

Student panel approved for Arts and Letters

By BEVERLEY TWITCHELL
State News Executive Reporter

A student advisory committee for the College of Arts and Letters was unanimously approved by the faculty of the college Monday night.

The student committee is the first student advisory committee initiated by students.

Paul Varg, Dean of the College of Arts and Letters, said that joint meetings of the student and faculty advisory committees may be held on occasion, but that he will also meet with them separately.

"The door is open to what the student advisory committees can bring up," he said.

Varg said the committees should be highly useful, and he expects them "to bring up fresh ideas and questions we may have overlooked."

There will actually be 10 advisory committees in the college: one for each of the nine departments and one college advisory committee.

Each department committee will consist of five students, elected at general meetings of majors, which are to be held next week.

Students are eligible for membership on the committees if they have a minimum 2.0 grade point average, are majoring in the respective departments, and are not graduating at the end of this term. The term of office for all committee members will be one year. Procedures for future elections will be established by the committees.

Each department advisory committee will select one of its members to serve on the college advisory committee.

The department committees will work with the department chairmen and faculty advisory committees or both in relaying relevant and meaningful student perspectives, either through discussion or through written reports.

The committees are also responsible for making students aware that they provide an available channel for expressing ideas and problems to the department heads.

Each committee will meet at least three times a term. At least two of these meetings will be open to all interested students or faculty. The department chairman may be invited to attend, or he may call meetings of the student committee himself.

The college advisory committee will meet at least twice a term in publicized, open meetings, dealing with college-wide problems. The dean may request this committee to gather and present student perspectives as needed.

Sally Kovach and Ted Schroll, members of the ASMSU Academic Coordinating Committee, established winter term to set up student advisory committees in each department and college, approached Dean Varg two months ago.

Varg appointed Joseph F. Hanna, asst. professor of philosophy, Alan Schaffer, asst. professor of history, and Lore Metzger, associate professor of English, to work with the two students in preparing a proposal for the faculty advisory committee.

The proposal was written completely by the two students, was approved by the faculty coordinators, and unanimously approved by the faculty advisory committee last week.

The nine-member Academic Coordinating Committee is in the process of establishing student advisory committees in a number of other colleges, including Social Science, Agriculture, Engineering, and University College. Others will be contacted next week.

CREATE MOOD FOR TALKS

Pull back from DMZ-Ky

SAIGON (AP) — Welcoming a Canadian peace proposal, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government suggested Tuesday that warring forces pull back from the demilitarized zone to help create a climate for talks. A U.S. spokesman said the United States approved.

Hanoi's public response to Canada's bid, set forth by Foreign Secretary Paul Martin, had been a rejection from Nhan Dan, the newspaper of the North Vietnamese Communist party.

A buildup of combat divisions on both sides has made the zone, a buffer territory extending three miles each way from the border between the two Vietnams, a flashpoint that could set off the biggest battle of the war. U.S. intelligence officers consider Hanoi has 35,000 regulars in position for a possible invasion attempt.

Field dispatches told of scattered operations:

--U.S. and South Vietnamese troops and helicopter gunships clashed Monday with Communist bands near the zone and in the Hue sector, 50 miles to the south. A spokesman said they killed 90 of the enemy. Three Americans were killed and seven wounded. Losses among government forces were reported light.

--Spearheads of South Korea's White Horse and Tiger divisions linked up at the coastal village of Phu Long, 250 miles northeast of Saigon, in a drive that swept Communists from a 37-mile stretch of Highway 1 between Son Cau and Tuy Hoa. This opened to civilian traffic and commerce a full 235 miles of the highway between Qui Nhon and Tan Lam. The Koreans said they killed 830 Communists and captured 417 in the sweep, their biggest operation of the war. Casualties among the 10,000 Koreans involved were called light.

U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese engineers are constructing a fortified barrier strip, a little Maginot Line, about two miles below the demilitarized zone to simplify defense of the flatlands between the South China Sea and mountains 12 miles inland.

Canada's proposal calls for, 1. Some disengagement, possibly in the demilitarized zone, together with a cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and of communist infiltration of the south, 2. Freezing military action in South Vietnam at the present level, 3. Cessation of all hostilities and 4. Withdrawal of forces on either side of the 17th parallel, the border.

Canada shares membership with India and Poland on the International Control Commission (ICC).

Peace in the making

Sec. of State Dean Rusk, addressing the 12th annual Ministerial Conference of SEATO, said the U.S. is prepared to pursue any promising path to peace in Vietnam, but that Hanoi should not be misled by dis-senting opinion here or abroad.

RUSK APPEALS FOR PEACE

SEATO ministers meet; France boycotts session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization opened its annual foreign ministers meeting Tuesday with flashes of discord which threw a cold and bitter light on the efforts of some members to ignore or paper over the deep rifts in the alliance.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk used the initial public session to issue a new peace appeal to Communist North Vietnam, saying, "I urge Hanoi to make use of some machinery or diplomatic process to engage in discussions that could lead to peace."

He said the United States is prepared to de-escalate the conflict "whenever we are assured that the North will take appropriate corresponding steps."

But Rusk himself had just told the conference that Hanoi has met with "curt refusal" every peace overture so far offered. And he indicated he does not expect any quick change in that attitude, speculating that Hanoi still believes it can win the fight for South Vietnam.

In a review of SEATO's connections with the war in Vietnam, Rusk recalled many occasions on which foreign ministers like those assembled here had issued warnings against "Communist aggression" or expressed "increasing concern" about Communist pressures in Southeast Asia.

But Thailand's foreign minister, Thanat Khoman, bluntly blamed much of Southeast Asia's welfare on "SEATO's inaction and impotency."

He said SEATO's failures "gave the Communist expansionists the green light for launching into a much bolder adventure in South Vietnam."

SEATO was organized in 1954 and Khoman said it failed to meet its "first test" in 1959 when Communist forces undertook to overrun much of Laos.

Khoman also said his government's recent decision to allow its SEATO allies, particularly the United States, to use military installations in Thai territory "is designed to give a meaning to the organization or otherwise it would be reduced to a useless carcass."

The eight-nation alliance is holding its 12th annual meeting of foreign ministers. France, which is opposed to the U.S. role in the war in Southeast Asia, did not send any representative, boycotting the session.

Pakistan is represented only by its ambassador to Washington, Agha Hilaly, instead of a foreign minister — which diplomats took as a slap at SEATO and the United States. Pakistan has opposed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and would like to see the Vietnamese war ended quickly, a point which Hilaly made clear in his speech to the opening meeting at the State Department.

President Johnson ignored the opening. He is still resting in Texas from his attendance at the Latin American summit conference. The meeting will go on to Thursday noon and Johnson could still address it or send a message.

Musician stripped of pride

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — It was an especially embarrassing moment for Edward Druzinsky when he lost his G-string. He was still blushing when the audience demanded later he return to the stage for several curtain calls.

Druzinsky, appearing Monday night at the Pabst Theatre with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, was one of two harpists and was the evening's featured performer.

The harp string broke during performance of a piece by Thiriet. The performance was halted, fellow members of the orchestra chuckled and Druzinsky blushed when the string was replaced.

Hannah puts fee report under wraps

The recommendations of the tuition study committee will not be made public at this time and possibly not until May, President John A. Hannah said Tuesday.

The recommendations were presented to Hannah Monday afternoon after a two-month study by an ad hoc committee. Hannah has always maintained that tuition will not be raised unless absolutely necessary. Action depends on the appropriations granted to MSU by the state legislature.

Gov. Romney's proposed budget falls $3 million short of what is needed to maintain current operating expenses of the University. If the legislature does not grant this additional $3 million, Hannah has said the university would be forced to raise tuition, but he has expressed an unwillingness to do so.

MSU now charges more tuition for both in- and out-of-state students than any other university in Michigan. In the Big Ten, MSU ranks third in in-state tuition and second to Northwestern, a private institution, in out-of-state tuition.

The legislature is now concerned with tax reform measures and has taken no action on appropriations to higher education. Hannah and the presidents of 11 other Michigan colleges and universities have agreed that tax reform should have priority.

"Without tax reform now, adequate support for education at all levels is just not in the cards," Hannah said in his State of the University address Feb. 8. "Without tax reform the alternative is actually less support from state tax funds than we now receive; for without tax reform Michigan cannot continue for long to pay out more money for education and other services than the state is collecting in income from all sources."

If tuition is raised, Hannah said, it would be announced by the end of this term, if possible.

TO UNIFY BOARD

Hopkins urges student involvement

By ELLEN ZURKEY
State News Staff Writer

Student interest, involvement and support of ASMSU this year is the goal of the new board chairman.

"I hope to make student government unified so the student body will know what is happening and why," said Greg Hopkins.

He voiced the hope that this would increase support of student government activities.

"The board must continue pressing to get students involved in all phases of the University," Hopkins emphasized.

In line with this proposal ASMSU is researching the possibilities of getting students on the Committee on Committees and the Committee on Undergraduate Education.

"We can't just say 'Here's a committee, let's get a student on it.' We want to know what the committee does and how," Hopkins said.

The new chairman said ASMSU will try to put students on committees where they will be most valuable.

"I'm sure we can find an equitable solution for students and faculty to have an adequate voice in academics," Hopkins said.

Top priority for the new board, besides academic involvement, is reconsideration of the Associated Women Students (AWS) no hours proposal and an attempt to free ASMSU-claimed money held by the University.

The AWS proposal was passed with recommendations early this term by the board's second session. Since then, however, the administration has indicated that it will not set up a joint faculty-student committee to study the recommendations.

Hopkins plans to talk with John A. Fuzak, vice-president of student affairs, this week about the AWS proposal and the AWS recommendations.

He said the board may decide to reconsider the proposal, depending upon what Fuzak says.

Hopkins' third priority is an administrative step to free money from the University to be used as a reserved fund for popular entertainment.

Although Hopkins has no immediate plans for repealing a constitutional amendment to limit the board's spending on political issues, he does hope to accomplish it during this session.

The amendment passed by the student body April 12 is opposed to student vote for involvement in the National Student Association (NSA), Hopkins said.

"I feel the student board and therefore the students would be unduly hampered and restricted by this amendment," he stated.

"The amendment is dichotomous in itself," Hopkins pointed out. "It states that the board may over rule it and yet now that the amendment is part of the constitution it can only be waived by student referendum."

seas in the first place, and what programs does MSU now have to meet the needs of students who want to study or travel abroad?

Many of the reasons for studying abroad are obvious—students in the languages and some of the social sciences can take courses in foreign settings that are directly related to their majors, at a level they could not get on the MSU campus.

And part of the draw of these programs also includes, of course, the association with students of the opposite sex, the usual tourist attractions, European

2 co-ops back bill of rights

Two co-ops have endorsed the United Students student bill of rights, which now has about 3,500 signatures.

Motts House and Beal House decided last week to support the document. Ellsworth and Bower co-ops are to vote on it Thursday.

US will meet Thursday night; petitions are to be turned in at the meeting or the US booth in the Union, or sent to committee chairman Marc Brown (425 Division, East Lansing).

The Inter-Cooperative Council (ICC) is considering the bill of rights and may endorse it soon.

US members have been speaking to co-ops and Greek houses during the last week. They spoke at Zeta Tau Alpha, Sigma Nu, Montle House and Delta Chi Monday. Speakers will be at Sigma Phi Epsilon, Farmhouse, Phi Beta Phi and Kappa Kappa Gamma tonight and at Phi Kappa Tau Thursday.

"Nine out of 10 people who read it sign," Brown said, adding that those who don't sign are usually those who won't sign anything or don't accept one small point.

He said US has found strong support for the concept of a bill of rights and for most of the provisions.

About 200 people are working on getting signatures, he said, but a large segment of the campus is still unreached because US does not have contacts there.

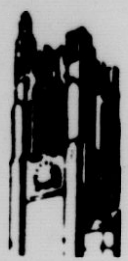

Norman Thomas to debate Friday

Norman Thomas, six-time Socialist Party candidate for president, will engage Karl Prussion, lecturer and writer, in a "Dialogue on Social Controversy," Friday evening at East Lansing High.

Their discussion is a feature of the Michigan Council for the Social Studies spring conference, a state-wide organization of social studies teachers.

Thomas has campaigned against both "get-tough" imperialism and appeasement of Russia. He is an advocate of world disarmament.

Prussion became involved with the Communist party while an undergraduate at Wayne State University, but became disillusioned with the organization there. He later worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation as an undercover agent in the party.

A CUE students should take

Thus far, the Committee on Undergraduate Education (CUE) has heard from students at three of its meetings, twice from previously arranged panels, and once at an open hearing last Thursday.

The committee is holding another open session this Thursday at 7:30 in the Con Con Room of the International Center and it behooves as many students as have complaints and suggestions about the University to attend.

Complaints have been heard about the academic atmosphere, or lack of it, in the residence halls, the University College and its flaws, and a host of other remarks which deal with the problem of improving the quality of education offered at MSU.

One of the key questions the committee is facing is whether or not a liberal education is possible or even desirable in this age of specialization. The traditional purpose of this school is to provide an education, both academically and socially, for as many as possible--in short, undergraduate education.

The University College is an attempt to insure that each undergraduate gets at least a smattering of this liberal education. Student-faculty relationships are supposed to aid in this process. But many students feel the University College is inadequate, and some, that we should abandon the attempt. Many students find professors hard to contact; many do not attempt to contact any.

Multiple-guess tests as a valid criterion for judging mastery of a subject also came under student fire, as did the three 10-week term system for being too short to cover material adequately.

For every one of these complaints and suggestions there have been dozens more, lying dormant in student minds, or expressed openly and often in dorm bull sessions. The presence of the committee is the opportunity these suggestions have been waiting for to come to light.

ED BRILL

Least of anyone, I do not wish to start a controversy over the appearance Thursday of American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell at Michigan State. I do not wish to play into the hands of a man who thrives on the type of column I am probably about to write. But there are things that remain to be said about Rockwell, and his imminent speech here--things that weren't mentioned in yesterday's State News editorial, or in the meetings of the ASMSU committee that several weeks ago decided to offer this man an invitation to perform on our campus.

I do not deny George Lincoln Rockwell's freedom of speech; I couldn't disagree with the State News editorial defending his right to speak. But I honestly feel that that editorial avoided the main issues involved in his appearance here. These issues are by no means unique to MSU, indeed campuses all across the nation have already gone through the experience about to hit ours this Thursday.

But brushing off George Lincoln Rockwell, and everything he represents, as a defense of the American right to speak freely, is a rather simple approach to a complicated matter.

I am not concerned with Rockwell's "right" to speak at MSU, but with the wisdom that ASMSU used in inviting him here. I am concerned not with the university as a forum for the "free exchange of ideas," but with the university as a platform of legitimacy for an illegitimate and inhuman position.

And I am concerned with the response this campus will deliver to Thursday's speech--a response, that because of the lack of time for intelligent discussion of the matter, is likely to be correspondingly ill-conceived and unintelligent.

All these things bother me, and none of them were seriously considered in yesterday's editorial.

Bill Pulte, the practical man

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Graham, former chairman of ASMSU student Board, today continues his tri-weekly State News series.

Pulte, Inc. owns land throughout the state of Michigan, including Ann Arbor, Detroit, and East Lansing. Bill and Pat Pulte are young, hardworking, prosperous contractors. The sort of guys you'd want to know.

Their properties in Ann Arbor are free of discrimination. Here in East Lansing, they pride themselves on equal housing in Cedar Village Apartments and in their new development on Bogue Street. Bill's kids bathe with the maids' children and, more or less, they are good neighbors and good builders.

Yet, in 1964, Bill returned a deposit to a Mr. and Mrs. Moore who wanted to buy a $30,000 home in Birmingham when his investigators found out they were black.

In the Findings of Fact, dated January 19, 1966, resulting from the hearings held by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission, the following testimony was taken: Question to Mr. Pulte: Did you make an effort to determine the race of Mr. and Mrs. Moore?

Mr. Pulte: Yes. Question: Did you authorize your brother to go to Mr. Moore's place of employment?

Mr. Pulte: Yes. Question: Did you authorize your brother or someone else to go to Mrs. Moore's place of employment?

Mr. Pulte: Yes.

We're still ahead

Chieu Hoi (open arms) is the name of a program in Vietnam whereby defectors from the Viet Cong can be again integrated into life under the South Vietnamese government. Pamphlets advertising Chieu Hoi to the Viet Cong are continually being dropped on their troops, and if a VC accepts the invitation, he is given food, clothing, medical care if needed, and money, along with a safe conduct pass.

During the first three months of this year, 10,746 guerrillas have defected, almost double the 5,521 who defected during the first three months of last year. It is with considerable, although cautious, pride that the South Vietnam government and the Americans look at these figures.

With the apparent success of the Chieu Hoi program, it is especially tragic and ironic that the latest bombing "mistake" in the war was to hit a Chieu Hoi village in the Mekong Delta, killing 14 and wounding 25 persons.

"Well, this is war. 14 innocents died in the delta."

OUR READERS' MINDS

SN has new editorial policy

To the Editor:

The State News endorsements for the ASMSU Student Board proved to be quite consistent with its new editorial policy. This new (perhaps continuously changing) policy appears centered on two issues: (1) the war in Vietnam is morally wrong and those against the war are morally right regardless of their other characteristics; (2) agree with The Paper at selective times and help support its ideas and policies whenever it appears the "IN" thing to do.

Regardless of the "unbiased" interviews, the State News editorial endorsements appeared to endorse mainly only candidates opposed to the war. Brad Lang (who received enough State News publicity that he didn't have to actively campaign), Dave Macomber, W.C. Blanton and Greg Hopkins were natural choices for your endorsement. I believe the only inconsistency with your policy was the supporting of Pete Ellsworth and Harv Dzodin, but this was compensated for by labeling the entire Junior field of candidates weak.

Concerning the second issue which I hold as part of the State News editorial policy, it seems as though the State News has finally recognized The Paper as being a leading source of news on campus. Unfortunately, the State News always receives The Paper news second hand--such as coverage of "Gentle Thursday," the Student Bill of Rights, and even with the Anti-Draft Union.

Supporting The Paper's candidates for ASMSU was the best journalistic move the State News could have made in this year's election. It was really quite a surprise after 20 weeks or so of little or no recognition of The Paper and United Students that the State News came out so strongly behind them. But I believe this is all part of "the winds of change" which the SN is trying to pick up too quickly.

Perhaps the headline "US shows campus strength" is a final indication of SN's acceptance of campus groups which in the past The Paper's shown little respect for. Of course, the big questions are still to be answered. Will the SN continue to recognize and publicize US now that the elections are over? Will The Paper ever be recognized again, now that "Gentle Thursday" is past? And most importantly, will SN ever realize it is the loud minority who really oppose the war in Vietnam. The soundness of this last statement cannot be challenged until that time that a referendum or accurate opinion sample can be taken. 16,000 signatures in the fall of 1965 supported the war, and since that time "the winds of change" have not changed direction that greatly.

Shape up, mothers

To the Editor:

Hats off to one ingenious mother who found a way to keep her child peacefully occupied during her weekly excursion to the laundromat. She equipped her offspring with a box of sugar-coated cereal, which the tyke happily and quietly squashed and sprayed over the floor.

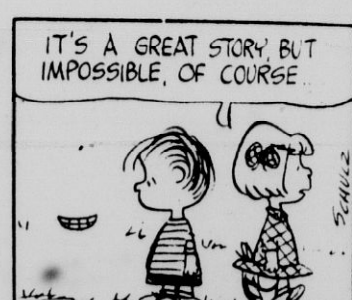

This mother's scheme certainly eliminated the typical laundrobrat's behavior: running and screaming around the tables; loudly banging shut a complete row of washer doors; riding in and carelessly pushing the carts furnished for the customers; and standing (a la dirty feet) on the tables provided for the customers' clean clothes.

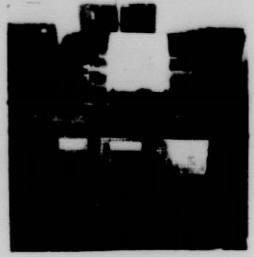

Unfortunately, such irresponsible behavior seems typical of too many Spartan mothers. Unable to control their children, and, understandably, unable to abide them for extended periods of time, these ladies prefer to ignore their brats and their brats' appalling behavior. At the laundromat, they ignore the fact that other women must ask their children to get of the carts and off tables; they ignore the fact that other women must crunch through a cereal-strewn floor; they ignore the fact that other women may prefer doing their laundry unaccompanied by noises above 90 decibels. At the apartments, they ignore the disrespect for other's property that their brats demonstrate by throwing trash on neighbor's lawns, by stealing covers off barbecue grills, and by climbing in and out of neighbor's cars.

In short, these Spartan mothers ignore their maternal and social responsibilities. I only hope they're not deceiving themselves into thinking that maturity will come with years. As a high school teacher, I can assure them that their children's disregard for others and their penchant for causing havoc increases in inverse proportion to the amount of disciplining they received in earlier years.

Neo-Nazi says he's disciple of Hitler

By TRINKA CLINE
State News Staff Writer

George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party, stands 6' 1", is 48 years old, and has said all Negroes should be sent back to Africa and Jews should be exterminated. Rockwell, called a "half-penny Hitler" by former New York Mayor Robert Wagner, will appear as a Great Issues speaker at 3:45 p.m. Thursday in the Auditorium.

Following Wagner's order not to permit Rockwell to speak July 4, 1960, in Union Square, the New York Times replied editorially, "... we believe in the First Amendment even when it hurts. . . . Rockwell is not going to shake the foundations of this Republic. If he were left quietly to speak his piece, however revolting and abominable as it is, he would create no impact."

Rockwell calls himself a disciple of Adolf Hitler, especially on the Jewish question. He believes communism is a Jewish plot to subvert the world, eighty per cent of the American Jews are traitors and should all be annihilated. For the Negro he advocates another end: deportation to Africa at the rate of $10,000 per family of five or more. But the American Nazi party falls to state where the money will come from, but presumably it would come from confiscated property of his victims.

In an Esquire interview, Rockwell elaborated on blueprints for gas ovens for mass murder and stopped to ask his interviewer, a Jew, "How does that strike you?"

To that reporter Rockwell confided that he likes Jews and will be sorry when his followers have killed the last of them. Those he seems to hate are many of those who support him, the "cowards, queers and jerks" who join the anti-Jew movement. Shortly after serving as a Navy pilot, Rockwell read "Mein Kampf" and said it was "like finding part of me."

Also in 1960, Rockwell underwent a mental examination. The opinion of those who felt Rockwell was of unsound mind was based on many of Rockwell's writings and cartoons. Although the normal commitment is 30 days, Rockwell was released within a week when psychiatrists ruled him competent to stand trial for disorderly conduct charges.

In his book, "This Time The World," Rockwell credited his speedy release to his cooperation with a Jewish psychiatrist. "He reasoned that if I really were a paranoid nut, I would be totally hostile to a Jew..."

Rockwell and his storm troopers have picketed many Negro performers, particularly Sammy Davis, and movies including "Exodus."

William F. Buckley, editor of National Review in 1965, said it is because of the "battle-front treatment" (treating Rock-well's most conspicuous exploits with sober-seriousness that leads to wild exaggerations) by the American press that makes him such an unspectacularly effective college campus speaker. Buckley said students expect a ranting madman and are taken aback by Rockwell's front of amicable and scholarly demeanor.

Student reaction to the Nazi leader has varied from individual violence to planned silence. At San Diego State College Rockwell yielded the microphone to a student who handed him a right hook instead of taking the microphone.

Nine hundred students at Antioch College responded with premeditated silence throughout his talk, followed by a silent exit although a question-answer period remained.

An invitation from Brown University was withdrawn when the president of the school said the group inviting Rockwell had "demonstrated a deplorable lack of responsible judgment." He added, however, that he would not move to deny Rockwell's right to speak. Rockwell did speak at Brown on the scheduled day, following protests of the cancellation of the original invitation.

Rockwell took part last summer in Chicago's race problem. He announced upon arrival in San Francisco last fall that he was there to help solve the city's Negro problem. The city met him with jeers, thrown eggs and loud hostility. Boed down whenever he tried to speak, Rockwell reportedly screamed, "I'm going to stay here until you dirty finks let me speak." At that point the police stepped in and ordered him out.

Sammy Davis tickets available

He is so often called the "greatest entertainer on earth," and 2,000 tickets are not yet sold.

Tickets to see Sammy Davis, author, dancer, singer, musician, comedian and actor, are still available at the Union ticket office. Sammy Davis is ASMSU's pop entertainment star for spring term. He rated sixth on a poll of entertainers taken winter term to aid the pop entertainment committee in selecting performers.

Not everyone thinks Davis is the world's greatest. Critics have said he has a "fanatical desire for approval." Davis acknowledges a deep desire to win each audience. He calls each performance "another mountain. I've got to make that audience pull for me, not just clap courteously because I sang loud."

Because most of his viewers are white, Davis has been asked if this drive stems from race awareness. Much of it does, Davis says. "Ever since I recognized what prejudice is, I've tried to fight it away, and the only weapon I could use was my talent."

Davis' life has been a long and difficult trek. He's been hindered by race prejudice, the loss of his left eye, accusations of insincerity for becoming a Jew, financial distress and physical exhaustion.

"I'm Puerto Rican, Jewish, colored and married to a white woman," Davis said in his Playbory interview. "When I move into a neighborhood, people start running four ways at once."

Most of Davis' trials and tribulations are included in his best-selling autobiography "Yes I Can."

In 1957, when it was rumored that he was dating Kim Novak, Davis began receiving racist hate mail, which continued during his brief marriage to a Negro dancer.

Consul says Reds still want S. Viet

MONTREAL (P) — Mai Van Bo, North Vietnam's consul in Paris, indicated Monday night that his Communist government has not given up plans to take over South Vietnam.

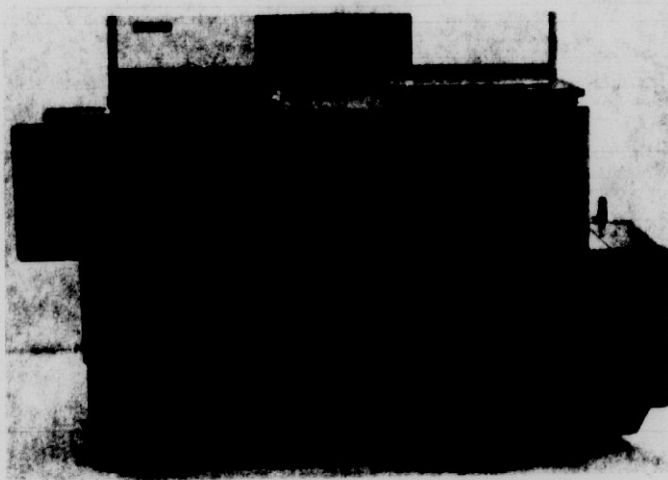

"South Vietnam is the blood of our blood," as President Ho Chi Minh once said," Van Bo said in a taped interview with the Canadian Broadcasting Company. "The people of the United States would never tolerate the cession of the Southern states under foreign occupation."

Van Bo condemned President Johnson's demand for an act of reciprocity from Hanoi in return

Draft protester free; voluntary army nixed

NEW YORK (P) — A federal appeals court has allowed David J. Miller, the nation's first publicized draft card burner, to go free on bond.

Miller, 24 of Syracuse, N.Y., got out of the Federal House of Detention Monday. He will be free at least until the U.S. Supreme Court can act on his appeal.

He was sentenced April 6 to 2 1/2 years in prison for refusing to replace the draft card he burned in front of an Army induction center here Oct. 15, 1965, to protest the Vietnam war.

Earlier, he had been sentenced to three years for burning the card, but U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler suspended sentence on condition he get a new draft card. He failed to do so and drew the 2 1/2 year term as a probation violation.

Miller's lawyers sought his release, pending appeal, after Chief Judge Bailey Aldrich of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston ruled a week ago that the federal law prohibiting draft card destruction is unconstitutional.

But Tyler turned down Miller's request for freedom, on grounds that his case and the one ruled upon by Aldrich were dissimilar. The U.S. Court of Appeals here, however, reversed Tyler.

Miller had graduated from Le Moyne College in Syracuse in June 1965.

EVANSTON, ILL. (P) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he opposes an all-volunteer army because "it would lead to an all-black army."

Kennedy expressed the view Monday night during a question and answer period following his speech at Northwestern University entitled, "Europe and the next generation."

The Massachusetts Democrat is chairman of a senate subcommittee studying recommendations made to President Johnson for changes in the present draft system. Kennedy was one of the early proponents of a lottery to select men for military service.

Kennedy, who was warmly received by more than 1,000 students in a jammed campus auditorium, spoke about the draft in answer to a petition calling for an all-volunteer army and an end to the draft.

The senator asked for help of students who favored the petition. About 100 hands were raised among the coeducational audience. He asked, "how many would volunteer?" "No hands went up."

"I don't know who these people are who are going to volunteer," Kennedy said, "unless these people come from the lower economic levels." Kennedy said an army of poor people would be "unacceptable to me."

He said after long study of the question he is convinced "an all-volunteer army would lead to an all-black army and this is totally unacceptable."

City council OKs sorority rezoning

By LINDA GORTMAKER
State News Staff Writer

East Lansing City Council gave Delta Gamma sorority permission Monday night to rezone a lot adjacent to its property for construction of an addition to the sorority house.

About 30 Delta Gammas attended the public hearing of their case at the meeting Monday.

The rezoning of a 45 x 110 lot west of Harrison Road on Grand River Avenue adjoining the sorority house, involves changing the property from single-family residential to multiple-family dwelling.

Johannes Sachse, 813 Huntington Rd., living near the sorority house, presented the only opposition to the Delta Gamma addition.

Sachse claimed that an addition would increase the already "abominable parking conditions" in the Chesterfield Hills Area.

Defending the Delta Gammas, Jean Sallee, Phoenix, Ariz., sophomore and spokesman for the sorority, said that building plans would include eight more parking spaces. Another sorority member added that only ten members now park near the house.

Sachse said that the overcrowded parking conditions, with "the no-parking areas always full" were caused by Pi Beta Phi sorority and Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Newly-elected councilman Wilbur B. Brookover suggested postponing the rezoning until further discussion of possible parking problems. He was overruled by the other five councilmen, who felt that the building addition was not the real cause of the problem.

Also at the council meeting, a representative from the Muscular Dystrophy fund asked permission for Phi Sigma Delta fraternity to sponsor a "Tag Day" April 29.

The council initiated no action since the Lions had scheduled a White Cane Day also on that date. Councilman Mary P. Sharp said she felt the "Tag Day" was not necessary because Muscular Dystrophy conducts an annual fund drive in November.

Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority received permission to use the sidewalk on East Grand River Avenue from Abbott Road to Division Street from 2-5 p.m. May 3 for the purpose of a sidewalk art exhibit.

The council adopted the new traffic control order prohibiting parking at any time on southbound Hagadorn Road from the Red Cedar River to Mt. Hope Road. "The parking by the dormitories has eliminated one lane of traffic and thus necessitated this order," explained Mayor Gordon L. Thomas.

Cyclists, autos prone to crashes

By STANLEY MORGAN
State News Staff Writer

In spring the motorcyclists emerge in force, and once again newspapers are filled with reports of their accidents, injuries and fatalities.

There are two main causes of cyclist accidents, says William A. Mann, professor of traffic safety.

"First, car drivers tend to ignore cyclists, and second, cyclists cause accidents by riding or maneuvering between lanes of traffic," he said.

The higher rate of injury among cyclists is due to the lesser protection their bikes give them, Mann said.

The mandatory use of crash helmets will help somewhat, he said, "but it would also be a good idea if all cyclists wore boots, since the predominant non-fatal injuries are foot injuries."

Another problem at MSU is training foreign students to drive, Mann said. He said it wasn't necessarily the students' lack of skill, but rather a lack of familiarity.

By contrast, American students are raised with cars all around them. "They observe their parents driving, they ask questions and by the time they're old enough for a license they already know quite a lot about cars, traffic rules and traffic safety," he said.

The solution to most traffic and driving problems is adequate driver education programs, with the instructors trained in both driver education and psychology, Mann said.

A psychology background is necessary because a person's driving is determined by his personality, Mann said. "People with emotional problems tend to extend these problems to their driving."

Since personalities are established early in life, driver education instructors must have psychological training so that they can recognize the pupil's emotional problems and adequately deal with them.

MANAGER RESIGNS

Dorm radio board shuffles officials

All-Campus Radio Board has re-elected its chairman, elected a member-at-large and announced the resignation of its network manager.

Pete Sorum was unanimously re-elected chairman and Steve Simon was chosen member-at-large. John Stankrauff resigned as network manager.

"This year, with a basic groundwork laid, we can begin to establish a definite procedure to come closer to the goal of providing the best possible residence hall radio service, designed with student tastes in mind," he said.

"The radio board will be facing some definite issues and policy decisions which will help develop this operating basis and precedents for the radio in the future. Editorial policy will be an important decision. Lack of an editorial policy has been a hindrance to the effectiveness of WMSN."

Petitions for network manager and for another member-at-large position are available at 8 Student Services Building until Friday.

WMSN is presently broadcasting to all residence halls except Yakeley, Fee, Van Hoesen and Snyder-Phillips. Technical difficulties are still hampering reception in some of the others.

Today is the last day of WMSN's open house in 8 Student Services. Balloons, Coke, potato chips and other items are being distributed free, along with tours of the station by "Light and Lively" blondes.

Japan planned 'rebirth' in 1948

Japan began planning for its re-emergence as a world power and Asian leader as early as 1948, Wesley Fishel, professor of political science, said at a colloquium Monday.

The Japanese took several diplomatic steps prior to 1951, Fishel said. They dispatched intelligence agents and former ambassadors to revisit Asian countries, renew their friendships and sound out opinions in Southeast Asia toward the Japanese.

The Japanese found they were regarded by the people of Asia as "subhuman beings," Fishel said.

He said that Japanese diplomatic relations after the war could be described as "planned planlessness."

"Their calculated casualness was remarkably effective," he said.

One of the biggest problems arose over payment of war damages, Fishel said. Should Japan pay only those damages which were caused by Japanese occupation or should she pay reparations to nations in which damage was done by the Allies?

"In expiation of war guilt Japan spent $1 billion out of a total of $2 billion in reparations to four nations," he said.

Fishel said the Japanese re-achieved eminence in Southeast Asia despite the problems facing them in 1951. They had a hard time in their dealings with the Vietnamese over reparation payments, he said, and over the salvaging of ships from Vietnamese harbors.

Fishel said that the Vietnamese were suspicious of Japanese efforts to raise the sunken ships. The Vietnamese thought the sunken ships contained gold which the Japanese wanted, and that was why they were pushing salvaging operations, he said.

The North Vietnamese were not interested in reparation payments at first when, at the end of the war, Vietnam was still one nation.

But when the country was divided, Japan chose to deal with South Vietnam, Fishel said. North Vietnam then said it was not abandoning its claim for reparation.

Researchers inhibit cancer in rat test

Two MSU researchers reported Tuesday that they were able to inhibit development of breast cancer in rats by burning out a tiny section of their brain.

Joseph Meltes, professor of physiology, and James A. Clemens, a National Institute of Health trainee at MSU, believed their report, presented at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, was the first evidence of an experimental alteration of brain function having an effect on the development of a cancer.

The real significance of the report, the authors believe, was that it showed that the brain was the ultimate regulator of a hormonal influence which stimulates the development and growth of tumors in the breast and other types of cancer.

The two researchers had injected rats with DMBA, a known cancer-inducing chemical. When the rats received no further treatment, 95 per cent of them developed tumors.

However, by using an electric needle to destroy a small section of the hypothalamus at the base of the brain the researchers were able to reduce the incidence of tumors to 30 per cent. By also removing the ovaries of these rats, they were able to cut the incidence of tumors to zero.

Carmichael advocates Swahili, draft resistance

NEW YORK (AP) — What are the aims of Stokely Carmichael, the black power advocate, and his Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee?

As gleaned from a series of speeches Carmichael has been making on college campuses, they range from mass Negro resistance to the military draft to the introduction of Swahili as a foreign language in Negro schools.

Carmichael also urges Negro students to be proud that they are black.

"We must stand up and say 'our noses are wide, our lips are thick, our hair is nappy, we are black and beautiful,'" he told an audience at Texas Southern University in Houston.

At a University of Texas campus meeting in Austin, Carmichael said that "hopefully the full strength of black power will be felt in the national elections of 1972 — it's at least a five-year organization plan."

In a speech at Florida A. & M., Carmichael called on Negroes of military age to form "a gigantic antidraft system."

The first few Negroes who tell their draft boards, "Hell no, we ain't going" might wind up in jail, Carmichael said, "But we'd soon get it so Negroes wouldn't have to get drafted."

He counseled Negro students in several of his speeches that "If a white man hits you — break him . . . If a hunkyt tries to shoot you, kill him before God gets the news."

"Are you studying German? What good will that do you? Why not study Swahili; if you know Swahili, you can talk to your African brothers and the white men won't know what you are talking about."

N. Koreans charge U.N. with arms buildup in South

PANMUNJOM, Korea, (AP) —

North Korea accused the United Nations Command Tuesday of staging a military buildup in the southern side of the armistice zone and said Communist forces would drive the Americans out of Korea if another Korean war erupted.

Maj. Gen. Park Chung-kook, Communist senior member of the joint Korean Armistice Commission, served the warning during a meeting at this armistice conference village north of Seoul.

He accused the U.N. Command of "introducing tanks, other heavy equipment and automatic weapons into the southern half of the demilitarized zone, perpetrating military provocations ceaselessly in an apparent move to launch another war in Korea."

The Communists called the meeting to protest that the U.N. Command converted "the armistice conference room into a cinema hall during the last meeting April 14, paralyzing the functioning of this commission."

Friday's meeting was disrupted when the Communist delegation walked out in protest to the showing of a documentary film of President Johnson's three-day state visit to Korea last November.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. Richard G. Ciccolella, U.N. Command senior member, said it was the "disgraceful and disorderly conduct" of the Communists that broke up the meeting.

"We showed the film of President Johnson's visit because it was clear that there is, in fact, a genuine love and affection and mutual respect between the people of the United States and all the people of Korea," he said.

The film was shown following Park's repeated statements accusing the United States of forcibly occupying South Korea for the past 20 years and of being the enemy of all the people of Korea.

Ciccolella brushed aside as a "fraudulent accusation" a Communist charge that U.N. Command soldiers fired over 800 machine gun and automatic rifle bullets Monday night from posts near the Panmunjom truce village.

Ciccolella told the Communists not to repeat "worn-out false charges" and did not even promise an investigation of this and other charges made by the senior Communist delegate.

WIN 4-1

Tigers top Angels,
open home season

DETROIT (UPI)—Al Kaline hit his third home run of the season in the sixth inning Tuesday to pace the Detroit Tigers to a 4-1 victory over the California Angels behind the seven-hit pitching of Earl Wilson.

Kaline's homer, leading off the inning, snapped a 1-1 tie which had existed since the second inning and handed lefty Marcelino Lopez the loss. Wilson struck out six and walked four in scoring his first win of the season before a chilled home opening-day crowd of 30,011.

Jimmy Hall sent the Angels out in front in the second inning when he homered against the facing of the third deck in right field for his third of the season. The Tigers tied the score in the second on a double by Bill Freehan, single by Ray Oyler and Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly.

The Tigers added two final runs in the eighth inning, filling the bases on singles by Don Wert and Gates Brown and an error by Jim Fregosi on Jim Northrup's grounder. Wert and Brown scored when the California infield just missed a double play on Freehan's grounder.

The Angels filled the bases in the fourth on singles by Don Mincher and Hall and a walk to Bob Rodgers, but Wilson pitched out of the jam. He also got out of a fifth-inning jam by picking Lopez off base and getting Jay Johnstone to hit into an inning-ending double play.

The game was played under heavily-overcast skies with the temperature in the low 40s and a cold wind blowing in from left field.

REQUIEM FOR A SQUARE

You, like any other lovable, clean-living, freckle-faced American kid, want to be a BMOC. How can you make it?

Well sir, there are several ways, none of which will work. You're too puny to be an athlete, too lazy to be a valedictorian, and too hairy to run for Homecoming Queen.

As for becoming a best-dressed man, how are you going to buy clothes with a miser for a father? Are you licked then? Is there no way to make BMOC? Yes, there is! And you can do it! Do what? This:

Become a hippie! Get cool! Get alienated! Have an Identity Crisis! Be one of the Others!

How? Well sir, to become a hippie, simply follow these five simple rules:

1. Read all of Tolkien in the original dwarf.
2. Have your Sophomore Slump in the freshman year.
3. Wear buttons that say things like this:
NATIONALIZE DAIRY QUEEN
ASTHMATICS, UNITE
LEGALIZE APPLE BUTTER
HANDS OFF AIR POLLUTION
4. Go steady with a girl who has long greasy hair, a guitar, enlarged pores, and thermal underwear.
5. Attend Happenings regularly.

This last item may require some explanation, for it is possible that Happenings haven't reached your campus yet. Be assured they will because Happenings are the biggest college craze since mononucleosis.

A Happening, in case you don't know, is the first formless art form. Things just happen. For example, eighty naked men come out and squirt each other with fire hoses containing tinted yogurt. Then eighty more naked men come out and light birthday candles in the navels of the first eighty men. Then one girl, clothed, comes out and pulls three thousand feet of sausage casing through her pierced ear. Then eighty more naked men come out and eat a station wagon.

There is, of course, a musical accompaniment to all these fun things. Usually it is "Begin the Beguine" played by 26 trench mortars, a drop forge, and a rooster.

There used to be, some years ago, still another requirement for becoming a hippie: a man had to have a beard. But no longer. Beards were worn in the past not so much as a protest, but because shaving was such a painful experience. Then along came Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades.

Today if you don't want to shave, well, that's your hangup, isn't it, baby? I mean when you've got a blade like Personna that tugs not neither does it scrape, what's your copout, man? I mean like get with it; you're living in the past. Shaving used to hurt, used to scratch, used to gouge, used to give you all kinds of static. But not since Personna. It's a gas, man. It's a doozy; it's mom's apple pie. You dig?

I mean, man, you still want a beard? Crazy! But you don't have to turn your face into a slum, do you? Shave around the bush, baby, neatly and nicely with Personna. I mean like Personna comes in double-edge style and Injector style too. I mean like any way you try it, you gotta like like it.

Hey, man, like how about doubling your shaving cool? Like how about wilting those crazy whiskers with some Burma-Shave? Like regular or m...? Like how you got a better friend than your kisser? Like treat it right, right? Yee-yee!

A kiss to the cheek

Nino Benvenuti, the new middleweight champion of the world by virtue of a unanimous decision upset victory over Emile Griffith Monday night, gets a victory kiss from his wife Julian. Benvenuti and Griffith have already signed a contract for a return bout.

UPI Telephoto

NINO NEW CHAMP

Benvenuti, Griffith sign for N.Y. rematch July 13

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nino Benvenuti and Emile Griffith, each praising the other as the finest fighter he ever fought, signed contracts Tuesday for a rematch in New York July 13.

Benvenuti outpointed Griffith in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden Monday night for the World Middleweight Championship.

The site of the return match will be either the Garden or Shea Stadium, home of the New York Mets. Benvenuti, as the new champion, will get 40 per cent of all proceeds and Griffith 20 per cent.

It is a familiar story for Griffith, who twice lost and twice regained the world welterweight title before he moved up to the middleweight class.

"Benvenuti and his manager Bruno Amaduzzi made good on their handshake promise to Emile and his manager, Gil Clancy," said matchmaker Teddy Brenner.

Brenner said there was no re-match clause in the first contract. He said such clauses are prohibited by most boxing commissions.

The two fighters were guests at a press conference luncheon at a mid-Manhattan restaurant.

Brenner announced the rematch, handed a copy of the contract to each fighter, and both, together with their managers, signed at a luncheon table.

There could be no quarrel with the return bout—Griffith deserved it. Don Fullmer of Utah had challenged the winner, and Johnny Pritchett of England also was seeking a title shot. The one man who possibly might deserve it ahead of Griffith got short shrift. Benvenuti has lost just once in his 72 bouts as an amateur or professional, a decision he dropped to South Korea's Ki Soo Kim in Seoul.

"The press knows what happened there," said Nino, who always has claimed it was a hometown decision. "There is no comparison between Ki Soo Kim and Emile as fighters. Emile is the best I have fought."

"Nino is a great champion, and he and Gaspar Ortega are the best I've ever fought," said Griffith, who at first said Ortega was the best, then reconsidered—perhaps diplomatically, perhaps with a commercial view—and said Nino was the best.

Golf's now a way of life

By HAROLD DEAN
State News Sports Writer

When talking to him a person gets the feeling that he's trying to beat the clock. That there are things to be said and done. The man is golf coach Bruce Fossom — he's asking nothing less than the best.

"I'd like to win a championship at MSU. It's never been done before in Big Ten play," Fossom said. "Then I'd like to take a team to the NCAA tournament and win it."

Fossom is totally involved with the game.

"For me and my family, it's a way of life. Not only is it a profession but a vocation and hobby as well. I feel my life is wrapped up in the game," he said. Considering the joy he has gotten out of golf, Fossom feels compelled to share his happiness.

"In my lifetime I hope that I will be able to give back to the game of golf and sports in general as much as I have been able to get out of it," he said.

"The greatest fun of golf is to become better so that the score will show the results of the effort that you put into it. It all goes back to the old adage — why play the game unless you keep score or unless you try to beat somebody."

Asked what he believes the individual can learn from sports, Fossom spoke quickly of competition and appreciation.

"By competing with other people, a person can learn to adapt himself to competition. Togetherness of young people is accomplished well through playing as a team. A boy learns how to give of himself by taking part in sports."

Humility can be acquired through playing golf, Fossom said. "Many people feel that just because they are big, strong people, they can stand up and strike a golf ball far and straight. When they find that they cannot do this they realize that to play the game is a little more difficult than they thought."

Perhaps more important Fossom says that lessons in etiquette are learned from golf.

Fossom feels such courtesies as replacing divots are appreciated. "If you've ever had your ball land in a divot mark and had to hit it out of there, or a sand trap when your ball lands up in a heel mark of someone who has forgotten to rake a trap."

On the pure beauty of the game, Fossom said, "We often think of a golf swing as something mechanical and forget the aesthetic beauty of a fine swing. I often think of Bobby Jones' swing when I think of music."

Since taking over the golf team in July 1965, Fossom has been trying to recruit only the best players.

"We recruit good northern players, strong-type kids, then we keep nothing but the cream of the crop on the team."

John Bailey, Steve Benson, Dave Hill and Larry Murphy

are four of Fossom's top recruits.

"I've tried to eliminate the boys that are not capable of playing, through the natural process of play and practice and demands that come with it," Fossom stated.

Fossom said he tries to keep the players who are most capable of contributing to the team.

Fossom accepted the golf job and left the coaching ranks of basketball for his family.

"Basketball demanded time for scouting, recruiting, and the season is longer. The extra-time-demanding things took me away from my family. To me, my family comes first."

Considered by the University as a non-money-making sport, golf is an important cog in the athletic program, Fossom said. "Naturally, we don't get the

Duffy corrals 20 prep gridders

By JOE MITCH
State News Sports Writer

MSU has gone nation-wide to sign the best high school football players to athletic tenders.

Football hunting grounds, such as Pennsylvania, Ohio, North Carolina and California, as well as Michigan, were again prominent recruiting areas from which signed tenders were received by Coach Duffy Daugherty.

Twenty high school players have already signed Big Ten tenders with MSU, leaving only six who have yet to return a tender sent to them.

The tenders, mailed April 1, bind the athletes from competing at any other Big Ten school. A national letter of intent will be mailed May 20, limiting the athletes to only one major university.

Seven of the high school athletes signing tenders were from Michigan, while four were from Illinois and two from Ohio.

There was one each from North Carolina, Georgia, California, West Virginia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

"We signed the majority of Michigan boys we sent tenders to," Daugherty said.

"But we went from Hawaii to Georgia looking for talent. We have a boy coming here this week to visit us from Honolulu."

Among the signed players, one of the most prominent in the lot was Gary Parmentier, of Detroit Denby, who is a Class A all-state choice.

Parmentier is a 6-2, 195-pound halfback, who was all-city as well as all-state. He scored 17 touchdowns last season.

Parmentier was one of five players from the Detroit area. Others are Tom Barnum (Woodland), fullback; Art Berry (Chadsey) halfback; Ronald Slank (Notre Dame) halfback, and Joe Willing (Henry Ford) tackle.

Other players from Michigan were Jay Breslin, halfback from East Lansing, and Wilt Martin, tackle from Anchor Bay.

Three of the four Illinois players are from the Chicago area. They were: Ronald Curl, halfback; Victor Mittelberg, tackle, and Frank Butler, end.

The fourth player from Illinois was Robert Pohlman, a guard from Barrington.

The two players from Ohio were Mike Hogan, linebacker, and Richard Shultz, a guard.

Other players signed were Earl Anderson, fullback from Tiffin, Ga.; Douglas Diebolt, guard from Los Altos, Calif.; Tom Love, halfback from Sylva, N.C.; Earl Roy, center from New Orleans, La.; Gary Smith, halfback from Punxsutawney, Pa.; William Triplett, quarterback from Vicksburg, Miss.; and Mike Tobin from Borden Town, N.Y.

The six that have not returned a signed tender to MSU are: Gordon Longmire, from Tracey, Calif.; Ken Milstead, from Trenton; Joe Valerine, from Urbana, Ill.; Dennis Gutzman, from Green Bay, Wis.; Bob Black, from Detroit, and Ron Joseph, from New Orleans, La.

Daugherty said he was extremely satisfied with the athletes signed.

"These are fine athletes and students," he said.

U.S. - Soviet track renewal?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) -- David A. Matlin, president of the United States Amateur Athletic Union disclosed Tuesday he is attempting to restore the track and field dual meet between the U.S. and Russia "as soon as possible."

The AAU executive said he was prompted to make such an effort because of recent reports from Russia indicating the Soviets want to make amends for last summer's abrupt cancellation of the event scheduled for the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Russia had defeated the U.S. in both the men and women's division in the last meeting between the two in 1965 in Kiev, Russia.

Nevada Governor Laxalt says Clay suit groundless

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) -- Gov. Paul Laxalt said Tuesday there were "no legal grounds" for a suit against him and the Nevada Athletic Commission for canceling the championship fight between Cassius Clay and Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas April 25.

"We analyzed it at the time of the decision," Laxalt told a news conference, "and the final arrangements had not been approved by the attorney general as required."

Al Boian, promoter of the bout said Monday he planned to sue the governor and the boxing commission.

DOES THE PHARMACEUTICAL FIELD OFFER EXCEPTIONALLY REWARDING SALES POSITIONS?

Yes, And Roche Will Train You For Them.

An opportunity especially for people who like challenging assignments...

If your interests and aptitudes run to sales, if you have some experience or interest in this direction, this is a medical sales opportunity you will want to know about. Few fields are so rewarding in terms of earnings, associations and service to the physician and his patients. After thorough training, your position as a Roche Medical Sales Representative will be on a highly professional level—a position with a purpose.

Roche is an impressive name in the ethical pharmaceutical industry. Our growth pattern is enviable. Roche is particularly noted for its commitment to research and its research facilities.

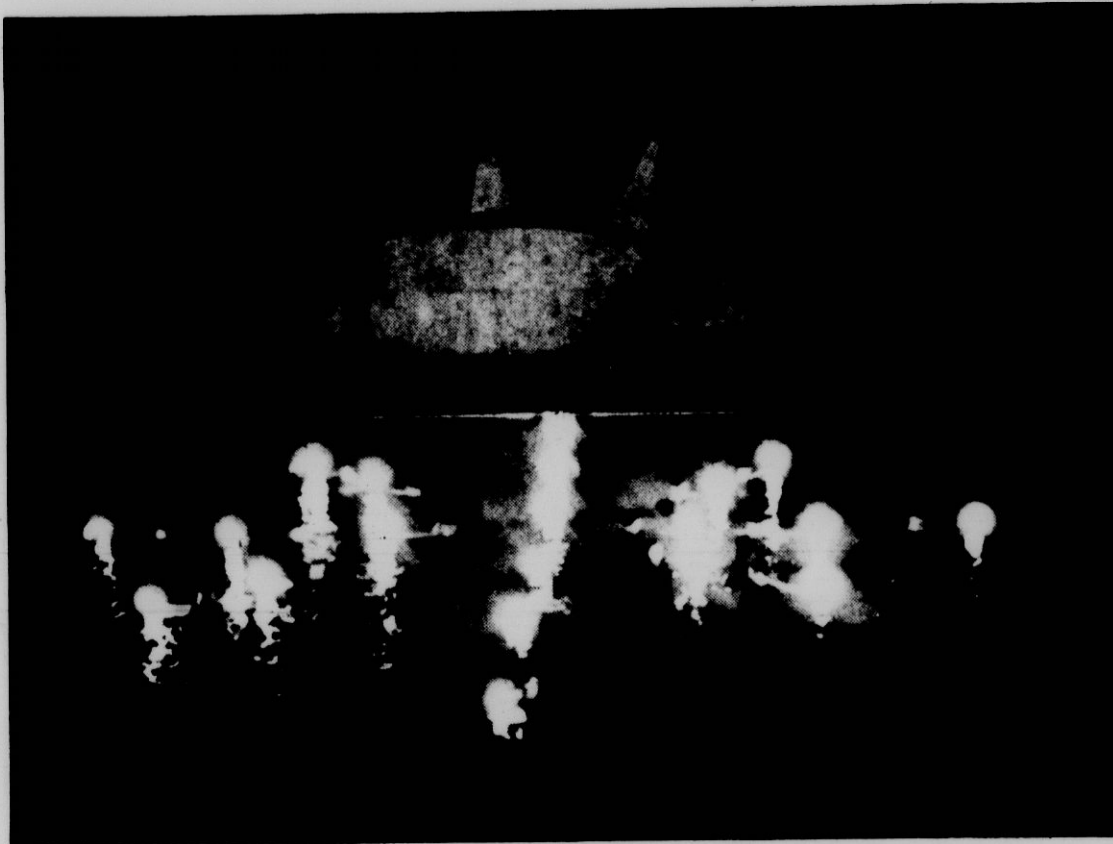

Beginning salary is distinctly attractive, especially when you consider the extras—sales bonuses, company car and expenses, tuition refund programs and an unsurpassed comprehensive insurance program. Your earnings can increase rapidly. Since company policy is to promote from within, there are opportunities to move into management.

MOO U MUG

BY ADVANCED WOODSMEN

Student 'Moo U Mugs' to begin production, sales

A new corporation has been formed at MSU, complete with a board of directors and preferred stock and ready to go into production of drinking mugs.

Moo U Mugs, Inc. (MUMI), better known as Education 241A (Advanced Woods), was formed as a class project to give students experience in buying, mass production and marketing.

Production of the mugs is set to begin Monday. They should be on the market by April 24 at $2 apiece.

The students will have to overcome the problems faced by a small industry before production can get underway, according to Thomas T. Tsuji, instructor in secondary education and curriculum.

"What the students learn from this project, they will be able to use, as teachers, in explaining problems encountered in setting up a project of this type to their students," Tsuji said.

Kendrick L. Spooner, East Lansing senior and president of MUMI, said the students were given control of the class. They decided what was to be produced, designed the product and decided how to produce it.

The mugs will be hexagonal in shape and walnut stained and will have a fiberglass coating on the inside. They will be ready for market three days after the first version of law and order.

cut is made in the rough lumber, Spooner said.

A film strip will be made of the project, showing organization, production, and safety and marketing procedures. It will be used as an instructional aid at the junior high school level, Spooner said.

Two oil slicks threaten Massachusetts

BOSTON (P) -- Two large oil slicks skimming over Atlantic waters threatened the entire Massachusetts coastline today with deposits similar to those which blackened 40 miles of Cape Cod beaches during the weekend.

The Coast Guard said helicopter observations indicated that one patch extended for 30 miles from the Boston lightship outside Boston Harbor southeastward to Race Point at the northern tip of Cape Cod, near Provincetown.

The other was described as a "large, pie-shaped area" headed toward Chatham on the southeast corner of the Cape.

Dirksen says open gifts OK for personal benefit

WASHINGTON (P) -- Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said Tuesday there is nothing in the law to prevent a public official from using testimonial dinner funds for personal expenses if they are clearly understood to be gifts.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, told a news conference he is going to have to decide after an "appreciation" dinner being arranged for him in Chicago in September what he will do with the money from the affair.

There were indications he may set it aside for re-election race next year.

In response to questions about his attitude toward charges that Sen. Thomas H. Dodd, D-Conn., misused campaign funds for personal expenses, Dirksen said that "everybody must be the judge of his own conduct."

In his case, Dirksen said, he has always placed funds raised at dinners in a special campaign bank account. He said he kept a ledger showing all expenditures for political purposes and used none of the funds for personal bills.

In his 1950 campaign for the Senate, he said he received $132,000 from one dinner, put it in a special account and made disbursements by check.

There wasn't any money left over that year, but he said when he ran again in 1956 and 1962 there were surpluses, the amount of which he declined to reveal.

He left that money in the campaign checking account, Dirksen said, but decided later that it ought to be transferred to a savings account where it would earn interest. But when he asked the Internal Revenue Service for a ruling, he said he was told he would have to pay taxes on the interest the fund earned.

Dodd contends that the money he received from testimonial dinners was in the form of gifts and his use of some of it for personal matters was not taxable.

Dirksen said he thinks such funds could be used for personal purposes only when it is made clear to those who buy tickets that they are making a gift to the official involved, rather than contributing to a campaign fund.

"There is nothing in the law to prevent personal expenditures if it is made abundantly clear to the people who are giving the money," he said.

FACULTY FACTS

Erwin Bettinghaus to publish book in fall

Erwin P. Bettinghaus, associate professor of communication, is writing a book entitled "Persuasive Communication" that will be published this fall.

The book will focus on behavioral science literature collected in the field of persuasion in communication.

"Usually texts use an argumentative approach," Bettinghaus said, "this approach is different because I will draw together sciences such as psychology and sociology and apply them to communications."

A.M. Dhanak, professor of mechanical engineering, presented a paper dealing with spacecraft temperature control Monday at a conference of thermophysics specialists in New Orleans, La.

Dhanak's paper, co-authored with former MSU graduate student S.A. Hassan, discussed temperature control of spacecraft by thermal radiation.

Three representatives of MSU's Physics Dept. will present papers at the 73rd meeting of the Acoustical Society of America this week in New York City.

William D. Cook, asst. professor of physics, and Juergen Staude, graduate assistant, will present a paper today. Another paper, co-authored by Cook and Jack Bamberg, graduate assistant, will be presented later this week.

"This is the smoothest I can get my naturally curly hair. Gorgeous, isn't it?"

(This is how Georgeanne Alexander looked before using CURL FREE. And these are her words.) "Girls with straight hair tell me I'm lucky to have natural curl. They just don't know! I leave the house with smooth hair...and get back home looking like curlylocks. In the winter it snows and—instant ringlets. And summer humidity makes my hair frizz up and go wild.

"I saw an ad for CURL FREE in a magazine. It said, 'I was a curly-headed baby, but baby look at me now!' The results looked marvelous. I would like to try it."

GEORGEANNE ALEXANDER, CHICAGO

"Look what Curl Free did! So sleek—I can't believe it's me!"

"Oh...it's beautiful! I've always wanted straight hair. Now I've got it. And I did it myself with CURL FREE. Gee, I'm just like the ad: 'I was a curly-headed baby, but baby look at me now!'"—GEORGEANNE ALEXANDER.

Comb those natural curls right out of your hair with cool, creamy CURL FREE. Even if your hair is so tight and curly it puts up a real fight—it will surrender to CURL FREE. Just keep on using it and you'll see.

Services for J.S. Holden, MSU benefactor, today

Funeral services will be held today for James S. Holden of Detroit, a long-time MSU benefactor for whom MSU's newest residence halls are named.

The prominent Detroit philanthropist died Monday in a Detroit hospital. Private funeral services will be held at his home in Grosse Pointe, and burial will be at Elmwood Cemetery.

MSU's newest residence halls, James and Lynelle Holden Halls which are scheduled for completion this fall, were named for Mr. Holden and his wife who survives him.

Mr. Holden attended MSU during 1889-90 and was an early supporter of MSU's Development Fund. He was awarded MSU's Distinguished Alumni Award and holds an honorary doctor of law degree which MSU presented him in 1965.

Mr. Holden and his wife last year gave MSU an unrestricted gift of $100,000.

His chief philanthropic efforts in Detroit centered on the Detroit Zoo. The James and Lynelle Holden Fund has given the city the Children's Zoo, Amphitheatre, Great Ape House and elephants.

FLOOR FUNCTION

3-week card tournament to decide euchre champ

The men of Horrendous House, on the sixth floor of Holmes Hall, started a tournament Thursday to decide once and for all the euchre champion of the floor.

The tournament will continue for about three weeks. The event was organized as a floor function, with 24 decks of cards purchased out of the house treasury. Judges were chosen, 12 teams were formed and the play started on a festive note, with much shouting and many charges of luck.

The teams chose names like "Bud's Boys," and the "Right Bowers," and wore distinctive uniforms to the first night of competition in the double elimination tournament.

Five cards are dealt to each player. Whoever names trump has to take three tricks in order to win the hand and a point. The first player or team to get 10 points wins the game.

Ante up

The Horrendous House men of Holmes Hall are settling the question of "who's champion" in a three-week long euchre tournament.

Case has assembled a magazine that is cosmopolitan, moving and professionally first-class.

Sjogren's roaring dialog and swift, act-filled narrative dominates his most mature work yet. He can still slip ("full, firm breasts") once in a while, but most of his prose seems as firm and unwavering as the following extract from Sjogren's rendition of a fight in which a boy inadvertently knifes another boy:

"He felt the center struggling to reach the surface but he was divorced from it. His body fumbled mechanically a million miles away and then something broke through to the surface and there were screams . . ."

Winthrop Rowe's "The Valley of the Blind" is surprising, not so much for its searching and serious treatment of a priest's Bergman-like struggle with his own nay-saying conscience, but for its appearance in a University publication. It seems almost a shame that a story that could have appeared in a national mag-

Education of retarded needs revamp

Education of the mentally retarded is in a rut, Norvin Wirtz, head of Western Michigan University's Dept. of Special Education, said here Thursday.

Wirtz, a former U.S. Office of Education aide, stated that education for the mentally retarded is not taking advantage of the information it has available.

"Teachers, local and state educational agencies and universities must break with tradition and develop new concepts to adequately educate the mentally retarded," he said.

The major problem facing educators today, Wirtz asserted, is one of differentiating instruction for the culturally induced retardate and the organically damaged retardate. The bulk of mental retardation is culturally induced, he said.

He explained that a relationship exists between children educated as mentally retarded and the socio-cultural level of the community from which they come.

Citing a relationship between the acquisition of middle-class language patterns and success in school, Wirtz challenged educators to modify educational structure to give children the benefit of instruction found in such programs as "Head Start" without being stigmatized in the process.

He suggested scrapping "cast-iron" medical-model categories of handicapped children, and grouping them by intellectual, sensory, neurological and emotional deficits or a combination of these.

azine is doomed to reach the Review's limited audience. Maybe Martha Foley will pick it up.

Mark Kupperman fans will be glad to know that he has two selections, one from "A Life in Progress," the other, "Mother Goose," the first light-hearted comedy to appear in a local literary mag since I came to MSU.

All in all, Will Albert and Dennis A. Noyes, the prose editors, did a good job in picking a variety of pieces, all of them at the very least competent.

The art work—especially Erin McKinney's painting, W.J. Sherbach's "Blue Nude," V. Glen Washburn's "Tudor Argezh, Serigraph" and Melvyn S. Bucholtz's "Filigree Drinking Meloncholy" — is superbly printed and, for the most part, lean and lucid.

Yes, there are also some beautiful, billowing nudes. Do art departments ever hire thin models?

Craig Sterry and his poetry staff have definitely raised the RCR's standards in this area.

Ruth Lechlitter — "Prehistoric: Circa 1960 A.D." with molasses tenacity remains in your mind after you've unraveled its imagery of the expressways dinosaur.

Melvyn S. Bucholtz — "Great Men Will Have To Go" is an experiment that almost worked, while the looser "Woman at Summer's Door" moves out and makes it.

Craig S. Sterry — An untitled poem in which a sleepy man's mind slips out bat-like and returns "clinging to its moist ceiling" entirely upstages his other contribution which is hurt by a gratuitous epilog. Or did I miss something?

M.F. Jones — Light, fun and irreverent. "Strangers to Touch," should have been revised to remove the deadly pomposity of the lines "Unfounded because the 'we' relationship had not reached a level of physical contact."

Daniel Olmstead — "His Taxidermist's Yellow Glass Eyes"

liquors, cooking and other foreign specialties.

However, one of the most significant, and universal advantages cited by those who have been abroad is the "culture shock" -- the expanding of personal outlook to include other peoples, other cultures, and a whole new way of thinking.

MINEX is the MSU - University of Nigeria exchange program, which usually operates on a summer basis, although this year a junior-year-abroad type program will be offered instead.

The program in Mexico is a joint Big Ten project at the Universidad Ibero-Americana in Mexico City, which has two students going there this summer, with scholarships.

Breznev proposes all-red talk

BERLIN (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev declared Tuesday the time had come to prepare for a world conference of Communist parties. But to avoid the feud with Red China, the Soviet party leader keyed the call to a need for greater unity in supporting North Vietnam.

The Kremlin has been calling for a world conference with the apparent aim of kicking Red China out of the Communist movement. But wishing to avoid a Peking break, Romania, Yugoslavia and the Italian Communists have balked at such a meeting.

Addressing 2,200 delegates to the East German Communist party convention in East Berlin, Brezhnev said:

"The aid -- for the North Vietnamese -- would be even more efficient and the fiasco for the adventure of the imperialistic aggressors could be reached considerably faster if there was a united action of all socialist countries, including China, in the planning and practical help for the fighting Vietnamese people."

He then immediately mentioned the importance of strengthening Communist unity through a "new international deliberation of the Communists which is put on the agenda by the development itself."

"Many fraternal parties have spoken in favor for such a deliberation which would be attended by all parties interested in closing the Communist ranks," he said.

In what appeared to be a conciliatory reference to those objecting to a world conference, Brezhnev said Moscow "agreed with the opinion of the fraternal parties" that a world conference "requires great and careful preparation."

The one-hour address conspicuously avoided direct criticism of China raised by other convention speakers. At several points, Brezhnev received standing ovations from the delegates in East Berlin's Werner-Seelenbinder sports hall.

Commenting on Vietnam, Brezhnev charged that the United States is fighting a "robbery war" that would eventually end in its defeat.

"The just cause of the Vietnamese people will triumph," he said, adding that it has the sympathy and support of all honest people in the world.

Soviet, East German and other aid was "strengthening resistance" of the Communist Vietnamese against the Americans, Brezhnev said, and this was evident every day.

Brezhnev's most angry comments were directed against West Germany. In the bitterest attack launched since Kurt George Kiesinger took over as chancellor of a new "grand coalition" government, the Soviet leader charged that Bonn was ruled by a clique of "neo-Nazis" bent on seeking revenge for defeat in World War II.

He said the reshuffle in Bonn had not changed chief elements of West German policy that he claimed included militarism, territorial demands and a rejection of peaceful coexistence.

The West German claim to be the sole legal representative of the German people was labeled by Brezhnev as a "permanent threat to peace" and an "expression of aggressiveness."

In what looked like veiled criticism of Romania's recent agreement to establish diplomatic relations with West Germany, Brezhnev said that "everybody who is used to judging politics by deeds rather than words was aware that the so-called new Bonn course was a tactical maneuver."

Critics of MSU programs generally complain that those programs that MSU sponsor are lacking both in quality and quantity.

AMLEC, for example, has been criticized by several MSU professors as not being academically superior enough to meet the needs of the language majors who are the primary participants in such a program.

However, these same professors generally feel that the summer program, which is supervised by MSU professors, is somewhat more academically satisfactory.

Justin Morrill programs, of course, are limited to JMC students. In addition, they have been criticized in a few parts of the University for giving too much credit for programs that are not really of academic value, although this depends on the individual program offered, and the speaker's philosophy of the value of independent study programs. MINEX enrolls only a very small number of students, and, at least for the time being, is in an area that interests few students (African Studies). And, since the year-round program will be only in its first year of operation this next fall, it is difficult to judge the academic value of the program.

The program in Mexico apparently has little appeal to MSU students--again, definite opinions on this program are limited. The answer to the second part of the question is that MSU has many overseas programs--some running into millions of dollars of U.S. funds each year. But very few of these programs involve students; most are technical assistance programs involving only faculty members.

The exceptions to this rule are AMLEC, Justin Morrill College programs, MINEX, and a small program in Mexico. These might be summarized as follows:

AMLEC is a self-supporting program based here at MSU. It is primarily language training, operated in buildings in France, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, and Italy owned by a Swiss philanthropic organization. During the summer, students can get language credit at the centers in Paris, Cologne, and Madrid, plus political science credit at a program in London. Otherwise, the programs run year-round (except London) for no credit.

Justin Morrill students can study during the summer on a variety of programs for up to 12 credits. Credits are determined principally on an individual basis, although JMC has several major programs, related to its language courses, in France, Canada, Belgium, Morocco, Moscow, Czechoslovakia, Russia, Spain, and Peru.

The program in Mexico apparently has little appeal to MSU students--again, definite opinions on this program are limited because of the small number of students who have participated.

Finally, for the student who just wants to travel abroad, both Union Board and AMLEC sponsor summer flights at considerably reduced rates.

Tomorrow, several MSU professors will offer alternatives or additions to the present system.
