In an administrative action, which is often taken to reorganize the structure of the university, a 'perfect mission' completed.

This action, taken by the university administration, was seen as a significant step forward in the reorganization of the institution. It was evident from the meeting that the administration was committed to maintaining a balanced and stable university system.

The meeting was concluded with a vote of confidence in the university leadership, and a commitment to continue moving forward with the mission of providing quality education to all students.

In summary, the meeting was a positive step forward for the university, and it was hoped that the progress made would continue in the future.

N. Viets repeat shelling of DMZ, U.S. base

SOUTH VIETNAM (AP) - The North Vietnamese Army began artillery attacks along the demilitarized zone Tuesday, shelling a U.S. headquarters in Vietnam for the first time in two months.

Another 32 persons were wounded, including 31 U.S. Marine Corps personnel, and at least 50 South Vietnamese civilians were killed in four clashes that ranged from the Mekong Delta, south of Saigon, to the far north near the old imperial capital of Hue.

Also, the Department of Defense, South Vietnamese spokesmen issued Tuesday afternoon reports of three clashes, the last one 35 miles southwest of Saigon.

Headquarters III, Enemy gunners fired on headquarters of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division Monday. The 9th's headquarters is at Dong Tam, close to the borders of Cambodia and Laos and into the demilitarized zone and North Vietnam. This was disputed by Defense Minister Nguyen Van Vy, who said the enemy command has pulled back five of its divisions since mid-October to base camps inside Cambodia, Laos and North Vietnam. That was disputed by Defense Minister Nguyen Van Vy, who said some still maintain bases inside South Vietnam.

The attack on Dong Tam came about an hour and a half after the end of a vest pocket cease-fire which ranged from the Mekong Delta, south of Saigon, to the far north near the old imperial capital of Hue.

Allied soldiers and major enemy units have been avoiding close combat.

They indicated that the enemy would continue to attempt to disrupt the 'early month-long lull in major sustained ground fighting' which would be more economic in terms of casualties to the enemy.

Infantry Pullback

While pulling back in major infantry units from the coast to allow the safe release of prisoners held by the United States.

The enemy command could meet a series of shells against allied bases and government cities and continue up and down along the DMZ.

U.S. intelligence reports have said the enemy command has pulled back five of its divisions since mid-October to base camps inside Cambodia, Laos and North Vietnam. That was disputed by Defense Minister Nguyen Van Vy, who said some still maintain bases inside South Vietnam.
Humphrey support unifies feuding Texas Democrats standing beside Connally was the governor's longtime political adversary, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, considered a傻子 in the labyrinth of Texas party politics. The senator endorsed Sen. Eugene McCarthy for president before the Democratic nominee.

Wallace heckled by noisy students

OAKLAND, Calif. — L A P D . George Wallace, heckled again in California, began his campaign for the presidency by laying eggs among words of promises, and Tuesday the leaders of the two major parties have "hardened to shabbiness" but ignored the wishes of millions of other Americans.

Wallace was struck by the border to a angry man and injected himself with a needle, but did not appear to be seriously injured. He was taken to a downtown hospital in Oakland. He then spoke Tuesday night at Racine, Wis.

All in all, it was something short of a pleasant greeting to the former Alabama governor from the state where he ran for President in 1960 and got the per cent of the vote in the Demo- cratic convention.

Wallace had to put up with a row of about 700 people, with a few marchers in the crowd. He said in his campaign he is determined to bring the people to the polls in order to make the most critical needs.

There is no question that the final budget appropriated to the University for the 1969-70 school year by the State Legislature will bear little resemblance to the original $77.4 million request made by the Board of Trustees in their Oct. 17 meeting. A budget cutback is taken for granted. But, if there is a sizeable cutback, MSU will most certainly be involved in a financial crisis.

Throughout the last decade, the legislature has failed to appropriate enough funds to the University. But, if there is a sizeable cutback, MSU will most certainly be involved in a financial crisis. OUR READERS' MINDS

Hooray for bourgeois values

To the Editor:

The Black Students' Alliance has presented a number of resolutions for the consideration of the student body. These resolutions are designed to address the concerns of the black community on campus. The resolutions propose changes in the university's policies and procedures to ensure a more inclusive and equitable environment for all students.

The resolutions address issues such as the Undergraduate Student Judiciary, faculty appointments, and the selection of speakers. The resolutions call for the removal of any potential conflicts of interest and the establishment of a more transparent and fair selection process. The resolutions also propose changes to the student government to ensure that it is more representative of the student body.

We support the Black Students' Alliance in their efforts to address these issues. It is important to ensure that all students have a voice in the decision-making process and that their concerns are taken into account. We believe that these resolutions are a step in the right direction and we urge the student body to consider them carefully.

Election to end ‘Daylight’ debate

Wednesday, October 23, 1968

Michigan voters will end a two-year debate Nov. 5 when they cast ballots in an election that will determine whether the state should observe Daylight Savings Time or permanent Eastern Standard Time.

The ballot, known as the Michigan Voters' Rights Amendment, requires Michigan voters to choose one or the other. Some groups favor permanent Eastern Standard Time for the state. September is the start of Daylight Savings Time.

Michigan would be the first state to hold the referendum, and if passed, it would mean all U.S. states bordering Canada could adopt permanent Eastern Standard Time.

The referendum would affect the state’s farmers, who might be able to extend their planting season into the fall. The proposal would also affect airlines and business schedules.

The proposal has drawn strong opposition from those who believe Michigan should observe Daylight Savings Time.

The referendum proposal is based on a law passed by the General Assembly in 1966 which requires advancing clocks one hour from 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in April to 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in October.

Although Michigan’s voters rejected the proposal in 1966, the state would be excluded from any federal law requiring Daylight Savings Time.

The 1968 Olympics: 'S' to face ND dynamic duo

By DON KOPPINA

Sports Writer, Michigan State News

Thoughts while Olympic-watching.

It was 1967, just before the 1968 Olympics, that the word 'S' first got into the headlines. It was the year that the Soviet Union's Yuri Gagarin became the first human to orbit the Earth, and his voyage seemed to set the stage for a new era of space exploration.

Meanwhile, back on Earth, athletes were preparing for the Olympics in Mexico City. The city was in the news for its pollution problem, with a thick layer of smog hanging over the highlands where the Olympic Village was located.

As the Olympics approached, the Soviet Union began to flex its muscles. It was clear that they were determined to win as many medals as possible, and they were not afraid to use their influence to ensure that their athletes had an advantage.

The United States, on the other hand, was struggling to find its footing. After a string of disappointing performances at the 1964 Games, many Americans were feeling discouraged and unsure of their chances in Mexico City.

But there were a few bright spots. The American track team, led by the great runner Jim Ryun, looked strong, and the American swimming team, led by the great swimmer Mark Spitz, was also confident.

The Olympics began with much anticipation, and the opening ceremonies were a spectacular display of color and pageantry. The athletes marched into the Olympic Stadium, and the world held its breath as they prepared to compete.

But the Games were not without their problems. There were reports of corruption and cheating, and the Soviet Union was accused of using its influence to ensure that its athletes had an advantage.

Despite these challenges, the Olympics went on, and the athletes gave their all in the pursuit of glory. In the end, the Soviet Union emerged as the dominant force, with 108 medals, including 44 golds. The American team finished second, with 88 medals, including 26 golds.

The 1968 Olympics were a turning point in the history of the Games. They marked the beginning of a new era, in which the Soviets would be the dominant force in international sport. And they were a reminder that the Olympic Games were not just a competition of nations, but a celebration of human achievement.
'U' volunteers join Urban Action

The Michigan State University swimming area, sponsored by the YMCA Urban Action Committee, is designed as a year-round program. Four MSU students are working part-time as part of the Outreach Program which is designed to help young adults find volunteer opportunities through a variety of established and developmental organizations.

Kathleen Helma, compared the outreach program to an urban community action program. "An outreach program is designed to help people who are unfamiliar with the community and our program and who are not familiar with the educational, recreational, and cultural opportunities," said Kathleen.

He explained that these opportunities to volunteer for outreach volunteers are faced with the Urban Action Committee, primarily in the summer outreach program. During the summer, the Outreach staff worked with approximately 50 young people between the ages of three times a week in various social and educational activities.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The third in a series of articles by Dean David L. Anderson. The series examines the role of the mass media in the communication media, like it to truth, which he said was neutral in a conflict that is tearing our society apart.

They called upon the mass media to dedicate themselves formally and positively to the problem of attitudinal change as a critical area "by all means consistent with intellectual honesty and with the freedom and integrity of the press."

"We urge in particular," the editors said, "that the mass media establish mechanisms for change in the following areas:"

1. As a matter of equal opportunity and as a means of improving the perception of blacks as more than merely an instrument of agitational action to increase black representation in important editorial, educational, magazine and TV roles at all levels, including the teaching and training of prospective photographers, newspapers and related skills and professionals.

2. As urge broad inclusion of blacks and black activities as a matter of routine in all areas of normal news coverage, so that across the board black participation in American life, rather than alienation from it, may come to be viewed as a norm to both black and white audiences.

"To these ends, we support the proposal of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders that a nonprofit, private Institute of Urban Communications be established to conduct research problems connected with race and the media, to criticize media coverage and to develop and propose formal guidelines and programs in each of the above areas."

From the closed dead ends and filtered towers of Tower Manhattan, he sings of the future... "As a matter of routine in all areas of normal news coverage, so that across the board black participation in American life, rather than alienation from it, may come to be viewed as a norm to both black and white audiences."

Leaflets provide dialogue, communications medium

By JANICE GOLDBLATT
Law and order . . . Peace
Newspapers and television are common channels on the campuses of mass communication. Leaflets, however, are not in the same form. Leaflets are one of the most effective means of communication. Leaflets usually can be printed on any subject, and the use of leaflets is available to anyone who wants to use them. The freedom of the press, as guaranteed by the First Amendment, is a right that every individual has. The right of students to leaflet is carefully guarded in the Academic Freedom Report. Leaflets need not be authorized by the University, but they must bear the signature of the authorizing organization or agency.

The student leafletters felt that the thoroughly compromised nature of the power structure of the University was the absolute denial of the kind of freedom that helps us students in developing our group interest. Leafletters are common headlines in the nation.

Some student organizations feel leaflets are one of the best forms of mass communication. Leaflets provide a chance to communicate with others who share similar interests. Leaflets are common in the nation.

Big Ten offers co-op opportunities for economical students

BY STEVEN RADDICK

In the Midwest, many Big Ten football fans will make pilgrimages to out-of-town games, which offers its inhaled local economy a powerful boost. These "co-op" programs are also a boon for the state's businesses, providing a captive audience of students who can be persuaded to spend money.

The co-op programs are a result of a growing trend in the Midwest, where universities are recognizing the economic potential of their students. In recent years, many universities have begun to offer "coop" programs, which allow students to work part-time while enrolled in school. These programs are typically directed at students in the sciences, engineering, and business.

The co-op programs offer a variety of benefits to students, including the opportunity to gain valuable work experience, to earn money, and to develop skills that will be useful in their future careers. In addition, the co-op programs provide a source of revenue for the universities, which can be used to support other programs.

The co-op programs are also beneficial to the local economy, as they provide a steady stream of spending for local businesses. In addition, the co-op programs can help to attract and retain students, who are likely to remain in the area after graduation.

The co-op programs are not without their critics, however. Some argue that the co-op programs detract from the educational experience, and that they sacrifice the quality of education in favor of commerce.

Despite these concerns, the co-op programs have become increasingly popular, and are likely to continue to grow in the future. As universities continue to seek ways to support themselves and their students, the co-op programs are likely to play an increasingly important role.

You'll never get anywhere without it.

Nothing helps a young engineer's career like being given a challenge. Which is another way of saying a chance to fail now and then. To make his own mistakes.

At Western Electric we give our newly recruited engineers responsibility almost immediately. They make their own decisions. Learn from their own errors.

Don't get us wrong. We keep our demands reasonable enough so that our recruits can make their decisions at their own pace. But our thinking is, a man feels unusually good about a small decision when it's his.

If you're the type who'd like the chance to make your own moves, to see your ideas come to life, write College Relations, 222 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10038.

A lot of hard work never hurt anyone.
