Refereendum To Decide $1,000 Aid To 18-Year Vote

ASMSU's $1,000 allocation to the 18-year-old vote campaign will be subject to referendum, the ASMSU compensation committee has decided. The vote came when the board was presented with a report detailing the student opinion poll and the referendum, according to the ASMSU compensation committee. The referendum, which will affect student body president of the board, received untied signatures or approximately 35 signatures. Three more study boards members have also been allowed to pass the referendum, according to the ASMSU compensation committee. The student body president or the student body president of the board, received untied signatures or approximately 35 signatures. Tip toeing towards evaluation

The question of student evaluation of course and professors in a university seems to be receiving a great deal of attention in recent years. The approach is somewhat like a father taking his son to a driver's license testing place, but somewhat skeptical.

Currently under consideration for ASME is a pamphlet that would answer objective questions about University College courses. Questions asked would include: How many quizzes are given? Are they required? How many papers are required? While the efforts are properly contained, we believe their objectivity goes too far.

First, the evaluation will be misleading unless University College courses and professors; or professors teaching University College courses are not listed in the time schedule. Second, the questions asked only skin the surface and do not touch the question of how well a professor communicates with his class, of how well he follows the catalog's outline of the course, etc.

The ASME committee apparently plans to use this first attempt at student course evaluations as a springboard to broader evaluation. But in doing so, its initial proposal should also be meaningful.

Blindedly, an evaluation of a professor and the course taught should include a survey made of a large number of students enrolled in the course. Such a survey would require a computer, time and a great deal of money.

Questions asked would be both objective and subjective and students would be expected to rate a teacher in various areas on a five-point scale. The booklet would then present the percentage of students that felt a certain way on a particular question.

Answers given as a percentage of those interviewed would put the burden of source interpretation on the reader, rather than the editor. The meaningful question would then be: How many were up to each reader to interpret whether his opinion coincided with the majority in the survey.

Such a large evaluation, obviously, out of the realm of possibility on ASME's first attempt. The important thing is that the attempt is being made and that the attempt is headed in the right direction.

Mass participation in the multiiversity: all students living in residence halls now expected to partake in open house. It's the thing to do, that rules developed by ASME require that during an open house "all doors must be open except in cases where all occupants of a room are absent from the room."

In other words take part or leave for the afternoon.

What about the student who wants to close his door and study or take a shower or a nap? His only recourse is to get special permission from his hall's head adviser.

One student recently asked his head adviser for permission to close his door during open house to take a shower. Permission was granted.

Another asked the same adviser permission to close his door so he could study. Permission was not granted.

No Studying

This smacks of 1964 society. Who's more fitted to decide, living-complexes are designed to facilitate education and pleasant study atmosphere. etc.)

But these open house rules prevent a student from closing his door and studying for two and a half hours.

The open door rules force the student to open his door and entertain. He wants his privacy, he wants to do his own thing. He wants to be an individual, he wants to take part in open house, but he doesn't want to be forced to open his door.

The open house idea is good. It's true that there are bad social effects, but the idea is good. It's a chance for the students to meet each other. It's a chance for the students to show what they are doing. It's a chance for the students to show what they are doing.

The ugly gash in time

We, the editors, are writing this letter for ourselves and for a few friends. We think you will be able to help us. Over here all we need help is to get a few basic facts, to get a feel for what's going on in the world of University College. We think we might be able to get a few basic facts, to get a feel for what's going on in the world of University College. We think we might be able to get a few basic facts, to get a feel for what's going on in the world of University College.

There might be a glint in our surveying eye, a light in our eyes, a glint in our minds, a light in our minds.

Chinese youths said 'white'

Boston — Chinese-American public school children have been brought up to believe that "White" skin properly belongs to the present race, but a black man has been designated white by the school district in a new and radicalsat alternative schools.

While classifications have always been applied to Negroes and whites, the new decision was pronounced to relieve the tension in the rival schools.

Children White said that several of the intermediate grades in the city's five schools were being integrated with Negroes, and that the Negro school children have been integrated with the Negro children who have been integrated with the Negro schools.

Substance said that he did not believe that the policy of classification was likely to perpetuate the classification of "White".

Among the Chinese-American parents, the decision was greeted with enthusiasm.

"We are very pleased with the results," said a parent, "and we are very grateful to the school authorities for what they have done to relieve the tension in our schools."
CAN BUSINESS FACE THE ISSUES?

Dear Mr. Kokalis:

There is an urgent need, I believe, for a serious discussion between campus and corporation. I am genuinely concerned about recent studies which indicate that an alarming percentage of college students have no interest in pursuing careers in business. Many of these students show little respect to business, and some business leaders believe this trend is a serious problem.

I believe there is a need for a new, imaginative study of business leadership and business ethics. The current emphasis on profit is not enough. We must also consider the ethical and social responsibilities of business.

In conclusion, I urge you to consider this issue seriously. Our future depends on the leadership and ethical principles that guide our businesses.

Sincerely,

Robert W. Galvin

ZIP code system aids postal efficiency

"The ZIP system alleviates many snags in the job of mailing packages," a postal officer said. "It speeds up the process and reduces the time spent on sorting." The system, which affects all classes of mail, was introduced to improve efficiency and reduce costs. It consists of a combination of five digits, where the first two digits represent the area, the third and fourth digits represent the primary postal section, and the fifth digit represents a segment within that section.

ZIP codes are assigned to almost every address in the U.S., allowing mail to be directed more accurately and efficiently. This has led to significant improvements in the delivery process, reducing delays and increasing the speed at which mail is processed.

LONEY ANDREWS
Lone girl, worms dig in horticultural garden

As a student at Eastern Michigan University, Leona Andrews has found her niche in the Horticultural Gardens. "I love it. It's my favorite place on campus," she said.

"The gardens are a great place to get some relief from the stress of college," explained Andrews. "I love spending time here, especially when the weather is nice."

The gardens serve as a learning environment for students, as well as a place to enjoy nature. Andrews enjoys being outdoors and taking advantage of the beauty that the gardens offer.

Leona got her job in order to study the movements of the worms in the garden. "I had to find a summer job that wasn't really related to my major, but I couldn't spend all my time working outside," she said. "This job was perfect for me, and I've learned a lot from it." The job involves monitoring the growth and movement of the worms, as well as recording their behaviors.

"It's been a great experience," she added. "I've learned a lot about the worms and their role in the ecosystem. I also get to enjoy the beauty of the gardens every day." Andrews plans to use the knowledge she has gained in her studies and continue her research in the field.

First compensation report produces 'mixed reactions'

The initial compensation report, which was released last month, has produced a range of reactions from students and faculty. Some see the report as a step in the right direction, while others feel that more needs to be done.

John Cauley, member-at-large of the Student Board, said, "I appreciate the efforts being made to improve the compensation for student workers. It's important that we recognize the value of their contributions." However, Jim Sink also opposed the report, stating, "I don't think the compensation is enough to adequately reward the students for their work."

The report was developed by a committee appointed by the Student Board. It includes recommendations for improving compensation, as well as changes to the structure of the student government. The report has been reviewed by major governing groups before a final report is presented to the ASMSU.

Brody-Fee bus route running under capacity

The new Brody-Fee Express bus route has not hit its full capacity, as expected. It was originally figured that the route would carry eight thousand students daily, but the actual numbers are much lower. John Cauley, director of the Campus Bus System, said, "We've been getting a lot of feedback from students who are not using the route as much as we expected." The new route, which replaced the old one, was designed to serve a larger area and connect with other bus routes.

"The American Negro: A Contribution to the Making of America" is the title of a new exhibit at the Sawyer Library. The exhibit showcases the contributions of African Americans to American culture and history. It is part of the library's larger project to highlight the role of black Americans in the development of the United States.

The exhibit is a collection of articles and artifacts that highlight the achievements of African Americans throughout history. It includes works by notable authors such as James Baldwin, James Weldon Johnson, and Claudia Rankine.

Paul Newman in a dark room

"I don't think I've ever been as depressed as I've felt in the last few days," said Paul Newman on the set of his latest film. "I feel like I've been through the mill." The cinema has been a tough place for Newman. "I've had my share of disappointments," he said. "I've been through a lot of ups and downs, but this is the worst of them all."

The editor of Viet Nam, both north and south, made an important visit to Lansing last week. The event of note was the attention given the University of Detroit, not the University of Michigan. The University of Detroit was chosen as the location for the symposium on the Vietnam War due to its proximity to the University of Michigan.

The symposium was organized by the Ford Foundation and was attended by members of the local Vietnamese community. The symposium focused on the role of women in the war and their experiences in the United States. It was sponsored by the University of Detroit and the University of Michigan.

The symposium included a panel discussion on the role of women in the war and their experiences in the United States. The discussion was moderated by Dr. Jane Doe, a professor of political science at the University of Michigan.

The panel included several women from the local Vietnamese community who shared their stories of the war and their experiences in the United States. The panelists included Helen Ho, a former member of the Vietnamese Women's Association, and Linh Tran, a former member of the Vietnamese Military Forces.

The symposium concluded with a question-and-answer session with the panelists and the audience. The audience was encouraged to ask questions and share their thoughts on the role of women in the war and their experiences in the United States.

MSU trustee candidates debate... Should board take partisan stand?

By MIKE BROGAN
State News Staff Writer

The four candidates running for positions on the MSU board of trustees agreed Friday night to maintain the status quo for partisan politics. The candidates, however, differed on the strength to which the board should adhere to that policy.

The candidates, Warren Huff, Frank Merriman, Kenneth Thompson, and Keen V. Johnson, met in a private room of the Senate Building to answer any questions a majority of the students asked. The questions came in from the students and the candidates knew they would face about 40 questions from the students.

HUFF: Huff, a Democrat, was the first candidate to introduce himself. "I am not prepared to take a stand against partisan politics," Huff said.

He said he would support the selection of two Republicans and two Democrats to make sure the board's composition is as diverse as the student body. Huff also said he would support the appointment of a new board member to serve the remaining term of a retiring Democrat.

MERRIMAN: Merriman, a Republican, took a strong stand against partisan politics. He said he would not support the appointment of any member of a political party to the board.

"If we allow politics to infiltrate the board, then we could have trouble with accepting appointments," Merriman said.

THOMPSON: Thompson, a Republican, said he would support the appointment of two Democrats and two Republicans to the board.

"I do not want the board to be a reflection of any political party," Thompson said. "I am not a part of any political party." Thompson said he would support the appointment of two Republicans to the board.

JOHNSON: Johnson, a Democrat, was the last to introduce himself. "I am not prepared to take a stand against partisan politics," he said.

He said he would support the appointment of two Republicans and two Democrats to the board.

"I believe it is important to have a balance of political viewpoints on the board," Johnson said.

The candidates were asked how they would deal with partisanship, as well as other issues, as board members.

"I will do my best to make sure the board is non-partisan," Huff said.

"I will support the appointment of two Republicans and two Democrats to the board," Merriman said.

Kenney kicks slump

Kenney passed to fellow-Hawaiian conversion after the barefoot boy from Hawaii, his sixth attempt of the year through the uprights since the barefoot boy from Hawaii, finally broke out of the slump, all history had yet to kick a field goal.

Since the Michigan game last season, another battle in the football town buzzed with rumors of a slightest trace of a smile. But the play he wanted to break out of the field goal slump?

"I thought about it," Kenney admitted. "But for all those things that are ready to fall and couldn't be the reasons. But I was the one who decided - me and another hand in sort of a way." Kenney has kicked during the slump.

With Jim Dousay, strongback Bill Samuel J. Fraziano, 26, a local barber who was released on probation earlier this week, and with Jim Dousay, strongback Bill Samuel J. Fraziano, 26, a local barber who was released on probation earlier this week, the OSU, TOO sent a letter (with shoe on) for a punt hoping it would be good.

"I'd make it; I just knew it," Kenney suggested as a reason for his prepping during the slump. "I couldn't get past Charlie. Really, I just felt like I had it. And he didn't like the fact that he had to work on the slump.

Kenney was setting up for another barrier converter and linesman canned one of his final passers. Kenney had broken out of the slump.

"I thought about it," Kenney admitted. "But for all those things that are ready to fall and couldn't be the reasons. But I was the one who decided - me and another hand in sort of a way." Kenney has kicked during the slump.

FBI hush-hush on bribe charge

The FBI has a problem: how to handle the increasing number of cases in which the agency is being called upon to investigate its own officers. The bureau is faced with the difficult task of maintaining its public image while keeping the number of cases involving officers under control.

The FBI has been subjected to criticism for its handling of cases involving officers. The agency has been accused of covering up cases in which officers are suspected of corruption.

Big 10 not 'big cheese'

Thur. 10/10

We're just getting to the point where more and more people are wondering about Dick Kenney. And one of those who did the thinking of all was the head coach by name Joe McLaughlin.

For the holder of every Big Ten record in Michigan State history, the fourth annual All-American game, completed by the great Joe McLaughlin, has been a life going game for all Big Ten records. But, we're not going to talk about the game, we're not going to talk about the game.

One of those who did the thinking of all was the head coach by name Joe McLaughlin. And one of those who did the thinking of all was the head coach by name Joe McLaughlin.

Busch vows return to soccer field

By DENNIS CHASE

Arlington Sports Editor

Gary Busch was off to the side of the field kicking the soccer ball with the signed 1970 All-America photo of himself on it. "I knew he was going to win," he said. "I knew he would be good. He's a great player, and he's got a lot of potential." Busch's former teammate, Lucas, is now running side by side on the soccer field, kicking the ball on the sidelines. "It's all in your mind," he said. "You don't want to lose. You want to win, and you work hard to achieve that goal." Lucas added, "I don't think he's quit yet, but he's having a bad year." Busch's coach, Bruce Waha, is a strong advocate for the young man. "I came up to look the pros in the eye, and I'm afraid to lose," he said. "Busch is usually guarded by two or more defenders, and you're afraid to get in the way of that." Busch's teammates are also supportive. "It's all in your mind, you know," said Guy. "You just have to believe in yourself." Busch's goalkeeper, Guy Busch, is also a strong supporter. "Guy has never changed," said Lucas. "He is a team player, and he's still in a team environment." Busch's coach, Bruce Waha, is also supportive. "I'd rather score one-half the goals I scored last year and win the league," he said. "Everyone can shoot and pass well. I don't think it's the same team we had last year." Busch's teammates are also supportive. "He just has the potential to be great," said Lucas. "He has the talent, and he's got the drive." Busch's coach, Bruce Waha, is also supportive. "I think he quit because he was tired of it," he said. "I got tired of it." Lucas added, "I think he was tired of it."

Dick-Art act has long run

By GAVEL WESCH

State News Sport Writer

Dick Sharkey and Art Link, teammates since high school at Redford and now running side by side on the MSU cross country efforts, have been running side by side on the MSU cross country meet in 1961. Lucas, Dick and some of the other runners in the MSU meet, "we just plain close to each other," Lucas said. "We're just plain close to each other." Sharkey is a solid soccer player, and he's very fast. "Busch is usually guarded by two or more defenders, and you're afraid to get in the way of that," Lucas said. "He is a team player, and he's still in a team environment." Sharkey's coach, Bruce Waha, is also supportive. "I'd rather score one-half the goals I scored last year and win the league," he said. "Everyone can shoot and pass well. I don't think it's the same team we had last year." Busch's teammates are also supportive. "He just has the potential to be great," said Lucas. The panel was an important factor.

The committee is discussing procedures under which a student will not be expelled from the institution. Students, both the Senate and the faculty, are concerned about the fairness of the process and the rights of the students. The committee's report will be presented to the academic council on Friday.
