N.Y. teacher ‘loyalty’ law
struck down by high court

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Supreme Court struck down today the New York law which required teachers to affirm their allegiance to the United States and denounce fellow teachers as communists. The court, in an 8-to-1 decision, held the “loyalty” law unconstitutional.

The court said the law was a “vague” and “overbroad” infringement on teachers’ First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and association.

Chief Justice Earl Warren said the law violated teachers’ rights to speak out against the government or to criticize public officials.

The court’s decision overturned a lower court ruling that upheld the law.

The law was intended to prevent teachers from holding political views that were considered subversive. Teachers were required to make a loyalty oath and to denounce any fellow teachers they believed to be communists.

The court said the law was too broad and too vague to be constitutional. It said the law was not narrowly drawn to target only communists, but rather anyone who held unpopular views.

The court’s decision was a major victory for teachers and other public employees who have been targets of government investigations.

The court also ruled that the law violated the teachers’ right to freedom of speech.

Chairman deadlock: does it really matter?

The question following the Board of Trustees' failure to elect a chairman last week is: "Who cares?"

In attempting to elect a chairman, the board, which had in the form of two Democrats, one Republican, four when Connor D. Smith, D., Pinconning, voted for three Republicans, Smith, a veterinarian, was the Republican's candidate for the post.

Smith has been somewhat of a thorn in the side of his fellow Democrats before. While state Democrats are working on a bill to limit the number of trustees who can be defeated of Michigan's proposed new constitution, Smith, the trustees' chairman, was actively supporting the largely Democratic-sponsored document.

The seriousness of last week's deadlock is made evident by the fact that even because the chairman's job is vague. How the board will operate without a chairman is a matter of question. As the chairman is the administrative authority, it is obvious that the position must be filled.

Mr. Phillips is correct in stating that STEP needs volunteers, enthusiasm and money. Volunteers have been a big problem, and I think we will have to depend on the people to volunteer. The project itself is a big money machine. The majority of our students are always enthusiastic, and they are the people that we have to sell the project to.

We tried to sell the project to students and faculty members. We tried to sell the project to the city, but we were unsuccessful. We were not able to sell the project to the city, and we were not successful in our efforts to sell the project to the students.

American hostages freed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department on Friday ordered the evacuation of all non-essential personnel from the U.S. embassy in Managua, Nicaragua.

The move comes after a series of violent incidents in the capital, including the storming of the embassy by angry protesters.

The violent protests have been sparked by the arrest of a prominent opposition leader, and by the government's crackdown on opposition media and civil society activists.

The State Department said the decision to evacuate non-essential personnel was made "in the best interests of the safety and security of our citizens abroad."
'No need to panic' Benington says

"No need to panic." basketball Coach John Benington said that was the advice of MSU yesterday. "I can do one of two things about it. I can try to make up some things we need to do, which would mean more practice, or I can try to save the defensive game we have, which is what I want to do."

One source of advice Benington might now seek would be interviewed some of the teams in absentia outside offices, like Tom Johnson, School of Education and Oakland Jorden at the time, but Benington gave no indication he was going to make any changes in the starting lineup.

"The way to treat the spot in need of quick viscosity advantage is different. We are going to be different, that is how we will win," Benington said last evening.

The strength of Michigan shows that the Big Ten is now even stronger.

Interfraternity Council (IFC) continued its investigation into a pledge accident last week at Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SAE) two weeks ago.

According to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, anyone who is 14 years of age or older who is an alien, whether or not he is a citizen of the U.S., and who is not in the U.S. at the time of the examination, must report his address by Jan. 31, regardless of age, length of stay, years in residence or occupation.

Further information on the address report card is available at the office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The University of Nigeria was founded in 1960 with the help of IFC representatives and in the largest additional institution in West Africa.

Nine MSU professors were given assignments to travel around the world last week's Board of Trustees meeting.

Lawrence L. Bregman, chairman of the College of Agricultur of the University of Nigeria, explained the Nigerian program as an attempt "to develop an Institution which is geared to the broad needs of society."

The University of Nigeria was founded in 1960 with the help of IFC representatives and in the largest additional institution in West Africa.

The University of Nigeria at Enugu, an African campus of the Ford Foundation, will leave next week for Nigeria, where it will evaluate the situation for a new campus at the University of Nigeria at Enugu.

The Argentine Project is also produced under a contract with Ford, and works with funds from the Ford Foundation.

Harold Clurman... critic with a story

By LINDA BEHAN

Harold Clurman looked small and solemn in a casual suit as he faced the crowd that listened attentively to his thoughts.
His words were soothing.

Clurman delivered a pithy farewell address
at the American Theater Wing in New York
during the 1960s. It was a time when theater was at a crossroads. The industry had already weathered the Great Depression and was now facing the challenges of post-war America.

The audience was attentive. They were members of the theater community—actors, writers, directors, and critics. They were all eager to hear what Clurman had to say.

He spoke of the need for new ideas and innovation in the theater world. He reminded them of the importance of collaboration and the need to support and inspire one another.

His words were a call to action. He encouraged the audience to continue to push the boundaries of what theater could be.

Clurman was a member of the faculty since 1955, Brembeck has been directed the theater world for eighteen consecutive years. He said that in the past three decades, he has seen how the world has changed.

The world of theater has evolved significantly since Clurman's time. The industry has seen a rise in the use of technology and the rise of new forms of theater. But Clurman's words remain relevant today.

His legacy lives on through the work of the American Theater Wing, which continues to support and promote theater in American culture.

KENNETH THOMPSON

New trustee looks ahead to term of decision-making

By MIKE BROGAN

State News Staff Writer

The newest member of the Board of Trustees, Kenneth Thompson, was appointed to a three-year term by the Regents of the University of Michigan.

Thompson is currently president of the Mott Foundation, a position he has held since 1986. He succeeds Ronald W. Reagan, who retired in December 2019.

Thompson is a long-time supporter of the University of Michigan, having served on the University's Board of Governors since 2003. He has also served on the boards of several other organizations, including the Ann Arbor District Library
and the University of Michigan Endowment Association.

Thompson is known for his leadership in the field of social philanthropy, and he has worked to support a wide range of causes, including education,
healthcare, and the arts.

He is also a member of the University of Michigan's Club of 1,000, a group of alumni and friends who have made significant contributions to the University.

Thompson's appointment
marks a new chapter in the University's history, as he embarks on his term as trustee. He will be joining 12 other members of the Board of Trustees, including the University's president, Mark
S. Schlissel.

Thompson is expected to bring a unique perspective to the role, having spent his professional career in the field of philanthropy. He will serve as a valuable asset to the Board, bringing his insights and talents to bear on the University's future direction.

His appointment is a testament to the University's commitment to attracting talented and dedicated leaders to serve on its Board of Trustees. It is an testament to the University's ongoing effort to attract the best and brightest minds to serve in leadership roles.

Young, director of the State Selective Service, and Ronald Young, national youth secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, made the announcement.

The $238.2 million planned expenditure also will pay for first amounts of military hardware.

1. Three fast deployment logistics ships, 850-foot floating vessels.

2. The army's TOW antitank missile, an optically sighted, infrared-guided weapon.

3. The $3 billion planned expenditure also will pay for the procurement of the F-111B interceptor, an all-weather, variable-geometry, supersonic bomber.

4. The space shuttle program, to make possible a small army.

5. The Air Force and Navy F4 jet fighters, to increase the U.S. nuclear force.

6. The TBM-3D nuclear-powered submarine, to provide antiship cruise missiles, ram-jet engines, and other missile systems for political encirclement of the U.S. sphere of influence.

7. The Pan Am jetliner, to make possible long-range reconnaissance flights.

8. The VOA radio station, to make possible a small army.

9. The Information Age, to make possible a small army.

You've got something to think about. Later this week you'll get a call from the draft board. The way we reform the draft is not to do away with it, but to give it time to find out in its present form what the Service does to deserve such a fate. If it can't stop what it is doing, it should be reorganized and brought into line. If it is reformed, it should be made the instrument of peace, not of war. But we need time to see whether it can be reformed.

But we need time to see whether it can be reformed.

The way to reform the draft is to let it function in its present form. But we need time to see whether it can be reformed. If it can't stop what it is doing, it should be reorganized and brought into line. If it is reformed, it should be made the instrument of peace, not of war. But we need time to see whether it can be reformed.
