THE BRIEF CASE OF Wm. JAMES HAY

Denver - 4:05 p.m. - January 12, 1962 (L.F.) They finally caught up with Wm. James Hay alias "The Case" today. Four months of running were over and Hay lay dead in a gully along side of U.S. 72 just outside of Denver. A truck driver changing a flat tire spotted his body and called the police.

Hay's plight began early in September, when he and four other escapes from Ludington Prison robbed a bank in Helena, Montana. Hay kept the cash when the gang split up. They were to meet in Santa Fe, New Mexico six days later. The three other members showed up at the motel only to find Federal Agents waiting. They had been tipped off by an anonymous phone call. A gun battle ensued and one managed to escape. The other two died of gun wounds late that night.

The one that got away, Jose Malach, was arrested early this morning in a bar 22 miles from the site where Hay's body was found. At 10:05 he confessed to the murder of Hay.

He told of his long search for revenge. He followed rumors of Hay from city to city, state to state. Chicago, Springfield, Tulsa, El Paso, Houston, New Orleans, Jackson, San Antonio, Dallas, Austin... then all of a sudden he stumbled on a real lead.

A story in a St. Louis newspaper telling of a man running for a plane in a heavy rain at the St. Louis airport and his briefcase falling open and thousands of dollars blowing all over the runway. The man got away, but police from descriptions obtained from people at the airport believed it to be Hay.

Malach flew to St. Louis, there, underwood confidants told him of Hay coming to them for help. Realizing that he was too "hot" (and since he was now broke) they had rejected him. However, they knew that he wanted to get to Denver, where he claimed a friend would hide him. Malach knew the fete - he was -- Jack Smith, Hay's old partner in a numbers racket. Malach flew to Denver and for two days stalked Smith's farmhouse near Denver. After Smith left for work on the third day, Malach entered the house, gun in hand... and ended the briefcase of Wm. James Hay, the victim of a defective briefcase.

Don't let yourself get caught in this type of situation. Defective briefcases can be the source of both embarrassment and aggravation. You don't want to hand in a wet, soggy term paper after walking through a MSU snowstorm or have your briefcase fill up with your papers blow all over Farm Lane, while running for the Free-Brady bus. Mr. Book Store, conveniently located in the Center for International Programs, carries a wide line of briefcases designed to fit every person's needs. All brief cases are water resistant and have special safety catches to prevent untimely openings. Cases come in either conventional or modern design with plastic or leather outside covering. They're priced to fit your budget... from $6.95 to $29.95.

ANYTIME YOU'RE INTERESTED IN A "BRIEF CASE" STOP IN AT...
The OCC survey first step towards helping students

Off-Campus Council with its survey of student needs last week has taken the first step toward remedying the plight of its constituents.

The OCC Communications Committee, in distributing the survey, began what they hope is the most basic work, that of increasing awareness and involvement among its diffuse constituents.

In spite of a rather disappointing response (only 189 questionnaires were returned) the survey seems to indicate that most off-campus students are concerned with their lack of power in dealing with landlords and merchants.

This lack of power stems from their status as second-class citizens. Without organization, they are as susceptible as miners in the company towns of pre-union days.

Many students living off campus are unaware that there is a body in student government which represents them in these affairs. Even those who are aware, are aware that such an organization would be of equal benefit to them.

Generally, the off-campus student faces such problems as exploitative leases and high prices alone, or at best in company with his roommates. Joined with his fellows in a strong OCC, solutions to these problems, like a non-profit realty corporation, or a community buying plan become feasible.

OCC is taking steps to establish a strong representative system with a block and apartment building having a committeeman, to whom problems can be referred, and who will inform the people he represents of matters of interest to them.

Students, most often unaware of all the financial and legal aspects of renting an apartment, many times, sign leases without realizing exactly what they are getting into. But ignorance of students should be no excuse for the unfair advantage landlords take of them.

Only by participating and strengthening OCC will off-campus students find the way to make their presence felt.

It will take a strong and highly representative organization to cure the problems of the off-campus student, a student who cannot stop once and for all for the problem of second-class citizenship.

ROTC: the question revisited

To the Editor:

I am appalled by the lack of professional and moral fiber of those who head the ROTC at the University of California. Committee members have been questioned concerning the true status of the ROTC program at the University.

The program of the ROTC cadets is of vital importance to the moral and religious fiber of the student body, and I feel it is the duty of any moral person to protest against such an organization.

I feel that the University should immediately remove the ROTC program and replace it with a better one.

LETTER

AOC needs a leader

Mr. President:

I am writing to express my concern regarding the management of the American Open College (AOC). The current president, Mr. Johnson, has not been able to provide the leadership needed to maintain the college’s success and reputation.

I believe that a new leader is needed to guide AOC into the future. AOC has a rich history of providing quality education to its students, and it is crucial that this institution continues to thrive.

Please consider appointing a new president who has the vision and experience necessary to lead AOC into the next chapter.

--Sincerely,

The simple life

When you are feeling a little depressed about the world or are suffering from the malaise of urban life, take a walk on a city street. You will then feel that the world is not so bad after all. In fact, you will feel that the world is a wonderful place.

This is not because the people on the city street are particularly friendly or helpful. It is because the city street is a place where you can see things as they really are.

You can see the people as they really are, without the mask of civilization. You can see the trees as they really are, without the mask of civilization. You can see the buildings as they really are, without the mask of civilization.

This is not to say that the city street is not a place where you can be depressed. It is a place where you can be depressed. But it is a place where you can also be happy.

And that is the simple life.

Dirksen proposes tax compromise
WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans and House Democrats, divided by a proposal for a balanced federal budget and a bill to raise income tax deductions, have made a last-minute agreement that he said had medicine. Their compromise, the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee, which approved it in the Senate, is expected to be put into effect before the end of the month.

In a meeting Wednesday, the two groups agreed on a plan that would allow the House to raise the deficit ceiling to $44 billion over the next five years and the Senate to raise it to $48 billion.

The House-passed version of the budget, however, would allow the deficit to rise to $58 billion in fiscal year 1980 and $62 billion in fiscal year 1981.

The Senate-passed version of the budget, on the other hand, would allow the deficit to rise to $44 billion in fiscal year 1980 and $48 billion in fiscal year 1981.

To get to know other nations, geopolitics say

Fiscal and specifically geopolitical decisions have been made both in the United States and other countries over the past few years. If you're interested in understanding the power of nation-states, this month's special will be devoted to that subject.

In the first part of the show, the United States and Europe will be discussed. The second part will focus on the Middle East and Asia, with a particular emphasis on China. The third part will be devoted to the Soviet Union and its neighbors.

The show will be presented on a Thursday evening at 8 p.m. in the usual location.

MSU PROJECT

Rural vocational training studied

MSU is currently sponsoring a research project in a rural area. Researchers want to know how rural youth are doing, and what kind of education they need to be prepared for their future. The project is studying how different types of training can improve youth's employability.

Mid-East

For a holiday, a stocking of surprises

"For a holiday, a stocking of surprises," not a bad idea," said a young man in the Mid-East. "For a holiday, a stocking of surprises is a good idea for any occasion, whether it's a birthday or a Christmas," he said.

Library hours

"From 1961 to 1962," the librarian said, "the library was open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, and from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on weekends. In recent years, the library has expanded its hours to include evenings and beyond."
