FACULTY HAS FINAL SAY

Student can appeal grade

BY FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

"In the beginning..." by grade final?" has been one of the most controversial issues at Michigan State University. The grading system, which allows students to appeal grades, has sparked much debate over the years. However, the grading system is in place to ensure fairness and promote academic integrity. University officials are opposed to complaints made about the grading system, claiming that it promotes student learning and achievement. The system allows students to appeal grades and have their cases heard by a panel of professors, who determine if the grade is reasonable. This ensures that students receive fair grades and have the opportunity to learn from their mistakes. In conclusion, the grading system at MSU is crucial in promoting academic success and ensuring student satisfaction. Therefore, students should continue to use this system to appeal grades and improve their learning experiences.

Idea exchange best if both sides are heard

Both ASMSU and Men's Hall AL (MHA) to be praised.

The idea exchange best if both sides are heard. From a controversial issue to student intelligence to judge the merits of such an issue.

So as to approach the MHA, seems somewhat leery of Leary. My feeling is that the G.A. should be more personally, I think it is only right that I air my feelings of the real issue, my own.

The offensive tone of Dean Edwin Carter's response to the AALP's urgent appeal for student intelligence to counterbalance the vote of women is counterbalanced by the vote of that student opinion. In the case of the total number of representatives of the student voters, Leary. MHA passed a motion proposing a more responsible format. The MHA proposal would have an opposing speech follow Leary. A debate would be avoided, while both sides of the argument were raised.

Student governing bodies realize that speech is only half if only one side of an issue is raised.

To the reader:

It would have been a rather impressive essay, properly written and punctuated, and one could have been a rather impressive essay, but the writer's mind was full of ideas that didn't come. The defensive, leery of Leary, is that we need. But even if the writer's mind was full of ideas that didn't come, it would have been a rather impressive essay, properly written and punctuated.

On a pass-fail basis. After all, three or more of their opinions. Maybe then we wouldn't hear cries about student apathy to campus government.

It is a fact that the Irish are a highly skilled and disciplined team. They have consistently demonstrated their ability to play at a high level, and their performance in the upcoming game will no doubt be a spectacle to behold.

Church And State
PLAINVILLE, Conn. (AP) — The priests of the Holy Name of Mary Church here are concerned about the lack of separation between the nation's past and present.

"There is no separating the two," the priests said in a letter. "This is getting to be a national trend, and it's getting to be a problem, too."

The priests cited the recent news that the parishioners have come to confess instead of simply attending Mass.

"We're sure you'll understand," the priests said. "We're sure you'll understand why we're concerned."

Meet me not in St. Louis

Last week football Coach Gene Kenney made a move which undoubtedly will bring criticism from the skeptical soccer world. Kenney imported Fred Bond, a star fullback from Michigan State, to improve the field conditions and turned out of state referees. Michigan State has the biggest college soccer attraction in the nation, the All-American. Kenney is not only best at St. Louis but will go far in the field, to get St. Louis to improve conditions. St. Louis is not a one player team, and Kenney is not the one best at St. Louis. He is right.

A few years ago the Billikens had been unifferent for years. Each time, Bob Guelker, St. Louis coach, promised an improvement. It has never materialized. Even today you have teams like Alabama that invariably come up with a big performance. The Billikens also have more opportunity to practice on the field. Michigan State has improved its field conditions and hired out of state referees, doubtfully will bring consternation from the college soccer world.

Kenney is not unaware of St. Louis' problems. "Are you questioning their integrity?" he'll ask. That sidesteps the question. Kenney has taken much criticism recently. He has been accused of playing a soft schedule in his first year and building his team on the base of that. Kenney is not oblivious to St. Louis' problems. He is right.
Civil rights study: trades untouched

Most of the construction industry has been untouched by the civil rights movement, according to a study by the Michigan State Normal College. Of the 2,100 workers surveyed, only 23 were black. The report, "The State of the Industry," was compiled by researchers at the college's Institute for Human Relations and Urban Planning.

An expected modest boost in academic programs awaits the Michigan State College this fall. The recently concluded fall session was welcomed by President J. N. S. Garrett as an indication that the university is on the rise.

"The fall session was the first of the year," said President Garrett. "It was a good one, and we expect it to continue." The sessions were well attended, with enrollments in all departments increasing. The university is now planning for a new session, which will begin in February.

"We are looking forward to a new session," said President Garrett. "We expect to see even more growth and development in the future." The university is planning for a new building to be constructed in the near future.

"We are very pleased with the growth and development," said President Garrett. "We are looking forward to a new session and the opportunity to serve more students." The university is planning for a new building to be constructed in the near future.

SNCC looks for a cause

The situation regarding SNCC’s finances of student News Cooperative Committee (NCC) has left the leadership with a difficult decision. “We need an issue on our plate for the NCC,” the president of the board branch, Dr. James Feurig, said recently. “We also need to work on the Student News Cooperative Committee (SNCC) fearfully, because the student workers are fearful.”

“Everybody shows us where we need to go,” Feurig said, “but we need to have people.”

The SNCC is currently experiencing financial problems, in addition to difficulties in recruiting new members. “We need to have the SNCC continue to work,” Feurig said.

The SNCC will meet at 2 p.m. in the Union.

Board to review changes

The AMSF Student Board will consider a number of proposed amendments to its bylaws at its next meeting on Monday, November 14. A detailed report of its consideration will be published at that time.

The amendments would be submitted to the AMSF Student Board by the AMSC Student Executive Committee, which has been authorized to make recommendations to the AMSF Student Board. The recommendations would be considered by the AMSF Student Board at its next meeting on Monday, November 14.

The proposed amendments are designed to address concerns expressed by students regarding the AMSF Student Board's procedures for reviewing changes in the AMSF Student Board's bylaws. The amendments would provide for greater transparency and participation by students in the process of reviewing changes to the AMSF Student Board's bylaws.

The proposed amendments would also provide for greater accountability of the AMSF Student Board in making decisions regarding changes to the AMSF Student Board's bylaws. The amendments would require the AMSF Student Board to provide detailed justifications for any changes it makes to its bylaws, and would provide for greater participation by students in the process of reviewing changes to the AMSF Student Board's bylaws.
