About 200 students marched on the Capitol Thursday to protest proposed budget cuts that would make an $81 increase in tuition necessary next year. At the Capitol, United Students leaders presented petitions with more than 3,500 signatures to the governor's office. The petitions had been circulated on campus since Monday afternoon. "I was disappointed in the turnout," said Marty Lechowicz, chairman of the US Committee on Tuition, "but I feel the march still has some value. "That the kids would participate through the petition offsets the low turnout." He added that the march must be followed up by people writing to their legislators in favor of tax reform and in favor of the appropriations bill which would give MSU the $57 million requested by the board of trustees. Lechowicz and other US leaders presented the petitions to the governor's office with a letter which said: "We trust the response (to the petition), coupled with today's rally and march, indicates our disapproval of the insufficient higher education appropriations proposed in Senate Bill 72 and House Bill 2137.... "We do not want ANY qualified student to be unable to attend MSU, if he so desires, because of prohibitive tuition rates caused by inadequate legislative appropriations.... Copies of the letter have also been sent to all state legislators. About 250-300 persons attended the US rally at Beaumont Tower at 1 p.m. ASMSU Student Board chairman Greg Hopkins and junior member-at-large Harvey Dzodin were among the speakers.

A letter from MSU trustee Clair White to Dzodin was read, which supported the US effort and charged Governor Romney with "an elitist philosophy of education and a deliberate advocate of high tuition." Charles C. Killingsworth, University professor of labor and industrial relations, pointed out that this year MSU is spending $1,017 per student for educational purposes, Wayne State is spending $1,230 and the University of Michigan $1,550. "This is almost entirely due to the inequity in state appropriations," he said. Bertram E. Garskof, assistant professor of psychology, said: "I'm not really concerned with the $81. These things are symptoms--effects, not causes." "It's ironic," said Brad Lang, ASMSU sophomore member-at-large, that the rally is sponsored by United Students and supported by the ASMSU Student Board, who are all supporting the board of trustees--and that we're going to have to march with only 200 people."

Lang was on the front steps of the Capitol with Lechowicz and several legislators when the marchers, led by US chairman Dick Oestreicher, arrived about 3 p.m. Rep. George F. Montgomery urged marchers to write letters in support of tax reform, because "most of the mail is running against it." "I'm for the budget," he said, "and I'm for the taxes to pay for it." He said education is well over half of the budget, so when reductions are made, "you can't miss education." Sen. Roger Craig said, "The march won't mean a damn thing unless, if your petitions are rejected, you do something about it." Rep. Jack Faxon said students should not be protesting to the legislature about the proposed cuts: "We're dealing with an autonomous body (the trustees) that doesn't have to raise tuition," he said.

Dependents called home from Israel and Egypt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (P) -- The United States is calling home wives and children of U.S. officials in Egypt and Israel because of the possibility of an Arab-Israeli war. The U.S. announcement affecting more than 500 dependents, came Thursday, a few hours after U.N. Secretary - General U Thant cut his peace mission to Cairo short and flew back to New York to report to the U.N. Security Council on the Middle East crisis. Cairo dispatches said Nasser was reported to have given Thant a complete explanation of Egypt's position in the crisis, ignited by an Egyptian accusation that Israel was ready to launch an attack on Syria to knock over its Socialist government. Thant is expected to relay Nasser's side of the conflict to the Security Council, the Cairo informants said, and request the council's opinion on what the next U.N. step should be. In reporting a clash in the Gaza Strip, Cairo radio said Egyptian officials regarded the alleged Israeli penetration as a provocative act. Other developments were: --President Johnson made a surprise trip to Canada--a key nation in the effort to prevent a Middle East War--to confer with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson and visit Expo 67, the world's fair. Both leaders have expressed grave concern about events in the Middle East and the threat of hostilities between Israel and her Arab neighbors. Their approach to the U.N. Security Council has proven fruitless thus far. American dependents were told to leave Egypt and Israel within 48 hours by way of commercial transport. Officials in Washington said about 120 American dependents will leave the Israeli cities of Tel Aviv and Jerusalem and that about 400 will begin flying out of Egypt on Saturday. State Dept. officials said there was no direct connection between the evacuations and Thant's efforts in his talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser and other Egyptian leaders in Cairo. "The decision to remove the dependents should not be taken as evidence of a general deterioration in the general situation," one Washington informant said. But officials agreed that the action was based on a recognition of a dangerous situation that could get worse rapidly. Attention remains focused on the Gulf of Aqaba. The Egyptians have reported they have mined its entrance, the Strait of Tiran, and that shore batteries and patrol boats will stop shipping to and from Elath. Israel has said it will fight if Egypt carries out its blockade. But no Israeli shipping has entered the gulf since Nasser announced his blockade intentions on Monday. No Israeli shipping is expected in the gulf in the immediate future, officials said. Thant conferred with Nasser Wednesday night. He met Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt Thursday before his departure. On leaving Cairo, he told reporters: "I have met President Nasser and I consider my mission completed. I do not intend to make any statement on my talks here until I return to the Security Council in New York." Thant's aides said the secretary-general planned to report to the council Saturday or Sunday. Other informants said he carried a special message to the council from Nasser. But they added, there was no likelihood that Thant was carrying any peace formula as the result of his talks. Informants in Cairo said Thant proposed the revival of the Egyptian-Israeli Mixed Armistice Commission, established after the 1956 Suez war, as one means to put a brake on the crisis. These sources said Nasser looked upon this favorably but insisted on keeping Egyptian forces in Sinai and Gaza Strip posts the U.N. Emergency Force was manning when it was withdrawn by Thant last week. Nasser also insists on maintaining what he calls Egypt's legal rights to bar the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping, the sources said. The withdrawal of the U.N. Emergency Force from Egypt was a blow to Pearson, whose work to establish peace in the area after the 1956 Suez crisis won him a Nobel Peace Prize.

--Arabs and Israelis reported border incidents, Cairo radio said a unit of the Palestine Liberation Army in the Gaza Strip clashed with an Israeli patrol Wednesday night and forced it back into Israel. There was no confirmation from Israel. --An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv said two explosive charges were detonated Thursday in central Israel near the Jordanian border but there was no damage. One charge went off under a bridge. The incident was reported to the Jordan-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission, an Israeli spokesman said. --Algeria offered to send troops to bolster Egyptian troops facing the Israeli border, and Syria announced it is distributing arms and ammunition to its 250,000-man civilian home guard force to back its regular forces in the event of war.

Marijuana authorities to speak at hearing

By ELLEN ZURKEY
State News Staff Writer

National and local authorities on marijuana will discuss the drug at an ASMSU open hearing at 8 p.m. Monday in 311 Union. Patrick O'Carroll, of the Federal Narcotics Agency in Washington, told the ASMSU fact-finding committee on marijuana that he would do "everything in his power" to have a representative present at Monday's hearing. Jim Sink, chairman of the committee, said he expects a call from O'Carroll today. Dr. James S. Feurig, director of Olin Health Center, Wednesday refused an invitation to speak at the hearing. Feurig indicated, however, that he would speak if a representative from the Narcotics Agency and from the Food and Drug Administration also appeared. Mrs. Diane Place, consumer specialist for the Food and Drug Administration, said Thursday she saw no need for anyone from that department to speak since marijuana is a non-addictive drug and therefore does not come under the Administration's jurisdiction. Sink said the ASMSU committee also expected a call from the Ingham County Prosecutor's office today. A representative has been invited to speak on the enforcement of drug laws. John Sinclair, head of the Detroit branch of LeMar (Legalize Marijuana) and a user of the drug, will participate. The committee has also invited James Starr, Lansing lawyer and former state legislator; a clergyman; and Sen. Roger E. Craig, D-Deerborn, to appear Monday. Craig plans to introduce a bill into the legislature calling for the reclassification of marijuana. Reclassification would make marijuana legal without a prescription. Feurig recently said he favors reclassification of the intoxicant with proper controls and if more research was done. Feurig called marijuana a legal, not a medical, problem.

U.S. death toll up in Vietnam

SAIGON (P) A record 337 U.S. soldiers were killed last week in heavy fighting in Vietnam, pushing the total for the war to 10,253--almost one-third the number of battle deaths in the Korean War. The U.S. Command also reported Thursday that 2,282 Americans were wounded last week and 31 were missing, an overall casualty record for seven days in Vietnam. The severe fighting exacted a heavy toll on the enemy. The U.S. Command said 2,464 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed during the period. This was below the record enemy losses of 2,774 killed in the week ending March 25. The number of wounded Americans boosted the total to 61,425 by unofficial count. The number of Americans killed in the Korean War was 33,629. Henry Cabot Lodge, then U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, said in a Saigon interview in January he expected U.S. casualties to decline in 1967 because he saw "sensational results" from American military operations. Actually, at the current rate, the total U.S. killed, wounded and missing will top 100,000 by the end of the year. If

Mrs. Romney says Green was misled on club status

By ERIC PIANIN
State News Executive Editor

Mrs. George W. Romney has charged that MSU associate professor Robert L. Green possessed only piecemeal information when he sent a letter May 17 asking her to resign from a Detroit club because of its racial discrimination policy. In a letter to the State News, the governor's wife said that Green, former Education Director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, did not read the entire New York Times article from which he quoted. "Had he done so, he would have learned that I had already called the president of the Women's City Club of Detroit to inform her that I was resigning from the club unless the policy referred to was rescinded," Mrs. Romney said.

The Times article of May 14 stated that Negro women are not only barred from admission to the club, but they are also barred from the second floor lounge and from eating in the club dining room. Mrs. Romney said she has been a non-resident member of the club for one year, at their invitation after an appearance she made there for the Salvation Army. "I was completely unaware of the discrimination policy until I was informed by a reporter three weeks ago," she said. "At that time I made the statement that I was resigning unless the policy was changed." Green, who was contacted in New Orleans Thursday, said the Times story stated precisely that Mrs. Romney was aware that the club was practicing racial discrimination, and that she would withhold judgment until the club re-evaluated its policy. "What I'm saying is that once she found out, she should have immediately resigned," Green said. "From what I have been reading, the club has not altered its policy." Mrs. Romney resigned from the club May 18. Green said he was not waging a vendetta on the Romney family. "I'm not searching out the Romneys' club memberships," Green said. "I'm sure the Romneys are members of either the Bloomfield or the Birmingham Country Clubs. I'm sure the clubs have never had a Negro member, yet I haven't attacked the Romneys' membership. "I would strongly defend the Romneys' right of membership in any organization that is structured on the basis of racism," he said. "But the public should be well aware of this and allowed to decide whether they want Mr. and Mrs. Romney to represent them." An official at the Bloomfield Hills Country Club refused to tell the State News whether or not the Romneys are members. Green said he was disturbed that Mrs. Romney would even hesitate to quit the Detroit club once she knew it discriminated against Negroes, in light of what she and Gov. Romney have said publicly in the area of civil rights. Whether or not the club decided to alter its discrimination policy is not important in this issue, according to Green. "There should not be a poll taken to see if a Negro woman should be allowed into a club," Green said.

Possibility for a project

There seems to be a wall of resistance to students offering opinions (which would be published) on whether or not a professor could communicate with his class.

leaders in this area have usually abandoned the idea.

One of our more progressive professors here once offered a solution to the lack of faculty cooperation: Simply publish a list of bad professors, and widely distribute it with or without the cooperation of the faculty.

We know that when more than one faculty member teaches the same course, there is usually a rush to the instructor who is known to be effective, while other sections remain unfilled.

Each term, a number of professors go through this academic embarrassment through the lack of student response to their abilities. Regardless of the rationale they place forward to explain a half-filled section in one class while others are overflowing, no teacher is pleased to see that many students think he cannot teach.

After spending a few terms here, most students get to know who are the good profs and who are the ones that are worth missing if possible.

Freshmen could be offered a good opportunity through a student government-published booklet which indicated whether or not a section had a lot of quizzes, papers, attendance requirements, essay or objective tests, and the teaching methods employed by one instructor compared to another.

This information is now unavailable. ASMSU, once again, is trying to prepare such a publication and is presently sending out a well-conceived and -written questionnaire to students enrolled in the freshmen and sophomore third term basic college courses, as well as Econ 200 and 201, History 122, and Psych 151.

There are thirty-one questions which will provide information on the students' background and on the professors' abilities and methods as well as the content of the course.

In the timeless tradition of surveys, we can expect that only fifty per cent of the students who receive the poll will take the twenty minutes to reply.

If you are in any of the above courses why not call ASMSU at 355-8268 and request that they send you a questionnaire.

Perhaps if there is a good response to this and other surveys such a publication could become a reality.

In subtle suppression

It was distressing to hear this week that Dr. James Feurig, director of Olin Health Center, has refused to speak at the ASMSU open hearing on marijuana, now scheduled for Monday.

Feurig reneged on his original commitment to the group, primarily, he said, because of inaccurate nationwide publicity since his first statements on the intoxicant. He was intimidated by the very same pressure which is striving to keep marijuana in its current status as a narcotic drug.

Now, even more so, Feurig has responsibility to continue the dialog. He has a responsibility to the ASMSU committee and to MSU students to participate in sensible discussion of a subject that is too often sensationalized.

The ASMSU committee has taken as its first premise that only open discussion can destroy the myths surrounding marijuana. It is indeed unfortunate when an honest medical opinion like Feurig's is subdued in the face of irrational protest.

Feurig has not reversed his original statement that marijuana is misclassified as a narcotic. He still predicts it will be legalized with adequate controls within two-five years. But he is seemingly unwilling to meet the irrational and emotional critics who distort the entire issue.

The committee has unwittingly stumbled upon the real obstacle to the legalization of marijuana. It will take more than a little work to break down this stigma surrounding the whole subject before even scientific fact will be heeded.

Feurig's decision not to talk is disappointing to everyone who looked forward to Monday's open discussion, whether out of agreement with his ideas or the simple appreciation of free discussion in a free University.

If he values his own opinion, and the legitimate right to express it, Feurig will change his mind and speak. If he values the right of the MSU students to know, instead of continuing to believe in the myth, he will appear at Monday's ASMSU panel.

For, if Dr. Feurig does not participate in Monday's panel discussion, more will be lost than an introspective look at the marijuana question.

ASMSU Course Survey: a fine beginning

ASMSU has taken a well-conceived first step toward one of the most difficult of student government projects -- a student-run teacher and course evaluation.

The 31-page questionnaire distributed to 8,000 students is admittedly a first attempt, but it is also the result of over a year of discussions and revisions. In the long process, ASMSU has developed a survey which at last appears to have a good chance of accomplishing its goal.

By limiting the initial appraisal to four University College and four common elective courses, the danger of initially overextending the survey has been avoided. And at the same time, there is a sufficient depth of questions to provide a broad and objective range of responses.

ASMSU is now aiming toward publication of a course evaluation book next spring. The current survey plays several roles in this long-range plan.

It is first of all an attempt to work the bugs out of the questionnaire, to evaluate the evaluation technique. Perhaps even more importantly, a successful result on this first effort would lend support to ASMSU's request for a $5,000 scholarship available for this type of project from the National Student Association.

There is no question that a fully developed evaluation program would be a tremendous benefit to students in the future attempting to choose from among the myriad of courses and instructors at MSU.

Of course, spring term, under the gun of incipient finals, is not the best time to elicit a reasoned student response on the subject of courses and professors.

But an adequate degree of student cooperation will, at least, keep the project alive and, at its hoped-for best, benefit future students with an evaluation of professors and courses. A poor response could bury the whole idea.

OUR READERS' MINDS

To the Editor:
An Open Letter to Rep. Martha Griffiths;

Dear Rep. Griffiths,

I see you have taken up cudgels to help the oppressed females again. Bravo! As a male, I support your drive for equality for women. Our women should have complete equality. You can count on my support in this struggle for complete equality.

You made the point that women are paid less for doing the same work than men are paid. Down with the double standard. Let's also strive to eliminate the Michigan law that prohibits women from working more than 10 hours a day. Eliminate discrimination. We must fight for the elimination of Ladies' Days at the ball games. Support equality and justice. There are no women on the draft boards, as you mentioned. We must change this. For the sake of equality we must also change the unfair practice of not drafting women. Let us strive for complete equality.

Let us also struggle to end the custom that when a girl goes on a date, her escort pays her way. Justice must triumph. Equality demands that the girl be allowed to pay her own way. The major airlines must be the target of a major campaign. Their discriminatory practice of hiring only women to serve drinks and meals on their flights is a direct contradiction of the principle of hiring without discrimination because of sex.

Another societal more must be changed, and that is the terribly discriminatory practice of opening doors for women. To be equal, she must insist on opening her own doors. And, as a far ranging goal, let us change the odious and discriminatory custom that the husband must be the breadwinner of the family. Let the women assert their equality; have them insist on being the sole support of their husbands. Fight for equality.

Or, is it possible, madame representative, that you only seek one-sided equality. That is, change things where men have the advantage, and leave them alone where women have the edge. Do you mean to fight for equality of pay, but leave the divorce and alimony laws as they are? I should hope not. Let us band together for complete equality, or let us be quiet. Yours for the fight for equality.

Why have grades at all

To the Editor:

With all the current discussion about grading systems, allow me to add another proposal. Since the only necessary use of grades is in providing certification for entry into certain professions or for advancement, say into graduate school, I propose the use of qualifying examinations for these purposes and the elimination of grades of any sort. As Prof. Mandelstamm pointed out in his recent letter, a pass-fail system would work more justice than the grading system we presently have. He proposes the use of plus and minus marks so as to make the nit-picking even finer, but I ask why have grades at all, since the only practical purpose they serve can be met by qualifying exams. Such examinations would be regularly scheduled and a person could take them on as many occasions as he wished. And just think of it, without the high shrine of grades in academia, a teacher would either communicate or have no audience!

MIDDLE EAST

Chain of errors blamed for crisis

An AP NEWS ANALYSIS
By ROY ESSOYAN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (P) — Diplomats and experts in Arab affairs believe a series of grave miscalculations—by the Soviet Union, Israel and Egypt—may have precipitated the crisis in the Middle East.

Many fear the momentum built up by these blunders may have brought the crisis to a flash point.

The last thing the United States or Britain wants at this point is a military involvement in the Middle East. But the United States is committed to defend Israel in case of Arab attack. Both powers consider free access into the Gulf of Aqaba—which Egypt threatens to block—is guaranteed by international law.

The United States is known to be exerting strong political pressure to restrain Israel from any overt move that may set off a war. But many diplomats fear the United States may not be able to hold Israel back, or that Israeli political leaders may not be able to restrain their own military, if there is further provocation.

It is generally assumed that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, unpredictable as he may be, does not want a war that could spell military and political suicide.

"But maybe he thinks he isn't headed for suicide," one Western diplomat here said.

Nasser has put his prestige on the line. Many people here feel he can't back down now without exposing himself to charges of being a "paper tiger."

Diplomats trace the present situation to a series of statements by Israeli leaders two weeks ago. These statements warned that Israel would attack Syria in force if Syrian-sponsored commando raids into Israel continued.

The observers believe these warnings alarmed Nasser, as did a series of distorted intelligence reports he received claiming a major Israeli military buildup on its northern front facing Syria.

U.N. observers and other independent sources have shown since then that there was no such Israeli military buildup at the time. The reports were obviously fabricated for ulterior purposes—possibly by the volatile revolutionary regime in Syria or by Communist sources.

Nasser apparently believed them, made his fateful decision to grab the initiative from the Israelis, and then ordered the peacekeeping U.N. Emergency Force out of Sinai.

This step led inevitably, Arab experts here say, to Nasser's decision to block the Aqaba strait. They suggest he couldn't stop short and let 100,000 Egyptian troops remain in the Sinai Desert indefinitely.

Russia's role in the developing crisis appears to have been an ironic one.

Since Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's visit to Egypt last year the Kremlin has been needing Cairo and Damascus to provide irritants to Western positions in the Middle East. It is basic Soviet policy to keep the West off balance—short of war. This policy was stepped up during the past year with a view apparently to providing as much distraction as possible from U.S. commitments in Vietnam.

It is generally accepted that the Soviet Union does not want a major war in the Middle East, uncomfortably close to its southern borders.

Nasser and the fiery leaders in Damascus apparently bought the Soviet line. Nasser took it one step further, and now the Soviet Union is scrambling around, together with the West, in an effort to pull him back.

GOP leaders oppose more trade with Reds

WASHINGTON (P) — The Republican congressional leadership took a stand Thursday against increased trade with the Communist bloc until Russia and her allies show they seek peace in Vietnam and elsewhere.

"So long as this blood bath is going on, I want to give no aid or comfort to the Soviet Union," said Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. Similarly, Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House GOP leader, said that "we will continue to oppose economic aid to an enemy whose global goal is the extinction of freedom."

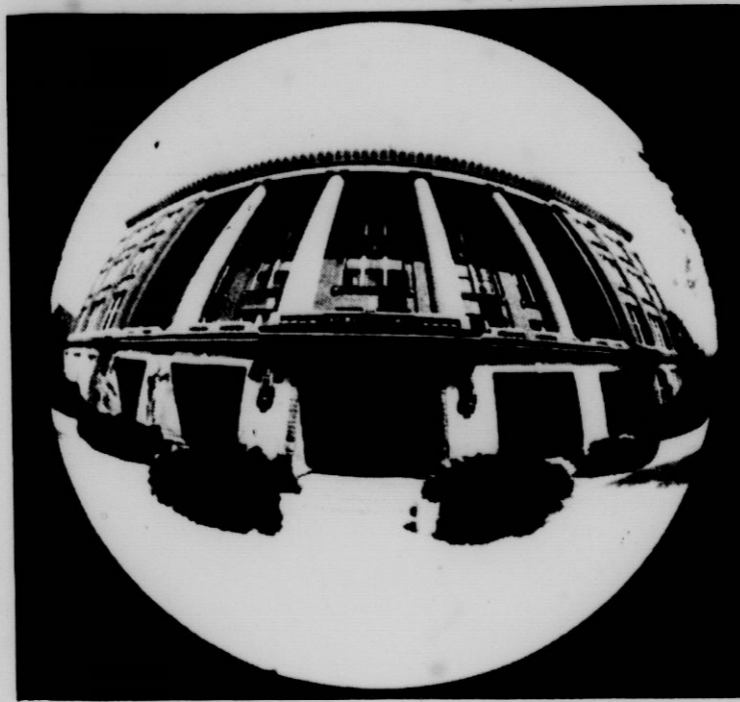

They spoke at a joint news conference after their statements had been approved by other Republican leaders in both the Senate and the House.

Both emphasized that in Vietnam, American troops are being killed and wounded by arms supplied by Russia and Communist China.

"The instruments of death are Red-built," Dirksen said.

"Nevertheless," said Ford, "the Johnson-Humphrey administration continues to urge that we trade with the enemy by 'building bridges' between us and these Communist dealers in death."

Iowa college yearbook features pot parties, sex

GRINNELL, Iowa (P) — Student editors of the 1966 Grinnell College yearbook decided to produce something different.

They did. What emerged after months of effort was a photo-essay of undergraduate life featuring marijuana parties and sex.

There was no class picture. Also missing were the conventional shots of the year's athletic heroes.

Co-editors Henry Wilhelm, 24, Arlington, Va., and John Phillips, 21, Algona, Iowa, spent so much time on the yearbook they both flunked out of Grinnell.

Among other things, they took more than 15,000 pictures. Wilhelm mailed the manuscript and selected photos last month—long after the normal publication date—to a printing company in Hannibal, Mo.

The printers took a quick look, shuddered and mailed it right back to Grinnell. They told the college they would publish only if they received a hard and fast release from any legal responsibility. The book, suggested the printers, was a "major departure from what is normally found in a college yearbook."

Grinnell's attorney, John F. Bierman, read the layout and was appalled. He said he counted at least 30 instances of libel. And that's all he'd say on that subject. Glen Leggett, president of the college, returned the material to Wilhelm. The co-editor locked it in a safe deposit box until he could decide what to do next.

Last Friday the staff of the Grinnell student newspaper resigned in protest against what it described as "censorship" and

"an admission by the administration that it doesn't have the ability to deal with vigorous, controversial publications."

There, for the moment, matters stand.

"We wanted the book to be different -- we wanted to give a really candid view of the college," said Wilhelm.

Illustrations included pictures of a marijuana party, a male and a female student leaving a motel

VIGOR MORTIS

The Paper lives, contrary to rumor

By ANDREW MOLLISON
Executive Reporter

False rumors of the death of The Paper flickered through the University this week.

Sparked by a misleading hand-out issued by the Mobile Home Education Project (Mo-Hep), the rumors spread like wildfire from The Paper's offices west of campus.

Many of the staff members believed the rumors, and the failure of The Paper to come out this week added fuel to the fire.

Next Wednesday, however, The Paper expects to rise phoenix-like from the ashes of misinterpretation and publish its final issue of the term.

Ron Diehl and Eric Peterson agreed this week that The Paper will come out next year. In fact, there will even be a special issue this summer to introduce summer school students and orientation freshmen to the off-campus publication.

Mo-Hep, headed by the former editor of The Paper, Michael Kindman, will move into new dimensions of media—using one-shot pamphlets and hand-outs to spread the word about Everland.

"I got out of The Paper thing because it was getting boring," Kindman said. "After you've won the revolution, it's time to start a new one."

Said Peterson, "Not that I'm a spokesman, you understand. The Paper is whoever is putting it out that week. But I still think there's a place at MSU for an independent newspaper that comes out regularly and prints the things that the State News can't and won't publish."

Diehl said, "We'll explain the situation in next week's The Paper. Meanwhile, how about giving us a plug for our jazz concert June 4. It'll be free, on the Banks of the Red Cedar, and will be assembled by Buddy Spangler."

"Heavens, no," replied the Paperite. "Besides that, we're different from everybody else."

Came the reply, "Yea, verily."

Shoe - On - The - Other - Foot, Irony of, Dept: The Paper people wanted to see this article before it was printed. "We want to be sure it's accurate and positive in tone," they explained.

Brussels police hold suspect for arson near store blaze

BRUSSELS, Belgium (P) — Police have arrested a man suspected of setting fires in garbage cans near the area where fire destroyed a large department store Monday and killed an estimated 370 persons.

The blaze in the Innovation department store was believed to have been deliberately set, possibly by Communists protesting a special sale of American products at the store.

Police arson experts would not comment on their investigation since Belgian law prohibits official comment while an investigation is in progress.

Police declined Wednesday to identify the man arrested. They said the garbage can fires in the Rue Neuve, near the destroyed store, were not enough to shatter a store window.

So far, 51 bodies have been recovered from the wreckage of the department store and several adjoining buildings.

Pierre Bolle, store vice president, told newsmen Wednesday night his figures indicated 370 deaths in the fire—123 store employees and 247 shoppers.

Other tabulations listed 309 and 321 victims.

All branches of the Innovation chain took down American flags and halted the special campaign to sell American goods after a threatening telephone call was received at the Liege branch.

Senior football guard Pat Gallinagh and wrestling coach Grady Peninger received top awards from the MSU Varsity Club at its annual chicken banquet Wednesday night.

Gallinagh was presented the John A. Hannah Award for proficiency in scholarship and athletics. He is a history major with a 3.13 grade point average. He has won varsity letters the past two football seasons.

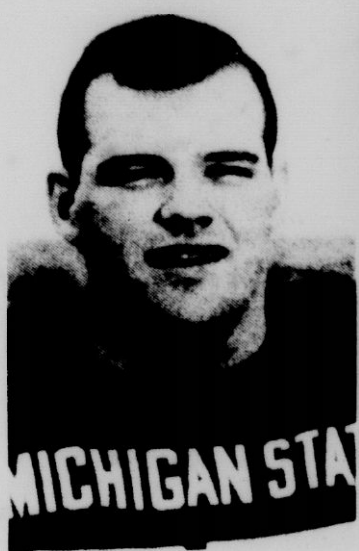

Peninger won the Coach of the Year award, given by ASMSU for directing the Spartan wrestlers to Big Ten and NCAA team championships.

Dugald Tryon, football team manager in 1965 and a retiring Varsity Club officer, was named outstanding senior member of the club.

The outstanding junior award was given to Dale Anderson, 137-pound wrestler who went undefeated and won the individual Big Ten and NCAA championship in his weight class.

Gymnast Toby Towson was presented with the outstanding sophomore award. He was Big Ten champion in floor exercise.

New club officers elected were Dave Campbell, president; Guy Busch, vice president; Toby Towson, secretary; Tom Binkowski, treasurer and Charles Phillips, sergeant-at-arms.

'Boom Boom' might retire

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffron, the fourth highest scorer in National Hockey League history, said Thursday he will retire as a player for the New York Rangers if he is chosen by one of the six new clubs in the expansion draft.

The 36-year-old right winger came out of a two-year retirement last season to help boost the Rangers to a berth in the Stanley Cup playoffs with 17 goals and 25 assists in 58 games.

"If I am drafted by one of the new teams," Geoffron said, "I will retire as an active player and remain with the Rangers in an executive capacity. I love New York. Why should I leave?"

"When I signed with the Rangers last June it was with the understanding that I remain three years with the club," he added. Each of the six present NHL clubs is allowed to protect skaters and one goaltender in the draft June 6-7 in Montreal but The Boomer isn't expected to be on the Rangers' list of exempted players.

By DENNIS CHASE
Associate Sports Editor
Spartan football coach Duffy Daugherty has learned that, along with mice and men, even his best laid plans can go astray. A "Stars and Stripes" football game for U.S. servicemen and their families overseas was canceled Thursday. Daugherty had been planning the game since June.

The game was to have been played in Germany and involved 52 of the top college senior football players of 1966. Game details had been completed and television, radio, officials, housing, uniforms and press facilities had been provided.

Dave Lupton, a promoter hired by the Contact Coaches Group to publicize the game, issued a statement saying that the key reason for canceling the game, was the "inability of the Department of Defense to guarantee air transportation for the team party in view of recent developments."

Lupton indicated that by "recent developments" he meant the current tension in the Middle East.

Another reason given for the cancellation was the refusal of the National and American Football Leagues to sanction the game.

Lupton said he is hopeful that the game can be rescheduled for 1968.

"The decision to postpone, though necessary, will be very disappointing to the U.S. servicemen in Europe where publicity about the game had already started in the mass media," Lupton said.

"It will also be a great disappointment to the athletes who were eager to give their time and talent for this project."

The Contact Coaches Group is a non-profit, non-salaried association organized by Daugherty to promote the game. Ara Parsaghan of Notre Dame and Bear Bryant of Alabama are two other coaches involved.

Miami chosen site of 2nd Super Bowl

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National and American Football Leagues, announced today that Miami's Orange Bowl has been chosen as the site of the second Super Bowl on Jan. 14, 1968.

In the first Super Bowl meeting between the two leagues the Green Bay Packers of the NFL defeated the Kansas City Chiefs, 35-10, before more than 63,000 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, which can hold 93,000. The failure to attract a larger crowd is believed one reason for the switch in sites.

The seating capacity at the Orange Bowl is 70,000 but it is being enlarged to hold about 78,000.

Rozelle cited the "great cooperation" from Mayor Robert High of Miami and the Orange Bowl officials. He said financial details are still to be worked out. Concerning Los Angeles, Rozelle said, "We thought it would be a good idea to move it and maybe have it in an AFL city."

Rozelle said he didn't feel the annual playoff bowl game at the Orange Bowl, scheduled for the previous week, could hurt attendance. The two runners-up in the NFL's Eastern and Western Division meet in the playoff bowl.

Miami is the home of the Dolphins who joined the AFL last season.

Doherty to coach last rugby game

Neville Doherty will be coaching his last MSU rugby game Saturday as his rugger face Blackrock at 2:30 p.m. on Old College Field.

Doherty, who has been doing graduate study here in agricultural economics, organized the MSU Rugby Club three years ago.

"We only had about 10 members then, now the club has over 50 active," Doherty said. "Rugby has grown fantastically in the Midwest, it is really coming."

A native of Hastings, England, Doherty coached at Amherst College before coming to MSU. During his three coaching seasons here, Doherty said Rick Allen has "been the most accomplished as a rugby player and club leader."

Allen has been playing regularly in the rugby field for three years, and plays an outstanding defensive game, according to Doherty.

Experienced in both the England and Canadian rugby leagues, Doherty rates rugby here as quickly improving and sees the day when the Midwest catches up with the East and West coast teams on a competitive basis.

He has developed a strong club for whoever takes it over next season, since all the players will be returning from this year's team.

NEVILLE DOHERTY

The Army and Air Force are also listed as co-sponsors of the game.

"The coaches' group," Lupton said, "will begin work at once in cooperation with the Department of Defense if the game is sanctioned for 1968."

The game was to have been played in Wald Stadium in Frankfurt, West Germany, on June 25. The stadium holds 75,000.

The players were to have been split into two squads of 26 men each, one representing the Army, and one the Air Force.

The idea was first presented at a football clinic for U.S. servicemen in Puerto Rico in June, 1966. Lupton was producing a movie for the President's Council on Physical Fitness, and Daugherty was the commentator.

The Defense Department agreed to pay all transportation expenses, and proceeds from television were to pay all other expenses.

Athletes off the field

By NORM SAARI
State News Sports Writer

The heroism of the Saturday afternoon MSU athlete is usually remembered from game to game. Cheers for the touchdown and basket, and boos for the missed tackle or missed free throw.

But what are these athletes doing Wednesday night or Thursday afternoon?

Many of them live in Wonders Hall because of its closeness to their training facilities. They are all typical examples of the idealized student in the living-learning complex.

Athletes do study, they do have fun, they do socialize, they are serious.

It wasn't uncommon at all to see Gene Washington wearing his green number 84 jersey and studying in one of the Wonders' classrooms during winter term.

Basketball player Woody Edwards used to take up more than one couch to stretch his 6-6 frame while reading in the lounge after hours.

Pat Gallinagh, Bob Apisa and Jeff Richardson served rather effectively to keep the noise down on their floors during quiet hours.

But they always managed to find time to relax, spend time with others or just trying to solve life's problems.

Like Bubba Smith always had trouble getting his mail. Students are required to have keys to open their mailboxes, but Bubba usually couldn't find his key when his mailbox was full. You would kind of like to stay in a far corner and laugh a little, just watching him bend all the way down to see what was in the bottom row of boxes.

Then he would just walk around the desk, asking, pleading but usually to no avail. Somehow, though, he always managed to get it opened.

Freshman football and basketball player LaMarr Thomas is singing whenever he is in the hall. Anything. Name a song, he will sing it.

But LaMarr, can you carry a tune?

"No, I'm sorry, they are much too heavy."

Football player Kermit Smith leaves his meanness on the field, as he has served rather effectively as a part-time baby sitter for Head Adviser Gary North's child.

Dave Schweinfurth, Dave Thomas and John Lindquist have served MSU faithfully as public relations men as guardians for football recruits who visit MSU.

In order to stay in top physical condition, the athletes have been known to participate in eating contests. Supposedly, Charlie Thornhill set some sort of record by eating 14 pizza burgers at lunch.

The "Big Dog" said the hardest he was hit all year was at the dorm's party for underprivileged Lansing children. Richardson grouped some youngsters together and told them to tackle Thornhill when he threw a football to him. The kids really creamed Charlie.

And the only time George Webster smiled all year was when he was taking movies of the kids mauling Thornhill.

Thornhill had one of his easiest physical assignments of the year when a group of drunks tried to bust up a mixer in the dorm. He gently escorted them out the door and helped them along in the right direction.

In their everyday, reflective moments the athletes can show their many moods.

Tony Conti, even though wearing a trench coat, doesn't look like a gangster while reading the papers.

Gallinagh, the Sunday after the Notre Dame game, was at the Coke machine in the basement, still replaying the game, still wondering what went wrong.

The athletes like to play the living-learning role.

'Dutchman' unforgettable

By JIM YOUSLING
State News Reviewer

The eternal race problem is at once a simple subject to tackle dramatically and a difficult subject to handle originally. Because of the violent emotions immediately available, it may be easily exploited to fashion an electrifying play or novel. But far too often, shock value is mistaken for high drama.

Through the Fifties, mental illness remained a favorite topic for everything from "The Three Faces of Eve" down to "Shock Treatment." Now that we're all dragging ourselves over the theatrical coals of racial prejudice, mental illness is being rapidly replaced as a "controversial but realistic" theme, and a number of films will have to be evaluated. Since I tend to be very wary of shock content, I still don't know quite what to make of "Dutchman," which, like "The Pawnbroker," seems to combine the best with the worst in its handling of a serious topic.

First of all, the play does have valid dramatic roots. LeRoy Jones skillfully probes the psyche of a man who is not only a Negro but has the added disadvantage of having to hide his hatred for the white man under a middle-class facade. The superb dialogue, combined with fine acting, provides the basis for a film that is completely engrossing, impressive, and moving. In other words, "Dutchman" is well worth seeing.

Nevertheless, several elements of the film seem like a cheap substitute for drama. No matter how fascinating Lula may be to watch, as a dramatic character she is only an unpredictable, disorganized bundle of chaos. As much as Jones would like us to believe that Lula has some relevance to race relationships, she can just as easily be written off as insane or totally motivationless. In the first half, she carries off a series of bizarre scenes which are good imitation Edward Albee. Finally she ends up as an excuse for Clay's big speech, which sums up Jones's message. Clay himself symbolized a social problem: Lula is just a fictional nut. It is Lula's lack of intellectual relevance that makes a second element of the film, the ending, rather disturbing. The ending would be fine on a horror film, but here it raises as many questions in my mind as the hand-piercing in "The Pawnbroker." Is this really necessary?

'Dutchman' State Theater

Susan Sontag points out that "in the new post-liberal morality plays, it is essential that virtue be defeated. . . . It is essential dramatically that the white man win. Murder justifies the author's rage, and disarms the white audience." Although the ending is certainly justifiable as an emotional climax, it makes the film flip from realism to allegory to sheer melodrama, leaving the audience stunned by the horrible injustice of it all rather than thinking concretely about Clay's problem.

Yet "Dutchman" overrides much of its sense of confusion and outrage and becomes a film you will never forget—try as you might. As Clay, Al Freeman is flawless. Although Shirley Knight (Lula) generally steals the picture, her part is splashier and, because of its lack of unification, can be interpreted several hundred ways, all of them a joy to watch.

All of the technicals (the subway set, Hy Silverman's direction, John Berry's music, etc.) make the film an example of the ideal adaptation of a play directly into film terms. My complaints, which are directed at Jones's script, are those of a drama or literary critic, not just exclusively filmatic observations.

Although "Dutchman" is intellectually underdeveloped, as just a movie it satisfies both cinematic requirements and emotional needs. It should not be missed.

Romney opposes use of force in Mid-East

NEW YORK — Gov. George Romney said Thursday the United States should stand firm in its policy of opposing the use of force in the Middle East.

"We should utilize the United Nations and diplomatic means to avert aggression in that critical area," he said.

Romney arrived from Detroit to speak before the American Iron and Steel Institute.

Without breaking stride after leaving his plane at Kennedy Airport, he told reporters regarding the Middle East crisis:

"I think we must follow through with our policy of opposing the use of force in the Middle East to change boundaries, interfere with the independence of nations and of international waterways.

"I am hopeful that the grave situation can be handled through diplomatic means. We must make full use of international organizations such as the United Nations for the purpose of reaching agreement and to avert aggression in the Middle East."

HOLIDAY EXODUS EXPECTED

'Faust' tops bleak weekend

While the majority of MSU students take advantage of the five-day Memorial Day weekend by venturing off to greener pastures—like Saugatuck and Indianapolis—there are still a few local events for the amusement of the "stay-at-homes".

The weekend's campus highlight is Saturday night's performance of "Faust", Charles Gounod's operatic classic. The production is being sponsored by the departments of speech and music.

The libretto is based on a German legend of an aging scholar who makes a pact with the Devil, exchanging his soul for his lost youth. Curtain is at 7:30 at the Auditorium.

Wm. Combs honored for 30 years service

William H. Combs, dean of University Services, was honored Thursday night at a retirement dinner in Kellogg Center for his nearly 30 years of service to the University.

Combs, who came to MSU in 1938, became dean in 1956 when the department was organized.

University Services coordinates all the activities of the museum, planetarium, library, Lecture-Concert Series, military science, aerospace studies, and the Land Grant Research Papers. Combs has also served as secretary of faculties since 1959.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Rollin Baker, professor of anthropology and director of the museum. Combs received a gold wristwatch for remembrance and Mrs. Combs received a gold charm bracelet.

7:30 curtain for 'Faust'

There will be an early curtain time, 7:30 p.m., for Saturday's performance of Gounod's opera, "Faust."

Acrylic-Vinyl Copolymer
Artists' Materials

by Michael Curtis
Artist, Lecturer, Instructor, and Demonstrator for the New Masters Fine Arts Division of California Products Corporation, Cambridge, Mass.

This lecture-demonstration on the subject of Polymer Emulsion Colors has been prepared to introduce artists, whether student or professional, to the new and exciting Polymer Emulsion Colors.

Educated at the Society of Arts and Crafts and Wayne State University, Michael Curtis holds a B.S. in Art Education and an M.A. in Fine Arts. He has taught painting and drawing for fourteen years and is well versed in the technical aspects and handling characteristics of artists' materials. Within the past few years he has explored the exciting new polymer materials in depth. Mr. Curtis has lectured and demonstrated widely including appearances on television. He has exhibited in numerous group shows as well as one-man shows at Mount Union College, Ohio, Wayne Galleries and Raven Galleries, Birmingham. He is twice winner of the United Art Teachers Annual. Presently, Mr. Curtis is a member of the Detroit Art Teachers Club and teaches at Mumford High School and Lutheran College in Detroit.

The lecture deals with the history of polymer colors up to the introduction of New Masters Fine Arts Materials. The demonstration compliments the lecture, showing the full range of applications which can be easily achieved using acrylic vinyl colors. Thick impasto, washes, scumbles, and glaze paint passages are demonstrated and explained. Materials and objects other than colors are also applied directly to the surface to show how these new colors lend themselves to spontaneous montage and collage techniques.

Painting surfaces and supports which are best suited, as well as the methods of preparing these surfaces, are described. The choice and care of the palettes, brushes, and painting knives which work best with polymer colors, are discussed.

A question and answer period follows the lecture-demonstration.

STUDENT VISITS LIKELY

Dutch suggest exchange

The Amsterdam Student Association (ASVA) has contacted ASMSU to suggest an exchange of board members and students.

Greg Hopkins, ASMSU chairman, said he will extend a welcome to a delegation from ASVA to discuss procedure technicalities and purposes. ASVA's letter requested a visit to MSU or a delegate from MSU to set up a two-way exchange.

ASVA, which has a regular exchange with Warsaw and Moscow, wrote, "Because during the past year our East-European contacts have been growing, we would like more contacts with non-communist countries."

"As background we should explain that our East European contacts have been made the responsibility of the leftist part of our board. As members of the more moderate section we would like to bring our university-to-university contacts into a better political balance."

At least four ASMSU members said they strongly favor consideration of ASVA's offer. Hopkins; Pete Ellsworth, vice chairman; Harvey Dzodin, junior member-at-large, and Bill Lukens, MHA president, said they hoped a delegation from Amsterdam could come this summer or fall.

Lukens said he'd favor ASMSU's inviting ASVA representatives to MSU for a week or two and then taking them to other campuses or parts of the country if this is what ASVA desires.

"This is more along the line of what student government should be involved in. It's a real opportunity for a cultural exchange that would benefit the student body and the board," Lukens said.

Accompanying ASVA's letter was one from the cultural attaché from the U.S. Embassy in the Netherlands supporting ASVA's exchange program.

The Embassy letter explained that "ASVA is the student government of the largest and most politically active university in the Netherlands. Its board is elected by the entire student body."

The cultural attaché suggested that a small delegation from ASVA visit MSU to work out a program for larger exchanges of students and eventually consider an exchange of scholarships.

Nigeria exchange program extended

Undergraduates interested in studying in an African university can participate in an exchange program between the University of Nigeria and MSU, beginning next fall.

The MSU-University of Nigeria Student Exchange Program (MINEX) has been operating during the summer since 1964. This fall will be the first time that the program has been offered for the entire academic year, September 26 to June 30.

Five students are expected to participate in the first program. They can enroll in agriculture, arts, business administration, education, engineering, law, science, or social studies at the University of Nigeria.

MSU students who attend the University of Nigeria will live in one of the ten residence halls with Nigerian students.

Credits from the program are transferable to MSU, although the program officials recommend that students consult their academic advisers to ascertain that credits will apply toward the student's degree.

MSU has about 35 full-time advisers on the University of Nigeria staff, and sends a number of advisers each year on a short-term basis. The Nigerian university has a student enrollment of 3,099 and a faculty of 448.

Approximate costs for the program are $1,350 for housing, tuition, meals and transportation, plus $350, estimated for clothing, supplies, and travel within Nigeria.

Students wishing specific information should contact Keith B. Odle, MINEX coordinator, in 55-A Kellogg Center, at 353-0681.

Non-students may get vote in student clubs

The ASMSU Student Board has proposed that up to 50 per cent of the voting membership of student organizations may be non-students.

Present organization policy allows non-students to hold membership in student organizations but denies them a vote in the organization.

The original proposal brought before the board was a part of the United Students Bill of Rights. It would have allowed non-students to hold offices in student organizations.

Another amendment to the proposal, which was defeated, stated that the student board would be allowed to waive the regulation banning non-students from holding office.

The proposed change now goes to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs for approval.

S. African exile speaks

Nana Mahomo, a political exile from South Africa, will speak on the South African political situation at 3 p.m. today in 204 International Center.

Exiled from South Africa because of his participation in the revolt against the white-supremacist government in early 1960, Mahomo was one of the organizers of the now-banned Pan-Africanist Congress. He has since travelled throughout the world representing this organization.

ALONG GRAND RIVER AVENUE

City opens art show today

East Lansing will go "hippy" this weekend as 97 artists from some 45 Michigan towns display their work during the city's fourth annual Greenwich Village Days today and Saturday.

Located along Grand River Avenue from Abbott Road to Division Street, the exhibits will include works for sale from 9 a.m. until dark.

The event is sponsored jointly by the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce and the Lansing Art Guild. "Last year we had 20,000 attending, and participating artists sold approximately $10,000 worth of art," said Roger E. Jonas, executive director of the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce and general chairman for the event.

Special attractions include live demonstrations by glassblowers, potters, portrait artists, weavers, and ceramic and jewelry makers. Jewelry makers working in front of Green's will make bracelets, necklaces, and earrings to order and beaded creations. Other exhibits include wood-carvings, silhouettes, and laminated and contoured glass.

Entertainment consisting of singers, two folk-rock bands and style shows featuring clothes from Green's Apparel Shop and other merchants will be staged in a blocked-off section of MAC street from Grand River Avenue to Albert Street.

Talent from MSU will include the Scot Highlanders, songs by Vicki Long, East Lansing freshman, and a student karate and judo demonstration.

Nine MSU graduate students will also display 800-1,000 ceramic pieces.

A Michigan Week activity, Greenwich Village days end the week with Friday's Hospitality Day. According to Jonas, the purpose of the event is not to promote business but to promote East Lansing.

"Besides," Jonas added, "today and Saturday represent the slowest days of business for the community."

Jonas said that planning for the event started the day after last year's art fair.

Jonas said the exhibits will be moved inside Grand River Avenue stores if it rains.

Science students study effects of birth control pills on campus

By NATALIE ANDRECJZUK

Implications of "The Pill and the University" have been studied this term by six students as a project for a class on International Issues in Science.

Highlighted by a film produced by the students, the project studied the opinions on birth control pills of University administrators, faculty members, doctors, clergymen and a state legislator.

Approximately 700 students were polled for their opinions on birth control pills. Their tabulated answers are part of the film.

The questionnaire, formulated by the six students, asked: Do you think the legislature should liberalize its policy concerning the pill?

As an unmarried student would you take the pill if it were legally available?

Would your parents approve of free distribution of the pill to unmarried students?

Do you think that the moral code of American society would be adversely affected by liberal distribution of the pill?

Results of the survey are still not completed.

Merritt Sargent, Paris, France, sophomore, one of the six students, commented that some students answered not to the question of whether free distribution of the pill would alter an individual's moral code, but said yes to the question of the pill's altering the moral code of American society.

Some of the people interviewed didn't want to voice any opinion.

Most of the administrators expressed the same view, saying the University can only reflect society's morals.

A Protestant minister and a rabbi commented that premarital sex and the use of the pill are personal issues.

The doctors interviewed presented many complications that could arise from liberal distribution of the pill.

Because the pill is only six years old, not much is known of what the pill may do if taken for over a period of thirty years, Sargent said. If liberal distribution of the pill were available, venereal disease would possibly become even a greater problem.

According to Olin Health Center statistics, the pregnancy rate of unmarried coeds is 3.3 per cent, which is about one illegitimate pregnancy a day at MSU.

Wisconsin ends ban on color-treated oleo

MADISON, Wis. (AP) -- Gov. Warren P. Knowles wrote his name in yellow ink Wednesday as he signed the bill wiping out butter's last ban against colored oleomargarine.

Eight women in yellow dresses, among them the governor's wife, looked over Knowles' shoulder as he signed the end to an era of 72 years of bootlegging by the housewives of Wisconsin.

"This is a milestone in Wisconsin history," said Knowles.

Wisconsin's 1895 ban was the last one in the nation. The new law will allow the sale of colored oleo starting July 1 with a tax of 5 1/4 cents per pound attached.

As soon as the signing was over, Mrs. Knowles exchanged a cookie recipe with the other women. The first ingredient listed was "1/2 cup oleo."

For years women have smuggled colored oleo by the case into Wisconsin. "Now we won't have to go to Illinois," smiled a housewife in a Madison supermarket.

Scott tells story of novel's ABCs

An MSU professor who calls himself "Michigan's unsuccessful novelist" said Wednesday that writers should try to write only what they can do.

"The thing I think I can do is tell a story," said Virgil Scott, author of four novels, including the best seller "Hickory Stick," at a meeting of the Undergraduate English Club.

Scott said that he tells a story and creates his characters, showing his theme through their interaction.

"Don't try to control your characters. Let them control you," he advised.

Scott said that he doesn't use an outline, but has a general story in mind and makes it up as he goes along. "Start the novel," he said, "and then find out what you need to know and do your research."

"There's an awful lot of digging, reading, and knowing how to use the library involved, and it's easier if you know what you're looking for," he said.

Scott said he likes historical novels, for the story is there and he just develops the characters. But in doing research, he said, the hardest part is to discover the minor social customs that were never written about.

His purpose in writing is psychological, he said, like a photographer who wants to develop a brilliant picture. Creative satisfaction overshadows all the frustration, Scott stated.

Scott said that he revises as he goes along, rather than when he has finished writing. He said it is tedious, but he knows that sometime it's going to come out right.

After a manuscript is finished, it goes to an agent, who sends it to a publisher where 8 to 15 editors will read it and vote on whether they'll publish it.

They also suggest that it should be cut down, he said, often as much as 80 per cent. "I deliberately make my novels wordy, so I can cut and still retain my original story," stated Scott.

When the cutting and revising are completed, the economic arrangements are made and the manuscript goes to a printer, he said.

Scott said he began writing in 1945 while at the University of Minnesota. After attempting to teach a writing course where 12 of the students had published and he hadn't, Scott said he had to "do" as well as teach.

Bell tolls for Music Practice Bldg.

By LINDA BEDNAR
State News Staff Writer

The Music Practice Building is showing its age. The paint is peeling, there are holes in the walls and mortar can be kicked from the stone foundations.

It has stood for 81 years, and this summer it is coming down to make way for a new, $1.3 million high-rise practice building.

But now several dozen music students, graduate students, teachers and pianos must find rooms until the new building is completed in November, 1968.

James Niblock, chairman of the music dept., says, "We'll even take tents if they're heated," but the question will not be decided until the Board of Trustees approves construction and demolition bids June 15.

The old building cost $15,000, or $1 per square foot, when it was completed in the fall of 1888. It became the fourth dormitory on the Michigan Agricultural College campus.

Little Abbot Hall, named after former M.A.C. President Theophilus C. Abbot, was built smaller than Wells and Williams Halls, which were also men's dormitories, to prevent the castrating which took place among the larger groups of men.

The three dorms are not the ones currently bearing those names. Old Wells Hall burned and the second Wells was demolished last year. Old Williams Hall also burned.

"Abbey" remained a men's dorm until 1896, when a women's course in home economics was initiated. Abbot's men had to make way for the women and find rooms in Wells, Williams, or Lansing.

Women had been admitted to M.A.C. on the average of six a year since 1870, but had to take either the agricultural course or a few courses in their field of interest.

A women's course was required by an 1861 law, and the State Board of Agriculture had been asking for a building since 1871. But with so few rooms for women, enrollment would be too small to justify outlays for sewing and cooking equipment.

Finally, by 1896, a car line from Lansing and a subdivision called Collegeville had sprung up, and it was decided that men could very well take rooms off campus.

"Abbey" in 1896 had rooms for 40 women, a sewing room and a cooking laboratory. Within a year or two, enrollment in the women's Home economics classes used to be held in the old Abbot Hall, which is now the old music practice building.

course had grown so much that it spilled over into newly-built Morrill Hall, known officially as the Women's Building, and among students as "The Coop."

By the 1940's, Abbot had become a practice building, and a new men's dorm had taken its name. A new music building had taken the place of the armory and bath house which stood by Old Abbot, but student and alumni sentiment saved "Abbey."

The new building, designed by Ralph Calder Associates, will have a basement and five stories and will contain 90 practice rooms with locker space, 40 office studios, three classrooms, one lecture room, and a music psychology laboratory.

Don't laugh at Charles Van der Hoff's big ears. He can hear a party a mile away, thanks to Sprite.

VAN DER HOFF
WITH SPRITE

Social-life majors, take a look at Charles Van der Hoff. He can't play the guitar. Never directed an underground movie. And then look at his ears! A bit much? Yes! But - Charles Van der Hoff can hear a bottle of tart, tingling Sprite being opened in the girls' dormitory from across the campus!

What does it matter, you say? Hah! Do you realize that Charles Van der Hoff has never missed a party in four years? When he hears those bottles of Sprite being uncapped--the roars--the fizzes--the bubbles--he runs! So before you can say anti-existentialism, he's getting in on that tart, tingling, slightly tickling taste of Sprite. And delicious refreshment --as well as a good time--is his.

Of course, you don't have to have ears as big as Charles Van der Hoff's to enjoy the swinging taste of Sprite. You may just have to resign yourself to a little less social life.

SPRITE, SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

No end foreseen in Red power rift

CHICAGO — A newsman who spent three weeks in Communist China drew the conclusion that a reconciliation of the Soviet Union and Red China is unthinkable under the present leadership of both countries.

Simon Malley, United Nations correspondent for the French language Jeune Afrique and other African newspapers, said he was impressed most by top Communist Chinese officials' spending more time criticizing and denouncing present Soviet policies than those of the United States.

Malley described his impressions of Communist China in the last of a series of copyrighted stories in the Chicago Daily News. China has officially denied that Malley interviewed Mao Tse-tung, Communist party chairman, and other high Chinese officials, as he reported.

The correspondent said he concluded that the Chinese want to prove to world opinion, particularly to Asia, Africa and Latin America, "that the USSR is no longer the revolutionary homeland which for so many years has been the pole of attraction for revolutionaries throughout the world."

"They are intent on proving the USSR has aligned itself with the interests of the developing nations of the world and that China is the only big power that remains true to its revolutionary ideology," Malley wrote.

He said this objective of Communist China is extremely important to the Chinese leaders and shows signs of succeeding.

Malley said he found during a three-month tour of Africa, the Middle East and Asia, prior to his visit to Red China in March and April, that the Chinese were succeeding in undermining the Soviet Union's image as the fountainhead of socialist revolution.

AT KELLOGG

Stick-up in reverse

"Stick 'em up," said the desk clerk. "Hand 'em over."

Police officers were powerless, so they parted with their weapons.

But that's general procedure for police officers attending the 13th annual National Institute on Police and Community Relations being held this week at Kellogg Center.

All officers are advised to check their revolvers at the front desk. It's a courtesy and safeguard procedure.

Police behavior due to faulty guidelines

Police misconduct results from the uncertain role in which police operate, a Columbia law professor said Thursday.

Speaking at the 13th annual National Institute on Police and Community Relations, Monrad G. Paulsen said that the major source of tension contributing to police misconduct is the lack of guideline in their dealing with the public.

The ombudsman as the arbitrator of police and community relations. The ombudsman would be like an inspector general, a person outside the administration who seeks improvement within the structure.

4 car mishap

A four-car chain collision at Harrison Road and Kalamazoo Street Wednesday night sent one man to Sparrow Hospital and demolished his car.

East Lansing police said John J. Barranger, 30, 315 N. Harrison, was attempting to complete a left turn onto Kalamazoo Street when the accident occurred. Going straight on Kalamazoo Street, a car driven by Michael M. Montgomery, 18, 2739 Dell Ridge, Holt, collided with Barranger's car.

War budget may be low estimation

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Appropriations Committee members predicted Thursday that the cost of the war in Vietnam for fiscal 1968 may be several billion dollars more than the $22 billion estimated by the administration.

A subcommittee recently completed hearings on the Defense Dept. money bill for the year starting July 1. Its recommendations will go to the full committee early next month.

While the administration has not changed its original estimate of $22 billion, a committee member said, "there have been hints that it may go two or three billion above that."

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, has said the administration's figure may be $5 billion to $6 billion too low, but an aide said it is too early to arrive at any definite figure.

Another member said the war cost in 1968 "might be about $25 billion, although no one can predict now with certainty."

Exchange students lessen Cold War

The single element which has lessened the Cold War is the educational trade between Russia and the United States, a U.S. State Dept. official told a Justin Morrill College audience here Wednesday.

William D. Morgan spoke to students who had studied in Moscow last summer, and those who will be going to Leningrad to study this summer.

Since 1956, hundreds of American students have been going to Russia to study, while only a handful of Russian students have been allowed to come here, Morgan said. The Russians feel their students might become accustomed to "bourgeois ideology" and will begin to question their own.

"The State Department's main objective in sending students is to open up Russian society," Morgan said. "If the Russians see Americans on the street and meet them informally, they will see for themselves that all Americans don't have horns in their heads."

The best way to accomplish this, said Morgan, is for students to be themselves. Questions asked by the Russians concerning life in America should be answered honestly and to the best of their abilities. Students who come to Russia knowing the language have a better chance of perceiving the realities of the country than American tourists who are put on a more rigid basis—planned tours and designated hotels—having no opportunity to see the real Russian country.

All Americans, however, are assumed to be spies and Morgan warned the American students not to do anything that could be blown up into a scandalous affair by Russia's Department of Agitation and Propaganda.

He said such things as exchanging American money, selling clothes, insulting the Soviet Union or bringing anti-Soviet material into the country are forbidden.

Vietnam deaths

(continued from page one) the current weekly rate continues about 40 per cent more combat deaths will be logged in 1967 than during the first six years of the war that began with a small U.S. advisory effort in 1960.

The largest number of the week's casualties came in the bloody fighting in and near the demilitarized zone cutting across the center of Vietnam. But U.S. forces also were hit hard in the central highlands, where the Americans fear a big Communist drive may be shaping up.

The previous record for Americans killed in a single week was 274 during the periods ending March 25 and May 6. The previous record loss in killed and wounded was the week of May 6 when 1,748 were wounded for a total of 2,022 casualties.

There were 18 U.S. deaths not associated with battles last week, bringing the total of non-hostile deaths to 2,058.

South Vietnam reported 241 of its troops were killed last week. It does not give the number of wounded. Other allies, mainly South Koreans, reported 50 dead.

In the air war, U.S. planes were reported out in strength over North Vietnam Thursday. Hanoi radio asserted four planes were shot down, two over the port of Haiphong.

The U.S. Command reported that the last Marines from a 10,000-man American and South Vietnamese force that swept into the demilitarized zone last Thursday had pulled out, but this report appeared to be premature.
