From virtuous fools...

WASHINGTON — From virtuous fools, protected by the opposition to the system, there is no honest hope of finding the American public conscious of the issues, no hope of being able to use its power, no hope of changing the political system. The public has been taught to think of itself as powerless, as lacking in knowledge and judgment, as incapable of making decisions, and, consequently, as not worthy of the franchise. The public has been taught to trust its leaders, to accept their decisions, and to believe that they will do what is best for the country.

The public has been taught to believe that the system is rigged against it, that the system is controlled by the powerful, that the system is not responsive to the needs of the people. The public has been taught to think of itself as a passive, helpless mass, without the power to change its circumstances.

The public has been taught to think of itself as a group of individuals, each of whom is powerless, each of whom is not worthy of the franchise, each of whom is not capable of making decisions. The public has been taught to think of itself as a collection of individuals, each of whom is a tiny part of a vast, powerful system, each of whom is not worthy of the franchise, each of whom is not capable of making decisions.

Mississippi State's basketball team is in hopes of registering Old Testament justice when they take on leading scorer and rebounder tonight at Iowa City. The Hawkeyes built a 13-point lead in the first half, but the Bulldogs rebounded to take the second half 47-35, and sailed to victory 85-71.

The Bulldogs are in the championship game of the Big Ten for the second time, and they will face Michigan State in the first round.

The Bulldogs are led by sophomore Pat Wilson, who will be seeking his third Big Ten championship. Wilson, a 6-foot-7, 225-pound guard, was the leading scorer in the Big Ten with 17.6 points per game.

The Bulldogs are also hoping to make a deep run in the NCAA Tournament, and they are currently the No. 4 seed in the West Region.

The Bulldogs' defensive strategy will be key to their success, as they are one of the best defensive teams in the country. They currently rank third in the nation in defensive efficiency, allowing just 66.2 points per game.

On offense, the Bulldogs are led by junior forward Alex McDonald, who is averaging 14.5 points per game. McDonald is also a key rebounder, pulling down 7.2 rebounds per game.

The Bulldogs will face a tough challenge in the first round against Michigan State, who are currently ranked No. 2 in the nation. However, the Bulldogs are confident in their ability to compete with the Spartans, and they are looking forward to the challenge.

The Bulldogs will need to play a strong defensive game and limit the Spartans' scoring opportunities. If they can do that, they have a good chance to pull off the upset and advance to the second round.

New 'U' calendar allows study days

By PHILLIP ZUBLER
News-Michigan Staff Writer

Students who think the two exam days this week are enough for the semester will have to think again. Beginning this fall, the University of Michigan will have more study days before exams.

This is possible because of the action of the Undergraduate Council, which recently decided to allow study
days every three weeks.

The Undergraduate Council,
after voting unanimously to pass the change, met with exam week only since fall term.

"This change is desirable and more study days are needed," Smith said.

The Undergraduate Council's action
was motivated by the desire to have more study days. Smith said.

"The necessity of having more
study days was evident in our meetings
and the counselor's reports," Smith said.

The Undergraduate Council's action
is based on a compromise solution
that provides study days and exam week for the current fall term.

"The Undergraduate Council
modified its action to provide for more study days for the current fall term," Smith said.

The Undergraduate Council's action
also sets the policy for exams.

"The Undergraduate Council's
action is based on a year-round operation of the University," Smith said.

The University calendar is based on a year-round operation of the University.

"The University is based on a study day before the two exam days in the fall term.

"The University calendar
is based on a study day before the three exam days in the spring term.

"The Undergraduate Council's
action is based on the same principle," Smith said.

three exam days in the spring term.
