First meeting of the Coalition of Negro Students Friday to discuss the assassination of Martin Luther King. In addition to the students of the University of Michigan, Negro Students attending the first meeting of the Coalition of Negro Students were also present to present a list of grievances and demands to President Hannah.

Included in the list was the statement that there are enough Negro students at the University to form a Coalition of Negro Students, and President Hannah's role in this matter.

Meanwhile, on another front, the Coalition of Negro Students was meeting with President Hannah to present the list of grievances and demands.

The Coalition of Negro Students is comprised of Negro students from the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, and Wayne State University. The Coalition has been formed to address the issues of discrimination and social injustice.

The Coalition of Negro Students was founded on the principle of unity and solidarity among all students of color. The Coalition seeks to address the widespread discrimination and institutional racism that plague higher education institutions.

The cohort of Negro students at the University of Michigan is comprised of approximately 1,000 students. The Coalition of Negro Students is organized and led by students of color, and includes members from various racial and ethnic backgrounds.

The Coalition of Negro Students has been active in advocating for the needs and rights of students of color. The Coalition has held numerous meetings with University officials to address the issues of discrimination and social injustice.

The Coalition of Negro Students seeks to create a more inclusive and equitable environment for all students. The Coalition believes that education should be accessible and affordable to all students, regardless of race, gender, or socioeconomic background.

The Coalition of Negro Students is committed to addressing the needs and rights of all students. The Coalition seeks to create a more inclusive and equitable environment for all students.

Hannah confronted

Barry Amis, president of the Black Student Alliance, presides over a list of ten demands on behalf of the Alliance. At a Friday meeting in the Administration Building.

Amis said, "We have a dream." urging nonviolence as the way forward. The students were instructed by BSA leaders to go to the East Wing when the meeting began. The meeting extended to the East Wing, where President Hannah was meeting with other officials.

A student representative from the BSA told the President, "We are here to speak our mind. We are first, second and third, and we are here to speak our mind."

Religious leaders looked on Dr. Martin Luther King with a kind of awe. And his closest followers looked up to him. They press on him, firing his words.

SEQUENCE, a sort of swelling tide that built up, generating a rhythm of its own. Like a rhetoric, King said, "It just comes."

At the end of his speech, King said, "I've been to the mountaintop." He said, "I know."

Martin Luther King Jr. falls to one knee after being struck by a rock thrown by a white mob. The rock hit King in the head, and he was hospitalized. The event triggered a series of events that led to the assassination of King, which is the subject of this text. The following is an excerpt from a newspaper article:

Memphis, Tenn. — King, the man who led a march into history, was shot and killed by an assassin in a Memphis motel room.

The shooting occurred in the early hours of April 4, 1968, as King and his entourage were on the way to lead a march in Memphis, a city where the civil rights leader had fought against segregated housing.

King, 39, was shot in the back of the head as he stood at a balcony of the Lorraine Motel, where he had been staying with his wife Coretta and their young children.

The assassin, James Earl Ray, 25, was captured a week later and later pleaded guilty to the murder.

The murder of King, a symbol of the civil rights movement, shocked the nation and inspired millions of people around the world to continue the struggle for justice, equality, and peace.

Funeral plans finalized for services on Tuesday

By R. B. LEBLOND

Associated Press Writer

Atlanta—Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. said Tuesday that her husband's funeral will be a private one, as requested by him. She told a news conference that the service would be held at Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Mrs. King said the service would be held at the church on Thursday morning. She said that her husband requested that only the family, friends and clergy be present.

She also said that the service would be held at the church for a reason that she did not know.

Mrs. King said that she had been told by her husband that he did not want a public funeral.

The eloquence of a great man

From the marble steps of the Lincoln Memorial, Martin Luther King, Jr., gave one of the most eloquent speeches that America has ever heard. In a crowd of 20,000 people, gathered for the March on Washington, King captured the imagination of the world. He was inspired by Dr. King's corners of courage and hope. This is the story of a young man with a great dream who acted quickly to help remedy the legacy of racism. This white racism has certain act quickly to help remedy the legacy of racism. S. Viet Commences Draft Age

Vietnam's recent compulsory draft is set to begin in April, with the government announcing the start of its first wave of conscription. The draft will affect men aged 18 to 33 and is expected to last for about two years. This move comes as a response to the ongoing war and the need for additional soldiers to support the military efforts.

Relief reaches Khe Sanh; activity moves elsewhere

Relief efforts have been sent to the area surrounding Khe Sanh, a strategic location that has been under siege since last spring. The soldiers there have been holding out for more than 13 hours, with supplies running low. The military is working to provide necessary resources and support to the troops.

S. Vietnam proposes neutral site for talks

A Saigon newspaper has reported that Vietnam offers a neutral site for talks, suggesting that the United Nations or a suitable neutral country could be considered. This proposal is seen as a potential breakthrough in the negotiations.

International News

- A British government official has reiterated the country's commitment to the war, stating that the military will continue to support its forces in the region.
- South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Do has signed a decree recalling veterans and reserve officers, with about 135,000 men being called back to arms.
- A group of students from Michigan Technological University has visited the school president and members of the board of trustees after being locked inside a building on the school campus.
- President Johnson has offered to start full-scale peace negotiations, with North Vietnamese and U.S. representatives scheduled for meetings.

Viet government extends draft age

S. Vietnam has extended the draft age to 18 to 33, a change that affects about 135,000 men. This is seen as a significant development in the country's efforts to strengthen its military capabilities.

Narasimhan: develop the underdeveloped

By LINDA BEDNAR

The division of the world into rich and poor nations is potentially more serious than the Eastern and Western Rubicon, learned speaker of the day, Philip V. Narasimhan, Unusual speaker of the day, Philip V. Narasimhan, United Nations Under-Secretary-General for General Assembly Affairs and Chef de Cabinet in the Secretary-General's Office, declared Friday night in Detroit.

This would make big news in the West, but in the underdeveloped world, it is considered news.

The pattern seems unlikely to be the same.

It means far to get the advanced economies to contribute billions in order to get billions in terms of value to the underdeveloped countries.

The population of the underdeveloped world is growing and their share of world population is growing.

The populations of the underdeveloped world are growing faster than those of the advanced world, but at a much slower rate.

There will be an emphasis on reducing the amount of money spent on war and economic development.

The chances for this conflict to be resolved in any way are remote, according to an academic.

Faculty committee rejects freedom report changes

By LINDA GORTMAKER

The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources in East Lansing, Michigan has rejected the submitted by West Wilson Hall of the Academic Freedom Report. Our Committee has rejected these proposals made a significant contribution to the report and is not prepared to support them. The report, prepared by the Academic Freedom Committee, was submitted to the President of the Michigan State University. The report was presented to the faculty in a special meeting on Monday, April 8, 1968.

The report contains the following findings:

1. The language of the amendments is so general as to be meaningless.
2. The amendments would limit the freedom of expression of students.
3. The amendments would conflict with the University's policies on freedom of speech.

Group to urge open housing laws

By LEO FANSTEEL

A student-faculty group agreed Monday to urge state and federal legislators to pass open housing laws as a "necessary but limited step against white housing laws as a "necessary but limited step against white"

The group, called the Ad Hoc Action on Open Housing, organized Friday in response to the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Robert Nason, East Lansing graduate student, chairs the group's organizing committee. He is one of the recommendations of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders by Presid- ence

Nason said Monday that open housing is "a necessary and limited step against white housing laws as a "necessary but limited step against white"

The group plans to urge open housing legislation in a letter to Congressmen. They will urge the representatives to pass a bill that would make it illegal to discriminate against someone based on their race.

Rust choir to perform

Some members of the Rust College choir will perform in a benefit concert on Thursday.

The concert will be held in a church in support of open housing legislation. The group plans to perform at least one song every night until the end of the month.

Camping out

The members of the group camped out in a church yard on Sunday night to show their support for open housing.

The group members stayed in tents and slept on blankets, and they planned to stay throughout the night.

Canadian Liberals

Protests and demonstrations have been ongoing in Canada, with the Canadian government facing criticism for its handling of the situation.

The protests have been organized by various groups, including Indigenous organizations and unions.

Memorial March

On Monday, a memorial march was held in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The marchers walked from the city's downtown to the University of Michigan campus, where a vigil was held.

Nason said Monday that open housing is "a necessary and limited step against white housing laws as a "necessary but limited step against white"
