

SAE initiation incident brings year probation

By BOBBY SODEN
State News Staff Writer

Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SAE) fraternity was placed on strict disciplinary probation for one year Thursday for the incident in which a pledge was severely burned during initiation games.

Among the stipulations for probation are the loss of rushing and pledging privileges and the end of all social functions for one year. The fraternity may appeal for rush after two terms.

John A. Fuzak, vice president for student affairs, in a letter to the fraternity president approved completely recommendations for disciplinary action made in February by the Interfraternity Council (IFC). SAE President Craig D. Cowell, Royal Oak Junior, refused to comment on the letter from Fuzak.

The action came over a relay race in which Joseph A. Bonus, Detroit junior, received third degree burns when a fraternity member placed a towel on his neck to prevent him from seeing from side to side. Bonus dropped out of school following the incident.

Bonus's attorney said in early February that the Bonus family will take legal action for the incident, after learning the results of the University's investigation.

The report also provides that: --All undergraduate women are restricted from the fraternity premises for the duration of the probation.

--A chapter adviser must be present during all SAE "Help Week" activities.

--A copy of their pledge program will be kept on file with IFC.

--The combined grade average of the actives and pledges must be above a 2.5.

Other conditions included the participation in community service projects and the publishing of an alumni newsletter each term.

The report hinted that any violation of the probation would result in possible suspension of the local chapter from the campus.

Fuzak referred the IFC report to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs for an advisory opinion on March 3. The committee recommended adoption of the report.

In its month-long investigation, IFC determined that SAE had violated Article VI of the IFC constitution, which prohibits the physical harassment of pledges.

Board action ruled legal in Graham appropriation

By ELLEN ZURKEY
State News Staff Writer

All-University Student Judiciary (AUSJ) ruled Thursday by a vote of 3-2 that student board was within its constitutional rights in donating $50 to Jim Graham, ASMSU chairman, to go to Washington, D.C., in January.

The constitutionality of the board's action was challenged by Richard Durell, Monroe senior and pre-law major, on the grounds that ASMSU can appropriate money only to benevolent causes which are in the general welfare of the student body. Durell said that because the money was given to an individual, acting on his own behalf, the appropriation was unconstitutional.

The student board argued that there is an elastic clause within the constitution that allows ASMSU to make such donations, and that student board can allocate money within its jurisdiction as it chooses.

Graham admitted Tuesday, however, that the board had violated the ASMSU Code of Operations when it gave him the $50.

The Code of Operations states that requests for money must be made of ASMSU at least five class days before the board meets. Graham was not informed about the Washington meeting until the day before ASMSU gave him the money.

The five-man AUSJ came to a decision after two days of deliberation. Members of AUSJ are appointed by the ASMSU student board.

A partial statement of the majority's rationale, said, "In the opinion of the majority (Ron Bailey, Claxton, Ga., sophomore; Dale Oliver, Alexandria, Va., sophomore; and Lynette Tate, Hart sophomore), the Code of Operations is solely a procedural document and therefore is unable to justify or restrict any action sanctioned in the Constitution.

"Even though the Code is established in Article II, section 6, subsection a and b, we feel that any allocation under Title XII of the Code must maintain constitutionality established in Section 7.

"Therefore, our decision is based primarily on our interpretation of Section 7. Section 7 states that the student board shall have the power to execute 'duties and responsibilities as the student board and Michigan State University deem necessary to promote the general welfare of the student body and the University.' Thus, any allocation of the student board must be considered to promote the general welfare of the student body and the University.

"It is the feeling of the concurring majority that the student board's allocation of money to support the travel costs of James Graham to the conference in Washington, D.C. was in fact constitutional.

"Our decision was based on the opinion that having any student of Michigan State University attending by invitation a conference of national prestige and express-

Vote may be held to restrict board's political spending

A petition asking ASMSU to hold a referendum on restricting the spending of student tax money by the student board is expected to receive the required number of 3,000 signatures today.

Over 2,800 had signed the petition late Thursday afternoon.

The petition, originated by Norman Sleep, Parchment senior, asks that ASMSU be prohibited from spending student tax money for political purposes outside Ingham county. The referendum would be held on April 12 along with ASMSU general elections.

A second question on the ballot will ask students if they wish the MSU delegates to the National Student Association (NSA) to vote on questions of national and international policy.

When ASMSU decided to reaffiliate with NSA two weeks ago it stipulated that delegates could not vote on issues of national or international concern which did not directly affect students. NSA frequently takes a stand on such questions. Sleep's petition does not restrict the spending of money for speakers. It also provides that ASMSU can spend popular entertainment profits for political purposes.

"I would vote 'no' on the referendum simply because such a provision already exists in the Code of Operations," Jim Graham, chairman of ASMSU, said.

He agreed, however, that putting this

"Although it was the opinion of the Council that the burns received by Bonus were caused by accident," wrote Fuzak, "the situation in which the accident occurred was clearly a violation of existing regulations."

Former IFC President Larry Owen, Detroit senior, said the IFC recommendation was a result of a study of the entire SAE pledge program, not just the specific incident.

"This incident was more or less a catalyst which opened a Pandora's box," Owen said.

"It was not our intention to kill this fraternity," Owen explained. "This will hurt them, but it can be overcome."

Owen called the IFC decision "in line with the dynamics of this fraternity and the entire fraternity system."

C of C hits price study procedure

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

The East Lansing Chamber of Commerce claims the good faith it thought existed between local merchants and the ASMSU study committee has been violated.

Roger E. Jonas, executive director of the chamber of commerce, said they would now rather deal with the complete price study instead of individual cases. Jonas noted this shift in philosophy was in part due to unexpected publicity of the individual cases.

Jonas said too much publicity in the State News concerning ASMSU and individual businesses had significantly concerned local merchants.

The meeting between the committee and dry cleaners announced in Monday's paper will probably not take place, Jonas said. This is primarily because a meeting was not scheduled, nor even promised, but was only under consideration, he added. The merchant who proposed such a meeting found there was no convenient time to get the people together, according to Jonas.

He said he finds the extensive publicity given individual cases, such as the shoe repair shop, completely ridiculous. He said merchants can't help but wonder who's next.

The entire ASMSU price study report has never been submitted to the Chamber

PLANS PACIFIC MEET

LBJ avoids specifics in Viet press talks

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson, declining to clash head-on with his Vietnam policy critics, said Thursday "different individuals have different approaches" to the search for a Vietnamese peace.

Johnson told a news conference: "All of us are very anxious to seek a peaceful settlement in Vietnam - as far as I am concerned, the sooner the better." Johnson said he expects to meet somewhere in the Pacific later this month with his top leaders in Vietnam.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military chief in Vietnam, will be present. He said they meet about every six months. Johnson also said he is not yet ready to decide about running for another term in the White House, but may be ready to speak out on the future in several months.

He warmly praised Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey without flatly forecasting the makeup of the 1968 Democratic ticket.

Asked whether he will run again, Johnson said a news conference: "I didn't know there was that much speculation. I'm not ready to make a decision. Several months from now would be an appropriate time to speak on future plans."

In responding to a question about peace move proposals by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Johnson declared, "I have no particular fault to find with others."

The President was reminded of an assertion Wednesday by Arthur Schlesinger Jr., who was an aide to President John F. Kennedy, that he has concluded the Johnson administration does not wish to negotiate now.

Johnson replied that he had said repeatedly that "we are willing to go more than half way" to get into peace talks whether conditional or unconditional - whether the fighting continues or is halted.

"But I have said I did not think we can stop half the war," Johnson said.

He declared he could not say to the commander in the field, "down your planes, tie your hands behind and watch

Bigger war appears likely

AP NEWS ANALYSIS

American soldiers killed in Vietnam now average 175 a week, and signs are in the air that the war will get bigger and bloodier. Neither side places much hope in peace negotiations now.

While this view may not be shared by hopeful diplomats and others in Washington, London and elsewhere, it reflects the thinking of officials in Saigon.

There are now 417,400 U.S. troops in Vietnam and Gen. William C. Westmoreland plans to use them fully.

He says that with this force the United States is strong enough to maintain a "sustained offensive" against the enemy's main force units.

The tipoff on likely strategy came when about 25,000 men were used in the drive on the Iron Triangle, a Red bastion for 20 years. And Operation Junction City put 45,000 men into a massive sweep of War Zone C--the Communist jungle lair near Cambodia which reputedly shelters the Viet Cong political and military command centers.

There are about 100 such areas in Vietnam--large and small--and in time Westmoreland evidently has plans for all of them. Sooner or later the Communists must start fighting seriously to defend them.

Communist strength in South Vietnam is estimated at 282,000 men--50,000 North Vietnamese regulars and the rest Viet Cong.

The Iron Triangle and War Zone C began to get U.S. attention months ago. When his troop level neared 400,000 Westmoreland felt he could spare the men necessary to

STRESSES LATIN AMERICA

Romney warns U.S. must improve foreign relations to keep security

By ERIC PIANIN
State News Managing Editor

Gov. George Romney warned Thursday that unless the United States takes significant steps toward improving its foreign relations, especially with Latin American countries, the nation will jeopardize its security.

"Unless we in the United States change the world's false notions of what we are, and share our principles and our progress with those who want, they will join with our enemies in an effort to destroy us," Romney said.

Romney spoke at the first annual meeting of the Michigan Partners of the Alliance, at the Jack Tar Hotel. The Alliance is a non-profit organization exploring investment opportunities in British Honduras. It was organized by a group of Michigan businessmen headed by former congressman Alvin M. Bentley of Owosso, who is now a member of the Board of Regents at the University of Michigan.

Romney's last foreign policy speech was delivered Feb. 20 in Salt Lake City, during his western tour. Romney, a 1968, GOP presidential hopeful, has delivered six such speeches in the last two years.

Romney said the key to improving foreign relations is increasing private economic aid and investment. Willingness to share this nation's know-how, private investment in economic development, and recognition of the need to do it in a genuine partnership are all crucial to improving relations, he said.

"To be more effective in building good world relations," he said, "most of the money should flow from private citizens,

Avoid rush,
register now

All students who have pre-enrolled will be eligible to participate in early registration, to be held from 8-11:30 a.m. and 1-4:30 p.m. in the Men's Intramural Building Monday through Friday of final examination week.

Students completing registration at this time will not have to return to campus until March 29.

Early registration reservation cards may be picked up by students from 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at Demonstration Hall.

Whether students are registering early or during the regular period, they are required to obtain a section reservation-enrollment card and permit to register from their college before traveling to the LM Building.

A special drop-add period on the evening of March 27 will be held for students who find it necessary to drop a course and repeat another after receiving their winter term grades.

Students not completing early registration will be required to follow the regular registration March 27-28.

A first time for a decision time

Comes spring, and the fancy of several young men and women lightly turns to thoughts of politicking in the ASMSU spring elections.

Since petitions for candidates were due Thursday, it is now known just what assortment of manly handshakes, minstrel-show smiles, vacuous professions of democratic devotion and folios of inane literature the student body will have to put up with.

There is a chance that the trouble could be worthwhile. Candidates might run on issues this year, and other candidates might oppose their stands.

Issues could most profitably be raised in the fields of ASMSU's involvement in NSA and the extent it should participate in extra- and intra-campus activities. This has been the most controversial problem ASMSU has had to deal with.

A candidate might, for instance, favor affiliation with NSA and participation in all its worthwhile activities. Another might oppose NSA, all its works and certainly all its schemes.

This would certainly require taking positions on Vietnam, civil rights and such national issues. One candidate already seems to be planning to run against the University's habit of releasing academic information to a student's draft board.

Among the on-campus issues that should be raised are the University's speaker policy and the question of who gets how much student parking. Even the less politically astute might be able to find a position on liberalizing hours for coeds.

Certainly the candidates in the spring will have no lack of valid issues to raise, and they might decide to do the student body a favor by doing so.

Campaigns will be mapped out over spring vacation. It is to be hoped that while a tropical sun darkens southbound students, would-be politicians will be making plans to enlighten them.

Hannah seeks ruling in public interest

President Hannah is at least consistent, which is not an inconsiderable virtue, and his consistency has led him to seek a ruling on Michigan's new and rather wispy conflict of interest law.

One will remember that Hannah has refrained from speaking out on the civil rights problem in East Lansing because he did not want to appear to be lending the name of the University to any particular position.

Now, one notes that Hannah has asked State Attorney General Frank Kelley to determine if, under the new law, he would be lending the name of the University to the off-campus business concerns with which he is associated.

In an ambiguous burst of prose, the statute prohibits state officials from a direct or indirect interest, financial or otherwise, in a contract with the state or any of its political subdivisions.

Hannah has indicated he is willing to give up his outside positions on the board of directors of two banks and Michigan Bell, if Kelley decides these posts conflict with his University presidency and academic responsibilities.

Trustee C. Allen Harlan and U-M President Harlan Hatcher are also connected with firms that do business with their universities. Many other state officials could be affected.

In the past these men have made it a matter of public knowledge that they hold such outside posts. This was done specifically to avoid charges of deception or dual interest.

Hannah's move serves to keep the matters in the open and subject to public scrutiny, where they should be. He should be happy to have this question out in the open. An open decision from Kelley will end debate once and for all, regardless of which way the decision goes.

Action could open council

The Committee on Committees has an opportunity to take the lead in moving toward an ideal student-faculty relationship at MSU, if it acts on Provost Neville's proposal for student participation in the Academic Council.

Opening meetings of the Council would serve to substantially increase the kind of direct communication between council members and students and council members and other faculty that is the essence of the democratic process.

Committee members are unsure of their official prerogatives regarding the council, but, as Neville pointed out, all the members of the committee are also members of the Academic Council. As such, they can present any recommendations they wish, according to Steering Committee Chairman John F. A. Taylor.

The Committee on Committees should take the initiative in this matter now, and prevent it from being passed from one body to another until it is talked to death.

The Academic Council should be open.

OUR READERS' MINDS

Interpretation vital to students

To the Editor:

It is regrettable that the State News was not able to have a reporter at the special meeting of the Academic Senate on Feb. 28, and had to rely for its coverage on the cryptic summary given to it by the Secretary of the Faculty. For the meeting dealt with a matter of vital importance to all MSU students and faculty: the long-awaited Academic Freedom Report.

Judging from the report of the meeting in the State News, the Secretary told you: "There were a few comments by Senate members on interpretation of various sections of the Report, but no serious objections were raised . . ." leaving the impression with your readers, one suspects, that a few academic quibbles were brought up, but nothing of significance. While it is true that only three questions of interpretation were raised, they were by no means of minor importance.

The first had to do with Article 1, section 4:

"The Student is not only a member of the academic community; he is also a citizen of the larger society. As a citizen, he retains those rights, protections and guarantees of fair treatment which are held by all citizens and the University may not deny them to him."

The question was: "Does the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs interpret this to mean that the University, the Department of Public Safety or any off-campus law enforcement agency is prohibited from engaging in the search and seizure of the living quarters of any student residing on campus unless compliance with the usual constitutional safeguards is met?"

The Senate was assured that students are entitled to the Constitutional safeguards against invasion of privacy, which, we take it, means that unlawful entry and search of dorm rooms, for example, will no longer be permitted under the new rules.

Another questioner asked whether, under Article 6 ("Student Publications") THE PAPER and ZEITGEIST are considered student publications within the meaning of the section, and entitled to the same on-campus distribution rights as other publications of recognized student groups. The answer was "yes."

So far, so good. But the response to a third question was disappointing. Article 3, section 3 states: "The University shall not make or retain records of a student's religious or political beliefs without his knowledge and consent."

That seems straightforward enough, but only if there is agreement as to its meaning. Professor Repas, therefore, asked: "Does the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs interpret the term 'university' to include not only the record keeping activities of the Dean of Students Office but any records kept by the Department of Public Safety and/or other administrative officials?"

He explained to the Senate that faculty and students have been told that such records are not kept by the University, yet as recently as March, 1965, the President of the University was quoted in the State News and State Journal as saying that the FBI had informed the University that "three Communist-oriented agitators" were planning to enroll at Michigan State University, that these "three Communist-oriented agitators" did in fact enroll, and that "the University is watching the situation closely."

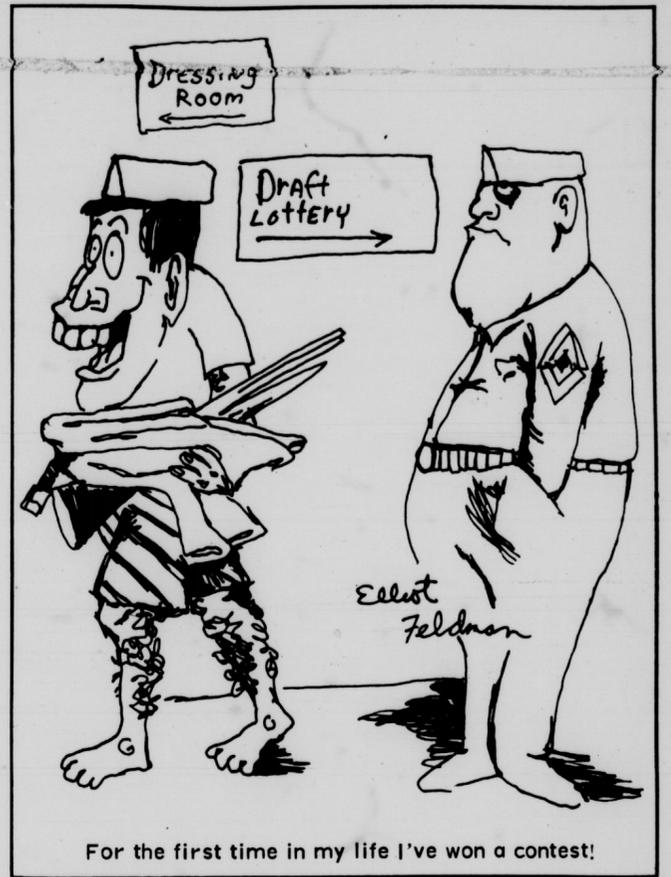

These remarks, Repas said, were originally made off campus, but repeated in at least two college meetings, and raise the

To the Editor:

On Friday night, March 3, Professor G.E.L. Owen of Harvard University delivered the third and final Isenberg Memorial Lecture on Plato. Professor Owen is widely regarded as one of the leading philosophers of the Oxford group and an internationally respected authority on the interpretation of Plato and Aristotle; his appearance on campus was, by any standard, a noteworthy event.

No review of his lecture appeared in the State News because, the campus editor informed me Monday, space was limited and the review prepared by John Ladd was too technical for the "average" reader. I had read the review before it was submitted and I thought it excellent.

Professor Glenn R. Morrow, who delivered an Isenberg lecture on Plato on Feb. 3, wrote me the following letter concerning the review by John Ladd which appeared in the State News on February 6: "Dear Professor Staudenbaur: Many thanks for sending me the newspaper

The Bob Dylan exam: Good answers, but you can't read the handwriting.

The William Manchester exam: You have to cross out half the essay.

The Warren Commission exam: Convincing at first glance, but tends to fall apart on second reading.

The Stokely Carmichael exam: Most of the class flunks.

The George Hamilton III exam: You flunk the exam, but get an "A" in the course.

The Adam Clayton Powell exam: You get caught cheating.

The TIME Magazine exam: Your style is entertaining, but your content is distorted.

The Cassius Clay exam: You get sidetracked by answers which have nothing to do with the course.

The Ronald Reagan exam: The same exam given in two different courses.

The Dean Rusk exam: You repeat the same answers over and over again.

The Beatles exam: You scream as soon as you see it.

The Robert Kennedy exam: Pretty good, but not nearly as good as the last one.

The Johnny Carson exam: The professor interrupts you every ten minutes for further instructions.

The George Romney exam: You decline to answer the most difficult questions.

The Students for a Democratic Society exam: You attack the professor's sex life.

The Bill Moyers exam: You shoot your bolt on the first two questions and leave early.

The Marshall McLuhan exam: Returned with a large question mark.

The LSD exam: You take twelve hours to finish it and two days to recuperate.

The New York City exam: You can't pull any of your answers together.

The Charles de Gaulle exam: You announce to the class that you don't want to take it.

The George Wallace exam: Your girlfriend takes it for you.

The Berkeley exam: You rip up the paper three times and try to start again.

The draft exam: You try to cut the class.

The Richard Nixon exam: You give ten different answers to each question.

The Martin Luther King exam: You use the same technique as on the last test but it doesn't work.

The General Ky exam: You keep asking for more time.

The Jimmy Hoffa exam: You didn't know the material on the others either, but this is the one you flunk.

The pop art exam: You hand in a blank piece of paper.

The Jean Dixon exam: You answer all the questions to the next exam.

The Lyndon Johnson exam: You can't believe the questions.

clipping giving an account of my lecture. I must congratulate you on the quality of your newspaper reporting, if this is a fair sample. I have never seen a more accurate account of a lecture with which I have been concerned. Please give my respects to whoever is responsible. Sincerely, Glenn R. Morrow"

I understand perfectly well that some sort of compromise must be effected between the ideal of accurate reporting of technical subject-matter on the one hand and general reader appeal on the other.

However, it still seems obvious to me that a university newspaper should have room somewhere on its back pages for an occasional review which transcends the competence and comprehension of the "average" reader, or even the average editor.

Graham reports services offered by ASMSU

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to respond to Melvin Robison's recent letter to the State News, in regards to the direction of the Associated Students of Michigan State University. I am very familiar with San Francisco State College and with the opportunities the student government there has to offer. However, there are some statements that should be made on behalf of our own student government that can perhaps clarify part of the situation.

First of all, it is necessary to note that the Associated Students of San Francisco State College work on an annual budget of $300,000. This is easily seven times more money than we have to work with. However, the budgets of western schools' student governments must be carefully considered, as in many cases, not only do they support all clubs and organizations on the campus, but also the school newspaper. You will find that at San Francisco State College this is the case.

It should be noted that ASMSU, like AS-SFSC, sponsors not one but three tutorial programs, working with a small Negro college in Mississippi, poverty areas of Lansing, and school districts in Ingham County. It is true we do not have a Tenants' League and we do not help delinquents in a reformatory, as such. Yet it was mainly through the efforts of ASMSU that the campus radio station was established. The one thing that is always mentioned when one is discussing San Francisco State College is their experimental college program, which is admittedly successful. This has been tried a number of times at Michigan State and has been found to be unsuccessful.

I am somewhat surprised and a little disappointed that when Melvin considered ASMSU, he could only point to a "junket" (which actually concerned the Vietnam situation and during which I had the opportunity to speak to a number of national leaders) and a Supremes Concert. I could spend the next half hour easily on this letter, detailing the number of projects that ASMSU has been involved in, which do not indicate that it is a sort of game.

First of all, let me cite our involvement in the 18-year-old vote campaign which clearly indicated that student government should become involved in political affairs. After that, let me cite that ASMSU wrote no less than one third of the academic freedom report that was recently approved by the faculty senate. It should also be noted that ASMSU has spent a large amount of time in attempting to get greater involvement for students in the academic decision-making process, resulting in our membership in the grading policy committee of the Educational Policy Committee of the faculty and the establishment of advisory committees within the colleges and departments of this university.

We also have been very concerned with the relationships with East Lansing and have joined the Chamber of Commerce of East Lansing, as well as proposing that a coordinating body be set up between the campus and the city. We are concerned about the voting rights of citizens of the State of Michigan who attend Michigan State University who are denied the right to vote in East Lansing. We have passed resolutions dealing with discrimination by Mr. William J. Pulte, who is a landlord in Cedar Village apartments. We have fully rewritten no less than three university policies and liberalized them to a considerable degree. We have brought in the past year to this campus Timothy Leary, Stokely Carmichael and Allen Ginsberg. We have a legal aid service with a lawyer hired and financed by student government as well as providing interest free small loans service for members of the student body. We participated actively when three members of the American Thought and Language department were fired. There has been a thorough price study of the economic situation in East Lansing done by ASMSU this year.

I could go on and mention a number of other projects which are traditional to ASMSU, which also have been carried on this year, such as Water Carnival, Homecoming, mimeographing and silk screening, college bowl, travel, discount services through the VISA cards, tutoring, organizations, student health insurance, external public relations with the city and legislature, Popular Entertainment and so on and so on.

Let me agree with one point made that I see a bright future for the Associated Students of Michigan State University and I am sure that if you would consider the facts in this instance, you would heartily agree with me.

The students of this university have a student government of which they can be assuredly proud, for the people involved, for the most part, are individuals who have devoted themselves selflessly to the task of attempting to bring about a liberal change in this campus.

Should ASMSU lobby?

To the Editor:

By what sudden revelation can ASMSU be compared to the government of our country? It seems they only parallel in ineptitude, and this is hardly a criterion for granting $50 for a James Graham political junket.

The State News editorial of Feb. 21 justified the Graham trip to Washington, partially at the expense of the student body, as a manifestation of representative government. Since government leaders don't have to hold a referendum on every issue before taking action, you argued the similar structure of ASMSU gives them the same right.

The editorial then implied that if the ASMSU constitution was violated by the action, the infraction was a righteous breach of a bad constitution. Government by whim, huh?

In the first place, ASMSU representatives are NOT elected by the student body on the basis of opinion in national affairs. They are expressly elected to their esteemed positions as ambassadors to the University administration—not to the federal government.

If ASMSU officers were chosen for this extra-legal purpose, surely someone more qualified than Jim Graham would be elected.

Secondly, the State News argument that ASMSU should in fact be allowed to voice opinions on a national scale is a sterile point indeed.

Since it is inconceivable that Jim Graham & Co. could supplant our congressmen as the "voice," it would then appear that ASMSU is attempting nothing more than to establish a lobby in the chambers of Congress. Now, there's absolutely nothing intrinsically evil about a lobby group, but...

It is commonly held that a lobby represents a consensus. By accepted definition, the financial support to a lobby group is freely given. Do the students here freely give to ASMSU? Hardly.

When a pressure group takes an unpopular stand, its financial basis is removed. Can University students deny ASMSU its financial basis? Hardly.

And a shrewd lobby group assures itself of membership support before taking a pronounced stand on any issue. So does ASMSU qualify as a "shrewd" lobby group? Hardly.

Jim Graham the "man" had a right to trek to Washington... on his own bank account. Jim Graham the "representative" is an entirely different matter. And we know of no Jim Graham the "lobbyist." Particularly since ASMSU wasn't founded as a lobby.

Can't prove they lied

To the Editor:

I will not accept Mr. Graham's challenge to provide facts for the statement that representatives of the board "lied to win the case." They alone know whether their statements were made with a conscious attempt to deceive me and the Judiciary. I apologize for having judged their intent. I made that statement to the State News when I was angered. I will explain why I was in that frame of mind.

Title Twelve of the board's Code of Operations, which provides rules for charitable donations and which the Board presented as justification for the $50 allocation to Mr. Graham, says in its first rule that anyone requesting a charitable donation must make a formal request to the Vice Chairman of ASMSU at least five class days before such request comes before the Board for review. Three times during the hearing with the AUSJ the board was questioned about the date Mr. Graham asked Mr. Carbine for his charitable donation:

1) I asked the board's representatives

if they could produce Mr. Graham's formal request, which I assumed was in letter form. Mr. Carbine stated that he accepts verbal requests as being formal. There was, therefore, no evidence of the date the request was made except the word of the defendant board.

2) Mr. Graham, in his summary of the board's case, said that he made his request more than five class days before the board donated $50 to him.

3) The Chief Justice asked Mr. Graham to clarify whether he said "more than five class days" or "no more than five class days." Mr. Graham's response was that he asked Mr. Carbine more than five class days before the board granted his request for a charitable donation in order to comply with Rule 1.

I was angered because the board representatives brought up a defense for which there was inadequate evidence that certain procedures were followed. I could have accepted their inaccurate testimony as an oversight if they had been mistaken by only one or two days, but found it hard to believe that they could forget that Mr. Graham was not even invited to his Washington conference until the day before the board received and granted his request.

My anger, however, is not justification for saying that they lied. I will accept Mr. Graham's word that it was an honest oversight that the board's representatives were mistaken as to the date he asked for the donation, as I accepted Monday night that he followed Rule 1.

I would like to defend part of the State News article which appeared March 8 and has since been a source of consternation for both Mr. Graham and myself.

The board in its brief to the AUSJ contends that the Constitution of Associated Students of Michigan State University is the "system or body of laws under which a state exists." By its own definition of constitution, the Code of Operations is part of the Constitution of ASMSU. The State News could have easily interpreted a breach of the Code as a constitutional violation.

US exploited Akers lounge

To the Editor:

We, as presidents of residence halls, and members of Women's Inter-residence Council, and concerned students of the University, would like to express our dissatisfaction with last week's "kiss-in," sponsored by United Students.

We feel that:

1. This demonstration was, in effect, an exploitation of Akers Hall and the rights of the residents of that hall.
2. Permission should have been obtained from Akers Hall for the use of their lounge.
3. Because of their extensive publicity, United Students should have anticipated and provided for the possibility of an unruly crowd.
4. United Students should have been willing to accept the responsibility for the outcome of the "kiss-in."

It is our feeling that in sponsoring such a demonstration, United Students should have considered their responsibility to the individual residents of Akers Hall. Is the public lounge of a dormitory intended for the University at large, or for the residents of that hall? We maintain that the lounge is provided for the students living in that hall. Any outside organization taking advantage of a residence hall's facilities, without the expressed consent of its residents, is infringing upon the rights of the students in the hall.

We further believe that as a registered organization, United Students should have obtained the permission of Akers Hall for the use of their lounge. Then, perhaps, provisions could have been made by the hall so that damage to the hall would not have occurred. United Students obviously overlooked the possibility of damage, even though the "kiss-in" had been well publicized. Finally, we feel that if United Students is to declare itself an organization responsible enough to sponsor such demonstrations, then it must also be prepared to take the responsibility for their outcome.

Our main concern, however, is not the incident at Akers Hall, per se, but the fact that it could well have been any other residence hall on campus. How are the residence halls or the individuals living in residence halls to defend themselves against this infringement of their rights?

We would like to suggest to United Students, and any other organization, that upon considering the sponsorship of a meeting or demonstration within a residence hall they obtain the permission of that hall through the proper channels. It is only then that the rights of the residents will properly be maintained and the facilities preserved.

Anne Osborne, President
Women's Inter-residence Council

AMENDMENT DEFEATED

Consular pact survives attack

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The consular treaty with the Soviet Union survived a first-round attack by opponents Thursday.

An attempt to amend it was defeated 53 to 26 - just over the two-thirds majority that would have been required if the Senate had been voting on ratification. The amendment, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said, would have killed the treaty itself.

No vote on the treaty is expected until next week. In Thursday's test, 16 Democrats and 10 Republicans joined in supporting the amendment, which was killed by a combination of 33 Democrats and 20 Republicans.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., has introduced two reservations which probably would make it unacceptable to the Soviet Union.

Thursday's amendment by Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., would have eliminated the provision granting full diplomatic immunity to arrest for consular officials and employees. That's the same immunity now granted at the ambassadorial level.

This is not in other consular treaties, and Talmadge said he thought it wrong to give the Soviet Union a special privilege not granted others.

The immunity clause, Mundt said, was insisted upon by the Soviet Union and would merely widen the door for more Communist espionage.

Mansfield said: "The Soviets would be unwilling to renegotiate this convention if any amendment is adopted, so in effect this would kill the treaty."

Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., said Talmadge had pointed out "the Achilles heel in this treaty."

But Sens. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., joined in calling for ratification as the treaty now reads.

Javits said without the provision for immunity from all prosecution, the United States would not have agreed to the treaty.

He added, "We wouldn't send our people to the Soviet Union unless they had immunity."

The reservations introduced by Mundt pose a formidable obstacle for the pact. They would require the Russians to pull back on aid to Vietnam.

Gaullist ministers may lose final vote

PARIS (AP) -- President Charles de Gaulle seems assured of a comfortable majority to support his policies in the new National Assembly to be elected Sunday. But he may lose two of his top ministers in that final round of voting.

Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Defense Minister Pierre Messmer are campaigning vigorously. They could win but no one is discounting the possibility that both might be beaten. They are Cabinet veterans, but neither has ever before tried for an elective office, and both campaigned in marginal districts.

The opinion polls predict Gaullists will win 264 to 290 of the 487 seats in the new assembly. Gaullist-backed candidates won 66 of the 81 seats decided last Sunday in the first round of voting, when a majority was required. On the runoff, the high man will win.

Leftist Laborite hits Wilson Viet stand

LONDON (AP) -- Left wing rebel Michael Foot warned Prime Minister Harold Wilson Thursday night he will never get the "blind, dumb, unthinking" obedience he seems to want from his Labor party followers in Parliament.

Foot also swiped at Wilson for backing the Americans on Vietnam.

"The excuses for American conduct become more pathetic and dishonorable every week.

Eventually, if shamefully, our government will have to catch up with what I believe is the overwhelming judgment of the Labor movement."

USSR president says U.S. leaders deceiving

MOSCOW (AP) -- President Nikolai V. Podgorny said today American leaders are deceiving the U.S. people on Vietnam.

Podgorny declared it will be impossible to overcome the Communist cause in Vietnam. American leaders are "cheating the electors" by holding out hope for victory there, he said.

Americans should know that their escalation of the Vietnamese war "will cause new efforts of the Vietnamese people and of the Communist countries friendly to them," Podgorny said, without spelling out details. Such public pledges of greater Soviet bloc aid to meet American actions have been made here many times.

The Soviet president accused Mao Tse-tung and his group of not supporting North Vietnam in its efforts to get peace talks started.

Viet assembly assumes limited powers

SAIGON (AP) -- The writers of Vietnam's new constitution voted 92-7 today to assume legislative powers until a national assembly is elected. Apparently the ruling generals and the government approved.

Constituent assemblymen neared the end of their line by line review of the draft constitution. They tentatively planned to complete the review Friday or Saturday, recess for a week and meet again March 20 to polish the document for the March 27 deadline.

Mao launches campaign to wrest control of Peking

TOKYO (AP) -- Mao Tse-tung has launched a drive to seize complete control of Peking, where fighting has been reported in the past two months, Japanese press dispatches said Thursday.

While the party chairman's supporters control the propaganda outlets of the Red Chinese capital, islands of resistance are said to remain manned by backers of Mao's enemy, President Liu Shao-chi.

Reports by travelers reaching Hong Kong from Peking told of one such island of resistance, Chinese Moslems, angered by the arrest of several Moslems as enemies of Mao and his purge.

These reports said that in one fight in January, Peking Moslems attacked a police station and forced the release of the Moslem prisoners. By this account, about 800 Moslems stormed a public security office in the Moslem district in February, wrecked it, and then put to flight Red Guards who had seized a mosque.

The Peking correspondent of the newspaper Nihon Keizai said Mao's Communist party Central Committee has put Vice Premier Hsieh Fu-chih, public security minister, in charge of the campaign to seize control.

The correspondent said 27 Maoist organizations in Peking formed a preparatory committee to organize "the Metropolitan Revolutionary Committee to seize power" under the guidance of Hsieh.

A dispatch by the New China News Agency said the official Peking People's Daily scolded some followers of Mao for letting victory go to their heads. People's Daily told young Red Guards and older Maoists to stop "self-seeking." Mao has called for a merger of Maoist organizations in alliance with the army and party-government officials.

The article repeatedly referred to the instructions of Defense Minister Lin Biao, Mao's government funds by congressmen was fairly common, 60 per cent replied yes, 21 per cent said no and 19 per cent had no opinion.

It was against this background of public suspicion of the morals on Capitol Hill that more than 75 ethics bills were introduced in the House. The bills were sent to the Rules Committee which, according to Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., hopes to make a recommendation next week.

Most Republicans and many Democrats favor a special bipartisan committee with authority to recommend a code of ethics and with power to enforce the standards on both members and employees.

Others want the job assigned to the House Administration Committee.

House will have own ethics check

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Thanks to Adam Clayton Powell, the House is going to have an ethics committee to police the conduct of its members.

That much seemed certain Thursday, although it still was uncertain whether a special committee or an existing committee would get the job and when the assignment would be made.

Thus the flamboyant Harlem Democrat is succeeding where scores of earnest reformers have failed. Over the years, hundreds of plans for policing congressional conduct have been proposed, but they were never accepted.

Then, amid the controversy generated by Powell's activities, public confidence in Congress plunged. When a recent Gallup Poll asked those interviewed whether they thought misuse of

ARMY FEARS BLOODSHED

Students, congressmen demand Sukarno ouster

JAKARTA (AP) -- Congressmen demanding the ouster of President Sukarno lined up Thursday against their military colleagues, who fear dismissal will mean bloodshed in Indonesia.

In the forefront pressing for dismissal were student leaders, backed to by powerful Moslem party. In the day's debate, the military left most of the talking to the navy.

A sore point was the speech Indonesia's strong man, Gen. Suharto, made at the opening session of Congress Tuesday. In effect, he said he had taken over all executive powers, that Sukarno now is a figurehead and should be retained in the interest of Indonesian unity.

Student leader Cosmas Batubara declared Suharto was trying to force his will on Congress and added: "We will not be intimidated by armed threats."

Several delegates recalled that it was the army that pushed through a resolution in Parliament last year calling for the dismissal of Sukarno, and for his trial on charges of complicity in the Communist attempt to seize power Oct. 1, 1965. Parliament is subordinate to Congress in both legislative and policy matters.

"Why are they trying to stop this now?" one delegate demanded.

Naval officers tried to explain. They said if Sukarno were dealt with harshly, major violence would sweep several parts of the country. They predicted they could not control their own men should this happen. Large elements in the navy are said to be pro-Sukarno.

Speaker after speaker demanded the ouster of Sukarno, ignoring such appeals.

Some military sources predicted the decision on whether to oust Sukarno or keep him in name only would not go to a vote. Nonmilitary informants said that if it came to a showdown, the military was considering pressing for a two-thirds vote for dismissal.

Thus the military, with help from congressional members of Sukarno's Nationalist party, might save the president. However, the Nationalist party has split recently on the Sukarno issue.

Casualties high in week's fighting

SAIGON (AP) -- Record American combat losses and record defections from bloodied Viet Cong ranks emphasized rising pressures in the Vietnam war last week, the U.S. Command disclosed Thursday.

GIs sought fresh contact in 15 drives, one in the Mekong River delta.

The week was marked by many small skirmishes and a sharp increase in the enemy infiltrator's use of mortars, particularly in the sector U.S. Marines guard below the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commander of all U.S. Marines in the western Pacific area, said that in Da Nang the war looks good from the allied side. But he said the possibility of a major Communist attack cannot be ruled out.

"I think they need something to boost their morale," he said. The American death toll of 232 last week was not the war's highest. A total of 240 were killed Nov. 14 to 20, 1965, the week of the Ia Drang Valley battle.

The record losses stemmed from an unusually high number of wounded--1,617--nearly seven men living through their injuries for every man killed. The normal ratio is about five to one.

Losses among the other allies last week were lighter. South Vietnam's armed forces reported 199 men killed and 18 missing; the others, six dead and 25 wounded. The South Vietnamese do not list their wounded.

Against the allied toll, spokesmen said 1,736 Communists were killed and 1,168 switched sides under the Saigon government's open arms program.

The Red defectors, numbering 60 more than in any previous week, brought defections this year to 6,357, compared to 3,845 in the same period of 1966. The Communist dead were the equivalent of more than a regiment and uncounted thousands of others were obviously wounded. But far more were killed in the previous week, a record 2,449.

Accidents and other causes, such as GIs might encounter at home, have claimed the lives of 1,721 others. There were 25 of these deaths in non-hostile circumstances last week.

A U.S. spokesman announced the troops have killed two Viet Cong in the offensive, launched Tuesday under the name Palm Beach, while losing nine dead and four wounded.

The Viet Cong were apparently seeking to retaliate when they shelled the base camp early Wednesday. Two soldiers were killed and 23 wounded in that bombardment.

OHIO'S SECOND CRASH

Jet, private plane collide; 26 dead

URBANA, Ohio (AP) -- A jet airliner only nine minutes from landing collided with a private plane Thursday, killing 25 aboard the airliner and the pilot of the private plane. It was Ohio's second airliner crash in five days.

The Trans World Airlines DC9 with 21 passengers and a crew of four plunged to earth just 45 miles from the rural area where a Lake Central Airlines Convair crashed Sunday, killing all 38 persons aboard.

The light plane fell two miles away. The pilot was identified as Cyrus Burghthler, 54, Detroit, a salesman bound for Springfield, 10 miles south of Urbana. Neither plane sounded any alarm before the crash.

The airliner was approaching for a landing at Dayton 30 miles southwest.

Federal Aviation Agency traffic controllers in Dayton said they were in contact with the airliner when it disappeared from radar. Witnesses told of an explosion. Bodies and debris were scattered over four square miles northwest of this west-central Ohio city.

Federal Aviation Agency air traffic controllers refused to say whether they might have observed two planes on a collision course.

The airliner, a medium-range jet, was in radar contact with air traffic controllers at Dayton when it vanished from sight at 11:54 a.m. It was due to land at 12:03 p.m., after a flight from Pittsburgh, Pa.

The weather was clear and bright.

The plane had carried a full load of 70 passengers when it landed in Pittsburgh after a flight from New York's LaGuardia Airport with a stop at Harrisburg, Pa. The plane was to stop in Dayton, then end its flight in Chicago.

WANT TO MOVE?

Booklet explains life off-campus

The Off-Campus Council (OCC) and ASMSU announced Wednesday the publication of a new edition of the pamphlet, "So You Want to Move Off-Campus?" It explains the problems facing the prospective off-campus dweller and how best to cope with them.

Concerning leases and contracts the pamphlet says, "Make sure you know what you are signing. Once your 'John Henry' is on the dotted line, you're hooked... for better or worse!"

On the subject of picking roommates the pamphlet says, "That fun-loving, big-hearted guy you enjoy drinking with at the Gables may be the sloppiest, laziest person on campus when he's home."

Other sections include damage deposits, utilities, financial responsibility, insurance, mail delivery, pets and parking.

In the section "Group Gatherings" the pamphlet warns, "Don't be surprised when you find you have many more friends than you did the day you moved out of the dorm. Come Friday night, almost everyone is looking for a party and anyone with an apartment is fair game."

The ASMSU and OCC pamphlet also contains a list of apartments in the East Lansing area and the prices they charge.

"So You Want to Move Off-Campus," can be picked up free from the Union, the International Center, the resident assistants in the residence halls, the Off-Campus Council and the office of Off-Campus Housing.

Debate tourney set

College debaters from four states will be here for the District V Qualifying Debate Tournament March 19-21.

This tournament will select five from the top college and university debate teams in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio to represent this district in the National Debate Tournament in Chicago in April.

MSU's team of Richard Brautigam, Albion Junior, and Kenneth Newton, Trenton, N.J., senior, will be vying for one of the five positions.

Jerry M. Anderson, MSU director of forensics, has been elected by the debate directors of the four states to direct the 21-year-old tournament.

Last year MSU's team qualified and went on to the final elimination rounds of the National Championship Tournament.

New star-like body sighted

PASADENA (AP)—Discovery of a star-like object which one cosmic yardstick indicates may be the brightest, fastest and farthest yet found was disclosed Thursday by the California Institute of Technology.

The object, called 0237-23, is one of the mysterious new class of bright, distant things known as quasistars, or starlike. Little is known about the 200 so far discovered, but they appear to be much smaller than galaxies and up to 100 times brighter.

The quasar 0237-23 -- so-called because of its listing in an astronomy catalog -- has a "red shift" greater than that of any other object yet sighted.

The term red shift means the light from an object has shifted toward the red end of the spectrum. The greater the shift to red, the farther away the object is from the earth and the faster it is traveling.

The new quasar's red shift indicates it is receding from earth at more than 150,000 miles a second, or 82.4 per cent of the velocity of light, compared with 81.4 per cent of the fastest previously discovered quasar.

Not all astronomers agree with this interpretation of the red shift of quasars.

Dr. Halton C. Arp, one of three men who announced the discovery of 0237-23, believes the extreme red shift may mean something other than speed and distance but so far has declined to explain his theory.

Arp studied the new quasar with the 200-inch telescope at Palomar Observatory in southern California. Those who joined him in making the announcement are Dr. T.D. Kinman, who used the 120-inch telescope at Lick Observatory in northern California, and John G. Bolton, who discovered and identified 0237-23 with a 210-foot radio telescope at Parkes Observatory in Australia. The Interpretations of Kinman and Bolton were not given in the announcement by Cal-tech, which with the Carnegie Institute of Washington operates Palomar.

BAHAMAS

ASMSU selects four to aid students on trip

Two student government members and two adults will accompany the now-filled ASMSU flight to the Bahamas that leaves March 19.

Cabinet President Terry Hassold said the four will make the trip on student government funds not as chaperones, but as advisers and evaluators.

Since people are known to take advantage of others at times, Hassold said he felt George B. Hibbard, ASMSU Board adviser, and his wife could serve as an "authority image" or liaison between merchants or proprietors and travelers.

Hibbard said he and his wife would "act on behalf of the students in the event of room damage, poor food or physical injuries."

Art Tung, ASMSU member-at-large, and Brad Miller, cabinet director of travel, will also serve as liaisons should any problems arise.

Hassold said that Tung and Miller were going primarily to evaluate the trip. They will report to the board whether they think the trip should be maintained in its present form, increased to two flights or discontinued.

Since it is the first time ASMSU has attempted a trip to the Bahamas, Hassold said he feels the evaluation is in the best interest of students. All previous ASMSU sponsored trips have been to New York at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Hassold said he feels it is important to send someone to represent both the cabinet and board. He added that he thinks Tung and Miller will be more beneficial than the Hibbards as evaluators because they are peers to most of the group.

All 91 seats on the flight have been reserved, according to Hassold. Of these, 72 have scheduled the entire ASMSU offering, including hotel reservations. The other 19 paid for the air transportation only and will be "on their own" otherwise during the trip.

ON HELMETS, PASSENGERS

New motorcycle laws become effective today

Police officers all over the state will begin today to issue tickets to motorcyclists who are not wearing helmets or who are carrying too many persons on their cycle.

Public Act 207, scheduled to go into effect today, states that "No bicycle or motorcycle shall be used to carry more persons at one time than the number for which it is designed and equipped."

The act further states that "no motor-driven cycle shall be used to carry more than one person at any time."

A "motor driven cycle" was described as a motorcycle with less than five brake horsepower, such as a Honda 50.

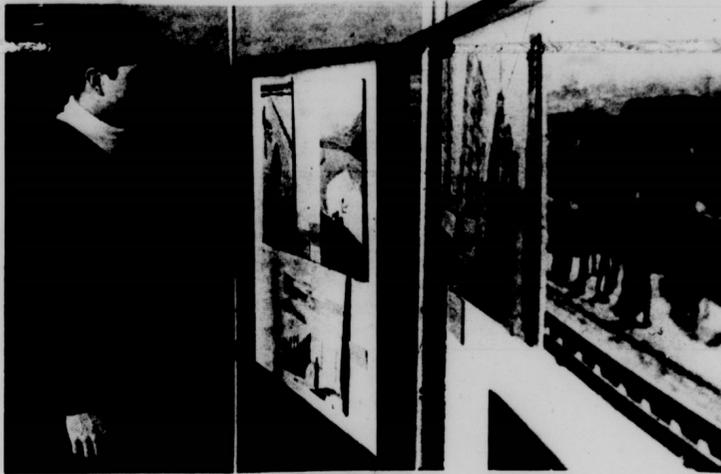

The law also states that both motorcycle drivers and their passengers must wear crash helmets approved by the Michigan State Police.

Violations of this act will be considered misdemeanors; the fine will be left to the discretion of the courts.

Also, under a law passed earlier, motor driven cycles, those under five brake horsepower, are not allowed to be driven on public streets after dark without permission from local police. Even with permission, these vehicles cannot exceed 35 m.p.h.

4-credit ATL being discussed

By STEVE GATES
State News Staff Writer

Although there is almost complete agreement on campus that American Thought and Language courses should be four credits rather than three, opinion varies on how such a change might be made.

Faculty and students seem to agree on at least one aspect of the problem—that students are probably being asked to do at least four credits worth of work in ATL—despite the fact that ATL is, by University regulations, only three credits.

According to Thomas S. Greer, chairman of the Humanities Dept., students are receiving only three credits because of what he termed an "historical accident."

Greer explained that all of the present University College courses except ATL were the results of mergers of related courses in the old Basic College, the predecessor to the University college.

But, ATL was never changed from the three-credit course it had been in the Basic College because no "merger" had been made.

T. Ben Strandness, chairman of the ATL Dept., said, "ATL should be a four-credit course," but added that dissension in the University had prevented past proposals for such a change.

Sam. S. Baskett, acting chairman of the English Dept., agreed with Strandness. "ATL is as valuable as the other basics, and there are certainly inequities in having it worth three credits."

However, Baskett quickly added that he was "a little bit loath to see additional credit given for a beginning course before a number of questions of University policy were answered."

He said that the University would have to consider the percent of credit allotted to the general education program at the freshman level, the number of credits required for a degree, and whether the students would be asked to do more work if additional credit was given.

One supporter of the plan in the ATL Dept. suggested that he would support the plan if it were proposed for a vote. But he said the basic question was one of the University running the basic courses to get the most students through for the least cost and modifying course design to pass the maximum number of students the first time they took it.

In the College of Engineering, required courses already account for all but 10 to 18 credits of a student's time, according to Carl I. Mensendick, asst. dean for student affairs in the College of engineering. Mensendick said that he would not oppose adding more credits to ATL, but cautioned that he was not necessarily speaking for his college.

Sherwood K. Haynes, chairman of the Physics Dept., said that while he might be opposed to a four-credit ATL course, because it would limit the student's freedom of choice of electives, he would support adding an additional three-credit course in ATL on an elective basis.

Probably the only definite attempt to inaugurate such a change in the near future will be in the new James Madison College, which will offer a four-credit ATL course combining regular ATL with a series of related seminars and lectures by outside speakers.

While suggesting that he had only studied the problem in terms of the needs of his own college, Herbert Garfinkel, dean of the James Madison College, added that the question was basically whether underclass courses could cover material in adequate depth in three-credits-worth of time under the quarter system.

OCC date extended

Petitioning for positions on the Off-Campus Council has been extended to 5 p.m. Friday, March 17, due to the lack of students who have taken out petitions according to Greg Hopkins, OCC president.

Qualifications for the council candidates are:

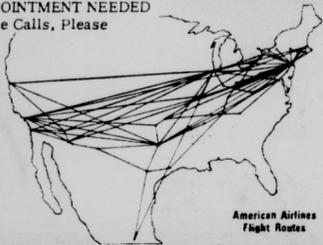

- (1) full-time undergraduate student living off campus and not represented by any other campus governing group.
 - (2) 24 credit hours
 - (3) at least a 2.0 G. P. A.
 - (4) in good standing with the University in social, disciplinary and financial matters.

Foreign students invited to homes

All foreign students at MSU have been invited to spend a weekend with families in the Thumb area of Michigan from March 17 to 20, according to the Christian Rural Hospitality Council. Approximately 1,000 families on farms and in villages are participating in the project sponsored by the council.

The group will leave Friday, March 17, from the International Center lounge and will return to campus Monday, March 20. Bus transportation is being arranged and the departure time will be announced during an orientation meeting next Wednesday in 3 International Center.

This orientation has been planned to help foreign students learn something about the community in which they will be visiting. Foreign students who have never visited an American family before will be helped to understand American customs and manners, the council says.

The meeting will also provide information about the personal items students will need for the weekend.

Students in the English Language Center are asked to register in the center's office. All other students may register with Mrs. Joan Meredith, 207 International Center or call 355-2356.

A $5 registration fee for each foreign student or student family to cover visit expenses is asked.

Abrams Planetarium now open weekends

The public exhibit areas of Abrams Planetarium are now open 2-4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Thomas H. Osgood, planetarium director, said that the weekend openings began last Saturday in response to public request. The planetarium will also be open during spring break.

The displays, exhibit hall and the black light gallery were normally just open 9-12 noon and 1-4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Among the exhibits is one on loan from NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) tracing U.S. space exploration with the Gemini flights.

Highlights of the exhibit, expected to be on display for two or three months, include models of the Gemini and Mercury space capsules. Astronauts are shown seated inside the capsules, which are one-third of the actual size. Near the Gemini capsule is a full size model of an astronaut wearing a Gemini pressure suit.

WEEKEND ACTIVITIES

Finals apply brakes

If you don't feel like booking this weekend, there are still a few "forget-finals" activities available. But only a few.

For a study break, drop in at a mixer tonight. The Second String will entertain at the Akers Hall mixer from 9-12.

The Shaw mixer will be a record hop tonight from 9 to midnight.

"Lilies of the Field," the witty story of a wandering handyman Sidney Poitier and a group of immigrant nuns will be shown tonight in Fairchild at 7 and 9.

A faculty woodwind quintet will play tonight in the Music Auditorium at 8:15.

The student-sponsored show "Gamut," on WMBE, channel 10, will feature a discussion of fraternities and sororities on the campus. The show, seen at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, will also feature a jazz trio this week.

"Norse Adventure," the travel film this week, will be shown Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium.

The big basketball game with Northwestern will start at 4 p.m. Saturday.

"Georgy Girl" has been held over for a fourth week at the Campus Theater.

"The Venetian Affair," starring Robert Vaughn, can be seen tonight at the Gladmer in Lansing. "Is Paris Burning?", a story of the liberation of Paris during World War II, starts Saturday.

Entertainment This Weekend

By VALERIE ALBERTS

The all-star cast includes: George Chakiris, Kirk Douglas, Leslie Caron, Charles Boyer, Simone Signoret, Glenn Ford, John Pierre Cassel, Anthony Perkins, and Orson Welles.

The Walt Disney movie, "Monkeys, Go Home," has been held over for a second week at the Michigan Theater.

Michelangelo Antonioni's "Blow-Up," acclaimed the "Best Film of 1966" by the National Society of Film Critics, starts today at the State Theatre.

No express bus for exam week

As the term changes, so do the bus schedules.

Beginning March 13 and continuing through exam week, the express bus will not run. During Spring break, beginning March 20, the buses will operate on the Sunday schedule, running every 20 minutes.

Spring term bus schedules will be available March 20 from bus drivers and in the residence halls. Bus passes will go on sale March 13 at Brody, North Wonders, West McDonel, West Shaw, Akers, Hubbard, Holmes, West Fee, Mason, Abbot, Landon, Case, Wilson and Owen halls and during registration at the Union ticket office, MSU Bookstore and the Men's Intramural Building.

Passes will still cost $12. Students may also purchase 10 tickets for $1.50 which may be used after 5:30 p.m. and are good from term to term. Studentwives may purchase tickets which may be used during the day.

Students will again be allowed to ride the buses free during registration, March 27-28. Passes will be required beginning March 29.

Henry Jolman, general foreman of the campus bus system, said that 13 buses would be used spring term, running at five- and ten-minute intervals.

The average number of students riding buses daily last spring term was 16,000. The average this term has been about 55,000, Jolman said.

High Court asked to grant Hoffa bail

WASHINGTON, (AP) — James R. Hoffa's attorneys made two moves in Supreme Court today in an effort to have the teamsters union president freed on bail from federal prison.

They said "basic fairness" to Hoffa and three codefendants already in prison "would seem to require that they be at liberty and afforded their day in court on substantial constitutional issues which may well invalidate their convictions."

Hoffa was taken to the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., on Tuesday to begin serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering.

One application for bail today went to Chief Justice Earl Warren, the other to Associate Justice Potter Stewart.

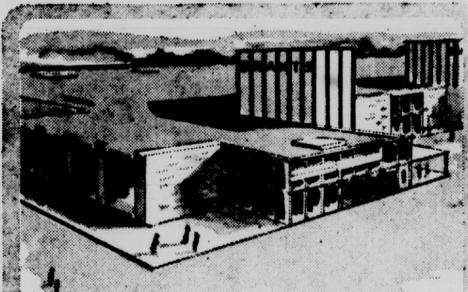

Hoffa's lawyers asked Warren to free Hoffa on bail until the federal court in Chattanooga rules on a motion he filed there asking for a new trial. This motion was based on a claim of widespread government wire-tapping and eavesdropping before and during the 1964 Chattanooga trial where Hoffa was convicted.

The attorneys asked Stewart to free the union leader on bail while they continue efforts in federal courts in Washington to have Hoffa freed on a writ of habeas corpus.

Action on the two moves before next week is unlikely. A spokesman for the Supreme Court said the government will be given a chance to file papers opposing the moves.

The U.S. District Court in Chattanooga and the U.S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati have both refused to allow Hoffa to remain free on bail. Stewart has supervision over this federal court region.

Skaters 4-2 over Michigan

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

Wayne Duffett and Tom Mikkola had two goals each to lead MSU's hockey team in a 4-2 victory over Michigan Thursday night in the opening round of the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. (WCHA) playoffs.

The game was played at the MSU Ice Arena, before a crowd of 2,149.

The victory pushed the Spartan skaters into the finals of the WCHA playoffs. They will meet the winner of the Minnesota-Duluth-Michigan Tech playoff Saturday night.

Duffett's first goal put the Spartans into the lead in the first period at the 6:41 mark. He flicked one past Wolverine goalie Jim Keough on a close shot after picking up a rebound shot by Doug French from the point.

Duffett's second goal gave MSU a 3-2 lead in the second period at 17:51. He took a pass from McAndrew and was all alone on Keough, faking twice before sliding it under Keough's pads for the score.

Mikkola's two goals came in the second and third periods. The Spartan co-captain gave the Spartans a 2-1 lead at the 15:23 mark of the second period on a power play goal and was credited with an open net goal in the final period when Michigan pulled its goalie.

Both of Michigan's goals came in the second period, one by Dean Lucier and the other by Jerry Hartman.

Gaye Cooley was in the nets for the Spartans, stopping 43 Michigan shots on goal. He had 17 saves in the first period, 16 in the second and 10 in the third.

Michigan's Keough made 42 saves, with 16 in the first, 11 in the second and 15 in the third.

The victory evened the Spartans' overall record at 14-14-1. Michigan finished the season with a 19-7-2 mark.

Cage hopes hinge on Purdue win

By DENNIS CHASE
State News Sports Writer

Twenty-five per cent. Shake it up, throw it around, scream the Spartan fight song and pack Jenison Fieldhouse at 4 p.m. Saturday, and nothing changes.

The Spartan basketball team has a 25 per cent chance of winning the Big Ten title outright, but the odds could change before Matthew Aitch goes up for the first jump ball.

Indiana, tied for first place with MSU with a 9-4 record, hosts Purdue. That game starts at 2 p.m. East Lansing time, and it is likely that the Spartans will know whether they will play in the NCAA regionals March 17-18, at Evanston, before the Northwestern game begins.

Since the Spartans were the last team of the contenders to represent the Big Ten in the NCAA tournament, in 1959, they must win the title outright. For the present, their chances are 25 per cent.

Four things could happen Saturday:

1. Indiana wins; MSU wins, Indiana and MSU share the title, and IU goes to Evanston.
2. Indiana wins; MSU loses, Indiana wins the title, outright.
3. Indiana loses; MSU loses, Indiana and MSU share the title, and IU goes to Evanston.
4. Indiana loses; MSU wins, MSU takes title and the trip to Evanston.

"Once you start to play, it doesn't matter what other teams in the league are doing," MSU Coach John Benington said. "Look how well the teams that have no chance for the title play, like Minnesota."

Northwestern poses some peculiar problems for the Spartans.

"Our main concern," Benington said, "is whom to put on Jim Burns. They've been playing Burns at both guard and forward throughout the season."

Burns is the Wildcats' leading scorer and tied for fifth in the Big Ten. The 6-4 senior averaged over 21 points per game and, for the past two seasons, has been the top rebounding guard in the Big Ten.

It is possible that Benington will put Lee Lafayette at a guard spot, if Burns starts at guard.

Benington said that Northwestern is unlike any other team the Spartans have played. "They're a running ball club," he said, "but they are also big. They run a little like Purdue does, but they're not as fast.

And remember, Northwestern leads the Big Ten in scoring."

And the Spartans, of course, are last in scoring. But Michigan State has the best defensive average, holding the opposition to 69 points per game. The Spartans have a 15-7 overall record.

Northwestern, of course, is the team that started so fast that some observers were predicting a perfect season, 14-0. The Wildcats won their first four games, and five of their first six. But then they slumped, and are now 7-6 in the conference.

Why the slump? "I think it is due to the improvement of the rest of the league," Benington said, "as well as the pressure of being the leader, and the fact that the regionals will be played at Evanston."

Jerry Burns, Northwestern coach, had a different story: "We lost two games, to Indiana and Minnesota, by two points each. That's why we slumped."

The Wildcats starting five is likely to be: Jim Burns -- 6-4, 190 pounds, senior, guard.

Terry Hurley -- 6-4, 180 pounds, sophomore, guard.

Dan Davis -- 6-4, 215 pounds, sophomore, forward.

Mike Weaver -- 6-5, 200 pounds, junior, forward.

Ron Kozlicki -- 6-6, 205 pounds, senior, center.

Iowa also has an outside chance for the title. The Hawkeyes beat Wisconsin last Monday, to up their record to 8-5. If both MSU and Indiana lose, and the Hawkeyes beat Michigan Saturday, Iowa would tie MSU and Indiana for the title, and go to the NCAA tournament, since the Hoosiers went after Iowa.

Benington said that Art Baylor, suspended last week, would be available for duty against Northwestern.

Then, he said this about the Spartans:

"Whether we tie or win the title outright, either way, it would be a wonderful thing for these boys. They've given a lot more this year than was expected. They're the worst shooting team in the league, and yet they've played great, both winning and losing."

The chances are 25 per cent.

Big Rush

MSU Athletic Ticket Manager Bill Beardsley said Thursday that he hoped there would not be a mad rush for the early seats at the MSU - Northwestern game Saturday.

"The doors will open at 2 p.m.," Beardsley said, "and there are plenty of student seats available. There is no need for the early arrivers to push and shove through the door like last year."

Beardsley was referring to the 1966 Michigan game when "about 200 or 300 people had to get to one particular seat."

OVER SPRING BREAK

NCAA swimming at I.M.

By JOHN LADD
State News Sports Writer

Some of the world's best swimmers will converge at the MSU Men's Intramural Pool over spring break. The NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships will be held there on March 23, 24 and 25.

Probably best known of the swimmers competing in the meet is Yale's Don Schollander. Though he is a junior, these are his first NCAA Championships--Ivy League schools refused to attend the meet last year because of a dispute over scholastic eligibility requirements.

Schollander won four events in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. He was so besieged by fan mail in Japan that his fellow Olympian, Spartan Gary Dilley, can recall boxes of it in the halls with groups of swimmers getting together to open it all.

Yet there is so much good competition at this coming meet that Schollander may be able to win only a single event.

MSU Asst. Coach Richard Fetters said, "You have to count 200-yard freestyle as his race. But I wouldn't place any bets on him in any of the other races." Schollander holds the American record in the 200-yard free at 1:41.7 and has already gone an unofficial 1:41.5 on a relay earlier this year.

But on the shorter distance freestyle, the 100-yard freestyle, he runs into some stiff competition in the person of MSU Co-Captain Ken Walsh. Though Schollander won the metric equivalent of this race in the Olympics, Walsh's time of 0:46.02 in the Big Ten Championships last weekend is better than Schollander or any other swimmer has been capable of this year.

In the longer distances, the 1,650-yard and the 500-yard freestyle events, the West Coast schools will provide the strongest entries. UCLA's Mike Burton bettered the NCAA record in the "mile" two weeks ago by beating Steve Buckingham of Stanford in 16:33. Buckingham, however, won the 500-yard freestyle in 4:42.3, again bettering the NCAA record.

Spartan Gary Dilley is one of the meet's best bets to be a two-event winner. Dilley has won both the 100- and 200-yard backstroke events, the last two years. His strongest competition should come from other Big Ten swimmers he has already beaten several times.

Southern California has won the NCAA team championship for the last four years, but may drop in the standings this year. Of the perennial Big Ten Champion Indiana, Fetters said, "They've never been able to come through in the NCAA's before. I can't see why anyone should expect them to do it this year."

Indiana has finished second three years in a row.

Stanford and UCLA have two of the strongest West Coast teams, and could give either Southern Cal or Indiana trouble. On the East Coast, Yale is the strongest team, especially in the freestyle events.

Big Ten teams Michigan and MSU finished behind Indiana in the Big Ten Championship, but had more individual champions, who will be more important in this meet.

The meet will be swum on the same schedule as was the Big Ten Championship. Preliminaries will be swum on each day at 1 p.m. while the corresponding finals will be the same night at 8 p.m. Admission will be $1 for preliminaries and $2 for finals.

Top gym squads meet to qualify for nationals

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

The five best teams in the country step up to the first plateau of the NCAA Gymnastics Championships when they compete in the Mid-East Regional Meet March 18 at Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.

Regionals are held in all four of the NCAA regions to narrow the field of team and individual competitors who will compete for the national titles at Southern Illinois, March 31 - April 1.

Three teams from each region will vie for the NCAA crown, with the top eight qualifiers in each event in the Regionals eligible for a crack at the individual titles.

Michigan State, Southern Illinois, Michigan, Iowa and Illinois will field teams, three of which can go to the nationals. The Salukis are the defending NCAA champs, with Iowa the Big Ten champ.

Southern is definitely favored, but Coach George Szypula feels that any of the other four teams can beat SIU with a good day.

All five boast the toughest competition in the nation, both overall and individually. Of all the competitors that the Spartans have faced this year, Southern is the best, in both quality and depth, and their presence in the meet is sure to fire things up.

The Salukis' only weak spot is side horse. Their fortunes rest primarily with floor exercise, high and parallel bars, rings and trampoline.

Michigan's strongest events are trampoline, floor exercise and vault. The Wolves had the best event average in the Big Ten Meet on tramp (27.70) and floor exercise (27.85); trampoline was their turning point, pushing them into the lead after four events.

Iowa is the nation's best in side horse.

Trampoline and high bar are Illinois' best events.

Along with eight individual qualifiers on each event, the region will send four all-around men. Spartan Dave Thor's competition comes from Paul Mayer of SIU, Bob Dickson of Iowa, Gary Vander Voort of Michigan and Bill Silhan of Illinois.

Big Ten champ Toby Towson, of MSU, is favored to win floor exercise but will get strong challenges from Mayer, Michigan's Fuller twins and Dave Jacobs of U-M.

Rings is complicated by SIU's Fred Dennis. All four of the Spartan ringmen will be competing--each team may enter five men on an event--along with co-Big Ten champ Don Hatch of Iowa.

Thor should qualify on floor exercise, vault, side horse, high and parallel bars, along with all-around.

Boards may splinter NCAA track hopes

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

Eleven select runners from the MSU track team will be getting their last taste, and perhaps their most fulfilling one, of the indoor season when they compete this weekend in the NCAA championships at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

The two day meet, sponsored by the Detroit News, will be drawing top athletes from across the country.

MSU runners who qualified for the meet by top performances this season will be faced with another challenge in addition to the top runners—a board track.

"Running on the boards should be a completely unique experience," said sophomore John Spain. He has competed regularly this season in the half-mile, but will be switched to the 1,000-yard run for this meet. He has never run on boards.

"There is a lot more tactical running on boards," Spain said. "You have to get out in the lead to begin with and then keep it. Runners don't have any good opportunities to pass on the boards so the early lead is important."

There is one big reason that runners do not have this opportunity to stay back in the pack and challenge late in the race. The dirt tracks that midwestern and many western teams run on indoors are 220 yards long or eight laps to the mile. But the indoor boards, which most Eastern schools have, are only 160 yards, or 11 laps to the mile.

Also, the board tracks are narrower and the curves are banked.

"There is a saying that 'a big man never has fun on the boards,' and it is true," Spain said. "I may have to chop my stride somewhat on curves because they are so tight."

Spain finished second in the half-mile in the Big Ten championships with a 1:51.1 time, but had clocked 2:09.6 in the 1000 as a freshman. Joining him in the 1,000 will be Roger Merchant, MSU sophomore who placed second in the Big Ten with a 2:11.5.

Track Coach Fran Dittrich feels most of the MSU runners should not have too much trouble on the boards, since they have competed in the nationals in previous years.

Among these are seniors Gene Washington and Das Campbell, co-captains for the Spartans this year. Both placed in the NCAA meet two years ago.

Washington, running the 60-yard high hurdles, won the event, while Campbell placed fifth in the quarter mile.

Indoors this season, Washington has been running the regulation 70-yard high and low hurdles, while Campbell competed in the 300-yard dash along with the quarter-mile.

Don Crawford will run with Campbell in quarter this weekend.

MSU will also enter two men in the 600-yard run. Pat Wilson, who won the Big Ten and has a best time of 1:09.9 for the season, will be joined by Rick Dunn, who has a best 600 time of 1:11.7.

The other Spartan competing in the running events, and the one who will probably be facing the toughest field, will be Dick Sharkey in the two-mile.

Sharkey won the two-mile in the conference meet and has a best season time of 8:51. But he will need a super-performance this weekend, since Gerry Lindgren of Washington State will be in the field.

Lindgren won the NCAA indoor two-mile last year with an 8:41.3 and has run the event in 8:31.6. He injured his left foot recently in a dormitory room accident at WSU and was limping Thursday.

Crawford, Bob Steele, Das Campbell and Wilson will also enter as a mile relay team.

Two MSU entries will be competing in the field events: Mike Bowers, winner of the Big Ten high jump and MSU's other Big Ten winner, pole vaulter Roland Carter.

And don't think Carter will have an easy afternoon. Bob Seagren of the University of Southern California will be competing. He cleared 17-5 1/2 to tie the world's record outdoors last season. Carter has a top vault of 15-6.

Among the other top athletes scheduled to compete are Jim Ryan from the University of Kansas, in both the mile and half mile, and Charlie Green, 60-yard dash man from the University of Nebraska.

By LARRY WERNER
State News Sports Editor

During the waning weeks of fall term, before the MSU football team was to meet Notre Dame, sports fans all over the country were talking about the tremendous finale to the football season.

The Spartans were playing for the national championship on the last day of the season.

Here we go again—almost.

John Benington's charges have not really attracted the attention of sports fans all over the country. Nor is the team playing for the national championship.

But Saturday's game between the Spartans and Northwestern provides, at least, an interesting finish to the Big Ten cage season.

Barring a loss—or a tie—Michigan State will pick up at least a share of the conference basketball title. Benington has been joking for the past few weeks about the situation.

It would be ironic if the basketball team ties Indiana for the championship on the final day of the season. It would only be appropriate after the crucial dead lock by the football team and the soccer tie with Long Island in the NCAA tournament.

The thing that makes Saturday's Big Ten play especially interesting is the activity in Bloomington that afternoon. If the Boiler-makers beat Indiana, MSU will be the winner of its first Big Ten basketball championship since the 1958-59 season.

Call it "Super Saturday."

It will, indeed, be a big day for the Big Ten basketball. The Spartan game, like the famous football finale, is the television "game of the week."

The reserved seats at Jenison have been sold out for several weeks. And the students—in spite of finals—will fill the seats that are left.

MARCH 23

Wrestlers in nationals

By GAYEL WESCH
State News Sports Writer

March 23-25 are just three days during vacation for most MSU students. Three days to spend in Florida, or working or whatever else one plans to do during the break. Such is not the case for the MSU wrestling team.

The Spartan matmen, who are currently enjoying a well deserved rest after running away with the Big Ten championship, will be spending those three days of "vacation" at the NCAA tournament at Kent, Ohio.

MSU has never won a national title in wrestling, but the Spartans should be in the thick of the fight this season and have a good chance of winning.

Coach Grady Peninger's team tied defending national Champion Oklahoma State and defeated Oklahoma University, the runner-up last year, in dual meets this season to give reason for optimism.

The Oklahoma victories pushed MSU to the No. 1 ranking nationally by the Amateur Wrestling News.

Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, along with Iowa State, Lehigh, and the University of Michigan should be MSU's top rivals at the tournament.

MSU's top prospects for the meet will be Don Behm at 130, Dale Anderson at 137 and George Radman at 167.

Behm is 21-1 for the season, his only loss coming to Dan Gable, a freshman from Iowa State, in the Midlands Tournament last December.

A senior, Behm was third in the NCAA's in his sophomore season and should be the favorite at 130 this year. Dropped to 123 for the meet last year, Behm lost out in the semifinals.

Anderson has gone undefeated in 21 matches this season. He won the Big Ten championship at 130 last season and finished fifth in the NCAA's at that weight. He won the Big Ten 137-pound title this season.

Radman is also undefeated and has beaten the best at his weight already. The senior from Norfolk, Va., has stopped defending 167-pound champion Dave Reinbolt twice this season, and has defeated last year's runner-up Vic Marcucci and third-place finisher Roger Mickish.

Radman's 19th straight win was a convincing 11-3 victory over Reinbolt in the Big Ten finals. Four other Spartan wrestlers have strong possibilities of winning or placing high for the Spartans in the meet.

Mike Bradley at 177 and Dale Carr at 145, both two time conference champions, and heavyweight Jeff Richardson, fifth in the NCAA last season, could have shots at titles, as could 152-pounder Dave Campbell.

Gary Bissell, who was third in the conference at 123, will probably wrestle at that weight in the nationals and Don Cox, who has been hampered by injuries is the likely Spartan at 160.

Two extra weights added for the NCAA's, 115 and 190 will probably be manned by George Hody and Jack Zindel respectively.

SIDELINES

'Super Saturday' another tie?

The Spartans should know by the time they take the floor for their 4 p.m. game whether they will be playing for all the marbles or "playing for the tie."

That is, they will know if Indiana defeated Purdue in the game being played earlier in the afternoon, to assure itself of at least a tie for the title. The other possibility, of course, is Purdue winning, dropping Indiana behind MSU in the standings.

Ironic enough, on the last day of the 1966 football season, Notre Dame played for a tie against the Spartans. The tie gave the Irish a championship.

On the final day of the 1967 basketball season, the Spartans will be playing Northwestern, to tie Indiana for the Big Ten championship, if the Hoosiers beat Purdue.

"I don't think they've ever had the football team and basketball team playing games like this on their last days," Benington said at the press luncheon Thursday.

It's been an unusual—if not prosperous—Big Ten season. Besides the large number of losses by the team that will eventually win the title, other aspects of the '66-'67 campaign stand out.

No Big Ten team finished among the top 20 in the press polls. Michigan State had worked its way up to as high as third, before the team's disastrous holiday trip.

Another oddity. No Big Ten players were selected to the first three teams of UPI's All-America squad.

Many critics have suggested that the conference has no respectable representative for the NCAA's. This won't be decided until the regionals begin at Evanston.

For whatever the Big Ten title is worth, it will be up for grabs Saturday.

"Whether Indiana wins or loses, we'll still be playing for a championship," Benington said, in reference to the possibility of a tie for the title.

Sure, Coach. That's all we need around here—another tie. Go Boiler-makers!

Apisa meets his match

Spartan fullback Bob Apisa and Patricia Ann Novak, a junior from Flint, are planning a June wedding. Miss Novak is the daughter of Dr. Edwin Novak, President of the State Board of Education. She is majoring in education. Apisa, a junior from Honolulu, Hawaii, has been a starter on the MSU football team for the past two seasons.

BRADSHAW TO LIONS

NFL Saints get McLenna

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints said they traded offensive tackle Charley Bradshaw to the Detroit Lions in return for offensive halfback—fullback Bruce McLenna.

McLenna, 6-3, 228 pounds, was a star at Hillsdale College in 1965. That year he rushed for 1,008 yards and caught 13 passes for 216 yards.

The 6-6, 260-pound Bradshaw is a nine-year veteran of National Football League play. He is a Baylor graduate who played three years with the Los Angeles Rams until 1960. Since then he was with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

McLenna is 25 years of age, and Bradshaw will be 31 next Monday. McLenna, of Fenton, Mich., was the no. 1 collegiate scorer in the State of Michigan during 1965 with 85 points. In college, he ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.8 seconds.

McLenna was used sparingly last year by the Lions, but he was in more regular use by the ninth game, when he hurt his knee against the Chicago Bears. His total NFL offense was 64 yards.

The Saints front office said McLenna has apparently made a fine recovery from the operation.

The Saints said McLenna was expendable for Detroit because the Lions had Tom Watkins and Nick Eddy this year, but the trade gave them added strength and depth at offensive running back posts.

Bradshaw, past president of the NFL Player Association, is the only player in the league who holds a law degree. He now lives in Houston, Tex.

STEVE POLISAR

Former Spartan batsman ineligible due to '65 ruling

The crack of the bats will soon be heard around Old College Field. One of the spectators this year will be last year's shortstop, Steve Polisar.

He has only played one regular season for MSU, and an NCAA ruling in 1965 is preventing his playing another one.

Polisar was injured in a pre-season game in Florida before the 1965 season, and consequently lost his eligibility for that year.

Polisar, who graduates this term, transferred to Michigan State from a junior college in Florida in 1964. He was one of the fine ballplayers that have been recruited from that state through the efforts of Head Baseball Coach Danny Litwiler.

Litwiler, a native of the Sunshine State, took over the head coaching job in 1964.

Polisar was showing great promise in early practice, and in the first couple of scheduled games in Florida that spring, when fate stepped in and raised home plate enough to break a leg. The leg was Polisar's.

The NCAA ruling on "red shirting" (putting an athlete on an injury list, thus retaining his eligibility for that season) states that all grants of extra eligibility to players injured after the first scheduled game of the season must be reviewed by a board. That board did not grant Polisar his eligibility because the game was the seventh of the season.

Polisar started a rehabilitation program as soon as the cast was removed. The ankle, not the leg, was slow in healing. The ankle had been twisted badly in the injury and as a result took longer to heal.

Through diligent exercise with weights the leg was 100 per cent healed for spring practice in 1966. Polisar had a fine season for the Spartans, leading the team in batting with .331 and turning in an impressive season in the field.

That was Polisar's last season as a Spartan athlete, and soon afterward he signed a contract with the Cincinnati Reds. He played for their Tampa farm team during the remainder of the summer.

This year, however, Polisar is looking for a law school (preferably near a big league camp). He still plans to play professional baseball, though.

"Maybe I'll try out at Vero Beach (training camp for the L.A. Dodgers) this spring," Steve said.

Asked about this year's Spartan prospects, Polisar voiced optimism. When it was suggested that there were some gaps to fill, particularly at third, vacated by All-America John Bledenhach, and at short, vacated by himself, he indicated that some young infielders such as Tom Ellis and Gayle Franzen are fine prospects.

Polisar continued that the move of former catcher Bill Steckley to third coupled with the return of Steve Rymal and Tom Binkowski to second and first should stabilize the infield. The addition of Richie Jordan to center field will give the team added defensive strength.

"The team is looking strong in spite of its youth," said Polisar, "and if the pitching comes through they should win a lot of games."

But there is at least one .300 hitter that they will miss this year.

REBELS SNUB UAW ORDER

GM may close Ohio plant if union rift isn't settled

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors said Thursday that labor disputes at a Fisher Body plant in Mansfield, Ohio, could jeopardize the factory's future as a key link in the automaking production chain.

The factory manufactures parts for 90 per cent of GM's passenger cars and is threatened anew with shutdown by rebels within United Auto Workers Local 549.

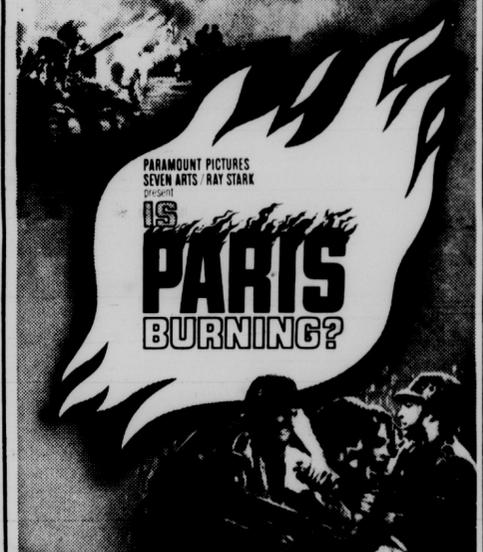

In 85 GM auto plants across the country. A new unauthorized walkout began there Tuesday night. It continued Wednesday night, but Thursday 75 per cent of the normal day-shift work force of 1,200 reported.

The 26-member International Executive Board of the UAW on Wednesday night ordered an administrator to take over the rebel local, but some 1,200 of its 2,700 members voted at a subsequent meeting to continue their work stoppage.

On Thursday, GM issued a statement saying: "The irresponsible and lawless conduct of certain UAW local union leaders at the Fisher Body plant in Mansfield, Ohio, implemented by wildcat strikes, violence and intimidation, inevitably poses the question as to whether or not the continuation of this plant as a key plant under these circumstances is practical or possible."

"The production of over 90 per cent of our passenger cars and the job security of more than 200,000 of our employees in other GM plants affected by the disorderly disruptions of production at the Mansfield plant cannot be left to the whim of a handful of irresponsible local leaders and their followers."

Honors seniors

Two Honors College students have been selected seniors of the week.

Lenore Wile, Princeton, N.J., English major and Robin Berglund, Berkley biochemistry major are being honored for their contributions to MSU.

Miss Wile is a member of Tau Sigma, Alpha Lambda Delta, and Beta Beta Beta honoraries. She is now membership chairman of Circle Honorary and a member of Senior Council. She has served as special projects chairman of Frosh-Soph Council and as newspaper advertising chairman of Water Carnival.

She spent last summer studying at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. After graduation she plans to go on to graduate school and then into college teaching.

Berglund, a national science foundation grant winner, is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and Delta Phi Epsilon honoraries. He is an officer in Blue Key honorary and is on Senior Council. He has served as chairman of the Honors College board.

He is married and has a two-year-old daughter. His wife, Christine, is an anthropology major. After graduation, Berglund plans to do graduate study in international business and apply it to biochemistry on a world level.

ASMSU POSITIONS

Stumping starts March 30

Official campaigning for the ASMSU Student Board and National Student Association Summer Congress delegate positions does not begin until 8 a.m. March 30, the second day of spring term classes.

Candidates for member-at-large positions on the board or as delegates to the NSA Congress may not conduct campaigns before March 30, according to the 1967 elections regulations.

Jim Graham, chairman of both the present board and the elections review board, said the first reported violation of this rule has been dismissed. Ross Mast, seeking a senior member-at-large seat, reportedly was distributing campaign literature during the petitioning period.

Graham said he had talked with Mast, who said only a fact sheet identifying himself had been passed out with this petitions. Graham said if this was all Mast had done, no $50 fine or disqualification will be enacted.

"Besides, it isn't feasible to fine candidates right from the start. I don't expect to in this case," Graham continued. "Repeated violations will, of course, be investigated."

All infractions of the elections regulations are subject to fines up to $50 which cannot be interpreted as campaign expenditures, limitations on the candidate or disqualification at the discretion of the elections review board.

Elections regulations state that all undergraduate students carrying 12 or more credits spring term will be eligible to vote April 12.

Voting booths will be set up in the Union, International Center, Berkey and Bessey between 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Residence hall and off-campus unit polls will be open from 15 minutes before meal hours to 15 minutes after meal lines close.

The board is also considering setting up a booth in the Auditorium during Mark Lane's speech.

Persons seeking board or NSA delegate positions were required to submit petitions bearing a minimum of 200 names by 5 p.m. yesterday. If more than seven candidates file petitions for member-at-large seats a primary election would have to be held April 6 to reduce the number to four.

Campaign procedures include posters no larger than 12 by 16 inches placed according to normal University restrictions, campaign literature, speeches pre-arranged in living units and even parades as approved by the Dept. of Public Safety.

All campaign handouts must be signed by the candidate and filed with the elections commissioner before distribution. The regulations also prohibit desk top distribution in academic buildings.

Students should know that personally addressed campaign literature may be sent through campus mail. Telephone solicitation is permitted except between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Vetavisit-67 planned

Live surgery will be one of the main attractions of Vetavisit-67, according to Theodore C. Price, East Lansing Veterinary Medicine Student and Chairman of Vetavisit-67.

Vetavisit-67, the fourth annual open house of the College of Veterinary Medicine, will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 8 at the Veterinary Clinic. It will feature exhibits and demonstrations on all phases of veterinary medicine, Price said.

Vetavisit is a nationally recognized program, he said. Over 4,300 people attended the open house last year.

A Petoskey veterinarian annually brings a group of high school students over 200 miles to Vetavisit.

Vetavisit has two purposes, Price said: to inform people of what a veterinarian's work entails and to interest high school and college students in veterinary medicine as a career.

Campus demand high for overseas study

Only seven spaces are left for enrollment in the overseas political science classes offered this summer by MSU. However, there are several openings remaining in the language study program according to Keith Odle, director of the program.

Nearly 200 college students from 30 states have enrolled in the overseas study program so far. The courses will be taught in Europe by both European instructors and by professors-in-residence from the Michigan State faculty.

In addition to the normal credit and non-credit language programs in French, German, Italian and Spanish, this year's student will be able to choose two credit courses in political science.

The languages will be taught in Paris and Lausanne, Cologne, Florence, and Madrid and Barcelona. The political science courses will be offered at London.

The summer study program, which runs from July 3 to Aug. 10, is sponsored by MSU's American Language and Educational Center (AMLEC), and is affiliated with the European Language and Educational Centers (ELEC) in Europe.

of what it's doing to the people in Vietnam," he explained.

action to educate people about the war and to actively oppose the Johnson policies in the war.

UCM will participate in the Week of Mobilization Against Mass Murder in Vietnam which will be sponsored April 8-15 by Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and other groups.

"Sarcasm, for example, is an immorality because it usually creates feelings of distrust and suspicion and builds a barrier between those who use it and those against whom it is used," he says.

At issue in the class boycotts, which is 90 per cent effective, is the readmittance of three students who were dismissed from the predominantly Negro school two weeks ago as a result of a demonstration against student rules.

"I bet all he said to the governor yesterday was 'uh huh.' "Our president doesn't know how to be a Negro. He doesn't know what our parents have sacrificed - and for what? - a second-rate education."

plans for a two-day protest march from Orangeburg, 42 miles south of the capital, were abandoned because "some crackpot might try to start an incident along the route."

Students boycott school

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) - South Carolina State College students, threatened with dismissal if they don't return to classes, agreed today to "stand fast, and strengthen our position."

Students began collecting a dollar for each person riding on a chartered bus Saturday to Columbia for a march to the capital. Williams said original

"Unity of the christian church cannot be achieved through Church administration unity, but only through the unity of the worshippers," Rev. Alfred Longley of Notre Dame University said Tuesday night at an Akers Hall symposium.

Is Christian unity possible today?

From the beginnings of the Roman Catholic Church a wall has formed between clergy and worshippers, he said. A feeling of insecurity evolved as a result of this wall and people have relied too much on the word of clergy.

is a member of both the World and the National Councils of Churches.

Vietnam talks at Wesley

The Peace Coordinating Committee of the University Christian Movement (UCM) will sponsor a Vietnam Workshop April 2-7 at the Wesley Foundation, 1118 S. Harrison Ave.

Sessions will be held each evening at 7:30 p.m. There is no registration fee. For information and transportation call 351-7030.

"The trustees said they were going to close the college if the regular routine wasn't resumed," Williams reminded a crowd of some 500 today. "Well, it wasn't resumed, so now they've just issued another ultimatum."

Herbert Jackson, associate professor of religion, believes that churches are heading toward unity through the various ecumenical movements, like the World Council of Churches. He

Potpourri of poetry at Zeitgeist culture fest

By ANDREW MOLLISON
Executive Reporter

Wednesday night the Big Ten Club, which combines architecturally all the finest features of a 16-lane bowling alley and a U.S. Air Force hangar, catered to two very distinct groups of customers. In the brightly lit front area, construction workers and pump jockeys argued about sports and played pool.

Behind a waist-high barrier just behind the pool tables about 200 members of MSU's sweater-and-knee-boots set huddled around a stage.

Behind the stage was a huge sign: "Cash McCall and His Greenbacks." But Mr. McCall wasn't on stage.

Usually, Gary Groat was. Groat cheered up the early arrivals by telling them that they were to see more than a mere miscellany of jazz musicians, poets, folk singers and artists. The entire evening, he informed them, was to be a demonstration of how a small literary magazine can survive despite all the forces arrayed against it.

Then Marshall Forstater sang folk songs, accompanying himself on the guitar.

Groat told which stores in East Lansing had decided not to sell the current issue of Zeitgeist.

Then Kay Porterfield, looking sweet, read poems about pot and stuff.

Groat revealed how many printers had refused to print Zeitgeist, or to trim its pages. Then Gordon R. Moore read some of his poems.

Groat asked the manager of the club to ask the pool players to stop making noise playing pool. The manager said he'd close the tables if Zeitgeist would pay $200 rent instead of the agreed-upon $50.

Then Win Rowe, faculty member who is rumored to be a behind-the-scenes power in the local Democratic party, read some Spanish poems in English.

Groat offered to pay for non-played games on the pool table.

The manager said that if anyone from Zeitgeist put any quarters in the pool table, he'd call the cops.

Then Charlie Smith, president of the MSU Folklore Society, sang folk songs and played the guitar.

Groat complained that a passage from Steve Walton's well-known book of poetry.

John Sinclair, visiting lyreman from Detroit, reads his work.

had not yet reviewed any of Zeitgeist's six publications, and had covered Allen Ginsberg's appearance on campus without mentioning that it was co-sponsored by Zeitgeist.

Jim Simark, a Detroit poet, read some Coltrane-influenced "rhythm ballads" from his forthcoming book of poetry.

Groat made public a letter from Jack Breslin, University secretary, to an administrator, adding a $50 surcharge to the $500 fee for renting the Auditorium for Ginsberg's appearance. Reason given: it cost more to clean up the cigarette butts.

Groat, whose magazine contracted with ASMSU to pay all expenses of Ginsberg's visit, called the letter unprecedented.

Bud Spangler on drums, Ron English on lead guitar and Paul Cullins on Fender bass kept the crowd enthralled for over an hour of surging, complex jazz. Even the pool players stopped occasionally to listen.

Groat reminded the audience that a paper wholesaler had cut off Zeitgeist's credit.

John Sinclair, fresh out of jail from his latest accusation of possessing marijuana, read Mottown pot poems typical of those published in the magazine "Work," which he edits for Detroit's Artists Workshop.

Groat wanted to know why the State News didn't point out that Walton and Ken Lawless, the two campus writers to have creative books printed this year, were both published for the first time in Zeitgeist.

The next poet read some anti-Zeitgeist and anti-war poems. Groat told the audience that freedom to sell Zeitgeist is as important a part of freedom of the press as is freedom to put together the magazine.

Two of Ken Lawless's Free

University proteges, Bob Boyd and Randy Buschman, read some of their poems.

Groat said he was afraid that five or six of the poets present wouldn't get a chance to read, so would everyone hurry along.

Chuck Taylor, Stormy Rice and Ed Harvey played 15 minutes of applause-punctuated free-ranging pop jazz.

Groat announced that Ken Lawless and Robert Vander Molen, whose books will be published this spring by Zeitgeist, would be unable to speak, since it was now after 2 p.m.

The crowd, by now down to 100, filed out past the art display. Larry Fritzman, Maxine Chilton and Joan Simpson made sales.

Groat said to a friend, "This is the last one of these things I ever get involved in."

The friend nodded agreement. Groat smiled. "Unless, of course . . ."

'U' grad receives top award

James W. Miller, Ph.D., a 1956 graduate of MSU, recently received the Arthur S. Fleming Award as one of the 10 "outstanding young men" in government.

The program was established to honor outstanding men under 40-years-old in the federal government and to recognize exceptionally meritorious work.

As head of the Engineering Psychology Branch, Office of Naval Research, Miller developed a pioneering research program for testing the behavior of men while living on the ocean bottom. The Sealab Program will determine whether and to what extent men could do useful work in an alien environment, an area of research without precedent as a guide.

Miller expressed thanks to S. Howard Bartley, professor of psychology and director of the Laboratory for Vision and Related Sensory Processes at MSU.

Miller did all of his college work at MSU, receiving a B.A. in 1949 and his M.S. in 1950. He was the first psychologist to receive the Fleming Award in its 19-year history.

The awards were presented at a luncheon in Washington D.C., attended by over 700 including the secretary of agriculture and other heads of major governmental departments.

Three students were arrested as they climbed out of the steam tunnels near the University Museum Monday morning according to University Police.

PAT STONE WIC names 'top member'

No. 1 Pat Stone, president of Mason Hall, was chosen outstanding member for the year in WIC.

Pat Stone, Hilton, N.Y., junior and president of Mason Hall, was the nearly unanimous choice as the outstanding member for the year in the Women's Inter-residence Council (WIC).
During her year in WIC, Miss Stone served as a representative to the first ASMSU compensation committee and to the policy review committee.
"The most valuable part of WIC was the associations I had there," she said. "The women in WIC are a fantastic group. It was a stimulating situation every time I went there."

Powell begins legal action

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge George Hart was assigned today to hold a preliminary hearing in Adam Clayton Powell's legal bid to regain his seat in Congress.
No date can be set for the hearing, Hart's office said, until House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts and the other defendants named in the law suit are served with summons. The U.S. marshal's office said service will begin as soon as possible.

31ST ANNUAL SESSION

Attendance record set at credit union meeting

MSU's Employees Credit Union drew the largest attendance in its history at the 31st annual meeting this week in the Auditorium.
Some 3,500 members and guests, including 2,000 voting members, attended the meeting.
"The significance of the record breaking attendance is that the members are enthusiastic enough to participate in the management and future of the credit union," said Louis J. Wolter, Advertising Dept. instructor and publicity chairman of the union.

It's what's happening

The Ingham County Democratic Women will celebrate St. Patrick's Day at 7 p.m., March 16, at the downtown YWCA. Members are urged to bring guests. Mrs. Jack Gunther, chairman, may be contacted for additional information.
Faculty Folks and the Newcomers Club will have a joint meeting at 1:30 p.m. today in the Union Ballroom. There will be a fashion show by Jacobson's entitled "Spring on the March." Refreshments will be served.

ROTC cadets to graduate

Commissioning ceremonies for nine Army and five Air Force ROTC cadets will be conducted in the Union Ballroom at 1 p.m. Sunday.
The commissioning ceremonies are the culmination of four years of ROTC study for cadets.
Of the five Air Force cadets to be commissioned, one will attend undergraduate pilot training while the remaining four will assume administrative positions. The Army will commission nine cadets in seven branches: one to the Artillery Corps; one to the Ordnance Corps; one to the Signal Corps; one to Medical Services Corps; two to the Intelligence Corps; and three to the Corps of Engineers.

Students grade classmates

If one of the 623 students in Public Speaking 101 doesn't like his grade this term, he can put part of the blame on his classmates.
For the first time, student evaluations will be figured into each student's final grade for the course.
Each student's evaluation of the speeches delivered during the term will count about 11 percent of the total grade, said William Lashbrook, asst. professor of speech and educational development.
When preliminary grades were issued in February, the grades that students received from their classmates were almost identical to those turned in by the instructors.
The students proved to be fair and accurate graders, Lashbrook said. Students generally graded higher than professors, but it was uniformly higher without any apparent discrimination, Lashbrook reported. No one grades himself, he added.

THE K.L.H. MODEL TWENTY

Advertisement for K.L.H. Model Twenty stereo system. Includes image of the stereo and text describing its features: A stereo music system of a new and distinctive kind. The model twenty offers all the important advantages of high performance sound equipment in a functional instrument fully suited to fit gracefully into any setting, including a space too limited for either a conventional console or sound system. The model twenty is a powerful and versatile instrument that can serve as the basis of a complete entertainment center. It can play records, conventional or multiplex FM broadcasts, and (through inputs for external equipment) tape recordings, AM broadcasts, or the sound portion of television programs. It can power a second set of speakers in another room, and it has outputs for listening over headphones and for making tape recordings of records or broadcasts. We invite you to come in and inspect the Model Twenty and all the fine K.L.H. audio products. HEAR THE K.L.H. AT... THE DISC SHOP (DISCOUNT RECORDS) 323 EAST GRAND RIVER, E.L. OPEN MON.-FRI, 9 A.M. VIET PRESS TALKS

LBJ avoids specific answers

Johnson added that in the failure to get negotiations started so far "the problem is not with this government."

He said his view of Communist calls for halting the bombing and talking about peace possibilities is that "the other side is struggling desperately to try to get a propaganda victory - to permit them to win here what they cannot win out there."

Administration officials have said that one obvious aim of Communist maneuvers is to put pressure on the United States to halt bombing of North Vietnam.

On the Schlesinger statement, Johnson said:

"I have tried to make it clear to all the people of the country and of the world that we are prepared to talk without conditions, that we are prepared to talk about conditions or a final settlement," Johnson replied.

But he added he does not think "we can stop half a war" when the enemy continues to attack U.S. bases, kill U.S. personnel and try to seize South Vietnam by force.

He said the United States is ready to go to the conference room any day, but it is not fair to ask the United States to sit with hands tied and let division after division come through from the North.

"We are willing to talk unconditionally or unconditionally - but we are not willing to ask American boys to do something when the other side does nothing," Johnson said.

Johnson was asked if time is now on our side in Vietnam.

"I think it is very difficult to speculate" on things like that, he replied.

"I no longer see any possibility of a military victory on the part of North Vietnam," he added, saying he thinks the North Vietnamese are seeking to win a propaganda victory since they cannot win a military victory.

Asked about reports that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge wants to be relieved in Vietnam, Johnson said, "There is no truth in the rumor that I am looking for a successor."

On the issue of the Central Intelligence Agency and its support of private groups, Johnson said nobody is happy to see the country upset about such a situation. It would be better if everyone was agreed on a wise course of action, he said, but he regrets some of the intemperate statements that have been made. He added he has asked "the best people in the government" to study the matter and he expects a report about March 20.

Questioning turned back to Vietnam again and Johnson said the United States wants "just almost any reciprocal action" on the part of the Communists to get peace talks started.

Vote may restrict political spending

(continued from page one) stipulation into the constitution might give it more permanence than it now has as part of the Code of Operations.

Jim Sink, ASMSU member-at-large and the only student board member to vote against reaffiliation with NSA, introduced the motion which will poll student opinion on NSA involvement.

"If we are going to participate in NSA, we should do so fully," Sink said.

He commented that while the initial cost of joining NSA is $285 a year, convention costs might run the total up to more than $1,000.

"If ASMSU is going to spend that much money at least it should have a student mandate," Sink said.

He said that the entire question of MSU participation in areas with political and social implications is involved in the NSA question.

"My only concern is that the reaffiliation question wasn't taken to the students in the first place," Sink said.

C of C hits price study

"The idea of dragging cases out one at a time is only perpetuating a ridiculous situation," Jonas commented. "Where will it stop?"

Jonas said the best plan now would be for ASMSU to present a full report of facts and figures to the chamber's board of directors.

The publicity given the study has followed some "implied generalizations that East Lansing prices are high and we haven't yet been given the evidence of this," Jonas said.

Jonas noted that despite the coverage given the shoe repair store incident, the board of directors had some "good discussions on the matter." He said he hoped this would be the case in the future with the whole report.

Merchants on the board have expressed a general concern for the business of East Lansing, Jonas said. He stressed that this concern has been to the business community and not just individuals worried over their income.

Jonas emphasized the wording used concerning the shoe repair store incident. He said it was not a matter of "lowering or even adjusting" prices, but of employing an additional line of service. "It's not like selling $40 dresses for $20, but like adding a line of $20 dresses to your stock."

Jonas said the Chamber of Commerce doesn't intend to discontinue communication and progress. He concluded that he would like to get things back on a "good faith" basis which would be more beneficial to the student body and merchants.

Romney

Romney said British Honduras, which is soon to become the independent nation of Belize, is an excellent starting point for his "self-help" doctrine.

George C. Price, premier of British Honduras, was at the conference, helping to line up aid in economic and technical development for his country.

"It is my conviction that we don't begin to realize the importance of making programs like this one succeed," Romney said.

"If the United States cannot make itself relevant to the hopes and revolutionary expectations of the people of Latin America, with whom we share common traditions, common interests and a common religion," he said, "we surely cannot expect to succeed anywhere else."

Romney said the U.S. has delayed too long in recognizing this fact. "Time is not with us in Latin America," he said. "The pressures of population and revolution are increasing."

Romney emphasized that foreign nations resent U.S. domination of foreign relations. Economic partnerships, undertaken by private citizens, is the answer, he said.

"The specter of 'yankee imperialism' and 'dollar diplomacy' still hangs heavy over the relations between the United States and Latin America," he said.

AUSJ ruling

(continued from page one) ing concern over any issue as important to our University community as the war in Vietnam, did lend greatly to the benefit of the student body, the prestige of the University, and the welfare of the general public."

The partial rationale expressed by the minority was, "In the dissenting opinion of the minority (Steve Rosstter, Farmington Junior, and Dennis Millnak, Valley Stream, N.Y., junior), the allocation of $50 by the student board to James Graham was in fact unconstitutional. The minority is in agreement with the technical aspects of the majority opinion; i.e., the portions of the constitution which are pertinent in this case.

"The minority of the court bases its opinion also on Article III, section 7 of the constitution. It is the feeling of the minority that in this specific case, and indeed in general, the allocation of student tax money to send a non-representative individual to a conference is not in the general welfare of the student body and Michigan State University."

Complete rationale of the court's opinion will be issued Monday.

Neither Graham nor Durell was available for comment.

Vietnam

Other such zones just as tough are in the delta. The U Minh forest has the highest population of king cobras in the world - and a high number of Viet Cong. There are others stretched from the Plain of Reeds in the western delta through the mountain highlands to the north.

Americans believe the Communists are now attempting to build up strength in these zones, to tighten their over-all combat structure and "flesh it out" and meantime plan to continue hit-and-run tactics.

The bombing, in Westmoreland's view, is essential and he intends to keep it up, even though Washington may not permit it to be increased.

In Saigon's view the bombing is trimming the flow of supplies and "convincing Hanoi that a price must be paid for infiltrating South Vietnam."

This view also was behind the orders for the Navy to begin offshore bombardment of North Vietnam and for the Army's 175 mm cannon to start shelling across the 17th Parallel.

The U.S. strategy will be to exert maximum pressure on the Communist forces wherever they can be found, to concentrate pacification efforts in "priority areas" and to continue efforts to build the nation's economic and political structure.

The U.S. military seems hopeful that this program will bear dramatic fruit in 1967, but with gradual results - and with casualties.
