Wallace pledges troops to fight crime in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — George C. Wallace said Monday that he would send 30,000 troops to Vietnam if he became President. "If I became President," he said, "I would not consider sitting on the sidelines while 30,000 of our men are being killed by the enemy." Wallace spoke at a rally in Montgomery, Ala., where he pledged to send 30,000 troops to Vietnam if he become President. "If I became President," he said, "I would not consider sitting on the sidelines while 30,000 of our men are being killed by the enemy."

Wallace took a tough-attack attitude as he opened up his campaign against the national policy of Vietnam. "We've got to get rid of these troops," he said. "This is a war of aggression, not a war of defense."

The American Indian candidates called for a military victory in Vietnam. "I believe that the peace in Vietnam will come when the people of Vietnam are free and the United States is no longer a slave to the profits of Wall Street," he said. "It is time for the people of Vietnam to decide their own future and to throw off the yoke of American imperialism."

Wallace pledged improved care for Native Americans and said: "We must not forget that the principles of the Monroe Doctrine once again are the cornerstone of our policy in this hemisphere.

He said he would be willing to go to a meeting with the President but that he would first need to meet with the President to discuss the matter. "I am willing to meet with the President," he said. "I want to make sure that the United States is not going to make the same mistakes in Vietnam as it did in Korea."

The President of the United States, in his message to Congress, called for the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam. "We must not let the American people be used as guinea pigs in the experiments of our foreign policy."

WILLIAMSBURG (AP) — President Johnson backed the decision of his military officials to delay the deployment of American ground forces to Vietnam. "I have been advised by my military advisors that the situation in Vietnam is not ripe for a major military commitment," he said. "I will continue to work with the Congress to achieve a negotiated settlement of the war."

Heat exhausts allied patrol

SADSON (AP) - A combined force of 3,000 U.S. Marines and 2,500 South Vietnamese troops have abandoned the Leatherneck base of Khe Sanh, but they found no enemy.

Associated Press correspond­ent John Sillevis, who reported that the only allied casualties were killed by a U.S. air strike, said that they bailed out of their strafing runs by enemy fire, and that U.S. air strikes resulted in the deaths of 25 North Vietnamese fighters and 15 Viet Cong.

The U.S. Marines, who were supporting South Vietnamese forces in the area, have set up to secure the Khe Sanh Valley. They crossed the river near the hill where the battle raged.

Thieu sees North shift to political war

SADSON (AP) - Pres. Nguyen Van Thieu says the enemy has the war on the political side.

He said the Communists have been defeated in the area and that the political war was being conducted along the border.

He also said that he was concerned about the political war and that the Communists were planning to move into the South.

Warren presides at court opening

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 1972 presidential campaign opened Tuesday with President Richard M. Nixon atop the political ladder,生产能力 lead with the opening of the presidential campaign.

The 1972 term of the Su­preme Court was addressed by Warren on both sides of the aisle.

The Supreme Court, which has been held by the President, has been held by the Court and by the President.

The war had been lifted as South Vietnamese Irregulars recaptured five surrounding villages.

Fiery revenge

A soldier-widow at the funeral of her husband, who was killed in the Green Beret camp of the enemy camp, was seized by South Vietnamese irregulars and received death threats.

Henry Young told the high court that his state did not attend the nearly three-year-old sessions of the court.

Justice Abe Fortas, who was nominated to succeed Warren but whose nomination was blocked by the Senate, wrote to the state, "The 1972 term of the Supreme Court is a legislative issue."

Burtis then dribbled a trip to be as he went into third base with a lead off single. Jim and Evan Kaline, who are brothers, are one of the few brothers that play the same sport. Jim and Evan Kaline are both in the Hall of Fame in baseball.

The Tigers then went on to score 18 runs in the second inning. Mickey Stanley, who hit a three-run homer in the inning, hit a home run in the third inning to give the Tigers a 5-0 lead. The Cardinals then scored 13 runs in the fourth inning to take the lead back. But the Tigers scored 18 runs in the fifth inning and 16 in the sixth inning to put the game out of reach.

Parents, the song is aimed at the voice of the unpopular Artist, Freeman. who at that time was being cast out of Miki's Mouse Club and enjoying the success of "The Parent Trap." The song's message was that parents should not be too hard on their children, but should instead provide support and encouragement.

The Parent Trap is a classic of pre-twist rock and roll, and it is a film that has become a beloved part of the history of music. The song featured in the film is a simple yet effective example of how music can be used to convey a message, and how it can be a powerful tool for parents and children alike.

For those who are interested in the film, the Parent Trap is available on DVD and streaming platforms. The film is a must-watch for anyone who loves classic rock and roll, or who enjoys the nostalgic feel of the 1960s. It is a film that is sure to bring back memories for anyone who grew up during that time, and it is a film that continues to be enjoyed by audiences of all ages. So, if you're looking for a film that is both enjoyable and nostalgic, then look no further than The Parent Trap.
McCarthyite urges support for New York candidate

By MARILYN PATTERSON

Paul O'Dwyer is making a last-minute campaign effort to win the support of Michigan State University students. And Jeif Brandt, state chairman of the Democratic Student Movement, recruited students to work on the O'Dwyer campaign Monday to recruit students.

Brown, former national chairman of Hubert Humphrey, the media because of his rejection of President Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

"We have nothing to fear but fear itself," Brown said.

Although most of the questions the students pose concern legal aspects of the draft, they are informed that the In order to handle them.

However, some draft advice, student leaders say, can only be given to students who have a clear idea of what they want to do. Students who have any questions concerning the Selective Service System should contact an ASMSU's Draft Counseling office.

ASMSU is one of the largest computers in the Big Ten. Students, faculty and researchers use this in the service provided and can be reached at 355-7539.

McCarthyite urges support for New York candidate

As a New York City Councilman, Paul O'Dwyer has worked to gain support for the liberal agenda of the city. He also took to the Supreme Court to challenge the constitutionality of the draft.

O'Dwyer is the only candidate for the major presidential candidacy in his state's primary only.

O'Dwyer was one of the first to fight for the minority peace in Vietnam war and the draft.

ASMSU's Draft Counseling office is equipped to handle any questions the students may have about the legal aspects of the draft.

The Draft Counseling Service provides all students familiar with the legal aspects of the draft.

Cups believed that Selective Service pamphlets are at times, too vague. Furthermore, according to Cups, there is a "trick of omission" among the draft boards concerning classification of draft eligible males.

Many of the questions the center receives can be answered over the phone. In cases requiring more specific information, appointments are made with cups or other staff members in his office.

Questions asked at the center range from explanations of draft classifications to providing information and contacts for potential candidates.

Freshman opinions vary on conversation interference

By SID BURCH
State News Staff Writer

Many freshmen felt that the questions on the texts were "relevant." These freshmen thought that SIA had worked the questions to make their opinions important to the text. To one student, the text seemed to be about philosophy not previously experienced in this manner.

"In a sharp condemnation of the opinions of many students," the student commented, "the president of the Student Academic Council felt in his own way that the interrupting could be justified."

Freshmen noted that the conversation interfered with and hindered the aims of the SIA. The purpose of the conversation was to introduce the new students to the University, the students commented.

But others agreed that the conversation should be held.

"It made the incoming freshman look bad because no one really knew what was going on or who the interrupters were another comment."

Many freshmen simply were confused over the interpretations and therefore were unsure of the material covered and had not been at all familiar with the MLA guide.

The Isenberg Memorial Lecture features "The Philosophy of Wittgenstein" for their fall term series. Ludwig Wittgenstein was an Austrian philosopher who is credited with shaping and developing the areas of formal logic and ordinary language philosophy.

He introduced the theory of linguistic analysis in which he taught an analytic analysis of every word or phrase, the belief that language was a game that men learned to play without being taught its rules.

His most famous work, "Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus," written in 1919 when he was 25 years old, has been translated into English. It is considered one of the most important works of the century.

In this work, he explored the limits of language and the ways in which language can express thoughts. He argued that language is a set of rules that can be used to construct sentences that are meaningful.

The lecture will be presented by Norman Malcolm of Cornell University. Malcolm first studied philosophy at the University of Chicago, and since then much of his work has been an attempt to understand and explain Wittgenstein's ideas and to apply the Austrian philosopher's approach to areas of philosophy not previously examined in this manner.

The second lecture, "Nature of the Mind," will be presented by Philip Anderson of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The third lecture, Nov. 21, will feature Stanley Houghton of the Brandeis University, who will speak on "Wittgenstein's and Pragmatism: Worldview,.

The lectures are open to the public at 5 p.m. Friday in the auditorium.

Half of Senate favors halt to North Vietnam bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although their terms vary widely, at least half of the 100 U.S. senators say they favor some plan to end all American bombing raids on North Vietnam because they oppose the war.

Included in this group are 3 Republicans and 26 Democrats who say the bombing worked exceptionally, at least as an experiment to test the reaction and curiosity of the North Vietnamese regime. Eleven of these senators are seeking re-election this year.

Their position is opposed strongly by 15 senators, 6 Republicans and 24 Democrats, who say they want the bombing stopped immediately. Republican Sen. Al Gore of Tennessee said he would consider a bombing halt "an acceptable risk for peace" and would oppose whatever action is taken.

The survey was conducted in the days following Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's decision to seek the Democratic presidential nomination, a move which is expected to encourage other candidates to declare their intentions.

The survey was conducted by the Associated Press. The results were made available to the senators who wanted them.
