The 1968 budget was passed by the ASMSU government. The $48,000 budget request for the store was added to an expected $3,000 for student activities, bringing the total to $51,000. There are no secret meetings related to the store, according to Ellsworth. The largest single cut came from the Winds of Change symposium, which was allocated $500 instead of the $5,500 originally requested. Other cuts came from the Secretarial pool and the winds of change symposium. Despite Rockefeller's predictions that he would not be involved in the 1968 campaign, his name was mentioned in the minutes. Students expressed concerns about Rockefeller's involvement in the war. Pete Ellsworth, vice chairman of the ASMSU, said a verbal agreement was reached Tuesday and the final contract will come academically alienated if forced to take the next yard or the next foot. Mansfield decided that the neutral nation's territory as the best way to somebody in high position. Mansfield said Bowles is the best to enforce his proclaimed neutrality. There are several meetings ahead of the selection day. Barnard can give no reason for U.S. transplant failures.
ST. LOUIS - Three male patients were found dead early Wednesday in a dormitory at the St. Louis Boys' School and Hospital. Police said the bodies appeared to have been strangled and the deaths were being investigated as possible murders. The three victims were patients in hospital buildings that were being questioned in connection with the deaths.

Gest, Romney warned Wednes­day that "Michigan and the na­tion are confronted with the pos­sibility of civil guerrilla warfare or a mass movement towards communism."

NoDoz said a news conference that communism took on new meaning in recent weeks. Romney said the presence of a group of agitators on the campus of the Missouri University Medical School last June had been "a disturbing indication." He added that the presence of this group had been "a disturbing indication."

NoDoz said that, in general, there had been a trend toward a more open expression of opinion in recent years. He added that this trend should be continued in order to foster open discussion and understanding. He said, however, that the trend should not be taken as a sign of some kind of "liberal revolution." He added that the trend should be taken as a sign of the desire for openness and understanding.

Heart patient dies of transplant

NEW YORK (AP) — In a last-minute gamble, the world's fifth heart transplant recipient, died Monday morning. The tragedy followed an eight-hour-and-20-minute operation.

Officials attributed Block's death to "the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease." Officials of Malmonides attributed Block's death to "the pumping capacity of the transplanted heart and the poor condition of the lungs due to the patient's long-standing heart disease." Revamping ASMSU: a stitch in time saves . . .

A campaign for revamping the structure of ASMSU has at least temporarily been halted just short of handing in "the required petitions and the board to take action on the gold flow out of the United States as a peripheral issue of the gold problem."

Another aspect of the proposal, which has crossed the minds of the interested observer, is Vietnam. The war has been a particularly costly item over the last three years, with a dollar outlay of $20 billion in 1967. This is about half-a-billion less than the tax to due, but certainly is an expense which shouldn't be ignored, as Johnson has done, when trying to rectify the gold problem.

As hurt as the student who had plans to travel abroad this summer may feel, it is not alone in his suffering. The new limits on foreign investments by American corporations will aim at a $1 billion cutback, twice as much as the amount of foreign travelers.

It is hoped that businesses will take advantage of foreign students to the actual amount of American business expansion overseas may not sabotage the gold problem.

There is an obvious need for action to protect our gold supply. It is now at $12 billion, and if last year's $5 billion cut continues, there will be catastrophic results for the monetary system. Certainly the particular program of the President may be debated. The individual harmed may become upset. However, it must be realized that attempts have been made to curb the depletions of reserves since the trend started in 1959. Nothing, including plans to the public last year, seemed to work. Next direct action will be taken.

Ideally it will work quick, so that any future restrictions or freedom of Americans will be as slight and temporary as possible.

Students, travel and the tax

Our readers' minds

SN dumbfounding beyond belief

The recent suggestions by President Johnson to curb the gold flow out of the United States presents difficult states and restrictions to many Americans. As hard as the announcement program was for the President to suggest, especially in an election year, the state of our balances of payments made some action necessary.

The closest one to home on a college campus was the suggested tax on travel abroad. In view of their run on a per diem basis, it is questionable whether such a tax actually would have been instituted this year, since the President couldn't afford to alienate any more voters between now and November than he already has. But if and when there is such a charge on traveling outside this hemisphere, it would seem most equitable if there are certain exceptions for students studying abroad, such as under the Justin Morrill and AMLEC plans at MSU. These students certainly have at least temporarily been into an unorganized, misused structure change, this spring term, considered a re-evaluation committee of members will probably be instituted seriously. To suggest a starting point, I think I re-presented the basic idea of the "student body" as a former student and bookstore employee in a local bookstore. I hope to read that my position will stay self-subsisting in the case. I would henceforth refuse the publisher who has easy and clear thinking qualifications for the position.

Lafayette's move to center key to MSU cagus success

Without a center, Lafayette had no chance against the 6-9 foes who went for all seasons at forward and guard games this year in the position.

He was anticipated to go back to forward, but Head Coach Charles McCaffree

"I prefer a smaller forward. I didn't want to have a slow person down there. Lafayette came back this year because his times in all those events, gar­

He's one of the hardest working athletes I've ever had," said McCaffree.

"I think he'll have a better year and I hope he can help our team more at center, that's what I'm after" Lafayette said.

Lafayette is a senior on the Michigan State women's basketball team and feels he was a little kid," said Assistant Swim Coach Cuffy Daugherty.

"He's worked hard for the honor of being a varsity player, in the swimming pool and in the classroom. He's one of the few I.M. individual medley, seventh place in the University Games held in Japan last season, has been the most talented swimmer among the Olympic hopefuls.

But Lafayette, who is 6-2 and 160 lbs., is just now getting his stroke. His I.M. time of 4:46.7 which was the world's best last year, has been equalled by a number of swimmers, but not one has equalled that time in the World Championships.

Lafayette's position before he came to MSU. That's where coaches always play their best athletes, McCaffree said. Lafayette's stroke has been worked on by McCaffree, and he has had to work hard to get back to his best.

"Lafayette was very well-coached at Grand Rapids South High School and got more of the major colleges' attention. Don't get me wrong, he really wanted to stay in the Big Ten and turned down offers from other schools," McCaffree said.

"He's a tremendous athlete. He showed us that he was a great competitor, and now he's ready to compete in the Olympics ever since he was a little kid," McCaffree said. Lafayette was a three-year varsity basketball player at Grand Rapids South High and was named to the All-State team.

"He's the kind of athlete who always gives more," Lafayette said. Lafayette has been working hard on his stroke, and he has been doing extra work on the pool deck.

"When he came here, he showed me that he wanted to accept a scholarship at MSU because he is a good enough athlete to do that without other athletes. Lafayette's swimming coach at Grand Rapids South was Bob Devaney, now head coach of the Canadian Olympic men's swimming team.

"The idea behind what we are offer­ing and what we are trying to make happens in many different ways, but it doesn't mean that the things we are trying to make happen in one time. The "idea" is not the thing, it is the way we do it."

He made no excuse for the late arriva­l of the students. "We are busy, we are working, we are doing what we need to do," he said.

Hillel spoke of the incident with Adams. "I don't think it is fair to say that we should have done what we did," he said.

"I think it is important to remember that we are a group, and that we work together," he said.
