security benefits an average 10 per cent. House Republicans countered with a call for immediate action.

Addressing a Social Security awards ceremony here, Johnson proposed increases totaling at least $2.2 billion a year in benefits to become effective Jan. 1, 1968.

The 10 per cent increase he proposed would average $8.50 a month for each pensioner. He suggested also a minimum monthly check of $100 - compared ed with the present $44 - for anyone with 25 years of coverage.

But even as he was speaking, Republican members of the House of Representatives in Washington adopted a resolution saying Congress should not adjourn before acting on the proposal.

GOP lauds LBJ

The Republican resolution commended Johnson for his proposals, but called them "belated action" to offset the effects of increased living costs on the benefits of retired persons.

Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., senior minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, said statistics show a "gap" of seven per cent between income of retired persons and the increase in living costs.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Rep. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, issued separate statements criticizing Johnson for proposing Social Security improvements only a year from now.

Regional distrust threatens to split Viet Nam regime

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Regional differences threatening a split in the Cabinet embarrassed Premier Nguyen Cao Ky as he made plans for the Manila summit conference two weeks from now.

Ky had hoped to present his 16-month-old regime as united and stable when he goes to the Manila meeting of seven nations. But one Cabinet member has resigned and informants said five others have their resignations on Ky's desk.

Informal sources said 11 of 12 southern ministers of the Cabinet petitioned Ky to protest what they termed dictatorial methods of Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, a northerner who is police boss in South Viet Nam. Ky also is a former resident of North Viet Nam.

The immediate cause of the crisis was the recent arrest of a high official in the health department. Loan accused him of planning for southern domination.

Health Minister Nguyen Ba Kha resigned in protest after storming out of a Cabinet meeting Oct. 3. Ky accepted his resignation last Friday but warmly praised Kha in an apparent effort to smooth over the dispute.

But the real cause of the crisis is the traditional mutual distrust and suspicion of northern and southern leaders in South Viet Nam. The northerners include those who fled North Viet Nam and those from the northern provinces of what is now South Viet Nam.

Informal sources said Ky was trying to paper over the dispute so he could

JMC a dynamic innovation

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

Beginning its second year this fall, Justin Morrill College is the next step in MSU's five-year-old living-learning concept.

The road to what is now Justin Morrill College began in 1959 when a faculty committee suggested that a small experimental liberal arts college be established to emphasize undergraduate liberal curricula.

Two years later, in 1961, another faculty committee recommended that a residence liberal arts college for women be established, as well as several other such colleges with different emphases.

In October, 1964, the wheels began rolling and a structure for the new college was drawn.

It emerged as a liberal education college, with an international dimension, whose eventual size would be 1,200 students. The first class of 400 would be housed in Phillips - Snyder, which they felt would be small enough so that the freshmen would not be lost.

Independent study

Emphasis was placed on independent study, with faculty nearby for consultation. The residence halls were remodeled to provide faculty offices within the buildings.

The teacher is thought of as a "senior partner" in relation to the student. "We want to make the entire community a learning community by providing maximum opportunity for learning," said D. Gordon Rohman, dean of JMC. "We would like to think that it is impossible to be passive in this type of learning situation."

"What is Justin Morrill College?" Rohman asked in the first Dean's letter this fall.

"It is first of all a self-selected group of students who have cast their lot with an infant college still learning to walk," he answered.

It's sitting around a table with five other students in a bedroom turned into a classroom and working with a writing coach.

Program seems successful

It's sitting in classes so small that you can't slide down on your spine and disappear.

It's being accused by another non-Justin Morrill student of being a pampered elite group.

Has it worked?

It is obviously difficult to judge the success of program after only one year.

But on the surface, it is one of the most dynamic things that has happened to MSU's educational programs in a long time.

JMC students know almost all of the others, at least by face, Rohman said.

"... Foremost, the sense of community, of common enterprise and esprit is definitely emerging," Rohman remarks. "It emerges from classes together, from the twice-weekly all-college lectures, our chapel as we refer to it, and from dining together," Rohman continued.

"Finally, I believe, it emerges from the common pain they share in the intensive language program. It's their basic training."

HOUSEWIVES WINNING

Consumer rebellion spreads

NEW YORK (AP) — The great supermarket price war is raging in Chicago, supermarket chains are slashing prices in Portland, Ore., and the price of bread has fallen in Phoenix, Ariz.

Housewives have engineered a budding consumer rebellion against food prices, and it is spreading across the United States and Canada.

In Denver, Colo., Housewives for Lower Food Prices, claiming 50,000 members, scheduled a boycott of five major chain stores, starting Monday.

The women say they won't buy anything at target stores except loss leaders, and that fresh produce will be left on the shelves to spoil.

In Huntington W.Va., the Committee for Stable Food Prices, headed by Wil-

Ham H. Muth III, has collected 1,760 signatures on petitions asking a federal investigation of food prices. They will be mailed to U.S. Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., this week.

Housewives Voice for Lower Prices, one of two groups in Phoenix, has conducted a month-long boycott of bread and other items, and seen bread prices fall to 25 cents a loaf from the former 35- to 40-cent price range.

Several Midwestern food store chains have cut prices as much as 20 per cent to capitalize on complaints over rising food costs.

The price cuts in the Chicago area are in effect at 254 Jewel Tea Co. stores; 265 A&P stores in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa; and 15 Hillman's stores.

U-M's pigskin profit at MSU's expense

MSU and the University of Michigan have a wonderful relationship. Our often supercilious friends from Ann Arbor derive some sort of pleasure from belittling MSU.

They become exceedingly upset when mention is made of possibly creating a four-year medical school or law school here.

Benevolent MSU reciprocates this "kindness" in strange ways. Case in point: allowing the annual Spartan-Wolverine football clash to be played at Ann Arbor for the next two seasons.

MSU the 'patsy'

Schedules released for 1967 and 1968, drawn up seven years ago, show the game to be played Oct. 14, 1967 and Oct. 12, 1968, both at Ann Arbor.

The sad part of it is that MSU was either duped into doing it, or had its arm twisted by U-M Athletic Director Fritz Crisler, who wields the big stick in the Big Ten.

"Biggie" Munn, MSU's athletic director, and John A. Fuzak, vice president for student affairs and faculty representative to the Big Ten, are convinced that the reason the annual classic was rescheduled to be played at Ann Arbor, in 1968, is to accommodate U-M. Michigan wants the game played there during its 150th anniversary celebration.

The only catch is that the celebration is from Jan. 1, 1967 to Jan. 1, 1968, and the Spartans will play in Ann Arbor anyway, if the regular home-and-home scheduling is continued.

Readers' minds

More ticket-tacky

To the Editor:
MSU--the epitome of efficiency, also the extension of deficiency!

It was wonderful to come to orientation and be part of an informative and systematic program. This showed me that MSU was no laggard in maintaining effective operation. As a freshman, I was shown and taught a great deal in just three days. I felt that it would be wonderful to go to such a well-organized university.

Would you believe I was disillusioned in only my third week at state?

Being a freshman, I have to wait until the fourth day to get my football ticket. This is fine! I personally think that upperclassmen should have priority. However, it is not so fine to stand in line for one hour, to get right at the ticket window and have the issuer run out of tickets. It's even worse when she runs upstairs to get some more, and decides

The real reason for this change is economic. Fritz Crisler is well aware that only two combinations can draw enough people to fill up Michigan's vast, 100,000 seat stadium: U-M vs. Michigan State, and U-M vs. Ohio State.

This is a dollars and cents operation, collegiate football.

MSU and OSU are scheduled to play at Ann Arbor in 1967. U-M will play OSU in Columbus in 1968. This means that if the change in schedule hadn't occurred, U-M would be without a drawing card in 1968.

Therefore, Crisler either asked or strongly suggested that the Spartans play in Ann Arbor two years straight. The excuse of enhancing the 150th anniversary celebration was phony, and apparently Munn and Fuzak neglected to check the dates.

No compensation

Munn also said no decision has been reached on rescheduling future U-M-MSU games, to compensate Michigan State for giving up the 1968 game. "But it's doubtful that this will ever take place," Munn said.

And this explains why MSU students will be travelling to Ann Arbor for the next two years, to see the annual classic. This is why you will be spending $5 a ticket, if you're lucky, to get in.

It appears as if several people have been duped, and didn't even know it. Crisler knew. We know now.

Dixie bureaucrats play feudal lord role in D.C.

Though Washington, D.C. is the seat of the national government, the residents have no voice in city government.

The District's government is controlled by Congress -- or more specifically by Congressional committees--not by the residents.

There have been numerous attempts to give home rule to D.C. They have all been defeated, however, by Southerners in Congress who object to home rule because the city's population is overwhelmingly Negro.

Uninterested politicians

The situation is aggravated by the fact that two types of congressmen, neither of whom are especially concerned with the city's affairs, typically make up the committees which control the government.

One is the new congressman whose lack of seniority prohibits him from getting a better committee.

The other is the Southerner who takes the job to block home rule proposals and to keep the Negro population in check.

The result: Washington is one of the most poorly organized major cities in the nation.

It is incongruous for a nation, founded on democratic principles, to deny the 700,000 plus residents of its ninth largest city a meaningful voice in city government.

TRINKA CLINE

Migration mars development

It's how we got here. It's how civilization spread around the world.

It's how cities grow.

Webster says it is to leave one's country, region or city to settle elsewhere, and that's what they tend to do.

"They" refers to the many foreign students who are exchanging their visas for U.S. residency, rather than take their skills home.

Twenty years ago student exchange programs with underdeveloped countries were added to United States' foreign policy. This educating and training people to work for their nations' progress received praise here and abroad.

Somewhere along the line things began to slip in the system, and the program is backfiring more and more every year.

Critical shortages in U.S. professions, especially medicine, has created a dependence on foreign graduates working here. Many find healthy offers here and stay.

"Give my your tired, your poor" is no longer the call of the United States. Instead it is requesting and acquiring the high intelligence bracket and well trained technical workers.

Results fatal

Nigeria is credited with one-fifth as many doctors for each person as the U.S. Yet in 1963, when Nigeria's one medical school graduated 19 physicians, 16 Nigerians were serving as interns and residents in the United States.

While graduating around 1,000 doctors per year, the Philippines provides us over 2,000 interns and residents. In many countries people are known to die of curable diseases simply because there is no doctor available.

The "brain drain" is definitely working in the United States' favor at present. But it is widening the gap between the world's rich and poor and is becoming a "steady, trying, troublesome diplomatic issue", according to Assistant Secretary of State Charles Frankel.

Much of the rise in visa exchanges can be credited to the immigration bill passed last year. Nationality quotas have been dropped and entrance extended to skilled and professional people.

Many of their home nations need them desperately, but the U.S. claims to need them, too. Senator Walter Mondale, D-Minn., suggested a very logical step to solution--train more Americans in the fields, such as medicine, which pose manpower shortages.

As a political issue, the brain drain becomes a single problem. The politicians and diplomats are overlooking one important thing--the individual.

Much thought and careful evaluation is behind nearly all of the decisions to forsake one's country and remain here.

Mondale's advocacy of counselling in the colleges to encourage students to return may find resistance. Homer D. Higbee, assistant dean of International Programs at MSU, feels there is too much fuss about the issue, in the first place, and secondly, that it is not the role of the schools to discourage or encourage such a personal decision.

America can anticipate no other result in the face of universities' heavy scheduling for Americanizing foreign students. Students are immediately caught up in school and community activities to help them adjust to "our world".

Once adjusted, many foreign students lose sight of their original goals. When a person is oriented to its social and economic opportunities, America is hard to forget--even harder to leave.

GUEST EDIT

... Make the Organization Man

Gone is the day when the United States was above all the land of the individualist. The freedom of the frontier is giving way more and more to the law of Organization Man. So perhaps one should not be surprised at the growing custom for American white-collar workers to receive their working clothes free as a fringe benefit. It is well suited to the age of efficiency, providing opportunities for bulk purchase, tax saving, and speedy selection. Time and money saved--who could ask for more? The custom also gives scope for those subtle expressions of status so dear the heart of Organization Man.

If anybody objects to such standardization, the example is immediately quoted of all those who work in some kind of uniform, from police to waitresses. Why should the army of office workers be excepted? Are they in fact exceptions at all? Surely the man in the grey flannel suit has donned his uniform just as much as the lawyer who has put on his wig. In Britain the rolled umbrella and the bowler hat are recognized as badges of the bourgeois life. Can it really make much difference if they go with the job?

The trouble with such theorizing is that it ignores two obvious modern trends. The first is that this is becoming a new era of the peacock male. The drab suit of the father is being challenged more and more by the exotic fashions of the son. Of course, the office suit might be regarded as a safeguard here. But somehow it is hard to imagine a generation of Beat-lovers quietly accepting a blue pin-stripe of appropriate dignity.

The second trend is that the army of office workers is no longer a predominantly masculine force. If the ladies were to be subject to the same fringe benefits, think of the effect on office morale. Of course, women in uniform can look very attractive. But it would be a duller world if all the girls in the bus queue were clad in their company two-piece.

If free clothes for office workers were to become a general custom, it would naturally add a new dimension to recruitment. The firm with a superior designer might be able to rival one with a fatter wage packet. The more ambitious might think of offering morning dress as a Christmas bonus. But the robust individualist will be aware of the insidious dangers--an extension of welfarism that could have profound effects upon the national character. And if it is coming in America, it could soon be here.--The Times (London)

'Unproven' Jimmy Raye keeps Spartans on top

By ED BRILL

State News Sports Writer

Jimmy Raye stood in front of his locker last Saturday after a game that just had to hurt. The controversial Spartan quarterback slowly drew his shirt over the big red bandage covering his right shoulder.

Raye had come off the field a victor, a sparkplug for the undefeated Spartans, the top-ranked football team in the nation. He had run six yards for one touchdown and passed 24 for another, but nothing the 5' 10" junior from Fayetteville, N. C. does seems to stop the questions.

Raye is a back with a "brand," and he knows it more than anyone else. "Yes, I like to run with it," Raye said frankly. "Last year I was branded as a runner --- I didn't throw the ball much."

It was just a year ago that Raye first made his name known to Spartan fans. Late in the game against Ohio State, he came in and singlehandedly moved the ball downfield on quarterback keepers to set up an MSU score.

Now Raye heads a Spartan team down to Columbus, Ohio, this Saturday, and they still ask the same questions. Can he throw? Can he lead the team?

"They say I can throw the long ball, but not the short one," Raye said. "But it's the ones for six points that count."

"I feel that if I could run for eight yards, then why should I turn the ball loose?" Raye asked no one in particular. "But if they bring their defensive backs up, then I can hit Gene (Washington) deep."

In four games Spartan end Washington has caught just seven passes, but three have been for touchdowns, and the average gain has been 33.5 yards.

"Because of his ability to run," said offensive backfield coach Dan Boisture. "If Jimmy has the option to run or pass, 99 per cent of the time he will run."

Boisture added that, Raye "has been as consistent as any of our backs at making that long gainer. Percentage-wise, you're better off running."

Raye went to a small, segregated high school in South Carolina, and he is the Spartan's first Negro quarterback since Willie Throver in 1952. The last Negro quarterback in the Big Ten was Sandy Stephens of Minnesota.

Confidence and leadership were what some worried about before the season, but Raye has pretty well taken care of doubts in both areas. "He projects leadership as an athlete, and as an individual that can get the job done," said Boisture.

What Raye Wants to talk about is the spirit on the team, the feeling among the ballplayers. "We are real close to one another," Raye explained.

"No one cares who does this or gets that," he continued. "No one cares who gets what recognition. We have three years here, and we just want to try to win some ball games."

"We've got a helluva team," Raye said. "They (the Spartans) give you the feeling that when you're out on the football field, they're going to give you 150 per cent."

Spartans picked by 10 over Bucs

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Unbeaten Michigan State, with a 4-0 mark, is a 10-point favorite to knock Ohio State out of the Big Ten race when the two teams clash Saturday afternoon.

The Spartans, the top-rated college team in the nation, beat the Buckeyes by 25 points last year and appear certain to stall the sputtering Ohio State machine again. The Buckeyes lost a close one to Big Ten rival Illinois last week by a 10-9 margin.

Fast-moving Notre Dame, the No. 2 team, has been given the biggest margin by the oddsmakers, with the Irish a solid 25-point selection against North Carolina. Third-ranked Alabama holds a six-point edge over Tennessee in a battle that may affect the outcome of the Southeastern Conference title.

UCLA, the No. 4 team, is picked by 22 points to down Penn State; fifth-ranked Southern California is eight over Stanford; Nebraska (No. 6) is a 21-point choice over winless Kansas State in a Big Eight game.

Undefeated Georgia Tech, with an upset over Tennessee last week, is a nine-point pick over Auburn. Georgia Tech moved into seventh place this week, ousting Tennessee. Purdue, the No. 9 team, is a five-point choice over Michigan. In another Big Ten battle, and tenth-rated Oklahoma a 10-point pick over Kansas.

In other games, Wisconsin is a slim one-point choice over Northwestern. Colgate is also a one-point choice against Princeton, and Colorado and Clemson hold one-point margins over Iowa State and Duke respectively.

Miami (Fla.) and Georgia meet Friday night, and the game is a tossup, as in the match between Kentucky and LSU. Florida State holds a three-point edge over Texas Tech. Arkansas is a three-point pick over Texas; Navy is favored by two over Pittsburgh; Harvard two over Cornell; and Illinois is a six-point pick against Indiana.

Virginia Tech is seven over Vanderbilt; Holy Cross seven over Boston University; Air Force one-touchdown over Oregon. Syracuse eight against Boston College; Maryland eight against West Virginia. Southern Methodist and Minnesota 10-point choices against Rice and Iowa respectively; and Missouri 12 over Oklahoma State.

In pro football Sunday, the unbeaten Dallas Cowboys are rated four points over the unbeaten St. Louis Cardinals in a game that may decide the Eastern Division champion in the National Football League.

Green Bay is rated even against arch-rival Chicago, and the Los Angeles Rams, who share the lead in the Western Division with the Packers are a three-point pick against Minnesota.

In other NFL action, Washington is favored by seven over New York; Philadelphia by five against Pittsburgh; the Baltimore Colts by 14 over Detroit and the San Francisco 49ers by nine over Atlanta.

Denver Bronco offense may get sweeter look

DENVER (UPI) -- The punchless Denver Broncos, mired in last place in American Football League offense and defense statistics as well as in standings, may end up with Cookie Gilchrist back in the fold.

AFL Commissioner Milt Woodard talked long distance with Bronco officials late Tuesday and "took under advisement" the gridiron future of the controversial fullback, the league's No. 2 all-time rusher.

Gilchrist quit the club in August during a pre-season dispute.

The club responded by putting him on the reserve list -- another word for suspension.

Denver had hoped to trade its star fullback, but the trading deadline expired Sunday night and Gilchrist was still with the club, although in name only.

A Bronco spokesman said Woodard had discussed the chances of Gilchrist's return to the Broncos' active player list with Team President Gerry Phipps and General Manager Jim Burris "and has taken the matter under advisement."

"There is no deadline set for the commissioner's ruling," the spokesman said, "but we expect to have word within 48 hours."

At the time he resigned, Gilchrist said he would never again play for Denver, but Woodard said Gilchrist had indicated he would play for the club if he could return to the league.

Soccer manager aids MSU first-year players

By DENNIS CHASE
Associate Sports Editor

After playing on the MSU soccer team for two seasons, being manager of the team must be frustrating.

Turgud Enustun started playing soccer at the age of six. A native of Turkey, where soccer is the number one pastime "Turgud" was naturally attracted to the sport.

He came to the States in 1959 and attended Lansing Sexton High School.

"I used to come to see the Spartan soccer team practice," said Enustun. "I never dreamed I'd make the team."

"I was a substitute in 1963, and Coach Kenney said that I was improving very rapidly. That was a big lift. When I discovered that I was going to have to stay at Michigan State one more term, I asked the coach if I could manage the team."

Turgud's brother, Orhan, was a letterwinner on the team last year, but returned to Turkey this year.

"My brother played tennis as well as soccer," Enustun said.

Get that boy!

Following a recent Michigan State football victory, a youngster snatched a baseball cap from the head of Duffy Daugherty and disappeared into the crowd.

"The way that kid moved," Daugherty said, "we'll be recruiting him in a few years."

"He was more the individual athlete than I. I used to be his guinea pig in practices."

"I'm part of the reason he got so good," he said.

Enustun finds being a manager somewhat frustrating. But any observer can see that while the team is playing Turgud suffers right along with them. "I can see their mistakes," he said.

Coach Kenney established the job of manager two seasons ago to find someone to teach the younger players while he concentrates on the veterans.

Enustun provides invaluable experience by informing the "kids" about the weaknesses of some of the teams that he played against. He also keeps statistics at the games.

"This is by far the best team I've seen," Enustun said. "We have replaced the graduates with players of equal or better ability. A lot of people said that we wouldn't be able to replace, say, Payton Fuller. But we found two guys who are doing excellent jobs, Tony Keyes and Barry Tieman."

"Our defense is better, too." Enustun has been playing in the Detroit Amateur Soccer League since last summer.

He would like to stay involved in soccer after he graduates this term. He is a mechanical engineering major but would consider a front office job with one of the pro teams.

How about playing professional soccer?

"My chances aren't too good for that," Enustun said.

Harold Lucas starts at bottom

DETROIT, MICH. (UPI) -- Right now, Harold Lucas, the Michigan State All-America and wayward No. 3 draft choice of the St. Louis Football Cardinals, is about the happiest steel worker in Detroit.

But the football that got into his blood last fall on the national champion Michigan State Spartans may lure him back to the big game, the bright lights and fat pay checks.

"I wouldn't quite say my football days are over," said the 6-foot-3, 286-pounder.

He doesn't make a bold-faced confession that he'd like to get back into football but the 22-year-old gridiron giant hesitantly admits, "I've been thinking about it."

"You don't have to tell everybody exactly what you're doing all the time," he said. "But you make your own plans. I know what I'm doing."

What Lucas is doing now, instead of trying to make the grade in the National Football League, is trying to make the grade with a Detroit steel corporation.

His pay, less than $3 an hour, is considerably less than the $300,000 football contract he spurned, and he's still a scum in the steel mill.

"I just started last week," he said. "I'm in what they call the probationary period for seven weeks."

And the work is "pretty rough." "I couldn't stand a desk job though -- that means papers and typewriters and that just isn't me. So, just like everybody else, I'm starting at the bottom."

NO RERUNS

Harrier Coach Dittrich wants new plot for '66

By GAYEL WESCH

State News Sports Writer

MSU's cross country team finds itself in the same predicament as the summer television addict in early September. They hope to see the reruns end and some different plots unfold.

The first two meets for the Spartan runners have been reruns of last year, with two victories for MSU the result, but any more reruns would be unfortunate. They dropped their last three dual meets last season.

Coach Fran Dittrich's runners annexed their first two meets this year by scores of 20-38 over Indiana and 24-31 over Wisconsin.

Last year they trounced Indiana 15-47 and then squeaked by Wisconsin 27-28, but after that the running was all uphill. MSU dropped successive meets to Minnesota (27-30), Notre Dame (17-43), and Western Michigan (19-43). Dittrich does not foresee a repeat performance of last year, but he is not overlooking the possibilities.

"Both Notre Dame and Minnesota have fine teams which will be pointing toward us," the Spartan coach said. "We've beaten them both so many times in the past that they will do their best to beat us any time they think they've got a chance."

BUT 100-GRAND?

Robby valuable man to Birds

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles agree Frank Robinson had one helluva year and deserves "a real good raise," but he'll have to whoa, slow down and back up a little if he already has projected himself into the $100,000 bracket.

Robinson, here to receive a new convertible for being selected the outstanding World Series performer, said in answer to a question he merely would start at that figure, the implication being he might work his way up from there.

Robinson likes to pull people's legs sometimes and he must know that jumping from $70,000 to $100,000 with a club like the Orioles, which felt it was breaking the sound barrier when it gave Brooks Robinson $50,000 for the first time not so long ago, is not quite as simple as getting such a sum from the Yankees, Dodgers or Giants.

But he sounds like he's going to give it a whirl and he sure has plenty going for him what with that triple crown and his performance in the World Series, which the Orioles are likely to point out he was paid for separately anyway.

Harry Dalton, the club's capable general manager and the man, incidentally, who acquired Robinson from the Reds in his first official action after being promoted from farm director, will be the one who'll have to deal with him over the salary table.

No one has to tell Dalton the kind of year Robinson had. "He had a great year, a great series and there's no question about him deserving a real good raise," declared the youthful looking Baltimore G.M. "Regarding $100,000 or any other salary he might ask, I just haven't had a chance to think about that. We're huster now than we were a week ago."

Dalton wasn't taking the easy way out. He was simply telling the truth.

If you didn't know any better, you'd figure from looking at them that the Orioles had lost four in a row instead of the other way around. The entire front office staff is burning the midnight oil and working as if it had to atone for some tremendous disaster.

"There are any number of after-series details," Dalton explained. "Among other things we have to get up our minor league reserve lists which have to be filed this week and then there are those World Series ticket accounts."

He means returning all that money to people who purchased tickets for the fifth game in Baltimore.

Also, there's the team itself to think about in terms of next year. The Baltimore front office has no intention of sitting back or standing pat.

"We're looking for a top-flight starting pitcher," said Dalton, "and it could be either a right-hander or a left-hander. Then we'd also like someone for our bullpen. Why? Because we think we're picking up a little age."

Naturally, Dalton didn't mention any names, but the kind of starters he has in mind are pitchers like Dean Chance, Bob Gibson, Tommy John or Mel Stottlemyre. Pitchers of that caliber don't come cheap.

Neither will Frank Robinson when the time comes.

So you see what a funny game baseball is? You win the World Series four straight and you still have problems. Like the man said, however:

"They are nice problems to have."

Apisa, Raye top Big Ten lists

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

Last season, with Michigan State heading almost every category in Big Ten statistics, weekly revisions needed little more than an erasure.

The old figures are definitely obsolete this year, with Spartans at the top of only a pair of lists.

Bob Apisa is the conference's rushing leader, with 163 yards netted on 30 carries for a 5.4 average. Second is Indiana's Mike Krivoshia, picking up identical yardage on 39 carries for an average of 4.2. Spartan quarterback Jimmy Raye is third, netting 104 yards on 27 rushes for a 3.9 average.

Raye is deadlocked with Northwestern end Roger Murphy and Jim Bierne and Perry Williams, both of Purdue, in the scoring column with 12 points apiece.

Fred Stavroff of Indiana has completed 25 of 35 passes for 301 yards to lead in the passing department. Next is Purdue's Bob Griese, hitting on 16 of 24 for 215 yards. Rounding up the top three is Raye, connecting on eight of 16 for 153 yards.

At the receiving end, Murphy has caught 11 passes for 178 yards and two touchdowns to lead that category.

Stavroff is the leader in total offense, gaining 308 yards on 55 plays. Bob Naponic of Illinois follows with 278 yards on 60 plays. Raye is third, picking up 257 yards on 43 plays, with Apisa sixth, netting 163 on 31 plays.

Michigan's Stan Kemp is the top punter, with 11 for a 44-yard average. Spartan Dick Kenney is fourth, averaging 36.2 yards on 11 punts.

MSU's Al Brenner has returned six punts for 25.8 yds., the leading average in the Big Ten.

The Illini's Rich Erickson is first in kickoff returns, with four for 17 yards. Wisconsin's Tom Schinke has intercepted three passes for 29 yards on returns to lead in that category.

Offensively, Purdue ranks No. 1, while the Spartans are fourth. Wisconsin, after one conference game, is on top defensively, followed by MSU.

Al Brenner's 95-yard punt return against Illinois stands as the leading scoring play, while Apisa replaced teammate Clint Jones for the longest scrimmage run when he picked up 49 yards against Michigan.

Locked in a three-way tie for most touchdown passes caught are Gene Washington, Jim Bierne and Roger Murphy, each with two.

LBJ IN BROOKLYN

GOP 'afraid of own shadows'

NEW YORK (AP) - President Johnson, campaigning in the New York area for the second time in a week, accused Republicans today of being "afraid of their own shadows and afraid of the shadow of progress."

In a speech prepared for the Staten Island audience, Johnson said: "The only thing that most Americans are afraid of are Republicans."

Stumping in behalf of Frank O'Connor, Democratic candidate for governor and House Democrats from the area, Johnson recalled that, just last Friday in nearby Newark, N.J., he had said the Republicans campaigned on fear.

Johnson flew to Brooklyn from Baltimore and devoted an hour to his five-stop, hand shaking motorcade.

Where the crowds were thickest, Johnson stopped his limousine to shake the outstretched hands of spectators, stood on the roof of his car to wave, and spoke briefly using a portable loudspeaker unit.

Despite the amplifier the cheering crowds often drowned out his words. Here and there, pickets opposing the war in Viet Nam waved placards.

All along the route a Democratic cheerleader in an orange-painted truck shouted over his own loudspeaker: "We're warming the heart of our wonderful President Johnson."

New York Democratic congressmen flanked Johnson at every stop.

"The Republicans have made a political philosophy of saying 'no,'" Johnson said. "Consistency in saying 'no' is not enough to solve our problems."

He said Democratic votes will "keep America on the march."

"If you vote that way," Johnson said, "I believe both you and I will have happier lives and lighter burdens in the years to come."

In Baltimore, Johnson outlined a four-point Social Security program previously disclosed by the White House.

"I will recommend to the next Congress an average increase in Social Security benefits of at least 10 per cent. That means an average of a minimum of 10 per cent. It could be 12, it could be 14," the President said.

He said every worker employed under Social Security for 25 years or more should get a minimum monthly benefit of $100. That would far exceed a 10 per cent increase for some pensioners.

"I will recommend specific proposals that will materially increase the income of those under Social Security who continue to work after reaching retirement age," Johnson said his program could also ease the tight labor market.

"I will recommend that hospital and medical care coverage be provided not only to the aged, but to the more than one million disabled Social Security beneficiaries."

"I consider these four proposals minimal steps toward a more modern and more realistic Social Security system," Johnson said.

They would cost $2.2 billion a year, Johnson did not discuss financing, except to promise recommendations that will keep the system financially sound.

Johnson also announced that he has asked Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner and White House assistant Farris Bryant to work on "a truly modern program" for the construction of nursing homes for the elderly.

Johnson took it easy on Republicans in Baltimore but assailed what he called "the nay-sayers" who he said have opposed every step in Social Security.

Fund drive for campus is $144,500

"Join the Big Roundup" posters were displayed as the Campus Community Chest began its annual drive in a kickoff dinner for the committee chairman in Kellogg Center Tuesday.

Last year the campus goal was $123,311, with a total of $139,915 collected. This year's goal was set at $144,500 for MSU employees.

Andrew Hayes, president of American Bank and Trust and chairman of the greater Lansing Community Chest Campaign, outlined the needs and reasons for the drive.

"A united drive campaign eliminates fund raising costs of individual agencies," he said. "There are 57 member agencies that take part and receive the money."

Hayes said that there is often doubt as to what the funds actually do after they are collected. "For example," he said, "the YWCA and YMCA served 96,000 people last year and the services were available at lower costs. "Each month of last year 1,000 pints of blood were made available free of charge," he said. "This amounts to a savings of $250,000 totally."

Hayes said that the goals are set higher for a number of reasons. "Each separate quota of this year is simply an increase of 4.8 per cent over the money collected last year," he said. This is necessary because of higher overhead costs, Hayes said, and more people need assistance.

Cong POWs found slaughtered as Yanks enter bombed camp

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) -- A 14-year-old Vietnamese boy led American troops to a Viet Cong prisoner-of-war camp. They found 12 Vietnamese captives shot to death with their hands behind their backs.

The boy and four men escaped from the Communist POW camp Monday when Viet Cong guards fired into the prisoners and threw a grenade into their enclosure, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Among the dozen found dead were two North Vietnamese soldiers who apparently had tried to defect to the allied side but were captured by Viet Cong and held prisoner.

The camp, 35 miles northwest of Qui Nhon near the central coast, was found by a unit of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airborne, Division on Tuesday afternoon.

Since Oct. 2, the cavalrymen have been conducting Operation

Irving in the central coastal area in a combined pincer drive with South Vietnamese and South Korean units against a mixed force of North Vietnamese regulars and Viet Cong.

According to the U.S. military spokesman, the 14-year-old boy walked into a battalion area of the 1st Cavalry 33 miles northwest of Qui Nhon and said he had been held prisoner by the Viet Cong along with 16 other Vietnamese and two North Vietnamese soldiers until 5 a.m. Monday.

One of the four was a medical corpsman who related that he had joined the Viet Cong in 1962. He said that he had tried to defect to the allies two months ago but was captured by the Viet Cong and imprisoned. The medic told interrogators that most of the prisoners were of the same status.

The escapees led a cavalry unit to the POW camp late Tuesday. The cavalrymen found the 12 dead and one survivor, an old Vietnamese whose feet were so badly burned that he was unable to walk.

The cavalry soldiers also reported that the camp area contained several caved-in bunkers, that possibly had been wrecked in a B52 bombing last week.

In another development in the same combined operation, South Vietnamese troops reported capturing 18 North Vietnamese soldiers and 17 Viet Cong while making a sweep 21 miles south-west of Bong Son near the coast. One of the captives was a Viet Cong district chief, a spokesman said.

Just south of the Demilitarized Zone, a unit of U.S. Marines reported clashing with a Communist unit Tuesday and killing four while suffering light casualties themselves.

'BRAIN DRAIN'

Exchanges backfiring

At least two-thirds of the Michigan State foreign student population may be directly concerned with the present backfiring of student exchange programs for underdeveloped countries.

This portion of the MSU foreign enrollment is not sponsored and may find it easier to remain in the United States following their studies here.

MSU's other one-third are on "J" visas, exchange visitor visas. These are difficult to exchange for immigrant of general student visa status, as a two-year period spent outside the United States before application is necessary.

When student exchange programs were incorporated into the U.S. foreign policy 20 years ago, the move to educate and train people to work for their countries' progress was hailed at home and abroad.

Increasingly, foreign students are exchanging their visas for U.S. residency, rather than taking skills back home. Foreign students are also being encouraged to remain in the U.S. because critical shortages in some professions have created a dependency on them.

"We are doing too good a job of inducing foreign students into our society," August G. Benson, MSU foreign student adviser, said. "Our communities, cities, and colleges are over-Americanizing them."

According to Benson, Michigan State probably does not have an extremely high percentage of concern as 80 per cent of MSU's foreign students are graduates and thus older. These, he feels, have more clear-cut goals before coming and many are known to have jobs awaiting them at home.

This emigration from underdeveloped countries to the U.S. has brought steady complaints to the State Department and the United Nations, and has prompted Senator Walter Mondale, D-Minn., to suggest means to halt the "brain drain."

Mondale said in a recent Senate speech that there is an urgent need for attention to the program, since the emigration of human resources indispensable to progress in underdeveloped countries offsets the benefits of U.S. financial aid.

The Senator advocated a five-point plan:

--detailed research by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

--pilot programs funded by the Federal government to set up college curricula relating to native problems.

--creation of foreign placement bureaus in the U.S. to find opportunities for students in their homelands.

--bilateral agreements with nations to limit visas.

--expansion of medical training for U.S. citizens to eliminate dependency of foreign interns.

The loss of skilled manpower from underdeveloped countries is also a "steady, trying, troublesome diplomatic issue," according to Charles Frankel, assistant Secretary of State.

Kelley: No change in grand jury law yet

LANSING (AP)—Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley and Michigan's grand jurors have decided to wait until next year to ask for changes in the state's grand jury laws.

In a letter to Gov. George Romney today, Kelley said, "all with whom I have spoken agree that such changes should not be considered at the brief session of the Legislature to be held this week."

Kelley's letter was in response to a communication from Romney, who had asked him for recommendations on changing the present grand jury laws. Romney said he would be willing to submit proposals to the legislative meeting that opens Tuesday.

Kelley said he conferred with Judge George Bowles, the Wayne County grand juror; Judge Philip Pratt, Oakland County; Judge Stuart Hoffius, Kent County, and former Wayne County Grand Juror Edward Piggins. He said he also discussed the question with experts in the criminal division of his office.

"Some feel that there are areas of possible improvement in the grand jury law; some feel that substitutes for the one man grand jury might be considered," Kelley said. "But all agree that any major changes should be recommended only after careful and serious study, without the pressure of urgent time limitations."

The proposals, Kelley added, "should be ready for consideration by the governor and the legislature in time for the 1967 session."

2 DAY TOURNEY

MSU forensics hosts meet

Nineteen college forensics teams from five states will compete in a forensics tournament on campus Friday and Saturday.

"This tournament is the only one of its kind in the country," said Daniel O'Neill, MSU forensics coach and director of the tournament.

The contest is based on group action discussion, he said, which means the event is cooperative rather than competitive.

On Friday each team will draw one of four topics related to U.S. foreign policy and prepare a written report, O'Neill explained.

The report will be read by a panel of judges Friday evening, he said. Saturday morning the teams will be questioned by the judges.

Teams will be judges on the written reports and on the defense of their reports through questioning.

Final judging will be Saturday afternoon. The judges of this part of the tournament will be MSU faculty members, O'Neill said.

The tournament is open to the public. Friday's competition will be scattered throughout the campus, but Saturday the teams will meet in Rooms 3 and 4 of the Union Building. Both sessions begin at 8:30 a.m. and will run to conclusion.

Iowa, Wisconsin, New York, Ohio and Michigan are the states represented.

'Instant' pastries for Japan

The development of a new bean drying process by two MSU agricultural engineers seems certain to both gladden the hearts of many Japanese housewives and sadden those of numerous Red Chinese economists.

The revolutionary process, created by Fred Bakker-Arkema and Richard Patterson, enables an obscure Japanese vegetable called the azuki bean to be dried and changed into powdered form.

As a result, the Japanese, who in the past have had to resort to a long process of azuki soaking, cooking, mashing and baking, may soon need only to add water and sugar to the already created powder before baking in order to enjoy a variety of "instant" pastries.

Of what concern is an improved Japanese baking process to the Red Chinese?

In the past, Chinese agriculturalists could count on providing about one-half of all the azuki beans consumed in Japan.

With the advent of the new process, however, U.S. bean growers seem likely to invade the market.

For now, U.S. growers can raise the beans, have them processed into a powder and shipped to Japan at relatively low cost since the powdered beans contain only about one-third as much moisture as the unprocessed product.

COUNCIL SITS AS BOARD

City reviews Story Olds zoning permit appeal

East Lansing's City Council, sitting as an appeal board Tuesday night, voted to rule Nov. 7 on Story Oldsmobile's appeal of a special use permit.

Story's attorney, John Collins, told the council he had offered a compromise solution last month to the planning commission.

The controversy involves zoning rules governing used car lot merchandising practices—use of banners, lighting standards, plantings and access drives. It has also raised the issue "Can the City Council legally function as an appeals board?"

Collins said Story asked no more than what the commission granted to Al Mikulich Pontiac. Story went ahead with building which violated the planning commission's special permit to keep from being put to a competitive disadvantage, Collins said.

Planning Commission Chairman James Denison reported Mikulich's and Story's situations were different—that both sides of Mikulich's lot were zoned commercial and that the sides of Story's lot were zoned residential.

He also expressed the commission's opinion that the City Council acted wrongly by appointing itself the appeals board.

"The authority of the planning commission has been challenged, and this has destroyed the effectiveness of the special use permit," Denison said.

He asked the Story appeal hearings be suspended until the city attorney's opinion of its legality can be given.

Denison said the hearings were being held under the implied threat of litigation by Story.

Collins had earlier said their basic proposition was their desire to resolve the issue short of litigation.

Story had agreed through his attorney to all the conditions of the special use permit before the permit was issued, Denison said. He said factors in the Mikulich and Story cases were plainly not identical.

FEURIG SAYS:

Publicity hampers medical uses of LSD

By MIKE BROGAN
State News Staff Writer

The director of Olin Health Center said Tuesday night that research into the use of the drug LSD might be progressing more rapidly were it not for the adverse publicity it has received. Speaking to a group of about 50 students at the American Baptist Student Center in East Lansing, Dr. James Feurig stressed he was in no way condoning the use of the psychedelic drug, but felt the publicity given it has hampered research into its medical applications. "The major producer of LSD in the United States, the Sandoz Company of New Jersey, withdrew the drug from the market due to adverse publicity," Feurig explained. "The only way researchers can now procure it is through government agencies."

Researchers must now apply for quantities of LSD through the Food and Drug Administration or the U.S. Health Department. Feurig said research to date has shown the drug to be effective in alleviating the extreme pain of patients with terminal illnesses and has been used in breaking down the silence barriers of mental patients suffering extreme schizophrenia. "Such treatment with LSD allows us to 'get down to brass tacks' with some mental patients," Feurig said. He pointed out that in many cases, however, patients have come out of LSD sessions suffering from deep psychosis which lasted as long as six months. "In cases where the patient's reaction to the drug is extreme, the only antidote we know of is heavy sedation with the hope that it, the LSD effects, will wear off," Feurig explained.

Feurig said he thought it was "the mark of an idiot when anyone says he took an LSD trip to find out what it is all about." "We can tell you what you will experience," Feurig went on. "The danger is that we aren't sure how it will act on any single person because everyone has a unique emotional make-up." Feurig said he had no knowledge of excessive LSD utilization which created an incident on or around campus, but added "we would be absolutely naive to say that out of 38,000 people on campus there isn't a single current or past user." Feurig placed part of the blame for stifling LSD research on Dr. Timothy O'Leary, former member of the Harvard faculty and now leading an LSD cult on the west coast. He said O'Leary's initial research was sound but when he began using the drug regularly he lost sight of his goals. "You can't look at O'Leary in any way other than saying he is warped. He has taken too many trips and now worships the drug," Feurig commented. The position LSD has today is not within the framework of society, Feurig said. He called the drug "dynamite," something science does not know much about. "Nobody is going to do very much with it," he said, "except in highly qualified research."

LSD: Uses And Abuses

Speaking at the Baptist Student Fellowship, Dr. James Feurig, head of Olin Health Center, told of some of the dangers of LSD use, as well as some of its possible benefits. With Dr. Feurig are James Didier, Baptist chaplain, and Frannie Lett, Detroit freshman.

New policy limits issue involvement

A policy limiting student government involvement in political issues was added Tuesday night to the ASMSU Code of Operations. The motion, passed by the Student Board, stated that ASMSU will not endorse a political candidate or party, but may endorse a political issue. It further stated that ASMSU will not financially support any partisan political campaign. The motion was submitted by Lou Benson, member-at-large, in answer to student complaints about student government involvement in political issues.

Men's Hall Assn. (MHA), at its last meeting, had asked for the same type of stipulation before it would lend its support to the $1,000 appropriation to the 18-year-old vote campaign.

Other changes in the Code of Operations set up procedures for petitioning for student government positions and for fundraising drives and requests for charitable donations.

A fourth change set up a committee on policy to research and draft policies concerning students. This committee is made up of five members appointed by the Student Board.

Formal requests for charitable donations, according to the guideline set in the Code of Operations, are made first to the vice chairman, Jim Carbine.

Donations are not to exceed $50 with exceptions made by a two-thirds vote of the student board. ASMSU - affiliated organizations are exempt from the provisions of the guideline.

Registered campus groups may request permission for fundraising drives through a committee set up by the Code of Operations, chaired by the vice-chairman, appointed by the student board.

Requests for drives should be sent to the Student Activities Division, bearing the signature of the president and/or the chairman and the adviser of the sponsoring organization.

The former procedure had been to go directly to the student board with requests. Carbine said the change was made to increase efficiency.

WIC will not support $1,000 aid to 18-vote

A negative stand on ASMSU's 18-year-old-vote issue and the $1,000 allocation was taken by Women's Inter-Residence Council (WIC) Tuesday night. The board also gave preliminary consideration to the proposal for compensating ASMSU leaders.

At the meeting, Jim Graham, chairman of the Student Board, emphasized the importance of issue arousal in the Michigan State student. He said that "this campaign must begin with or without $1,000 or 10 cents."

Members of WIC questioned the board leader on the ASMSU involvement in political issues to which he replied, "To say we've got to stay out of politics means we've got to stay out of education." He further emphasized the number of students on campus affected by current political issues.

After an explanation of the financial stand of ASMSU on the $1,000 allotment, WIC vetoed monetary support by a 15-5 vote, reflecting the popular votes taken last week in the residence halls.

The compensation proposal before the student body this week was presented to WIC by Ralph Faust, chairman of the special committee on the proposal. Originating from an issue last spring, compensation will be considered for four different types of leaders in ASMSU: officials, members-at-large, living group presidents, and a cabinet of vice-presidents.

Final reports on the proposal are due Oct. 21. WIC and other groups will vote next week on the final action of the committee.

WORK WITH CANADA

Prof advises on boosting midwestern economy

An MSU professor is taking part in an inter-university effort to improve the poor economic trend of the midwest.

John L. Hazard, professor of marketing and transportation administration, is Michigan State's representative to the Council on Economic Growth, Technology and Public Policy.

The voluntary association is composed of the Big Ten universities and the University of Chicago. The council, formed this summer, will soon begin research on the problems now thwarting economic prosperity in the midwestern states.

The midwest, Hazard said, should actually be termed the mid-continent and include Canada. This area, extending west into parts of Montana and Wyoming, south through Illinois, east to New York, and north into Canada, boasts a larger production in agriculture and industry than the eastern states, the Soviet Union or the Common Market of Europe, Hazard said.

He added, however, that there are three major problems hindering this status of the mid-continent which the council may attempt to resolve:

(1) With such a tremendous increase in industry here in recent years, great pressure on its indigenous resource base has developed. Oil, lead, zinc and copper supplies have diminished to almost nothing.

The extensive forests that once blanketed the area have been reduced to a supply of inferior lumber.

(2) With such growth in education due to land grant colleges, more talent comes from the mid-continent, but the so-called "brains" leave for the glamour jobs on the coasts.

However, Hazard explained that the major obstacle to solving these problems has been the inability of the North American mid-continent to visualize themselves as parts of a single economic region and adopt regional approaches to solving common development problems.

With the mid-continent working cooperatively, Hazard proposes three major objectives toward which the area might influence international commercial policy:

(1) "Development and use of the St. Lawrence Seaway as an instrument of regional development and direct participation in international commerce."

(2) Initiation of more liberal trade and transport reciprocity with Canada as a step toward an eventual trade association.

(3) Assumption of a larger and more articulate voice in the formulation of the United States tariff and trade policy."

E. Lansing's tax is 'only way'

Is East Lansing's property tax system the kind that can foster growth of slums and encourage speculation?

According to syndicated columnist Sydney Harris and other critics of our present property tax system, it is. "When I put some expensive improvements on my house, my real property tax goes up," said Harris in his column recently. "If I let my property run down, my tax would be lower."

East Lansing, as well as all other Michigan cities, has a tax structure which requires property owners to pay more taxes on improved property than on unimproved land.

"I believe this is the only tax system that can work successfully in an economic structure such as ours," said Frank E. Warden, tax assessor for the city of East Lansing.

Harris held in his column that forcing property owners to pay more taxes if they make improvements on property than if they let their property run down can be blamed for much of what is currently known as the "urban blight," and might account for poor living conditions in some homes and apartment buildings in East Lansing.

Warden refuted Harris' claim that the tax system fosters slums on grounds that the selling value of any property is increased if improvements are made.

"If a property owner improves his land, certainly the value of the land will increase," he said. "When he attempts to sell his property with improvements, of course he can get more for it, so even though his taxes are higher it is obviously worthwhile for him to improve the land."

Warden said he has never believed that property taxes should be used to encourage property improvement.

"The property tax is strictly for revenue purposes," he stressed. "It has nothing to do with forcing, or encouraging, land improvements."

"Australia and New Zealand are now successfully using a property tax on just land, rather than land and improvements," he commented.

He pointed out, though, that the property tax we pay in Michigan takes care of many city services, such as the fire department, police department, road repair, and welfare, particularly aid to dependent children.

"Other countries don't try to accomplish as much with their property tax revenue as we do," he said.

The amount that property is taxed on in East Lansing is one third the value of the land and improvements, as determined by the tax assessor.

Property tax rates are derived from needs of the city council, school board, and the county board of supervisors.

LEAVE LIBRARIES

'Get out into the field,' MSU professor says

Carl Eicher

Professors can't expect to learn and understand the problems of underdeveloped countries from the vantage point of a library seat 3,000 miles away, an MSU professor said today.

"Instructors interested in economic problems of underdeveloped countries must get off dead center, out of their library seats and go out into the field to comprehend these problems," Carl K. Eicher said, after spending three years at the University of Nigeria.

Eicher decried the lack of interest in taking overseas assignments. "Too many people hesitate about taking these assignments," he said, "while it is a rare opportunity for a scholar to improve his competence in teaching and research."

Through research in the field these professors could help solve the problems they're now reading about.

Eicher, an associate professor of agricultural economics, worked at the University of Nigeria under a program inaugurated when the university was founded.

Eicher explained how MSU faculty members are helping the Nigerians to help themselves. MSU has a contract with the Agency for International Development (AID), a U.S. government program, to loan faculty members to the University of Nigeria for a normal tour of two years. Thirty faculty members are now there under the current contract, which expires in 1971.

The University of Nigeria was established in October, 1960. "It is devoted to the needs of the country," Eicher said. Its operating philosophy is research, teaching and public service. The university is divided into eight faculties or colleges. Two divisions besides regular undergraduate work have been added: the General Studies program, like our University College, and the Extra-mural, or Continuing Education Service (CED).

Two institutes, African Studies and the Economic Development

Institute (EDI) conduct research. About 3,000 students are presently enrolled at the University of Nigeria.

Eicher credited MSU professors with three new approaches to education adopted by the University of Nigeria: the Continuing Education Service, similar to the Kellogg Center Program; the general studies program, an adaptation of the University College here, and the EDI.

The agricultural economics department isn't the only one at MSU sending members abroad. Members of the communication, philosophy, psychology, economics and business administration departments have taught and done research at the University of Nigeria, Eicher said.

In addition to his assignment with the EDI, Eicher played a major role in the development of an agricultural economics department at the university.

Eicher, who received his Ph.D. at Harvard in economics, came to MSU in 1961 to work in international development, particularly in West Africa. He will spend four or five months each year in Nigeria during 1967-68 conducting research under the aegis of the CSNRD.

Switchmen's strike halted by court order

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) - Traffic began returning to normal on the Rock Island Lines Wednesday after striking switchmen were ordered back to work, ending a 12-hour disruption of operations.

Members of the Switchmen's Union of North America, numbering about 1,200 on the carrier, walked out Tuesday night, protesting work assignments at Eldon, Iowa.

Only hours later at Chicago, Judge Joseph S. Perry of U.S. District Court issued a temporary restraining order against the union for a 10-day period. At midmorning L. C. Chisholm, the union's Rock Island general chairman, issued the return-to-work order.

Pickets were hurriedly withdrawn and members of the other unions of the line returned to work. There are about 11,000 of them.

John Buffalo, general manager of the Kansas City, Kan., yards, operating headquarters for the entire system, said all operations should be back to normal by Thursday.

The strike crippled operations of the line, which serves an area from Chicago to Tucuman, N. M., and from Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., to Memphis, Tenn., and Houston, Tex.

Yards in the major division points began piling up with freight cars. In some areas executive crews took over traffic moving cattle and perishables.

All suburban passenger service on a 40-mile line from Joliet, Ill., to Chicago was halted, forcing about 14,000 commuters to find other means of getting to work Wednesday morning.

Tuffy Steinbeck, Ponca City, Okla., vice general chairman of the Switchmen's Union, said the grievance at Eldon, Iowa, arose from "the carrier changing rules and working conditions without negotiations, turning yard work over to road crews in violation of the Railway Labor Act."

A company spokesman in Chicago, Jim Pate, said the carrier and the union had begun talks regarding the dispute and "then all of a sudden, it erupted into this."

Chisholm said the union and management would meet during the 10-day period before the Oct. 22 deadline on the temporary restraining order.

Railroad officials at Chicago said at midafternoon train service was in the process of resuming at all points on the road.

AFL-CIO to support impending GE strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany announced today to bring the weight of the bulk of organized labor to bear against the giant General Electric Co. in the event of a strike which appears almost certain.

Meany scheduled a meeting Friday of a special AFL-CIO committee made up of the chiefs of 11 unions negotiating for some 125,000 GE workers.

"The committee will map plans for the all-out support of the AFL-CIO and all its unions in the event that General Electric forces its workers to strike at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 17," Meany said. The AFL-CIO comprises 129 labor unions with a total of about 13.5 million members.

Efforts of a special White House mediation panel to head off the threatened strike continued with little hope of success.

The AFL-CIO committee which is advising the 11 unions in the stalemated talks said it will continue to cooperate with the three Cabinet members appointed by President Johnson to try to reach a settlement.

Johnson is reported ready to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to delay any strike for 80 days.

The AFL-CIO committee also includes many of the unions bargaining with Westinghouse Electric Corp., the nation's second biggest manufacturer of electrical products. Some 40,000 Westinghouse workers are scheduled to start going on strike at 12:01 a.m. Saturday if a new contract is not negotiated by then.

Seniors Of The Week

The first seniors of the week for the 1966-1967 school year are James Graham and Joyce Kazmierski. Jim is chairman of the ASMSU Student Board, while Joyce's interests are in bringing home golf trophies.

Golfer, politician chosen first seniors of the week

The first recipients of the "Senior of the Week" award for the '66-'67 school year are Joyce Kazmierski, an outstanding golfer, and James Graham, ASMSU board chairman.

Miss Kazmierski, of Detroit, recently travelled to England to compete in the British Amateur Women's Golf Tournament. Her interest in golf helped her to earn 11 letters in sports at Henry Ford High School in Detroit, and she has been equally outstanding since coming to MSU.

In the spring of 1964, as a freshman, Miss Kazmierski represented MSU in the Woman's National Collegiate tournament, held here, and finished in second place. In the same tournament this year (held at Ohio State University), she won the championship. She has also won the individual championship in the Midwest Collegiate tournament, gaining first-place honors for MSU as well. Next spring she will compete in the national tournament at Seattle, hoping to become the first woman to repeat as champion.

Miss Kazmierski is helping to organize the women's golf club on campus and hopes it will develop into a varsity team. She is also a member of the varsity field hockey team.

Miss Kazmierski is a political science secondary education major and plans to teach in Detroit while doing graduate work.

James Graham was elected chairman of the Student Board last spring. Previously he had held various positions in student government, including that of member-at-large in 1965. He is a member of the Athletic Council and chairman of the Big Ten Student Body Presidents Council. Earlier honors include election to Blue Key and Excalibur and the designation of "outstanding junior."

Graham has been an outspoken advocate of voting rights for 18-year-olds in Michigan. He feels that student government, to be meaningful, must become involved in issues of this nature.

Graham graduated from Denby High School in Detroit. He is majoring in political science and plans to enroll in law school next year.

Student Board allocates $1,000

Greg Hopkins, president of Off-Campus Council (OCC), argued that student government should be "more than bread and circuses" and "kid games."

Larry Owen, president of Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) added that the issue should have more support than the "paper resolution" endorsed by the board two weeks ago.

On the question of student support he said, "I can't imagine this campus clamoring about anything."

A motion by substitution by Art Tung, member-at-large, was not allowed to come to vote due to a technicality in parliamentary procedure.

Tung's motion proposed a fund raising drive by the student body, to be matched by ASMSU.

Graham and Hopkins spoke of the precedent which would have been set had the board not allocated the $1,000. They said that student government would be confining to itself to issues within the limits of University boundaries.

Mongeon answered that to call student government within the University narrow, provincial and ignorant, and involvement across Grand River enlightened, liberal and educational is a "gross fallacy."

Viet cabinet split present a solid government front when he meets in Manila with leaders of Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, South Korea, Thailand and the United States.

Northern and southern delegates to a Constituent Assembly, elected to write a new constitution, have also been wrangling along regional lines. They have not even begun to write a constitution.

Deputy Premier Nguyen Luu Vien, who backed up Kha, had warned that other southerners in the Cabinet would walk out unless the assistant was released.

Informants said that Vien and ministers for youth, education, public works and agriculture had handed in their resignations. Finance Minister Au Truong Thanh, who is abroad on business, promised to join them upon his return.
