Students are powerless in policy making

Drop-add penalty excuses are unfeesible

One of the nice parts of drop-add period is that it gives students the freedom to change their minds. It is a time to resolve the mistakes of registration—a course missed or a course too many. Only sometimes during drop-add period it isn't so free. If a student drops from one fee category to another, he receives only half the difference as a refund. Thus, an out-of-state student dropping from 11 credits (cost $249.40 to drop, $183.51 gets back only $52.50.) Or half the differences is in effect after the registration period ends.

A Michigan student dropping from 11 credits (10/15/67) to 8 credits (10/21/67) gets back only $18.

Flimsy arguments

Although the recognized and accepted time for course changes is during the regular drop-and-add period, this procedure concerning fee differences is in effect after the registration period ends.

Two rather flimsy arguments are thrown up in defense of this long standing policy of the university:

1. The procedure is necessary in order that the extra paper work involved probably is the reason used to justify the charge.

2. The flimsy argument is that the extra paperwork involved probably is the reason used to justify the charge.

Fairer system

Doubtlessly, a fairer, more reasonable system is possible. Refunds necessary for courses dropped during the drop period should be made, but full non-refund penalty should be imposed for dropped courses that affect the student's standing in any way.

If a course is dropped after the drop period, it charge of half of the difference is unreasonable; after the fifth week of classes, students dropping courses should forfeit the entire difference in fees.

Administrators the me-nace

Refused to suspend the present system on fee adjustments. The system is supported by only traditions and weak excuses. It is time for genuine improvements in this long-standing University policy. Students should be able to drop a course—during the proper period—and not have to pay for it.

Deludes students

The current system deludes students into thinking that they have a voice in setting policy.

Should students have a voice and should exercise some power in setting policy?

Bugging bugs Congressmen

An Internal Revenue Service agent advised to a 2008 Senate investigator that he illegally tapped the phones of half supported grantees in Florida.

Whose in charge?

To what extent have other administrative agencies taken it upon themselves to carry out much tighter control through legislation in the name of national security, as to affairs involving national security? President Johnson ordered strict limits on bugging, wiretapping, and spying. It is most likely that a package of tough new laws to govern wiretapping and bugging will be drafted by Congress. It is most likely that the Congress, for the first time, will exercise the power of the purse to control the FBI, the CIA, the Defense Department, and the Interior Department—forces that have pursued individuals suspected of being members of organized crime, communists, or at least suspected of being communists.

The Supreme Court threw out Black's suit to stop the FBI from wiretapping him.

Mr. Johnson states that the liberal ideals of the country and ignores the private organizations and ignores the private organizations and ignores the wiretapping as opposed to praising them. He failed to mention the fact that the FBI is 95% of the government's budget.

In the past, the National Security Act provided that the CIA, the FBI, the National Security Agency, and the NSA would be in charge of coordinating all information and intelligence operations from the 2000 other spy agencies.

But, until they do, the Congress needs to have significant control over the amount of information and intelligence operations from the 2000 other spy agencies.

The present system deludes students into thinking that they have a voice in setting policy. Students should have a voice and should exercise some power in setting policy.

MINNEAPOLIS — The Spartan gymnasts earned their "New Faces at No. 1" reverse here Tuesday, beating Minnesota 178.83 to 169.93 with a showcase of remarkable performances in all events.

The Spartans' pressure on each other last year, posed serious threats. "We've got a good attitude, and that's going to take us a long way," Coach George Szypula promised.

The meet, built only around action on the floor, was first to the side horse, then to the parallel bars, along with a surprise exhibition on the high bar, which took place third in the first session with an 8.8 score.

The program was held to a three-year span, to the command of Dave Croft, placing third in his first varsity contest with an 8.6 score. "Dave Thor, a senior, earned another one on a routine in the parallel bars, scoring 9.15 to win rings with a 9.15 score," Coach Fred Diel said. "Bill Diggins, who saw limited action last season, filled vacan- cies in the vault and floor exercise last season to win the 137-pound division.

Diggins has a promising freshman addition to the team's performance. He was third in vault, but sat down nicely in a momentary handstand he quickly improvised, reaching under the bar and vaulting over.

Are cigarettes, grades related?

By BOB ZESCHIN
State News Staff Writer

"Smoking linked to low grades" is now the popular gospel, a study last week, Anderson and associates, to find students who claimed to smoke.

They found that "smoking appears to affect academic performance in a variety of ways," including that "students who smoke have an increased chance of being absent from school, are more likely to fail classes, and have lower grades than their non-smoking counterparts." The study was conducted by the American Medical Association (AMA) and involved a large-scale survey of high school students.

The study concluded that smoking is linked to lower academic performance, with smokers having lower grades and more absences than non-smokers. The authors suggested that schools and parents should be aware of the potential negative effects of smoking on academic achievement and take steps to discourage smoking among students.

The Embark interview, provoking curiosity in the new, symbolic class. John Francisquetti's "Second" should be considered under the conditions of starting originality and photographic impression.

"Second" begins with two formalities—the dull talk about the film's physical dimensions of real and real—which are made to seem even more slender and pretentious at the film's title. It might be considered as both a title for the film and as a comparison of the film's actual dimensions to the unused material. "Second," perhaps due to the film's tendency to be more or less a reproduction of the same scene, marks a manifest principal, a monster which has no place for the audience to stand, and... etc. We are all in agreement on this point, so the film is at an end.

And after rhythms laid to rest, the man
Of sensuality, forgotten long
Before his eyes have ceased to view the span
Of nooning birds, and eyes have lost their song
The frightened fly, in light from sound of horn
The hunter's call to strike at anything
That moves in poetry, the grace which warns
Alliance with music, faulted on song;
The weary pool, given little time to form the last and last

ASMSU referendum set for next week

Students will vote on four proposed amendments to the ASMSU constitution at an all-University referendum on Jan. 15.

The first amendment would remove the State News editor from his ex-officio position on the board.

The third amendment, if ratified, would abolish the female appointed seat on the board.

The fourth amendment provides for the deletion of the male appointed seat on the board.

Instead a sophomore would be awarded the 1966 Norman Foerster, American Literature and Thought and Language, has been awarded the $250 prize, awarded by the Modern Language Assn. for his article "Topographical or Natural Poetry."

EUGENE L. HUDDLESTON
Prof wins literary prize

Eugene L. Huddleston, assistant professor of American literature and established in the American Literature Group of the MLA, received his doctoral degree from New York University in 1960. His dissertation dealt with conventions of "American Literatures," a journal of the MLA. In the same article, Huddleston notes that the "ugliest thing I ever saw is..."

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) - Barry Goldwater said Sunday he has reversed President Johnson's turn, urging a third world war on those who call for a halt to the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

The Republican candidate for president in 1964 also reversed his belief that if the Vietnamese war is ended in 1968 the Democratic ticket will take the White House and probably Congress.

"Goldwater replied: "I think it is doing the right thing now - and that a long time to get in it. I just think it's doing the right thing.""}

Goldwater said he did not subscribe to continuing talk about the bombing of North Vietnam.

"We should never stop bombing until Hanoi says, 'We're had enough.' That's the whole purpose of war - it is to get everyone to a point where they can't afford more and then..." he pleaded.

"I think - I really think - that Johnson is now determined to win. I don't think he is going to listen to those people who say we have to stop the bombing - stay in Cambodia, have a third world war, a world war breaks out, it won't be because of the activities of Russia in Asia - it will be because of the activities of Red China."

Financial aid kit available

Deadline set for grants

An education aid kit, "Financial Aid for Students", has been designed by the Dept. of Health, Education, and Welfare for students who need financial assistance. The kit is designed to give college and university students a better idea of the various financial aid opportunities available to them. It is a booklet which contains information on major financial aid programs administered by the Office of Federal Student Assistance for the fall term of 1967. The kit, which was released in a limited quantity recently, is available for a nominal subscription of $1.50. It will be available in a quantity of 30,000 copies in the fall of 1967.

The kit contains information on major financial aid programs for students who remain in school, or in school for a minimum of one year, who are enrolled in institutions of higher education, and who have been accepted for financial aid. The kit also contains information on the availability of financial aid for students who are not enrolled in institutions of higher education, and who have been accepted for financial aid. The kit also contains information on the availability of financial aid for students who are not enrolled in institutions of higher education, and who have been accepted for financial aid. PLAFUL Vietnam — Americal soldiers near Nolina flattened Viet Cong headquarters, about 150 miles south of Saigon, the Viet Cong struck early Saturday on Camp Holloway, the U.S. supply base.

The Viet Cong launched the attack against the American military men believe a terrorist attack early Saturday on Camp Holloway that damaged a U.S. supply base.

The Viet Cong were identified as the 407th Sapper Battalion. The word sapper is used by soldiers to describe a battalion of mine or demolition experts.

Although they didn’t succeed in their objectives, their mines and explosive devices did a lot of damage. They used a lot of ordnance. It is called a “hunting” battalion because of its high degree of mobility. We’ve heard about these centenarian battalions for some time,” said Brig. Gen. Richard M. Lea, Colorado Springs, Colo., U.S. senior officer in the area.

Toll. They attacked under a heavy barrage began, hunting down the Viet Cong. The aviation unit had taken the initiative in the operation. The 52nd Combat Aviation Battalion, which took the lead, had worked under the fire of artillery and under a heavy barrage that included an armament to liquidate all the ordnance and ordnance charges and initiated ground contact.

The Viet Cong force was identified as the 407th Sapper Battalion. The word sapper is used to describe a battalion of mines and demolition experts.

The work consists of photography and processing assignments, covering 15 different sports and all other campus events. The photography department will display the State News Professional Photographers’ Association for these students.

The same U.S. installation was hit last month, but they missed it completely.

It has been suggested by some that the Viet Cong were once again trying to make contact with the American military men.

The additional presentation of the play, which was first performed at MSU in late fall, will be part of a lengthy tour of offices and Bank, and will be available at the Auditorium on Main Street Office from 12-2:45 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 12:30-2:45 Thursday.

Furthermore, the actors in a touring show must take care of all of the technical operations, so that becoming more involved would aid them in the field of theater.
Report suggests welfare increase

The Academic Senate is asking for a $275,000 increase in the Michigan State University faculty salary budget, based on the recommendation of the Faculty Salary Study Committee. The increase would be used to raise salaries for all members of the faculty, including professors, associate professors, and assistant professors. The increase would also be used to fund the purchase of additional equipment and supplies for the university's laboratories and classrooms.
