A Student Board course in decision making

The last Student Board meeting might have set some sort of student government record for minds—changed minds—insomuch as it swung from firm support of the National Student Association (NSA) to reconsideration of its affiliation in three days.

On Tuesday evening, the board surprisingly voted 10-2 for immediate realignment with NSA. Despite arecommendation by the powers—Georgeon behalf of the board to reconsider the matter, Wednesday the board wisely decided not to consider the vote—this time by an 11-1 margins in support of Chairman Jim Graham.

But Graham apparently did some post-mortem thinking about the matter, and decided Thursday afternoon to bring the affiliation question back to life.

And a changed view on affiliation prompted the matter to be called up for reconsideration.

Politics again.

It was the political implications of the vote that moved Graham to change his mind. His decision, of course, also depends on a student opinion. "We have a grudging admiration for a group that gets so much of its power from student body. We have a grudging admiration for a group that gets so much of its power from student body. We have a grudging admiration for a group that gets so much of its power from student body."

The tendency has been that promptings from the student body have been interpreted as a submission to student wishes. In the past year, and a half, there has been a steady "decide-ability gap" in the student scene. The Students Librarian's record of affiliation was originally passed last year, and then reconsidered, and rejected within a week.

Referrals again

After taking action on two major issues in the past year, compensation and financial aid to the 11-year-old vote control, the board recommended to the trustees that both problems be handled in more extensive manner.

Instead of being a strong-willed decision making body, the Student Board has been operating primarily in vacillation. The tendency has been to refer issues to the trustees, after sounding out relevant student opinion, and to reverse these positions after hearing unfavorable reactions.

Hopefully those, who run for the board this year, will be able to guide the board to plod more steady from Article II, section 1 of the ASA constitution. To get the library open until midnight, the students, according to Library Director Chapin, "did not show interest in the extra hours."

But the shortcomings of this fine plan for open five nights a week come by keeping the Library open until midnight for the senior administrators in order to have enough time to adjust their schedules, and most of these administrators would become well informed.

The library administrators would be held to the student opinion on this matter. The Student Library Committee is in the position to voice this opinion, and lend its support to the issue. The committee has apparently been preoccupied with the fine hike, and financial aid. But it may now perform a favorable role during the extension of weekday hours at the Library.

It's delay in considering the matter and making the recommendation is an insult to all those who need the extended services.

Nuclear policing system urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is holding out at the Geneva disarmament conference for a policing system that will have control over nuclear reactors behind the Iron Curtain.

The Soviet Union itself was not forthcoming at the beginning of the Geneva conference, probably because of East Germany's supply of a president who may take a different position.

Several indications have been received that the Russians are supporting this kind of an idea.

Gymnastics, 188.55-188.525, and the Spartans cheered.

Wolverine victory gave Michigan its first defeat. The pre-season favorite finished with a 6-1 Big Ten record and handed freshman swimming team found with the Big Ten Meet, to be held at their home pool a good place to win. The winner of the Big Ten meet will have undisputed plastic eligiblity, finished third on the basis of both the dual meet results.

The Spartans and Illinois are tied for the crown. Second, the top two teams will tie for the crown. Another big MSL win came in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Butler won the distance, and either Michigan or Illinois will place second. The Badgers' top performance in the 1,000-yard run was set by Wisconsin's Steve Whipple and his 2:04.67.

The meet Saturday with the Michigan State track team—winning the 1,000-run in 2:03.2, handing Michigan State's 400-yard freestyle quarters I still felt good and didn't take advantage of the scoring for my best time in the 200-yard dash.

Forward! Play the court in great new traditional Ivys from Crawford, Wilson, Steele and Halderman. Want to learn while having fun and taking second in the two-mile. American policies differ

By JAMES BOSSERT

Although the United States and Canada are both democracies, their foreign policies are still different in many ways, leading Canadian analysts and statesmen to hope that increased cooperation with the United States under President Nixon will reduce the differences.

In 1971, the United States has shown an interest in promoting closer relations with Canada, and Canadian statesmen are hopeful that increased cooperation with the United States under President Nixon will reduce the differences.

In the United States, the policy of containment has been replaced by the policy of détente, which is aimed at reducing tensions with the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

In Canada, the policy of détente has been replaced by the policy of isolation, which is aimed at reducing tensions with the United States and other Western countries.
