Governors air Vietnam views

NYT News - George Deukmejian said today that President Carter was "overreacting to public pressure" and that the United States should avoid going to war in Vietnam.

The California governor declared that the United States had "already won" the war in Vietnam.

Deukmejian's view was echoed by Governor Reuben HY. Hoey of California. "We've won the war in Vietnam," Hoey said.

The governors also criticized the United States for its "overreaction" to the Vietnam conflict.

"We have to be careful not to get involved in another war," said Governor Hoey.

What to do about married housing? For too long the problem of married housing at Michigan State has been effectively ignored. The present system of housing has been inadequate for too long and it is becoming more and more difficult for university students to find adequate housing in the area. As an editor of The Michigan State News, I have learned that married housing problems are not isolated but rather are part of a larger problem of student living conditions. The student body has been expressing a growing dissatisfaction with the current housing situation and it is time that something is done to improve the situation.

The university has encountered a number of problems in dealing with married housing. One of the major problems is the lack of available housing. There are not enough units to meet the demand, and this leads to overcrowding and a lack of privacy. Another problem is the cost of housing. Many students cannot afford to pay the high rates charged for housing, and this leads to financial stress and a strain on the university's budget. A third problem is the quality of the housing. The university has been criticized for the poor condition of some of its housing units, and this has led to a loss of prestige for the university.

In order to address these problems, the university must take several steps. First, it must increase the number of units available for married students. This can be done by expanding the existing housing facilities, or by developing new facilities. Second, the university must work to reduce the cost of housing. This can be done by finding ways to reduce construction costs or by negotiating lower rent rates with housing providers. Finally, the university must improve the quality of its housing units. This can be done by investing in repairs and maintenance, or by developing new housing standards.

The university must take these steps in order to meet the needs of its students. The current housing situation is not acceptable and it is time that the university takes action to improve it. The students of Michigan State deserve better and they must be given the opportunity to have access to adequate housing.

To the Editor:

When I signed up for ROTC classes last year, I remember thinking how cool it would be to be a national leader. Now that I look back at my ROTC classes, I realize how much I was wrong. Being in ROTC classes is a huge waste of my time.

First of all, the classes are boring. The instructors spend hours talking about military history and tactics, but there is no real application. It's like they are trying to brainwash us into becoming army officers.

Second, the classes are expensive. The textbooks and uniforms are incredibly expensive, and they are not worth the investment.

Third, the classes are demanding. The instructors expect us to be in perfect physical condition, and they are constantly pushing us to our limits.

Finally, the classes are risky. There is always a possibility of injury or even death, and the instructors are not doing enough to prevent accidents.

In conclusion, ROTC classes are a complete waste of time and money. I would advise anyone considering ROTC to think twice before signing up.

Attorney files to quash jury

ROBERT DUNNINGS, attorney for the last five Lansing residents who are arraigned at the East Lansing City Court, led the case against Robert Laing's motion for a change of venue.

"The East Lansing court has data in the case, but it can't decide the issue. We want to see evidence that the evidence is insufficient," Dunnings said.

The defense of Laing's attorney Robert Laing, 43, said there was evidence to support the motion.

Networks feature drama specials

Television is a strong sale this week, especially for shows dealing with drama. Stark reality is mandatory this week, as the networks look to the contract situation in the film industry to create a strong lineup of dramatic specials. Michigan State University is one of the few institutions that is still supporting the film industry with their film and television programs.

The lastest special of the week is a new special called "The Last Man on Earth," which is set to air on NBC. The special features a man who has been stranded on a deserted island for years and must find a way to survive. The show has been described as a "hardy perennial" and is expected to do well in the ratings.

GRADUATE APPLICATIONS

Deadline line fast approaching

By Phyllis Zimbler
State News Staff Writer

Graduate study is becoming a popular excursion, according to John R. Wilson, director of enrollment services. "With the increasing need for more highly trained personnel, more and more people are getting interested in graduate work."

Wilson explained, "Graduate schools are the places where application procedures are usually more arduous than at any other time." The period from September 15 to December 15 is generally the time when application procedures are subjected to maximum scrutiny. According to a junior, Missoula College at this meeting, western states will not consider all the schools of which we have applied.

The University of Washington at Seattle is one of the few institutions that will consider applications after December 15.

Applications for graduate work in the School of Business Administration at the University of Washington are accepted until January 1.

Debaters win Tournament

The MSU Debate team took top honors in the University of Kentucky's Intercollegiate Debate Tournament last week. Winning the first place trophy with a 7 to 1 win over the winning team from the University of Illinois, and Roger Clark, junior social science major from Lansing in the Kentucky tournament, featuring competition among twenty of the top debate teams in the nation, brought additional prestige to the Michigan debate team, drawn from the University of Detroit, the University of Michigan, and the University of Illinois.

"We'll be here on your own in graduate school that you were an unknown," the author, "but you'll be more familiar in your career. There will be no one checking on you anymore in the future."

COMMUNITY CHEST

$158,000 fund quota set

"Fully and nearly driven in," community Chest chairman Jack Finger said last Thursday, "the actual number of American Bank and Trust Company leaders who are actively directing this annual project has reached the halfway mark. We have already received 13,750 marks since the fund drive began. This is a remarkable rate of progress, considering that we've received a little over 1500 marks per day during the past three weeks. We are on target for the 50,000 mark goal which will be reached in the next three weeks, at the end of the month.

The Community Chest drive is in full swing and we are confident that our goal will be exceeded. We have received contributions from all over the region, and the response has been enthusiastic. We are grateful to everyone who has contributed so far, and we urge everyone to continue to support the drive.

We are especially grateful to our local business community for their support. We received a number of large contributions this week, which will help us reach our goal. We are also grateful to our local government officials for their support.

The Community Chest is a vital organization that provides social services to the community. We urge everyone to support this drive and make a contribution to the Community Chest.

Please give generously and support the Community Chest.

Placement Bureau

The National Placement Bureau at Michigan State University and Wayne State University recently announced the establishment of a new Placement Bureau at the University of Michigan. The bureau will offer a wide range of services to students, including career planning, job search assistance, and career counseling.

The bureau will be staffed by experienced professionals who will work closely with students to help them identify their career goals and develop a plan for achieving those goals. The bureau will also offer workshops and seminars on career planning and job search strategies.

The bureau will be supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation, and it is expected to begin operations in the fall of this year.

The bureau will be located in the Student Services Center on the campus of the University of Michigan. For further information, please contact John Smith, the director of the bureau, at 123-4567.

Crop science gives course in care of turf

The Department of Crop Science is offering a new course in turf care this fall. The course, titled "Care of Turf," will cover the principles of turf care and the management of turf grasses. The course will be taught by Dr. John Smith, a professor in the Department of Crop Science.

The course will cover the biology of turf grasses, including their growth habits, nutrient requirements, and disease problems. Students will also learn about the management of turf grasses, including irrigation, fertilization, and mowing.

The course will be offered on a credit/no credit basis, and students will be required to complete a final exam. The course will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2:00 to 3:30 p.m. in room 123.

The course is open to all students, and it is expected to fill quickly. Students are encouraged to register early.

There's Still Time

The Greek Weekend is this weekend, and there are still opportunities to get involved. The Greek organizations are hosting a series of events, including a welcome reception, a Greek weekend dance, and a Greek weekend breakfast.

The welcome reception will be held on Friday evening, and it is expected to draw a large crowd. The Greek weekend dance will be held on Saturday evening, and it is expected to be a fun and lively event. The Greek weekend breakfast will be held on Sunday morning, and it is expected to be a great way to start the day.

Students are encouraged to participate in the Greek Weekend events, and they are also encouraged to join the Greek organizations.

American in Ruins

The American in Ruins is a play that is currently playing at the State Theatre. The play is a satirical look at the American way of life, and it is expected to be a hit with audiences.

The play is set in a small town in the 1950s, and it follows the lives of several characters as they struggle to make ends meet. The play is written by Samuel Beckett and directed by John Smith, and it features a cast of accomplished actors.

The play is receiving excellent reviews, and it is expected to run for several weeks. Students are encouraged to see the play and experience the American in Ruins.
