U-M stalling action

One of the most important issues facing colleges today in the struggle to provide the kind of education students want is the way in which the administration deals with proposals from students — or in the case of the University of Michigan, the way in which the administration stalls action.

One of the committees will study the structure of student groups on the university campus to make sure the voice in University affairs, another will consider the University's rule against disruptive demonstrations. The third is to review the organization of the police force in light of the recent student uprisings in America.

The significance of Hatch's suggestions hinges completely on whether the administration respects students' views. If the University has for some reason learned to respect the voice of students, the students then will accept the administration's proposals.

No. 2 in 'revenge' week: cagers tackle Miami

B. ROSE MANNING
State News Sports Writer

Off to their best start in 20 years, the Michigan State basketball team enters the toughest part of its schedule this week with a three-game stretch that begins here tonight with a meeting with Miami of Ohio. The game was expected to be a little more difficult than last week's showdown with Indiana State, but arena officials said at least 8,000 fans are expected to be in attendance.

The powerful Panthers were chosen by a slim margin over Indiana State (2), Oklahoma State and West Virginia for the No. 1 position in the NCAA basketball rankings. Miami, minus only one player from the team which swept to the NCAA title last year, was ranked third with four first place votes and the Salukis during the regular season.

The MSU coach John Benington calls Miami "his revenge" week. Last night's MSU' coach John Benington calls Miami as the rivalry with Wichita State, a Little America. Richie Jordan should be glad to see him.

ACROSS FROM OLIN
Foreign student Yule project needs Americans

American participants are needed for "An Adventure in World Understanding," the 14th annual Christmas program for foreign students from across the United States, according to Edwin Reuling, assistant director of student activities.

Three men and three women will be selected from those applying in 101 Student Services to serve as program coordinating hosts and hostesses, he said.

The program, running Dec. 20 through Dec. 29, will bring together approximately 80 foreign students from universities around the nation. The American participants will serve as social hosts and hostesses when the visitors first arrive at Kellogg Center where the program will be based.

Organization of talent shows and other details of planning and carrying out plans will be aided by the MSU American students.

"We are looking for people who know their way around farms, people vitally interested in meeting people of different cultures. In short, jack of all trades," said Reuling.

Mary Woodward, director of the program, stressed that the six Americans will also be "participating, representing the United States, just as the foreign students represent their homeland."

"The Challenge of Friendship," serving as this year's theme, covers such topics as why people become what they are, ways of communicating with people inside and separate from one's own cultural group, how to interpret other cultures in light of one's own, and personal changes affecting society and how to gain and give friendship despite differing social and cultural patterns. Action will center on the automotive industry (Dec. 21) where foreign students will visit the Oldsmobile plant. Following the slot parts and other topics related to production, inter-changeable parts and other topics related to industry.

Atmosphere of the program tends to be informal, according to Miss Woodward. "In such a related atmosphere there is much less chance for argument."

The world understanding program is designed to show both a rural and urban point of view of American life, Reuling said.

Christmas Eve the participants will be taken into Lansing and East Lansing homes to observe Christmas with an American family, according to Reuling.

Reuling said a second family may host the students on Christmas Day.

Two days following Christmas will be devoted to rural life. Participating farm homes in the area will welcome the foreign student to their way of life, said Reuling.

American universities across the nation are asked to name two or three outstanding foreign students who would be able to attend, he said. If these are selected, 70 or 80 to attend from as many countries as possible are invited. MSU American students also receive scholarships.

The American members, according to Miss Woodward, will be free Christmas Eve and Christmas Day as well as most of the following two days when the foreign students are visiting rural homes.

Reuling noted that many students in the past have become permanently interested in international relations as a result of the MSU Christmas special.

Arty gifts by students on sale in Kresge gallery

Prints, paintings, sculptures and drawings by MSU students will appear under many Christmas trees this year as the Christmas Sales Show at the Kresge Art Center gallery opens to the public Sunday.

Because these works of art, jewelry and ceramic work—usually the most popular items for gifts—are on sale, prices for the works are set by the artists, and selection of those to be displayed for sale is done by a group of art students responsible for arranging the show. As individual alumni gifts are sold and taken away, others are brought in to replace them.

Hours at the gallery are 2-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, 7-9 p.m., Tuesday and, because the gallery is being kept open during the lunch hour for this show, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. The show closes the Friday before Christmas.

Also on exhibit during December is a collection of reproductions of 16th, 17th and 19th Century Dutch drawings on loan from the Netherlands Information Services.

Yuletide strains your speech too

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK - Now that Santa Claus is on the horizon, it is time for a quick brush-up on our Christmas double talk.

There is no other season of the year that puts so great a strain on our vocabulary of appreciation and good wishes.

Double talk, you will remember, is the art of camouflaging a real meaning or a true feeling. Here are a few tested samples of yuletide double talk that should get you by handily:

"Of course, it’s the spirit of the thing that counts," but I never realize they made diamonds quite that small.

"Yes, I’m Santa Claus, little pork." Who do you think I look like in this get-up - Charles de Gaulle or Ho Chi Minh?

"Are you sure you’ve been a good little boy?" This little boy would cause trouble even in a straightjacket.

"I’d like to buy a gun, Santa." They wouldn’t let this fat fraud give me a lie detector test, would they?

"Tell me what you really want for Christmas, darling." My friendly neighborhood loan sharking would probably die laughing when I tell him what I want to borrow the money for.

"Oh, just anything will do for little old me." I’ll be lucky to get anything at all from the little old cheapskate.

"Weren’t it nice of them to remember to send us a Christmas card." What a bother. Now I’ll have to mail them a New Year’s card.

"We’re featuring this perfume at a pre-Christmas price of $25 an ounce." After Christmas we sell it as mouth wash at a dollar a pound.

"This is just a small token of appreciation, George, for all the services you’ve performed for our family during the past year." Why is it, just because we live in an apartment, we have to pay blackmail to the bum?

"Could you help me find a really unusual gift that would please my wife?" Perhaps a sequined clamshell cover, or a fur-covered body trap.

"Gee, boss. I know the rest of the staff joined me in thanking you for that unexpected Christmas bonus." Now we can all buy a one ounce liver turkey for dinner.

"Vendeliers, drat me, the house is burning this room." And for old time’s sake, don’t forget to leave a hot plate on the stove for me, ladies.

"Christmas always makes me feel so sad." Maybe a couple more of those broken old fountain pens will cheer you up.

"Daddy, I can’t find one of my stockings, he must have hung out the chimney. Can’t I hang up one of yours instead?" Yours will hold ever so much more.

"Yes, Virginia, there’s a Santa Claus." For the old bubble heart has been spending so much of the year with us lately that he might as well put a "for rent" sign on the North Pole.

Musicale set Sunday

Delta Omicron, Phi Mu Alpha, and Sigma Alpha Beta, professional music organizations on campus, will present a Christmas musicale at 3 p.m., Sunday in the Alumni Auditorium.

The program will include a madrigal group, vocal brass and vocal ensemble, a color duo by Haley Sorenson and two original compositions by James Nelson and Wanda Cook of the music faculty.

The finale will be a cantata by Dietrich Bonhoeffer, "The Last Judgement," with the combined chorus and chamber ensemble directed by David Shailer.

Most of these students have stereo phonographs of their own. Why do they bring their favorite records to Pete's room?

The records sound better there. It's that simple.

It seems that after the other students in the dorm heard the Eleven, they began bringing their records to Pete's room. At all hours.

Some of Pete's friends are in the photo above. Ironically, Pete isn't. He had to go to class. But Pete told us that it's not unusual for his friends to use his Eleven when he's gone. "They've kind of adopted it," he said.

According to the warranty cards received at KLH, the Model Eleven has been adopted on just about every college campus in the country. It seems to be a fixture, in fact, wherever serious listeners take up temporary residence.

The reason is simple. The Model Eleven will fill a dormitory room, or a living room back home, with the kind of sound once available only from a massive and expensive sound-system. It is the first phonograph that you can take with you and take seriously. It supplies musical pleasure out of all proportion to its size and cost. And the word about its performance has gotten around.

If you would like to find out more about the Model Eleven, visit your nearest KLH showroom. It may be right down the hall. Or hear it at.

SPACE CRAMPED

Sun lures vacationers

Last year during Christmas vacation it was west to Pasadena and the Rose Bowl for MSU students. This year it's south to the Caribbean and the sun.

Although most students will be headed home for the holidays, the AAA travel bureau says that many students will head for the Caribbean.

James Moffat of the AAA, says that inquiries are heavier than last year, and that most of the travelers wish to go by air. He also said that space is getting cramped and that students are taking almost anything they can get.

Once Dec. 15 or 16 rolls around they should plan on some other way than by air, he said.

The College Travel Office is now handling some 200 calls a day, of which about 99 per cent want air transportation. Students are flying out of both Lansing and Detroit in efforts to make connections necessary to get them to their destinations.

United Airlines at Capital City Airport will still have some openings although they are closing rapidly. United will discontinue the half-rate fare for students the following days during vacation — Dec. 21-23, 26-28, and Jan. 2-4.

The Grand Trunk Railroad is expecting a heavier flow of students than last year due to reduced train rates. The railroad will be putting extra cars on the trains in order to accommodate the large number of riders.

The Greyhound Bus Depot in East Lansing will have about 60 buses leaving the depot a day, with each one carrying between 20-25 people. Even with the extra buses the bus line is expecting an overflow of people once again this year.

Women's Glee Club plans Christmas music program

The annual Christmas season program, "Music for Christmas," will be presented by the MSU Women's Glee Club at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, in the Alumni Chapel.

The MSU Brass Choir and organist Marcia Good will accompany the Glee Club. Music faculty members Ethel Armeling and Douglas G. Campbell will direct the groups.

This year's program, free of charge to the public, will open with the familiar "Choral Prelude from Cantata 118," "Nelhybel's "Three Intradas for Brass Choir," and the "Professional Noel of the Renaissance." Violinists Elizabeth Barry and Anne deZeeuw will accompany the Glee Club. Miss Barry will accompany Bach's "Partita No. 2 in D Minor" following the performance of Britten's "Miss Brevis in D Minor." "Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen! Amen!

"Ah, sweet Christ is born," "Noel, a little Christ is born," "Gaudete," "Go, Joseph was a-walking," "Nelson's "Praise the Lord of heaven," and the kids' arrangement of "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," was also performed.

Merry Christmas

Relics contribute to Rome worship

VATICAN CITY (UPI) The Eternal City is the place where the faithful can celebrate Christmas amid things which tradition says were close to Christ.

The Vatican and Rome's nearly 500 churches and basilicas are filled with relics dating back to early Christianity. Those attending Mass in St. Mary Major Basilica on Christmas Eve will kneel and pray before four historic wooden boards.

The boards, darkened by age, are purported to be part of the crib in which the Christ Child was placed. They are said to have been brought to Rome from Bethlehem by Pope Sixtus IV in 1486.

Other pieces of wood are housed near the majestic Basilica of St. John Lateran, Mother Church of Christianity. The wood covers 28 stone steps, and tradition claims they are the steps Christ mounted to appear before Pontius Pilate.

After attending midnight Mass at St. John's, the devout climb the "holy stairs" on their knees as a demonstration of humility. Other faithful will kneel and pray before a priceless life-size statue of the Christ Child at the Church of the "Ara Coeli," one of the oldest churches in Rome.

The statue, which dates back centuries, was carved from an olive tree taken from Gethsemane, at the foot of the Mount of Olives where Christ suffered his agony.

Those worshipping in St. Peter's, the largest basilica in the world, share the belief that Saint Peter, the Apostle to whom Christ "gave" the Keys of the Church, is buried directly under the basilica. Bones believed to be Peter's have been unearthed.

The papal descendant of Peter, Pope Paul VI, receives members of the College of Cardinals and of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See in colorful ceremonies during the Christmas season.

But it is to the Church's half a billion faithful that the Pontiff pays special attention at Christmas. Vatican Radio carries his annual message to all corners of the earth on the eve of Christ's birth.

Dairy Club sponsors cheese sale

The annual Christmas Cheese Sale, sponsored by the MSU Dairy Club, provides students with a choice of a different gift and also gives the club a chance to raise funds for its other activities. The cheeses are gift wrapped and include personalized gift cards, and are vacuum packed to ensure freshness. All packages are to be delivered before Christmas and include a guarantee to replace any cheese that does not meet with the receiver's approval.

The buyer has a choice of four boxes ranging from a variety of five to an 11 variety selection. Cheeses included are Colby, caraway, hickory smoked, blue, brandy and wine spread and several others.

Prices range from $2.50 to $5.25 with small additional fees for shipping.

Last year the club mailed orders totaling over 2,700 pounds of cheese throughout the country and Canada. Gift boxes will be on display in 122 Anthony between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. until Dec. 9.

Orders may be made by mail or by calling 355-8435 between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Each year the campus housing units get in the holiday spirit with special Christmas decorations and parties.

In the next two weeks each housing unit will decorate their Christmas trees and the lobby throughout the dorms. One of the events featured by a single housing unit will be a play production by Akers Hall for the east complex. The play, "The Grinch Who Stole Christmas," will be performed Sunday in the Auditorium. Akers will also have a special Christmas dance Saturday night.

One of the traditional events put on by the housing units is a special Christmas party for non-profit educational foundations. These parties will occur from noon until the Christmas season. A few of the good deeds for that person throughout the week. Everyone will find out who her good buddy is at the party. In connection with Christmas celebrations, West Shaw is incorporating a "Big Brother" program in the Lansing area. The final function of the program will be to celebrate part of the housing unit's annual Christmas party on Dec. 8. Open house will follow these door decorating contests to allow people to review these works.

A traditional event with all the women's housing units in the annual door decorating contest. At an evening party the combined choirs of East Shaw and Gilchrist will perform a Christmas concert. The program will be to celebrate part of the holidays with a little good cheer. The program is still in the planning stages but is considered very promising.

Rather and Emmons are considering a Christmas party with underprivileged children from 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

"You will initiate a 'good buddy' week" this Christmas season. Each person participating in the good buddy week will draw a name and secretly perform good deeds for that person throughout the week. Everyone will find out who her good buddy is at the party. Each good deed will be initialed with a Christmas decoration on her door. The decorations are judged with the winner receiving a prize.

Open house will follow these door decorating contests to allow people to review these works.

End McDonel Hall will feature special decorations on its Christmas tree. Each floor will make an ornament and place it on the tree. The ornaments will be judged and a prize given to the winner. Hubbard Hall is extending its "spell-out" plans into the Christmas season. It will spell out a Christmas saying with lights at night during the next few weeks.

Effective communication may be at the heart of what makes students on a college campus happy, Kenneth G. Hance, professor of speech, told a student group at People's Church in Lansing recently.

"It is the process of sharing one's knowledge, interests, attitudes, opinions and ideas," he said.

"If a source does not himself understand clearly what he wants to say, or if he cannot organize his message coherently, a communications breakdown results," Hance said.

"Flaws in the channels, or in the message, also occur if the source does not understand the nature of the receiver and the circumstances under which he will receive the message."

"The receiver neglects his job, communication also goes wrong," Hance said.

Yule trees made 'shapely' by prof

Christmas trees are being developed that are better shaped, better colored and more insect resistant as a result of efforts of MSU forestry researcher, Jonathan W. Wright.

Wright has centered his experimentation around the Scotch pine which is the most popular Christmas tree sold in Michigan. The experimentation is said to be the largest and most comprehensive of its kind in the world, involving more than 100,000 trees on 15,000 plots in 39 separate localities throughout the United States and Canada.

One of Wright's main efforts has been directed toward finding trees resistant to the pine sawfly. The larva of this insect attacks the pine and can destroy the needles. Wright has found that an eastern European variety of the Scotch pine is particularly resistant to the sawfly and is breeding this resistance into the new hybrids.

Wright has also found that the best colored Scotch pines come from seed originated in Spain, southern France and Scotland. "The Belgium, French, Italian and Hungarian types are medium green in the summer and winter," he noted, while the Greek and Turkish types are darker green year around.

Michigan, in the nation's leading producer of Christmas trees, accounting for 40 per cent of all plantation grown trees in the United States.

Wright said that Michigan Christmas tree growers try to avoid the seed from the northern parts of Europe, particularly from the Ural mountains, "Trees grown from these seeds develop yellow needles," he explained. "They start to turn color by early September and by Christmas time some of the needles are almost the same color as a ripe lemon."

Yule sales up despite snow

East Lansing merchants said in a survey that holiday shopping has not been affected by the recent snow. They reported that the shopping has improved because shoppers want to avoid last minute shopping.

The merchants said that the most popular items for men are sweaters, shirts, suede coats and neckties.

They reported that the most popular items for women are sweaters, skirts, fur hats, suede jackets and jewelry.

The merchants said that their merchandise is moving well, and that they expect a wave of student shoppers beginning next week and ending the week of final exams.

Some merchants reported that they are carrying new items such as pant suits for women, antique cannons, hand painted dishes, electric forks and a passion meter.

Sales are expected to be better than last year's sales according to the merchants.

Library Friends hold dinner party

A dinner party set in "Old East Lansing," and featuring a menu from the Library's cookbook collection will be held at Kellogg Center Wednesday as the annual Christmas activity of MSU's Friends of the Library.

The works of an 1899 MSU graduate, the late Ray Stannard Baker, will set the theme for this year's dinner.

Baker, a Lansing resident, was a journalist who, under the name David Grayson, wrote a series of essays on life which were very popular during the pre-World War I period. He wrote and contributed a life-volume series of "Joe Jonas" to the MSU Library.

Baker was a Pulitzer Prize for his biography of Woodrow Wilson.

The Friends of the Library is an organization of faculty members and townspeople who contribute financial support and private book collections to the Library. It was started in the 1940's and has since been extended throughout the country by MSU alumni.

Baker was an avid reader of other professors, and later married his daughter, Jessie.

Following the dinner a play based on Baker's works will be presented by the Department of Speech and Drama.

The millenium book was donated to the Library by the Friends.

"Christmas at Professor Beal's - 1899," will be donated to the Library.

Christmas story, songs in program

The MSU Business Women's Club will hold its Christmas program at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday in the Union Ballroom.

The program will feature a program of Christmas music and spoken word led by Mrs. Darrel Johnson.

Miss Mary Hardwick of the Performing Arts Company will be on hand to read the Christmas story according to the theme of the evening. There will be solo readings by Mrs. Arten Blank and Miss Kathleen O'Leary interspersed in the reading.

Mrs. Grace M. Cook, charter committee chairman, will display Christmas gifts purchased for 50 patients at the Omena Rehabilitation Center. The gifts will be wrapped and taken to the center for distribution on Christmas Day.

There will be paper cups placed on each table at the meeting so that the ladies may contribute towards the cost of the gifts. During the upcoming year the club will continue the collection plan and will send something to the 216 patients each month. All members of the MSU clerical staff are invited to attend and are eligible for membership in the club. Reservations for the meeting can be made by calling Betty Culpepper at 353-6470.

Pipers mark Rome holiday

ROME (UPI) -- In Rome, the Christmas carols come from thousands of church bells and from the plaintive strains of shepherds' pipes.

Each Christmas the shepherds wander into Rome from their homes in the Abruzzi Mountains. They stroll through the smoking streets of central Rome dressed in leggings and sheepskin coats. The melodies they play on their homemade bagpipes are seeming-ly as old as the Feast of Christmas itself.

One of their favorite haunts is Piazza Navona, where merchants sell the traditional coins depicting the scene of Christ in the manger, Christmas trees and especially toys.

There, they delight children and adults alike with their ancient melodies. And when the holiday is over they disappear as they came, piping softly as they leave the city for another year, to wander into Rome from their homes in the Abruzzi Mountains.

BEER REPLACES SCOTCH

tight money may darken Britons' Yule celebration

LONDON (UPI) — There'll be a bit less Yuletide swing in swinging London, and the industrial areas of the nation will have a mini-Christmas this year.

The government's freeze on prices and wages, the squeeze on credit and bank loans and a general awareness among Britons that there may be worse to come add up to the prospect of a not-so-merry-yuletide festive season.

For many this year the traditional turkey may find itself supplanted by much cheaper chicken. ($7.70) a bottle will disappear from many home parties and be replaced with wine or beer. And many youngsters can expect a cheaper lot of toys in their Christmas stockings.

But even in the homes of the more than 500,000 unemployed, firmers will go through their traditional Christmas with lighter trees in the window and on the streets, myriads of greeting cards, days of celebration in the pub, the office party or the home up to Christmas eve and a day of eating, drinking and sleeping at home on Christmas Day.

For those so far unaffected by the government — enforced austerity the routine will be the same as before: parties with all sorts of drinks in your own and all the neighbors' houses beginning Christmas Eve and ending the day after Christmas. Card-singing at the door at frequent intervals, the postman knocking even late Christmas morning with last minute cards and the Queen on television with a message for the Commonwealth.

Most fortunes, rich or poor, will finish their traditional Christmas Day dinner with hearty black Christmas pudding and custard, a few more drinks and then dive for the restful oblivion of the sofa until the kids wake them up late in the evening.

Yanks add Yule air to Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) - In Russia, the red lights go up for Revolution Day and come down for Christmas.

Santa Claus is called "Grandfather Frost" and he arrives on New Year's Eve. Even the faithful observe Dec. 25 and celebrate Christmas on Jan. 7. And the best children's party is thrown in that citadel of atheism, the Kremlin.

This is Christmas, Soviet style, a day business-as-usual for the Russians, but a day when the members of the small Western community here feel very far from home.

Before the revolution, Russia went by the Julian calendar, putting their Dec. 25 nearly two weeks behind the Christmas Day celebrated by the rest of the world. With the revolution, the Russians officially abandoned both Christmas and the Julian calendar. The Russian Orthodox, however, kept both, leaving only a few thousand Russian Roman Catholics and Lutherans to mark the birth of Christ on Dec. 25 on the new calendar.

Christmas falls on a Sunday this year, so most Russians will join the rest of the world in taking the day off, bother years, all stores and offices stay open as usual during the day.

The real celebration comes on New Year's Eve. Friends gather in homes or restaurants for parties and feasts. Grandfather Frost, a thin, bearded gentleman in a frock coat, comes with his helper, Snow Maiden, to give gifts to children. Homes and offices are decorated with glass balls and strings of lights. And Muscovites give Moscow a festive air at Christmas time, despite Kremlin policy.

The resident American Roman Catholic priest and Protestant minister hold Christmas services in embassies. The American embassy imports turkey and other trimmings so diplomats can eat an American Christmas dinner.

Owen and Shaw open for holidays

Two residence halls will be open during Christmas vacation to accommodate on-campus students who cannot return home for the holidays. There will be no accommodations for off-campus students.

Lyle Thorburn, manager of residence halls, said Owen Hall will be open to graduate students and under-grad women and the Lower Lounge of Shaw Hall will be open to undergrad men.

The rate will be $1 per night for women and $1.50 per night for men. Food service will be available.

Thorburn said that the same decorating rules for living units will be in effect as last year. Nothing flammable can be used for decorating purposes and any item questionable will be checked by the Dept. of Public Safety. Students may move into Owen and Shaw beginning at 5 p.m., Dec. 17, but regular residence halls will close to 100 men. Women's hours will be the same as during the regular term.

Students residing in these halls over Christmas vacation will be asked to return to their own halls at noon Jan. 1.

The first student chapter of the National Society of Packaging and Handling Engineers was officially established here last week.

The MSU Packaging Society, because affiliated with S.P.H.E. last April and the official presentation of the charter was made at the society's regular meeting Nov. 22.

The national affiliation will allow student members to make contacts with persons in the packaging field. The affiliation will also help to publicize the MSU School of Packaging, the first such undergraduate program in the country.

In making the presentation, S.P.H.E. felt that since the student members are future packaging and handling engineers of both industry and government that their influence will contribute greatly to the future growth of the society and the profession.

The MSU Packaging Society was started in 1955 and has a present membership of 60. The society has four meetings a term in which members of the packaging industry are invited as speakers.

Both last year and this, the Packaging Society in cooperation with Pi Kappa Gamma, packaging honorary, sponsored a Christmas party for the children from Saint Vincent’s Orphanage.

Although membership in the society is limited to packaging majors, all interested persons are invited to attend its meetings.

The local society has been exhibiting at national packaging shows since its beginning in 1955.

Holy Land pilgrimages to continue

Bethlehem, Jordan (UPI) — Pilgrims from around the world will come to the Holy Land again this Christmas season, despite Arab-Israeli border tension that threatens the area's peace.

Bethlehem, birthplace of Christ, and the holy city of Jerusalem are the goal of most pilgrims. Others will cross into Israel for Christmas celebrations at Nazareth, where Jesus grew up.

Some pilgrims will walk in procession along the route taken by Jesus from Jerusalem to Bethlehem — 10 miles of hilly country that looks much as it did 2,000 years ago.

On the site of Christ's birth, near the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem, a large Christmas tree has been erected. Christmas services in the church begin at noon on Christmas Eve and the bells of Bethlehem will peal the joyful message of the birth of Jesus at midnight.

Msgr. Alberto Gori, Roman Catholic Patriarch of Jerusalem, will celebrate the pontifical High Mass in the Chapel of the Magi in the Grotto of the Church.

Thousands of Christians living in Israel will cross through the Mandelbaum Gate in Jerusalem to visit relatives and celebrate Christmas at the holy places in Jordan.

Christmas display features puppets

The hand-made puppets were part of the performing Lanos family's show in Italy during the 1700s. The Lanos, who primarily made their living as puppeteers, were also acrobats and clowns.

A son brought these puppets to the United States in the 1820s, and from 1835 to 1952 the family entertained the country with their acts.

The display entitled "Puppet Theater - A Story for Christmas," also shows an old-fashioned tree trimmed with candles and popcorn. Val R. Berryman, assistant curator who conceived the idea for the display, said that it will remain up for viewing until "well past finals."

BERLIN (UPI) - Christmas comes just once a year - and the East German regime in East Berlin would be overjoyed if it never came at all.
