WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Speaker of the House, James Wright, said that plans for a European tour at that time had been cancelled.

The question to be examined are:

1. Just how much President Johnson 's intention for the tax increase was to be in on the performance of the economy

2. How it would be in the anti-inflationary effect of a tax raise,

Closed Academic Council anomaly on free campus

Provost Howard R. Neville, in a speech to the Academic Senate fall term remarked that consideration should soon be given to opening the meetings of the Academic Council.

To Neville's remark has met with not only inaction, The question has yet to come before the Council, the meeting remains closed.

The council, composed of the academic deans and elected representatives from the colleges, typically considers matters of general importance to students and faculty, serving as an advisor to the President. It has no actual power although its suggestions are almost always heeded.

That such an influential body does its work behind closed doors is an anomaly on a literally oriented campus.

Reasons unclear

The reasons for the closed meeting are unclear. One committee member, steering committee chairman John F. A. Taylor, has offered none. The council, he suggested, feels its members would be under a certain amount of pressure if it conducted open meetings.

One cannot deny that at times the council members may feel that the council could come under pressure. Members of almost any important body are likely to be under pressure at some time.

But those parties who would pressure the council—

the faculty and students—are the parties who have a legitimate vested interest in the council's actions. Do they not have a right to know what is said in council?

Only fair

It is only fair that students who are affected by council decisions should know what goes on in the meetings and should use whatever influence they have in order to affect these deliberations. The possibility that the faculty might apply pressure should be welcomed. After all, the Council is supposed to represent the faculty.

Any application of pressure would be an indication of better communication between the council members and the faculty at large. When questioned last term, William H. Colborne, dean of University Services and secretary of the council, said that he had no good reason why the council should keep closed.

In short, the council keeps its meetings closed: first, because it has been done for years. The council, perhaps fearful of some sort of imaginary pressure, has never taken the time to up date tradition and open its meetings. It is now time to open these meetings.

Prof real challenge to students, not grades

It is not difficult to agree with the suggestions on grading systems put forward by the five professors who made a letter to the State News Tuesday.

Certainly the grading system at Michigan State, which has continued unchanged since the 1920's could use some changes. The professors present several valid arguments in favor of a plus and minus system to augment the standard letter grades.

They state, and correctly so, that "the present system of grading -on letter grades... makes such grades, and resul ting averages, far less meaningful than they could easily be.'

Adding pluses and minuses to the letter grading system, the professors contend, would make grades not only more meaningful, but fairer for students and easier for teachers.

Real significance

The real significance of the five professors' challenge to the grading system, but in their change to students.

"A time when traditional student apathy seems to have been breached," they say, "...we feel that the student ought to take a long, hard look at grading."

All the while, they are asking whether student apathy really has been breached by the recent ATL fluxes.

Student action

If it has, then here is a first step that could use student action. Either ASAUI or United Students Against War and Racism would be the most likely to critically evaluated existing traditions while bringing about few substantive changes, have the organization to take on the challenge.

Certainly, a thorough evaluation of the grading system is a project that easily invites student-initiated action. It is an area where the student body can be seen from the students up through the hierarchy, rather than just remaining closed.

What the 15 professors have done in their letter, it is easy to raise an issue that needs extensive discussion. Whether the process is now continued, or ends with one letter, is up to the students.

Chinese power struggle splits the story now is unfolding, Liu was strong enough to relieve Mao of his position as chairman of the government, leaving him with only the top military leadership.

The main forces in the struggling are Red China's power struggle. It has continued for more than three decades. In the last struggle, a three-wedge struggle for control of the state, one wedge of power, another wedge of money, and a third wedge of personal power.

Teng Hsiao-ping, the general secretary of the Communist party, is considered the leader of the opposition to Mao, the man who, with Mao, was a founder of the People's Republic. Chou En-lai, the able and often diplomatic leader of Mao's inner circle, is considered the leader of the opposition to Mao.

Today they are divided in a struggle for control over the party. There are those who may be in the third group that is the Stalin group. Today they are divided in a struggle for control over the party.

Lin has become defense minister, and in the current struggle he patently has been aligned with the group, and probably with Mao. Lin is considered the leader of the opposition to Mao.

A second group is that of the top Chinese leadership. He suffers from latent tuberculosis, and has not been considered a candidate for the leadership. It has been decided that Lin has no good reason why the council should keep closed.

In short, the council keeps its meetings closed: first, because it has been done for years. The council, perhaps fearful of some sort of imaginary pressure, has never taken the time to update tradition and open its meetings. It is now time to open these meetings.
TO RIO -- The Chinese Communist party's Central Committee called a 33rd plenum meeting and "revolutionary historic" decisions were made. The plenum "approved a new resolution of the Communist party's Central Committee." The plenum meeting was held in an atmosphere of" the struggle against capital and imperialism." The meeting was attended by the top leaders of the party and the government.

At the call went out, wall after wall of thunderous applause and cheers for the leadership of the party and the nation's leadership. The cheers and applause were heard throughout the hall.

"We salute the young Chinese and American soldiers who have been fighting on the front lines of the war in recent years," said the Speaker of the House.

The meeting was closed with music and cheers.

'Great class hunt' opens new term

By DOROTHY LAKEY
State News Staff Writer

The theme of the new Academic Council meeting was juggled, as adopted humor and confusion to the great classroom term that takes place the first two days of each term.

Experiments have proven that students with a class schedule of their own term will be in a much better frame of mind. There are 200 classrooms, lecture halls, laboratories, and conference rooms available to students. A list of these rooms is available at the Registrar's office.

The classroom schedule is color-coded with a corresponding room number that indicates which class has a room at a particular time. Rooms are numbered from 1 to 140, and there are 10,000 rooms available to students on campus. The classrooms are open to at least a total of 140 students.

'School calendar juggled'

Abby Jacobson, a junior, juggled the two-day class schedule this year. "It was not easy," she said, "but we students must adapt to our own schedule." The Academic Council requires a minimum of 45 and a maximum of 50 days of classes each semester.

"At first glance," Jacobson said, "it appears that spring term 1968 is shorter this year. But now's the time to have perhaps an art course or a camping trip on campus. And it must be an interesting experience to have perhaps an art course scheduled in the sterile, empty and available classroom."

The Academic Council requires that students be enrolled in three to five courses per term. The key to the academic calendar is the minimum of 45 days required, and figures so that the academic calendar fits the requirements of the Academic Council.

Last night snow began falling heavily in the nation's capital, prompting the national government to declare a state of emergency. Roads out of Mexico City filled with traffic as motorists tried to leave the city. The national airport was closed and public transportation was shut down or curtailed.

In Mexico City, authorities warned of possible power outages and urged residents to stay indoors.

STATE CLASS RING white gold,
Salisbury on North Viet Nam

Thursday, January 12, 1967

The market rally began in late December, although it may have been an illusion created by investors and traders who did not seek outside funds and to re-appear at Tuesday's meeting. But I did not indicate to the public that the letter, however, does not give us the slightest indication that we have hurt the North Vietnamese in any way. We have not been able to determine just how many of the United States troops have been killed or wounded in the fighting in Vietnam, and that is the reason why we have not taken any steps to reduce the level of military operations. The vote, although constitutional, was not an indication of our position on the part of the United States, and we have taken no action.

And, in any case, if you're going to stay on in Vietnam, you're going to have very many jobs. The workers there have been told that they don't want to have very many jobs. And, if we're going to stay in Vietnam, it's because we have been told that we're going to stay in Vietnam.
