COLLEGE BOWL

National Merit pair, ADS holders on team

Two National Merit scholars and two Alumni Distinguished Scholarship holders will represent MSU at the nationally televised College Bowl competition on Sunday, Nov. 20 in New York City.

Stephen Badrich, Loren Lomasky, and Donald Mackenzie, Jr. were chosen after the fourth eliminating competition in the Erickson Hall Kiva was completed.

Badrich, an ADS winner, is a 19-year-old sophomore from Hagerstown, Md. He is an English major in the Honors College. Badrich is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, a men's scholastic honorary, and a staff member on The Paper.

Boyd, a National Merit scholar and transfer student from Michigan Technological University in Houghton, is a 21-year-old senior from Houghton. He has a dual major in physics and philosophy. Boyd, also a member of Phi Eta Sigma, plans on a career in college teaching.

Lomasky, also a National Merit scholar and a member of the Honors College, is a 19-year-old junior from West Hartford, Conn. He is a philosophy major and plans to pursue his study as a philosophy professor. Chess and short story writing are among Lomasky's interests.

Mackenzie, the second ADS winner, is a 19-year-old junior from Houston, Texas. He is a psychology major and is a member of Psi Chi, a psychology honorary, and the Honors College. Mackenzie plans on a career in psychology research and education.

He is involved doing "leg work" on the Academic Affairs Committee, and has been on the South Case Residence Hall Council.

Mackenzie, who was on the Case Hall Campus Bowl team when it took the all-university completion, lists language and communications as his special interests.

These four students, who distinguished themselves in competition with approximately 70 others, will drill for an hour every Sunday until actual programming. The team will select its captain before leaving for competition. An alternate from the second team will also be designated.

Welsh charge Coal Board with responsibility for deaths

ABERFAN, Wales (P) -- Weeping parents charged Britain's National Coal Board with responsibility for the deaths Friday of their children beneath a black avalanche of mine debris.

"They killed our children!" shouted one woman at a preliminary inquest Monday into the disaster, which is believed to have killed 200 children and adults.

In London, Cledwyn Hughes, secretary of state for Wales, told a silent House of Commons in an emotion-choked voice that he had ordered emergency action to make safe three other coal mine slag dumps in South Wales. He said they were in "a hazardous condition" although the danger was not believed imminent. He said he had also ordered an immediate inspection of all of the 500 such heaps of coal waste that are scattered throughout the green valleys of Wales.

It was just such a heap of slag and coal dust saturated by rain and an underground spring, that slid down Friday morning, engulfing Aberfan's primary school and more than 100 children, sweeping away homes and entombing whole families.

By late Monday the bodies of 112 children and 31 adults had been recovered. Eleven crushed and mangled bodies were unidentified.

Alderman Stanley Davies, mayor of nearby Merthyr Tydfil which has jurisdiction over Aberfan, told a news conference nearly 50 children and an unknown number of adults are still buried beneath the muck.

At the inquest in Aberfan's Baptist chapel, John Collins, 40, an inspector at an aircraft factory, charged that his wife and two sons were "buried alive by the National Coal Board."

He refused to allow Coroner Benjamin Hamilton to enter any other cause for their death although Hamilton warned him he would be unable to bury his family without a medical cause on the death certificates.

Peace Offensive Seen At Summit Conference

MANILA (P) -- The seven-nation summit conference of Viet Nam assumed Tuesday the look of a high-powered peace offensive.

President Johnson expressed confidence at Monday's opening session that allied determination would bring about negotiations or an end to Red aggression. Leaders of other nations laid heavy stress on what they described as progressive weakening of the Communist side.

The picture emerging from what evidently were lively discussions of all aspects of Viet Nam was one of an effort to convince the Communist world that the cause of the Viet Cong insurgency had little future. The leaders met for nine hours.

An atmosphere of warm Filipino friendliness for President Johnson and his fellow conferees was jolted two hours after deliberations ended by a brief but wild and noisy anti-Viet Nam demonstration by about 2,000 students across the street from Johnson's hotel.

What was made public from the discussions put heavy emphasis on the theme of peace and equally heavy stress on the idea that the desire for peace could not be interpreted as weakness or willingness to surrender to Communist demands.

Although the U.S. commander in Viet Nam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, told the summit conference there would be need for more troops there, he drew a picture of steadily declining Communist effectiveness. He said the troops would be needed for a program of pacification and reconstruction.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers, after the day's deliberations, quoted Johnson as saying allied unity and determination would bring a Viet Nam peace either through a peace conference or by a decision of the Communist side to stop its aggression.

He added: "Let the bullies of the world know that when they do attack their neighbors, the friends of their neighbors will be there to resist."

The United States has been underscoring its view of this meeting as a council that looks for peace rather than more war.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is not here with Johnson's delegation. The only other defense minister absent is New Zealand's.

There have been hints of Communist world interest in some approach to the peace table, hints which members of the seven delegations have given an attentive look.

But, pointedly, South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky told the conferees: "We must always remember that no effort to achieve peace can be successful if it is not made in consultation with the people and government of the Republic of Viet Nam."

Leftist students demonstrate in Manila

MANILA (P) -- About 2,000 Philippine students dramatized their opposition to the war in Viet Nam with a wild but brief fight Monday night with police outside President Johnson's hotel.

At one point, as police moved in with clubs and rifle butts to disperse the students, half a dozen police pistol shots were fired into the air.

After the battle, which lasted about 20 minutes, police hauled 20 students away in patrol wagons and 12 in ambulances. One American television cameraman's head was bloodied by a student wielding a bamboo pole.

Johnson, in Manila for the seven-nation summit conference on Viet Nam, was in his suite when the demonstration took place, just after 8:30 p.m. He could hear the faint echoes of the "Yankee go home!" slogans and the shouting and screaming of students as the police moved in.

The demonstrations, however spirited, were something less than the students had hoped for. Their leaders had predicted a turnout of 5,000 but less than half that number showed up.

It was enough, nevertheless, to get the vocal minority of Philippine students on the record with their fellows in Australia and New Zealand, who demonstrated against U.S. policies in Viet Nam during the President's visit to those countries.

The students began their demonstrations at dusk in front of the U.S. Embassy and all was noisy but orderly for two hours. Then they headed for the Manila Hotel about half a mile away.

Student bookstore plans are temporarily shelved

By DENICE ANDERSON
State News Staff Writer

Plans for a student-sponsored bookstore have been temporarily postponed with the resignation of Dave Steinway, ASMSU's bookstore steering committee director.

Steinway, whose resignation was accepted last week, investigated the possibility of establishing an ASMSU sponsored bookstore.

His duties, as quoted in the 1966-67 codification of the cabinet policy, were to "...obtain student reaction to the idea, correspond with universities who have (or attempted to have) a student-sponsored bookstore, confer with university administrators on the issue and estimate what the cost of such a project should be."

Terry Hassold, ASMSU cabinet president, expressed his disappointment that the project had not progressed as planned.

Much time was wasted with no immediate results and consequently, he said, they now have to start from scratch.

If such a bookstore existed, students would order books and then receive them later through the mail.

"There are obviously not enough students interested to make the project worthwhile," said Steinway, who resigned for what he termed personal and academic reasons.

He sent letters to universities in the Big Ten asking them to send reports on their experiences with student-sponsored bookstores.

The majority of replies Steinway received suggested that he drop the program.

"The administration," said Steinway, "answers all questions by answering no questions."

"They sent me in circles," he said,

"and gave me no definite answers."

The bookstore would have dealt mainly with University basics - ATL, natural science, social science and humanities.

A total of $10,000 would be needed for the initial output and the one basic problem was where the money would come from.

It would be impractical to handle used books, Steinway said, because there would be a tremendous amount of stock left over. "If we handled just the basics, the initial sales would be at the beginning of the term and would slack off after classes began," he said.

"Besides, we'd be in competition not only with the University-sponsored bookstore, but also with all the East Lansing bookstores."

Everyone is for a bookstore with lower-priced books, Steinway said, but no one will contribute to it.

NEW FAD: PAPER DRESSES

Styles go bark to bark

By ELLEN KARASIK

Paper dresses? It may sound like a flimsy idea but this new craze is nothing to sneeze at, except maybe when you've run out of tissues. These $1.98 mail order fashion pieces have proved a delight to men and a novel experience to women. In many instances, as time wears on the dress wears out. But if that happens just toss it in the waste basket or mend it with plastic tape as Sandy Mericle, Bel Air, Md. sophomore, did.

"A friend and I bought them as a joke,"

Miss Mericle said. "It was a hot evening when we decided to wear them to dinner at our dormitory. When my friend got up from her seat part of her dress just stuck there. I think the draft was worse than the embarrassment."

Even with this drawback Scott Paper Company has sold more than 500,000 paper dresses by mail order alone and Mars Manufacturing Company estimates their paisley $4 fall line will exceed one million in sales.

Although such fashion-minded New York stores like Lord & Taylor, B. Altman, Abraham and Strauss, and Gimbels have gone all out with paper dresses, it looks

Quick action will stem shrinking of greenery

A recent survey by the East Lansing Planning Commission indicated the need for more parks and recreational facilities in the East Lansing area. The Commission pointed out that the present park system is inadequate in the face of expanding population both in East Lansing and the University.

What's more, the study showed that the best sites for new parks are being purchased by developers for new apartment locations. This is true especially along the Red Cedar.

The Commission thinks present parks are inadequate on two counts. First, as East Lansing becomes larger the ratio of park acreage to population is deteriorating. Secondly, the facilities in the parks themselves are not adequate.

To end the problem the commission recommends that the city purchase and develop a new community park and build a new swimming pool. It also recommended that winter sports be the main attraction at a new park. People would be able to go tobogganing, and skiing without driving up north for the weekend.

Members of the university community who are residents of East Lansing would get a lot of enjoyment out of a park and pool, especially the winter sports the park would offer. In fact, the park would be a source of enjoyment and relaxation to everyone in the East Lansing area.

The commission estimates that the park and swimming pool will cost East Lansing residents a total of $500,000. In view of the expansion of apartment construction on ideal park sites, in view of the continuing growth of the East Lansing population, and in view of the Commission's findings that the present park facilities are inadequate, we think that the $500,000 bill for a new park and swimming pool would be one of the best spent half million dollars in East Lansing in many years.

How to avoid issues: juggle the facts

Chinese - American students in Boston have been declared legally white.

This ludicrous situation arose when the Massachusetts State Board of Education ruled that school systems with racially imbalanced schools could not receive state funds.

The Board defines racially imbalanced schools as those with over 50 per cent non-white students. So the Boston board simply reclassified its 671 Chinese - American students as "white" to make the schools more balanced.

This illustrates a trend in our society for administrators to duck issues by coming up with stop gap solutions to real problems.

Problem real

The problem of inequality of education is a painfully real one. Enforcing racial balance in schools is itself a somewhat artificial solution; avoiding this regulation by declaring that Chinese are "white," or by similar techniques, solves nothing and fools no one.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Advent of children of Leary

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following Guest Editorial was written by Bob Ewegen, editor of the Colorado Daily.

The life of a college generation is of short and indeterminate length.

Two or three years sees a majority turnover. By its very temporary nature, the tone of a college generation is subject to swift and radical change. Such a change may be occurring today.

The college students from the twilight of the Eisenhower years through the New Frontier on up to about 1965 were very much the children of Kennedy. Regardless of their particular philosophical orientation, they sought improvement in man's condition through governmental change and public action.

Now the tone seems to be changing, from outward orientation to inward orientation. The students who fueled the great civil rights movement, the peace movement, the student rights movements and the other great student efforts of the last few years seem to be disappearing, growing inactive, or losing influence. Their replacements are inwardly oriented, not outwardly. They seek outlets for their dreams in personal exploration rather than public involvement. The children of Kennedy are giving way to the children of Leary.

There are many possible reasons for this change. Many of the thrilling dreams of the past few years are today destroyed or mired down. The civil rights movement is bogged down amidst a primordial swamp of "Black Power" demagogues and the old "White Power" cretins. The goal of racial harmony and human progress looks further away now than it did in the fifties.

The peace movement is suffering a kind of emotional paralysis. Regardless of the petitions, teach-ins, demonstrations and political work, the war continues to grow ever larger and more brutal. The fire is feeding its own draft. The war is creating a warhawk spirit that strangles any rational arguments for peace. It is as if the war is obeying the old Russian maxim that when enough men are armed "the guns begin to speak of their own accord."

The Great Society programs, which once offered a new outlet to idealism, are now waylaid by the demands of the military machine and bogged down in gutter politics.

Perhaps these factors are the social backdrop which is producing the children of Leary. If it seems impossible to find a better life through outward, socially directed action, perhaps students feel the only alternative is to withdraw and find Valhalla within their own inner self with the help of a sugar cube.

This, of course, is the other factor, the spread of LSD. Simple to manufacture, impossible to detect within the human system, LSD offers the way to an internal paradise for the children of Leary.

The web of laws slowly beginning to surround LSD may simply be another "noble experiment" with even less chance of success.

Prohibition failed against alcohol, which is incredibly easier to find. A quart of John Barleycorn can stone two men. A quart of "acid" can stone a major city. Even marijuana, far weaker than LSD and probably less harmful than alcohol, is simple to control compared to LSD.

So the children of Leary can confidently expect to have at least the back door of their paradise ajar if they wish to enter. The question is then, will they enter, in what numbers, and what will happen to society as a result.

The most dangerous thing about LSD is that the intense personal expansion and discovery it produces seem to dull interest in the outside world. The children of Kennedy, anxious to remake a nation, carefully planned their tactics, chose their issues and to a degree played the game of realpolitik with its inevitable overtones of public relations and subtle compromise.

The children of Leary merely state their own summum bonum to the world, scorn anyone who remains "straight" and regard the necessary alliances and compromises of politics as "selling out." Above all, the children of Kennedy sought to communicate. The children of Leary wish only to proclaim their own reality and care little if they are understood by those who have never shared their religious experience.

The children of Kennedy have not yet departed. But if this is indeed a transitional stage they may walk beside the children of Leary for some time to come. Yet inevitably their paths must someday diverge.

An inner Camelot does not wipe out a Watts. A week-end "trip" does not erase poverty. The road to a private paradise and a public New Frontier cannot always coincide.

The motto of the children of Kennedy was, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country." The slogan of the children of Leary is simply, "Ask only what you can do for your senses."

The two standards are in deep conflict, and both are beamed at the college generation. The one accepted by this generation may well set the tone of American life for decades to come.

THE READERS' MINDS

'Militant apathetics reply'

To the Editor:

In the State News of October 18, there was a point-of-view article by Art Tung. "Militant Apathetic" prevails at U. Even though it is unfair to think that Tung was really serious, some of his statements and terminology cannot go uncorrected.

Look at the way he describes a 'militant apathetic': "This individual... fights to remain uncommitted" yet "yields either to 'general student will' or to the opinions of a minority," and though this exhausts the possibilities, Tung says, "That, in itself, is contradictory," he is an "attitude of negativism," i.e., skepticism or denial of reality, but we find he has decided to become involved in one or two issues.

However, he neglects the issues! He always argues on purely personal grounds, "forgets philosophy and principle" and, oh yes, he "is blindly idealistic." Then Tung in cheek, he says that the militant apathetic is a "contradictory character." We think there is a contradictory character here somewhere. Care to guess who?

Webster's Second International defines militant as "aggressively active in a cause; as, a militant suffragist" (Mr. Tung). But apathy is "an indifference to what appeals to feelings or interest or prompts to action." So a militant apathetic is not at all like Tung's bogeyman, but merely one who strongly believes in being apathetic. As Don Sockol quotes in his famous article, "A Third Party: the Apathetics," "We feel very strongly about our apathy" - hence this reply to explain the true meaning of 'militant apathetic.'

Mr. Tung has described a very unusual character (perhaps a member of the empty set), but hasn't said what this has to do with the 18-year-old vote, nor has he given evidence that such a nurd (definition: mythical beast, blamed by the Athenians for the fall of Athens) could or does exist let alone that he prevails on this campus. It is quite certain that Mr. Tung does not have an open mind at all, since he "argues purely along personal grounds" in a blindly idealistic fashion. One feels that his article is a brooding condemnation of those who did not support his pet cause.

The true Apathetic is militant in that he believes that apathy is the only sane attitude for an enlightened person to have. He is committed to being uncommitted. He feels that no involvement is worth the effort it takes.

But he isn't ignorant of the world around him, for he is usually quite well informed as to what is wrong with society. The apathetic feels the world is in so many more 'capable' hands (LBJ, Harold Wilson, George Hamilton, General Westmoreland, Zoltan Ferency, Charles de Gaulle, Ho Chi Minh, Charels Schulz, George Lincoln Rockwell, Tim Leary, Peter Webster) that his meager resources would be of no value.

The apathetic believes that mankind has courageously traded one social misery for another throughout history; and that the same results are gotten also by doing absolutely zilch - what's more, it's free! According to the Stoics, apathy means the extinction of the passions by the ascendancy of reason. Tung's article has achieved just the opposite. And Tung himself must be just the opposite of apathetic. Let's see, that would be pathetic.

SN talks to self

To the Editor:

The "Apathetic" student, or at least one "apathetic" student, waits in vain to see any glimmerings of real dialogue in the State News. Apparently the editors are willfully sleeping. What, for instance, would the editors do with a hypothetical dialogue as follows?

Editor: Do you approve of the war in Viet Nam?

"Apathetic" student: The question is not rightly stated. It should be, "Do you favor the destruction of Communist power in Viet Nam?"

Editor: All right, what would be your answer to that?

"Apathetic" student: Yes, I favor the destruction of Communist power, not only in South Viet Nam, but in North Viet Nam, Red China, and Soviet Russia, preferably beginning with the latter.

Editor: But Peace! Peace! What about World Peace?

"Apathetic" student: Go to Hell with your double-standard Peace. Do you think the people in Eastern Europe are having peace? As for me, I'll pray for war, if that's what must be before the phony standards of current peace talks are shown up, and the real foundation of peace have a chance of being recognized.

After initial shock, I suppose the editor would then trip happily back to his office with material for an item on evidence of local paranoia.

Keep talking to yourselves, editors!

Donations in doubt

To the Editor:

This year the faculty and students of MSU are called upon to contribute to the United Community Chest. The question is do all of the Chest Agencies promote the welfare of the community? Two of the agencies, the USO and the American Red Cross, indirectly support the U.S. war effort in Viet Nam.

I believe that war destroys the welfare of the community by creating prejudice and fear of those who are different from ourselves. Therefore I urge those faculty and students who are opposed to war to specify that their contribution be given to some other agency such as the Urban League or the Legal Aid Society whose contribution to the general welfare is not in doubt.

Malaysian leftists oppose Johnson

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—A leftist opposition to President Johnson's visit to Malaysia Sunday gained momentum today, with a warning to the U.S. chief of state not to set foot here.

The warning was contained in an open letter to the American consul general in Malaysia from 22 left-wing trade unions in Singapore. Copies were issued to newspapers there.

Search continues in Manila Bay

MANILA (AP)—Philippine navy frogmen dived into Manila Bay again and again today looking for bodies from the coastal steamer Pioneer Leyte which collided with an American freighter.

With 50 bodies recovered and the divers searching the wreck more than 50 feet below the surface, rescue authorities announced there are 172 known survivors and 33 persons still missing.

Sheppard may skip testimony in 2nd trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—Sam H. Sheppard went on trial Monday for the second time in the 1954 murder of his wife. He may not take the witness stand or offer any defense testimony whatsoever, it was hinted.

"A search for the truth, that is what we are embarked upon," Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Talty told an initial group of 15 women and nine men who were called as prospective jurors.

Sheppard, 42, spent three dramatic days on the stand at his first trial which ended in his conviction for second-degree murder of Marilyn Sheppard.

"If the defendant did not testify, would you feel that was any indication that he had something to hide?" defense attorney F. Lee Bailey of Boston, asked the very first jury prospect.

"No," replied Alan Severs, 38, a bachelor with a junior high school education.

"At the end of the state's case, if the defense says nothing and presents nothing, would this indicate to you the defense had something to hide?" went on Bailey.

Again Severs replied in the negative. He was tentatively seated as the first juror, but may be eliminated later if either the state or defense so desires.

By chance, it developed in questioning that Severs once worked in a firm owned by the late Thomas Reese, the father of Marilyn Sheppard.

Mrs. Sheppard, 31, four months pregnant, was bludgeoned to death July 4, 1954, in her lakefront home in Bay Village, a suburb 12 miles west of Cleveland.

Sheppard testified at his first trial that a bushy-haired stranger invaded his home while he was asleep, and knocked him unconscious after killing Marilyn.

Tried originally for his life on a first-degree murder charge, Sheppard was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. He won freedom on bail in 1964, and last spring the Supreme Court ruled him entitled to a second trial.

This time he is not charged with premeditated first-degree murder, but with a second-degree indictment that says he "unlawfully, purposely and maliciously killed Marilyn Sheppard."

300 celebrate
U.N.'s birthday

More than 300 area residents honored the "coming of age" of the United Nations Sunday during the Greater Lansing area U.N. Day observation program at Gabriels High School.

John Wingate, vice president of the Campus U.N., spoke during the program, urging students to take an active part in U.N. affairs. Wingate noted that while MSU's 38,000 students participate in numerous activities, comparatively few show interest in the U.N., an organization he feels essential to world peace.

Two other major speeches Sunday were given by Harold S. Johnson, assistant professor in political science, on the U.N.'s record, and John Taylor, philosophy professor, on the future of the U.N.

Johnson listed the assets and deficits of the U.N. 21-year history, emphasizing the U.N.'s less publicized human aid projects. Taylor spoke on the philosophy and future goals of the United Nations organization.

Maynard Miller, president of the Lansing Chapter of the U.N. Assn., said the day was to observe successes of the organization without ignoring the "disappointments" and to stimulate more intense interest in the nation's individuals.

During the three-hour observation, Rev. Warren Day conducted an ecumenical prayer service keyed to an international level. Anwar Malik, president of the International Club, read in Arabic and English from the Koran. Dharendra Sharma, visiting professor from India, read selections from Gandhi's writings and articles on the Hindu religion in both English and his native tongue.

A Greek Orthodox representative read the Sermon on the Mount.

Exhibits were made by Peace Corps returnees. Justin Morrill students who toured Spain and Russia this summer, area high school U.N. groups and grade school children.

Films were shown throughout the afternoon on U.N. projects.

Honors College
petitions sent

Petitions for the Honors College Student Board, a body which will act as a dialogue between faculty and students and coordinate co-curricular activities, are being sent out again this week, said Robert C. Andringa, assistant director of the Honors College.

Due to a mailing problem the petitions sent out last week reached only on-campus students. However, Andringa noted, 20 petitions for the 12-man board have already been filed.

Andringa also said that the Honors College is compiling a library of published MSU faculty work for its approximately 1,300 students.

The assistant director said that this research facility will complement the collection of career materials and advanced study catalogs already available in the Honors College offices.

Red Cedar trash bash
nets truck load of flotsam

Nearly a truckful of trash was picked up from the banks and waters of the Red Cedar Sunday by members of the MSU Outing and Forestry clubs.

The 15 members of the clubs staged their Red Cedar "Clean-up Campaign" between Farm Lane and Hagadorn Road.

Among the things that were picked up were about 500 cans and bottles, an old umbrella, a "Caution" sign, a "Contemporary Living" sign, an old shoe, a suitcase in two pieces, a paint trough, paint brush and empty paint can, all the same color, three dead fish and a usable snow tire.

"We could have picked up twice as much beyond the Hagadorn Bridge," said Jay Stewart, East Lansing senior, who was the organizer and trip leader of the Outing Club project.

The group met at 2 p.m. at the Canoe Shelter and divided into crews. Some of the crews worked up the river in canoes to pick up floating and sunken cans and bottles. The others, equipped with paper-picks and bags, scoured the banks for paper and trash.

The Maintenance Dept. supplied the group with canoes, paper-picks and a truck to haul the trash away.

The idea for the project, Stewart said, was conceived last fall by Sara Ulrey, East Lansing junior and Outing Club member, during a canoeing session.

West Shaw
canoe race
on Saturday

West Shaw Hall will try again for clear skies. The All-University Canoe Race, rained out two weeks ago, will be at 9 a.m. Saturday on the Red Cedar.

New entries will be accepted until 6 p.m. Friday.

The annual event will be run in heats of five teams each, with men's living units beginning the activities. Women's living units will challenge each other soon after 10 a.m.

The winning team of each division (off-campus men's, off-campus women's, on-campus men's and on-campus women's) will receive a trophy.

Two larger trophies will be awarded for men's best time and women's best time.

The race for the men's division will start at the Farm Lane Bridge, proceed to a marker near the end of East Shaw Hall, and return to a finish-line several yards short of the starting line.

The women's course will extend only to a marker near the middle of Shaw Hall and back to the finish.

In case of rain, the event will be held Sunday.

70,000 BUSHELS

Grounds staff busy

By CHRIS O'CONNOR

The grounds department has about 70,000 bushels of leaves to blow away this month.

It's a big job—even with tractor drawn blowers. A new, two-man blower with wind velocity of 1,500 m.p.h. is being tried on north campus this fall and may replace the old trailer mounted Ratio-mist sprayer. About 14 men are on this detail, many of them using smaller equipment for less accessible areas of the campus.

Fall is a busy time for grounds workers. Besides keeping up with the output of 17,000 trees, they have to winterize equipment and prepare snow plows for use.

"Snow is the most difficult job to handle," said Burt D. Ferris, superintendent of grounds maintenance. Sixty-five miles of sidewalk and 40 miles of roads have to be cleared before sleep-dents leave for their eight o'clocks.

The grounds staff varies from about 135 in summer to 70 in winter months. Many are students. There's quite a turnover because of the seasonal nature of the job. But some, like equipment operator Fremont Edwards, have been here for nearly 30 years.

Over the years, the department has had some strange calls for help. In the early '50's a team of workers rescued a peacock from the library—or the library from a peacock.

A problem this year is the fate of the Red Cedar ducks. With the old power plant no longer in use there is some fear that the river will freeze, even at the dam. The grounds department is prepared to install pumps to keep the water circulating.

"Everything above the ground is ours," Ferris said, including problem peacocks, ducks, and lots and lots of leaves.

X-ray unit visits married housing

The chest x-ray unit of Ingham County will continue its visits to the married housing areas through Thursday. This service began Monday at University Village.

The unit will be open 4-8 p.m. Tuesday at the Cherry Lane Apartments and 4-8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at Spartan Village.

Arrangements for this service were made by the Spartan Wives. Besides married students, anyone 21 years of age or older is eligible for a free x-ray.

Autumn Leaves

You use a vacuum cleaner to clean your room, so why shouldn't the Grounds Dept. use a vacuum cleaner to pick up the fallen leaves on campus? Only one problem remains, disposing of the leaves after they are collected. State News photo by Larry Fritzlan

WELCH BEQUEST

Helps Flint youth

By DOROTHY LASKEY
State News Staff Writer

To most people the wealth of America rests in her physical and economic resources, but the late James A. Welch of Flint felt the wealth and potential of every community rested in its youth.

Welch, a Flint real estate developer, realized that a good community had the obligation to develop the talents of its richest potential, its young people, or through waste, suffer an irreparable loss.

The scholarship foundation memorializing his name is pledged to carry out that philosophy.

Today 23 students from the Flint area, attending MSU through benefits from the Welch Foundation, will meet with its vice-president and executive director for a luncheon at the Union.

The Foundation, in its third year, keeps in contact with its students throughout their university or college training.

According to the Welch Foundation philosophy, counseling and guidance are two neglected areas of modern education. The result, they feel, is loss of many students of high ability. Then philosophy maintains that early identification perhaps at the junior high level, and encouragement of exceptional children by testing, guidance, and counseling is one way to salvage lost manpower.

Records of accomplishment and biographical data will be maintained for each student under assistance.

The Foundation contributes in the form of financial compensation to regular school counselors enabling them to spend additional time with worthy students.

Sometimes the Foundation works directly with high schools and colleges to assist with in-service training of guidance and counseling personnel.

The Welch Foundation itself will grant a few scholarships to deserving students, but its main purpose is to provide a caliber of service that will attract gifts from other sources, particularly from persons, institutions or foundations wishing to contribute to this effort.

Sink proposes student-made film

Student Board member-at-large Jim Sink is looking for students interested in investigating the possibilities of producing an all-University student movie.

Persons interested in working on this committee should leave their names in the ASMSU office at 308 Student Services or call 355-8266.

A five-man committee will be appointed by Jim Graham, chairman of ASMSU, upon recommendation by Sink. Sink stresses that any person interested may help.

Sink is proposing a student-produced movie using a fictional situation rather than a documentary on student life.

"I think there is an awful lot of student talent which is untapped," Sink said.

"It would involve what we learn in our academic world, bringing it into our extracurricular world," he said.

Sink plans to speak to department heads and major governing groups for assistance in this program. He hopes that students working on the movie would receive academic credit from their departments. Faculty would then assist, but only in an advisory capacity.

Sink points out also that the movie would probably take at least two years to complete. It could then be shown for entertainment around the campus and at other Big Ten campuses, who would hopefully pick up the idea.

Synka Curtis is crowned Kappa Sweetheart '66-67

Miss Synka Curtis, Detroit junior from Delta Sigma Theta, was crowned Kappa Sweetheart for 1966-67 at the Kappa Alpha Psi Homecoming Coronation Ball at the Lansing Civic Center Saturday night.

Attending the semi-formal affair were an estimated 400 persons for whom the presentation of the queen and her court was the highlight of the evening. Miss Curtis, who was also a member of last year's court, and her court were given trophies and roses.

Other members of the Sweetheart Court were: Ruth Scott, Detroit sophomore; Mary Ann Smith, Detroit sophomore; Jamete Turner, Washington, D.C., sophomore; Rosalie Wilson, North Carolina sophomore; and Jacqueline Edwards, Detroit sophomore.

Ingrid Saunders, Detroit senior who reigned as Sweetheart last year, was also presented a trophy.

Mirror, mirror...
Considering the Big Ten looking glass is nothing but an ordinary reflector, the image bouncing back is enough to bleach the Jolly Green a spanking white.

While Michigan State stands on one side of the mirror with a perfect 4-0 league-leading record, Iowa glares opposite, sitting in the cellar with an 0-4 mark.

And while the Spartans are happily on their way after their second consecutive Big Ten title, it's only natural that the hapless Hawkeyes should be queuing after their initial conference win.

Despite a 24-15 loss to Northwestern Saturday, the Hawks made some local history of their own. A seven-yard touchdown pass from Ed Podolak to Allan Bream late in the fourth period was the first Hawkeye TD in 21 quarters.

Podolak rambled 87 yards for Iowa's final score. The Wildcats wrapped up their activity on a three-yard scoring run by Bob Olson.

Running down the conference records, all but Iowa have a win under their belts after Saturday's action.

The Spartans are 4-0 in the conference and 6-0 all games, having gained sole possession of the No. 1 spot after their 41-20 battle with Purdue.

The Boilermakers are tied with Illinois in second place at 2-1. Purdue is 4-2 in all games while the Illini are 2-4.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana and Northwestern are tied for fourth at 1-1-1. The Badgers and Wildcats are 2-3-1 on the season, while the Hoosiers and Gophers stand 1-4-1.

Tied for eighth are Michigan and Ohio State, 1-2 in Big Ten play. The Wolves are 3-3 on the year, while OSU is 2-3 in all games. Iowa brings up the rear, 0-4 and 1-5.

Michigan took a long, satisfying swig from the Little Brown Jug after trouncing Minnesota, 49-0. Wolverine signal-caller Dick Vidmer hurled three touchdown passes, two to Jack Clancy and one to Rick Sygar.

Ohio State got that elusive first win, rallying for two touchdowns in the final quarter to defeat Wisconsin, 24-13.

There were two non-conference games on the card and Big Ten representatives Indiana and Illinois did their part to lower the conference's record against non-league foes to 10-17.

Indiana and Miami (Fla.) met in the Orange Bowl Friday night. The Hurricanes turned a Hoosier fumble into the winning score, coming from behind to win, 14-7.

Phil Messer recovered an Illinois fair-catch fumble as Stanford squeaked by the Illini, 6-3.

FBI nabs another in LSU bribe case

BATON ROUGE, LA. (UPI)—The FBI today arrested a second man and issued a warrant for a third in connection with alleged attempts to bribe Louisiana State University football players.

Robert E. Rightmyer, special agent in charge of the New Orleans FBI office, said Joseph Lee Nolan, 26, of Baton Rouge, was arrested at his apartment and charged with sport bribery. Rightmyer said the warrant was issued for Samuel Freddie Comeaux, 26, also of Baton Rouge.

Samuel Graziano, 26, a Baton Rouge barber, was arrested last Tuesday when the case first broke.

Graziano was charged with trying to bribe LSU tailback Jim Dousay, strongback Billy Masters and fullback Gawan Dibetta. He waived a preliminary hearing last week and was free on $5,000 bond.

LSU officials said the three players had been approached months ago, and had worked as undercover agents to gather the evidence ever since.

quez of the World Boxing Council, he came to where I sat and helped me into the ring," Dr. Bolanos declared.

"After I examined the cut, I told him the fight should continue, and that the cut and hematoma did not imply any danger for Ramos."

Meanwhile, Luis Spota, President of the World Boxing Council said that the dispute would be taken up at a meeting Monday night.

A verbal agreement for a return match between Ramos and Ortiz in Mexico City next April was announced, and it was indicated that the council might declare the title vacant pending that encounter.

The state of Mexico Boxing Commission also scheduled a meeting Monday night to determine whether to release Ortiz's purse and Conn's fee.

Duffy's new line: keep 'em guessing

By ED BRILL
State News Sports Writer

Michigan State Football Coach Duffy Daugherty gleefully spooned up his chicken noodle soup at the weekly press luncheon Monday afternoon, and gloated over the Spartans' suddenly explosive offense.

"You remember that long pass to Al Brenner," Daugherty asked with apparent concern. "That play was put in by one of the ladies in our football class."

When he did stop joking for a short time, Daugherty told of some of the innovations that have changed his offense from "run, run, run," to "keep 'em guessing."

"I don't mind throwing that much," Daugherty insisted, "because we weren't throwing out of desperation. In our game plan we felt we would have to throw early, because they had 11 men within two or three yards of the line of scrimmage to stop runs."

"Anyone who disregards Raye's passing threat now," continued Daugherty, "is taking a big chance. Brenner takes a lot of pressure off Gene Washington, and gives us much more balance in our passing attack."

One of the big plays in Raye's repertoire has been a bootleg pass or run. "This is the first year we have ever run this play in this way," Daugherty started in describing the option.

"Raye calls a pass, but he comes out from under the center with idea 'I'm going to run,'" Daugherty continued. "If the cornerback comes up, and he can't run, then he should be able to throw."

"This is one thing that Raye does better than anybody I've ever seen," said Daugherty. "Some great running quarterback stops to decide whether or not to throw."

"Jimmy takes one quick look,"

Daugherty let out a sharp whistle, "and bingo - he's gone." By the time he takes his third step back from center, he yells to the guards "run," if he is keeping.

Daugherty also unveiled a new I-formation for the first time in Saturday's game.

"Power plays, and belly series are easier to run from an I," Daugherty commented. "We also wanted to give Clinton Jones an opportunity to exploit some of great inside running ability, since teams have been defending our wide sweeps."

And what about that attempted double reverse to Clinton Jones, that was stopped for a two-yard loss, Saturday?

"Actually, that play came very close to breaking loose," said Daugherty, "but one of their players wasn't standing where he should have."

"You might say that they out-dubbed us on that one," joked Daugherty, who is apparently getting as much fun out of his new offense as the Spartan fans.

M.D. calls Conn liar in title fight issue

MEXICO CITY (UPI) -- Dr. Gilberto Bolanos Cacho, Mexico City Boxing Commission physician, Monday said "Billy Conn is lying if he says I told him to stop the fight" between Puerto Rican Carlos Ortiz and Sugar Ramos.

The bout for the world lightweight championship ended in a riot Saturday when referee Conn stopped the fight. Conn awarded the fight to Ortiz on a fifth round TKO but a ringside official reversed the decision giving the title to Ramos by forfeit.

Conn said that at the end of the fourth round he had asked Dr. Bolanos to examine the cut on Ramos's left eyelid, and that he had refused, saying that if the cut got worse, Conn should stop the fight.

"The only contact I had with Conn was when, after talking with Professor Ramon Velaz-

Gene Kenney, Michigan State's soccer coach, was appointed to the Midwest NCAA Tournament Selection Committee Monday. Kenney, along with the other members, will be responsible for selecting the Midwest representatives who will meet in a playoff for the NCAA championship at the University of California December 1 - 3. Kenney's teams have compiled an 87-10 record, 7-0 this year, in his tenure at MSU.

RUSH SIGN-UP

Pan Hel lists rules

To aid rushees in obtaining a complete picture of MSU sororities during fall teas and formal rush, the Pan Hellenic Council has formulated a list of rush regulations.

These regulations are to be observed by both sorority members and rushees, and they deal with eligibility and conduct during the formal stages of rush. Those rules concerning eligibility are:

1. A minimum requirement of a 2.0 all-University average and a 2.0 the term preceding the rushing is necessary to rush. Some sororities have even higher scholastic requirements. It is necessary to be carrying 12 credit hours to participate in rush.
2. Each rushee must sign up during fall rush sign-up period before fall teas. Late sign-ups will not be accepted.

Rules to be observed during formal rush are:

1. No sorority woman is to talk to a rushee woman about her specific sorority or anything pertaining to rush.
2. No prospective rushee may visit a house with the exception of sisters who may visit only until fall teas.
3. There shall be no use of men to influence rushees.
4. There shall be no planned double dating with a rushee.
5. No rushee shall visit any house more than once during any one stage of rush.
6. No advance invitation to pledge and no ribbons may be extended before the specified date.
7. Infractions will be dealt with by the Pan Hellenic Executive Council.

This year's membership quota has been raised from 80 to 85 girls for each sorority. Anyone interested in becoming acquainted with the Greek system should register for rush before Friday.

Sign-up will take place today in Hubbard Hall, Wednesday in the Union Ballroom and Thursday and Friday on the third floor of Student Services.

Amateur file on musicians

A central clearing house where interested chamber musicians can leave their names and find the names of other players has been set up by William F. Long, a NASA fellow in the Physics Dept.

Amateur musicians have been leaving MSU without getting together for informal music sessions with their fellow musicians, Long said.

Edgar Kirk, associate professor of music, has offered to keep a file of those singers and instrumentalists interested in various kinds of small ensembles.

All amateur musicians are being urged to sign the list.

Takeoff

Viet war in lull; Yanks clear area

SAIGON (AP) -- About 2,000 men of the 1st Infantry Division pushed along the banks of the Saigon River Monday to clear Viet Cong from an area marked for the resettlement of South Vietnamese civilians.

American troops were said to be hitting Viet Cong moving in sampans under the cover of darkness.

It was the only major action reported as the Viet Nam war continued in one of its periodic lulls.

A civilian bus hit a Viet Cong mine north of Hue, killing 15 Vietnamese and injuring 20. In other action the Communists rained mortar shells on two American positions, but a general upsurge in terrorism or a large-scale offensive by the Communists to coincide with the opening of the Manila summit conference apparently failed to materialize.

Intelligence reports reaching allied commanders last week had indicated stepped up action by the Viet Cong to coincide with the Manila conference. American commanders had prepared for the expected surge.

Monsoon rains again hampered the U.S. air offensive over North Viet Nam, as pilots were able to get in only 51 missions Sunday, one of their lightest days this year. In South Viet Nam, high-flying U.S. B52 bombers from Guam pounded suspected Communist troop concentrations and supply areas 18 miles southwest of Hue.

As the Manila conference ended its first day, there was no sign that the Communists were responding to it except in their radio broadcasts or other propaganda statements.

Westmoreland said in Manila that more troops would be needed for a program of pacification and reconstruction in what President Johnson calls "the other war" in Viet Nam.

The 1st Infantry Division operation, centered about 15 miles north of Saigon, was being carried out in connection with efforts of Vietnamese local forces to resettle civilians in the area.

The operation, first called Bethlehem and then changed to Allentown, began Oct. 19 and so far has accounted for 39 Viet Cong killed and large amounts of weapons and supplies, including 5,500 pounds of rice, seized, a U.S. military spokesman said.

GOLDBERG

Bomb halt won't end war

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) -- U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg said Monday the United States considers the three-point peace plan of U.N. Secretary-General U Thant a package proposal for scaling down the war.

"The war will not come to an end if the bombing stops," Goldberg declared in an interview on the NBC television show "Today."

There is pressing for an unconditional halt to the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, a military de-escalation by both sides and representation for the National Liberation Front - the political arm of the Viet Cong - in peace negotiations.

In a U.N. Day statement marking the 21st anniversary of the world organization, Thant described the war in Viet Nam as "not only a disaster for the Vietnamese people, but also a constant threat to world peace." He said also that "peaceful solutions must be found to this and other persistent conflicts."

Goldberg said that in the U.S. view Thant has advanced a package proposal that contemplates a scaling down of the war.

Spinster Spin chairman sought

Planning must begin soon for Spinster Spin, but a general chairman must be found first. Petitions are available in living units for general chairman and committee heads for this year's dance, to be held Feb. 23.

These positions are open to girls with at least sophomore standing who have had some organizational experience. Heads are needed for the following committees: finance, publicity, decorations, Mr. MSU, tickets and programs, chaperones and guests, pre-party and band.

Petitions should be returned to 309 Student Services by noon today. Interviews will be held at 7:30 tonight in the Dean's Conference Room, Student Services.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Myrna Demarest, 332-6514, or Sue Mallman, 355-7233.

Tight money binds housing

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The President of the National League of Insured Savings Associations says he expects the current shortage of money for housing to continue through the middle of next year.

And, added Harry P. Greep, high interest rates on the small amount of money that is available for home loans also will continue into next summer.

"A careful study of the problem indicates that federal authorities will be required to take further regulatory steps to assist savings institutions before they will be in any position to resume normal mortgage lending operations," Greep said.

The tight money situation, he explained Saturday night in a report prepared for the league's annual meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico, already has forced the number of housing starts this year to drop to 1.2 million units from 1.5 million in 1965.

FAMILIES HELP

Foreign students share U.S. life

Approximately 100 new MSU foreign students will soon experience American family life through the efforts of the Host Family Committee.

Letters have been sent by the volunteer committee informing those students who their host families will be and to the families giving information about their new family members.

During registration foreign students interested in forming friendships with area families were asked to fill out forms listing their country, major interests and favorite pastimes. This list was then paired off with area residents interested in the project.

For eight years students arriving from other countries have been able to share in community activities, attend picnics, visit farms, parks, factories or power plants or just relax in typical American homes in the Lansing area.

After two initial meetings between student and family, activities are planned according to time available and interests of the people involved.

Mrs. Miller O. Perry, chairman of the committee, said that the students may request different host homes at any time. She added that normally, however, the students retain friendships with the same family during the period they remain in the United States.

Sometimes correspondence develops between the student's "adopted" family and his family at home.

Besides the new participants this term, many of the international students on campus meet with families they met their first term here.

Similar programs are carried on by various universities across the nation with a significant foreign enrollment, according to Mrs. Perry. Each system varies in accordance with local needs.

'Social' group independent

Students Off-Campus (SOC) begins its second year as an independent social organization under the leadership of president Donald Pribble this fall.

Until last year SOC and Off-Campus Council (OCC) were one organization functioning jointly as a social and political body.

With the establishment of MSU's Associated Students' government the functions were divided.

SOC, described as the "social sister" or "social arm" of OCC, has offices and a lounge on the fourth floor of the Union. OCC, the petitioning, planning and politicking body, is housed in the Student Services Bldg.

SOC was the original off-campus student organization, initiated in the late 1950's.

McCullough said that there are about 200 active members, mostly from the Lansing area, in the organization.

Since approximately one-third of MSU's student population lives off-campus, SOC has a potential 10,000 membership.

SOC's major activity this term is sponsorship of the annual Computer Dance. A hayride and term party are also planned.

Secretary Pam Hurlbert said that due to lack of participation this fall's term party will be a closed activity. Previously SOC term parties were "all university" affairs.

This term's officers are: Miss Hurlbert, Pribble, Bill McCullough, vice president, Mark Chartrand, vice - president and Mary Delaney, treasurer.

Greek Week

Petitioning for Greek Week chairmanships will begin today and continue through Friday.

Chairmen for 16 committees, ranging from treasurer to publicity are being sought.

Greeks interested in such positions may apply to the IFC-Pan Hel offices in 309 and 307 Student Services Building.

ASMSU to hear proposals tonight

Major proposals to be presented before the ASMSU Student Board at its meeting tonight include the final report of the compensation committee, the deletion of the Miss MSU pageant and a student opinion survey to accompany the Nov. 1 referendum.

Ralph Faust will discuss the final compensation report with the board. A system of implementation of compensation must also be established. The board itself cannot take action on the report, since the compensation committee is an anonymous group.

A motion will come from the agenda committee to delete the Miss MSU pageant. Members of the committee feel that it is an inappropriate project for student government and that the project does not justify its expense.

Paper dresses

like it will take a while before Lansing stores fall into the paper dress fold.

Buyers from Knapp's, Jacobsons, Sears and Penneys fashion departments all admitted to never seeing a paper dress. Herbert Johnson, Sears' fashion manager, said, "We have no plans of getting these dresses in the near future. But it's a novelty I doubt if we'd put them on the rack with the other dresses anyway."

But would a college girl actually purchase a creation of 93% ordinary paper and 7% nylon, even if it was designed by the renowned Scott?

"It's great to wear around the dorm and for studying," Miss Mericle said, "but they aren't perfected enough to wear to class. You never know when you'll come undone. Besides, what college girl wants to be known wearing a dollar paper dress that she got with a Pillsbury boxtop?"

What next? Saran Wrap, maybe?

the board, worked with Ted O'Neill, director of student opinion research, to prepare a tentative questionnaire to be distributed with the all-University referendum Nov. 1 on the $1,000 allocation to the 18-year-old vote campaign.

The questionnaire is primarily concerned with student opinion in areas of student government involvement, on the 18-year-old vote, on the indications of the initiative and referendum and students' impression of ASMSU in general.

The board will also discuss an amendment to the Code of Operations to provide for an annual rather than a term budget. They will consider dropping the International Student Organizations department, and a proposal to set up a semi-anonymous office related to travel discounts.

Students are invited to attend board meetings, which are held each Tuesday night at 7 in 308 Student Services.

Board members may yield the floor to students who wish to speak during members privilege period. These students would then be subjected to the rules of members privilege; they may speak only once and for no longer than three minutes.

ADS plans get-together

The local chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma is kicking off the new year with a faculty-student get-together on Wednesday, October 26 in the Engineering Auditorium at 7:30.

The program will feature a speech on "Professionalism" by the Chairman of the Advertising Department, John Crawford.

Other highlights will include the introduction of the two new advertising faculty members and a chance to informally chat with the faculty members over a cup of coffee.

ADS is a national professional advertising fraternity with 52 active undergraduate chapters from Coast to Coast for all students interested in the field of advertising.

'TO DIE IN MADRID'

Film depicts the futility of Spanish Civil War

By JOHN CLARK

"Say that we saw Spain die. O splendid bull, how well you fought! / Lost from the first."

And how logical that the people lost the Spanish Civil War, fighting against an overwhelming enemy. And how illogical the massacre -- the smoke, the fire, the mangled bodies. How agonizing the wounds of war -- the broken bodies, the broken spirits.

To force free, comfortable, self-indulgent people to feel this agony by simply seating them before a picture on a screen is a power unique to the art of the motion picture. Frederic Rossif has compiled statistics, maps, newsreels, stills, new film and narration and molded them into an emotion -- an angered yet helpless sorrow for the brotherhood and the freedom which was lost, and for those who died in losing it.

"To Die in Madrid" is a verbal and pictorial elegy to the agony and futility of this and all wars. The photography, the realism of the old interspersed within the intense naturalism of the new, is reinforced by a narration of highly varied emotionality and inference delivered by Sir John Gielgud and Irene Worth, among others.

An unemotional narration seems to serve most effectively as the background for such intense film work. Clinical enumeration of tactics, battle maneuvers, and statistics drones on behind visions of ravaged plains, mangled bodies, and helpless, crying orphans. Diplomacy is outlined in all its complexity while leaders are shown over and over, in identical film clips, entering and re-entering conferences intended to effect a solution to the war. In the context of the film, this should clearly be seen as a technique to illustrate the stupidity and impotence of diplomatic bickering while people are dying, but the audience seemed to see it as comic relief rather than tragedy. This was, evidently, a minor flaw in effectiveness in an otherwise overpoweringly effective film.

"To Die in Madrid," dedicated to the journalists of all nationalities who worked and died presenting to the world the tragedy of the Spanish Civil War, may be classified as an editorial documentary, if it must be classified. Using real newsreels or newsreel technique in most of its filming, it is still able to create a unified mood and tone, and to treat a theme in an almost poetic fashion. It is moving and depressing, and it is inspired in almost every aspect of its creation.

New budget policy for ASMSU

ASMSU comptroller Cliff Kolbus is working with student board and cabinet members to prepare for the first time an annual budget for student government.

The budget would be in effect from January, 1967, to December, 1967.

Kolbus explained that an advantage of an annual budget would be the time saved from discussing a budget each term.

"It is more difficult to prepare an annual budget," Kolbus said. "The difficulty is with the directors, who will have to think ahead and plan events and projects."

Tax income will either be estimated or will be planned around the budget, Kolbus said.

An annual budget will require a change in the ASMSU Code of Operations. Kolbus will ask for this change at tonight's student board meeting.

Terry Hassold, cabinet president, is working with Kolbus in planning budget requests for the cabinet. His vice presidents and department heads must complete reports of future activities and events for the year by Thursday.

Reports will be reviewed by Hassold and Kolbus to estimate figures for the budget request, which will probably not be presented to the student board for three or four weeks, Kolbus said.

MHA VOTES

Still against pay

Men's Halls Assn. voted Thursday night to maintain its original stand against the compensation issue despite the compensation committee's decision Wednesday to provide compensation for ASMSU officials.

MHA reached this decision after a presentation by Ralph Faust, chairman of the compensation committee, and an open discussion.

Two major changes were incorporated into the final report and passed by the committee, Faust said. One recommends that a public opinion poll, statistically validated, be taken. The second change recommends that the dates calling for committee reports be pushed back to allow more time for student opinion to be known.

Robert Richards, instructor in social sciences, also addressed MHA on the possibility of an all-university symposium to be held in January to stress better student-faculty communication and contact.

He explained that January was chosen as the date for the possible symposium because several outstanding social commentators will be appearing on campus then to discuss some of these problems.

AT TEXAS BRIDGE

Sheriffs break up protest, 12 farm workers arrested

ROMA, Tex. (AP) - Deputy sheriffs arrested 12 farm workers Monday--some of them were handcuffed and dragged to police cars--and broke up a demonstration which had blocked traffic on the International Bridge at this tiny south Texas town.

Fifty to 60 lower Rio Grande Valley farm workers marched onto the span before dawn in an effort to cut off the flow of Mexican farm workers into Texas.

The first two arrested were Eugene Nelson and Bill Chandler, organizers for the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee.

en who would not move were jailed on charges of obstructing a public bridge. County Atty. Randall Nye said the maximum sentence is a $200 fine.

Nelson, a Californian, worked last year with farm workers in the Delano grape strike, was handcuffed and dragged into a car. Some demonstrators then sat down.

Nye warned the group in English and Spanish that all would be arrested unless they left. "Why should we when you are going to arrest us anyway?" asked Chandler.

"You all know you are doing wrong, so get off the bridge," Nye replied.

Chandler was then arrested. Some demonstrators moved onto the Mexico side of the bridge at one point. But Mexican police forced them back.

The demonstrators chanted "Viva la Huelga!" and sang protest songs in Spanish, including "We Shall Overcome."

Nelson and several other demonstrators had participated in a 400-mile-long Fourth of July-to-Labor Day march from the valley to the state Capitol to Austin to dramatize the strike, which began this summer.

It's What's Happening

The staff of the Spartan Engineer Magazine will sponsor an organizational meeting at 7 tonight at 144 Engineering Building. All students interested in the publication are welcome.

The MSU Outing Club will present a narrated film on the Michigan activities of the American Youth Hostels at a meeting at 7 tonight in 128 Natural Science.

Plans for upcoming events will also be discussed at the meeting. Activities Chairman Dion Stewart, East Lansing Junior, announced that these will include a cave exploring trip, a rock climbing trip and a canoeing expedition.

The group is leading a strike against growers in a bid for higher wages, seeking a minimum of $1.25 an hour, and say workers now receive from 40 cents to $1. Texas has no minimum wage law and farm workers are not covered by federal law.

The demonstrators, some of whom sat down in the roadway, cut off traffic on the busy bridge for about an hour. Roma is some 100 miles up the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

They stretched a large banner reading "Huelga" -- strike -- across the bridge, and stood shoulder to shoulder, blocking automobile and pedestrian lanes.

Most of the men and women agreed to move off the roadway after deputies arrived. The doz-

George Bernard Shaw be darned!

Youth isn't wasted on the young. And the young don't waste their time at Celanese.

Our top people are never old-fashioned about any new idea, whether it comes from middle management or from our youngest college grad. We have a master plan and the vitality to make it work. Marketing is way-out and zeroed right in. Finance knows that we have better things to do with our money than let it grow barnacles... shelled out $465 million in capital expenditures over the last 3 years. In the scientific department, we combine technical insight with an unusual grasp of marketing dynamics.

Thinking young explains how we chalked-up one of the most impressive corporate rebuilding jobs in recent history. How we turned what was basically a one-product business into a solid and diverse international corporation dealing in chemicals, miracle fibers, plastics, paints, petroleum and forest products. How we multiplied sales 5 fold in 10 years. How we now have 100 plants in the U.S., Canada, Latin America, Europe, Africa and Asia.

Possibly we could afford to relax a little. But success makes young blood run even faster.

Which means that the ambitious college grad couldn't find a more provocative opportunity anywhere else in American industry.

Agenda:

A Spirited Discussion of the Report of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs

First, Michael Harrington started a war. Now he's turned to revolution!

Michael Harrington's THE OTHER AMERICA has been credited with playing an important role in starting the War on Poverty. As Eliot Fremont-Smith wrote in The New York Times, "It therefore has the distinction of being one of those rare books that directly influence political action."

In his new book THE ACCIDENTAL CENTURY, Michael Harrington examines the cultural and intellectual crisis confronting the United States and the rest of the Western world in the 20th century. This crisis has been brought about by the "accidental revolution," in which an unplanned social and creative technology has haphazardly reshaped our lives and put in doubt all our ideologies and beliefs. The resulting decadence threatens to destroy Western civilization and with it the Western concept of man.

This exciting and provocative book by one of the most brilliant social critics of our time is being widely read... widely discussed on and off campuses all over America. Don't miss it. $1.25
