A second small residence college, the "Commonwealth Center," is scheduled to open next fall. The center, announced Thursday by the MLK Board of Trustees, will offer seven programs in the humanities, sciences, education, and business by the 1967-68 academic year.

The center was authorized by the Board of Trustees, which includes members of the Board of Regents, the Board of Education, and the Board of Trustees of Michigan State University. The center will be housed in one of the dormitories, as is currently planned. The center will be known as "Commonwealth Center."
Ticket distribution improvement off to a good start, but

Athletic Director Biggie Man and ticket manager Bill Beardsley should be commended for their quick actions in suggesting changes for the football ticket distribution system.

Specifically they propose that tickets be sold spring term to students for the following year, and that passes for specific seats, student would sit in the same seat every game. The purpose of this is to reduce scalping.

While these are steps in the right direction, both could be improved.

Having the same seat at all games is fine for many people, but there will be those who want to take different girls to different games. Students should be able to get seats on a game to game basis.

Even though tickets are sold in the spring, many will wait until fall term to get tickets because they may not be sure they will return or because the "football spirit" doesn't motivate them until fall.

Tickets should be held during registration, as they are now, but we suggest the system be improved. One improvement would be the sale of the cards in the L.M. building. This would allow students to get the tickets without making a special trip. It would also prevent long lines: people are allowed in the L.M. only in relatively small groups, so the student group would not accumulate.

Another improvement would be to have more ticket distribution points around campus. An outpost in Conrad and the student government offices would keep students from having to go too far.

Finally there should be more seats reserved for students. This year some passes were reserved. For 70 percent of the students and 16 percent of the student body, the ticket office recommended them by selling non-existent seats. A better way would be to allow students into the room at different times of day, and also give them a seat with the knowledge of the area they that they will be in.

Operations of this sort are more appropriate for a fly-by-night operation than a major university. Sufficient seats should be allotted. If they are not taken by students, they can be sold to the general public.

If these suggestions are accepted, the confusion and frustration associated with football ticket purchases would be greatly reduced, if not eliminated.

Ferdinand I. Anthony, former Ag dean, dies

Ferdinand I. Anthony, former dean of the College of Agriculture and the first dean of Michigan State University's College of Ag in 1933, died Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1969, at his home in East Lansing.

Anthony, who was 82 at his death, came to MSU in 1918 as an agricultural extension agent after serving in the U.S. Army during World War I. He later earned a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin and a Ph.D. from Cornell University.

Anthony became dean of agriculture in 1933 and served in that position until his retirement in 1963. During his tenure, he oversaw the construction of the Union Building and the Agriculture Building and the establishment of the Ag College.

Anthony was also a member of the Michigan State Board of Agriculture and the Michigan State Board of Education. He was a member of the American Dairy Science Assn. in 1932. In 1935, as a representative for the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, he traveled to Denmark the first Red Danish Dairy at Pennsylvania State University.

Anthony was born at Wescott, Neb., in 1887.

'PERENNIAL PROBLEM' Prices underlie friction

By BILL GIBB

State News Staff Writer

The 'perennial problem' affecting students at West Virginia University is the so-called 'perennial problem': the conflicting interests of students, faculty and the administration.

The problem is that students want to be respected and treated fairly by the administration. Faculty want their work to be recognized and their salaries increased. The administration wants to make sure that the university is running smoothly and efficiently.

Despite these disagreements, the West Virginia University administration and faculty have worked together to try to resolve the issues that arise. The administration has made efforts to listen to the concerns of the faculty and students, and the faculty has made efforts to respect the needs of the administration.

Sen. Byrd, 79, dies in Virginia

HARRISON, Va.—Sen. John H. Byrd Jr., a 30-year Virginia Democratic senator who was considered one of the Senate's leading liberals, died here today at age 79. Mr. Byrd died quietly, his wife, Ethel, said, in the nation's capital.

Mr. Byrd's Senate career began in 1956, when he succeeded his father in the Senate. He was one of the most prominent southern leaders in the Senate and was known for his support of civil rights legislation and his efforts to encourage projects to aid the poor.

Mr. Byrd had been in poor health, and his death comes as the Senate is considering a renewal of federal civil rights legislation.

Mourners at the service included President Clinton, Vice President Al Gore, Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich and other top government officials.

Mr. Byrd was born in Virginia and attended the University of Virginia. He was a prominent figure in the Democratic Party and was known for his work in the Senate on civil rights and other issues.

Mr. Byrd's death comes as the Senate is considering a renewal of federal civil rights legislation.

Homecoming hits tonight

Homecoming weekend is shaping up to be a fun-filled event in the nation's capital.

Several homecoming events are planned, including a parade, a homecoming dance and a football game.

The parade will feature floats, bands and cheerleaders, and will be held on Saturday.

The homecoming dance will be held on Friday night, and the football game will be held on Saturday.

The homecoming weekend is expected to draw thousands of students and alumni to campus.

Homecoming week activities include a homecoming float, a homecoming dance and a football game.

Tatum's will be a good spot to relax and enjoy the festivities.

The weather is expected to be mild, and the events are expected to draw large crowds.

The homecoming weekend is a great opportunity to celebrate the school's history and traditions.

Clyde Campbell is named head of Mott Institute

Clyde Campbell, professor at the University of Michigan, has been named head of the Mott Institute, a research center on urban poverty.

The appointment comes after a national search for a new director.

Clyde Campbell, 54, is a leading expert on urban poverty and has been involved in a number of poverty-related research projects.

He has a Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Michigan and has been a professor at the University of Michigan since 1980.

Campbell has conducted research on a wide range of poverty issues, including housing, employment, education and health care.

The Mott Institute, located on the campus of the University of Michigan, is one of the nation's oldest and largest research centers on poverty.

The institute's mission is to advance understanding of poverty and to provide policymakers and practitioners with evidence-based solutions.

Wells Hall reborn after 2 deaths

Wells Hall, named for the school's founder, William Wells, has been renamed in honor of two former students who died in a tragic accident.

The renaming ceremony took place on Monday, October 24, 2016, in honor of Lillian Johnson and John Mitchell, who were killed in a shooting incident on the campus.

The renaming ceremony was attended by family members, friends and campus officials.

The Wells Hall building was named for William Wells, who served as the school's first principal from 1867 to 1891.

The building was later renamed in honor of Wells and his wife, Lillian, who was a prominent figure in the local community.

The building now houses a variety of departments, including the history department, the English department and the art department.

The renaming ceremony was a fitting tribute to Lillian Johnson and John Mitchell, whose lives were tragically cut short.

Ongoing issues in the community, including the lack of affordable housing and the impact of poverty on education, were discussed at the event.

"ONE OF THE GREAT PERIODS OF AMERICAN HISTORY AND ITS ADMINISTRATION."

Professor at the University of Illinois, Campbell, who will now devote his time to research, will set up a display of his work in the University of Illinois library.

Campbell is a past president of the American Historical Association and has written a number of books on American history.

The display will be open to the public and will include a number of Campbell's publications and manuscripts.

The display will be open to the public from October 24 to November 24.

The university's archives will also be open to the public during the same period.

The display is intended to encourage interest in American history and to provide a platform for the dissemination of research.

Poet, novelist share Prize

The Swedish Academy awarded its 1966 Nobel prizes for literature to two women: Nelly Sachs, a German-born poet, and strawberries. "A Guest for the Night," both of which were written in a mixture of humor and prophecy. Sachs also wrote a mystery play, "Quarters of the Dead," and "Anders Osterling, praised them for their efforts to present the cultural heritage of the Jewish people in the written word.

Roetman appointed

The appointment of John Roetman, Jr., as manager of the University's married housing was announced Thursday by the Board of Trustees.

"We are always open for new ideas," said Roetman, "and are now exploring the possibility of expanding the facilities."

After a period in the service, Roetman entered the University in 1950. He received his M.A. in 1954, he succeeds Ray Lamphear, who is now married to the capacity since Aug. 1 with his appointment becoming effective Oct. 1.

New forestry head named by Trustees

Lee M. James, professor of forestry, was named chairman of the Faculty of Forestry Thursday, and succeeded the late Terrill O. Jansen, the appointment effective Oct. 1. A graduate of Pennsylvania State University and the University of Michigan, James is the author of "Opportunities for Economic Development in Michigan's Upper Peninsula," prepared in 1953 for the Committee on Public Welfare, U.S. Senate. He has also written more than 40 articles for professional journals. James has served as a member of the U.S. Forest Service, is a member of the University of Illinois Forest Industry Council, and is a member of the U.S. Forest Service. In 1952 he became an associate professor, and in 1961, professor. He has served on a commission for the Boys, of Michigan, and on the Forest Industry Council, receiving the prestigious "Madigan" award for his contributions to forestry education. The Spartans were not given much credit in Michigan State's opening game, but they were on hand to back up their defense and support their running game. The Spartans defense was on the rise as they began to hold Ohio State to a few yards and set the Spartans up for a touchdown.

Terry And The Pirates

Captain Terry Bishie watches the play of his Michigan State teammates in a game against Pittsburg earlier this season. That's a big reason for the big win over the Buckeyes in this weekend's game. Bishie, a 15th-year senior, was one of the leading players in the game.
