President Hughman and an internal committee have rejected the possibility of including the operations of the state university in its financial and administrative structures.

The purpose of the study was to see what reforms should be made in the state's financial and administrative structures. The report states that the operations of the state university should be separated from those of the state government, and that the state university should be funded by the state government.

The report notes that the state university is the largest institution of higher education in the state, and that it should have a separate budget and financial structure. The report also notes that the state university has a significant role in the state's economy, and that it should be able to function independently.

The report recommends that the state university be given a separate budget and financial structure, and that it be funded by the state government. The report also recommends that the state university be given more autonomy in its operations, and that it be allowed to make decisions about its own affairs.

Provincial legislature hurts state and MSU

The new admissions policy for out-of-state students announced by the University last week is indicative of the harm that has come in many ways from the legislature’s appropriations bill passed last June.

Aside from granting inadequate funds which forced a general tuition hike, the legislature particularly specified that out-of-state students pay 25 percent of their educational costs. Furthermore, the bill set aside only 10 percent of out-of-state enrollment, and said that no state institution could ascend or maintain out-of-state students in future years than it did this year.

While the board of trustees is now challenging these limiting riders to the appropriations bill as unconstitutional interference with the conduct of the University, much of the damage has already been done. The admissions office has been forced to raise nonresident standards to an exceedingly high level, and curtailed the period in which out-of-state students may apply.

Simultaneously, the number of non-resident students falls far below the University’s estimations, apparently because of the continued increase in fees which have simply become too high.

Certainly, the first responsibility of MSU, in the finest land grand tradition, is to serve the home people and the state of Michigan. But such provincial policies as the legislature in no doubt wants to fund its state universities can only detract from the greatness of the University, and consequently, from its value to the state.

The legislators’ actions deserve a long second look, both by the courts, and by the public at large.

McCarthy candidacy for real

McCarthy candidacy was again in the air last Thursday when Governor William G. Milliken, in his own words, gave his official blessing to the many anti-McCarthy groups that have been springing up to challenge the opposition in the Michigan gubernatorial primary.

Any opponent of McCarthy must be realistic if he is to face Senator McCarthy as the candidate of the political party that bears his name. The revelation that the humblest of McCarthy campaign workers are being given their share of credit and that the administration of the National Republican Party is working for the McCarthy candidate is an indication of the fact that McCarthy has emerged as a potential national political force.

A McCarthy campaign in Michigan would be, in the final analysis, a campaign to dislodge the National Democratic Party from its control of the state. The National Republican Party in Michigan has been able to direct statewide political campaigns for years, and the efforts of the National Republican Party in Michigan in recent years have been aimed specifically at the McCarthy candidacy.

In the final analysis, McCarthy is the candidate of the National Republican Party in Michigan. The National Republican Party is a political party organized to perpetuate itself in Michigan, and it is the only political party that can offer a serious challenge to the incumbent Democratic Party in Michigan.

The McCarthy candidacy is not a campaign for the governorship of Michigan, but it is a campaign for the control of the Michigan Democratic Party. The McCarthy candidacy is not a campaign for the governorship of Michigan, but it is a campaign for the control of the Michigan Democratic Party. The McCarthy candidacy is not a campaign for the governorship of Michigan, but it is a campaign for the control of the Michigan Democratic Party.

Spartan baseball coach Art Johnsen's Michigan-Michigan State game may prove to be the American Legion game of the year.

The two teams, both in the running for the state championship, have been playing each other all season. This game, which the Spartans are expected to win, will determine the winner of the state title.

Michigan has not been in the running for the state championship until this week. The team was expected to make a strong bid for the title, but a loss to Michigan State in the third game of the series put the team in a difficult position.

Michigan State, on the other hand, has been a consistent player all season and is expected to win the state championship. The team has won the state championship in each of the last three years.

The game will be played on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Michigan State's home field. The winner will advance to the state championship series, which is scheduled to begin next week.
It was snowing, but not in Dallas.

The weather at MSU was anything but winter-like as the team prepared to take on the University of California at Los Angeles. The snow was falling gently, creating a picturesque backdrop for the task at hand.

But the best performance of the day was that of the MSU football team, which emerged victorious in the first game of the season.

As the game progressed, the team showed a newfound sense of confidence and dedication, with players pushing themselves to their limits.

The victory was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the team, and a reminder of what they are capable of when they put their minds to it.

The atmosphere at the stadium was electric, with fans cheering loudly and waving flags in support of the team. The energy was infectious, and the players fed off of it, pushing themselves to perform at their best.

The victory was a huge boost for the team, and a welcome sign that good things are to come in the future.

The team celebrated their victory with confetti and champagne, and the atmosphere in the locker room was one of joy and relief.

As the players gathered to congratulate each other, it was clear that they had all given their all, and that the result was a testament to their hard work and dedication.

The MSU football team is off to a great start, and with the momentum they have gained, they are sure to have a fantastic season.

"President Harlan bought the first copy of the University's newspaper, the Daily, when he took the direction of the school in 1966. He has been a vocal supporter of the University and its various initiatives.

"In my opinion, the University newspaper has done an excellent job of covering the issues and events that matter to our community. I believe that it should continue to be funded by the state and supported by reader subscriptions."
