Educators stress need for more drug discussion

CITE INFORMATION LACK

W R I T E R S ' N O T E : The following is the lead in a series of articles on marijuana by Associate Campus Editor Pat Anstett.

By EDWARD BRILL

While many students ponder over the legal morality of marijuana, many administrators and faculty members concern themselves with the need for further research on the drug issue.

Some administrators, however, differ on the propriety of research into polydrug research. And others emphasize the need for research into polydrug research.

It is not clear whether or not research into marijuana and other drugs the proper channels which they could use to work in areas of poverty, crime and education.

On the other hand, Humphrey expressed belief he already had a very substantial lead in the Democratic nomination, that he would not run for the presidency again.

Gene's support, he said, would be a decided factor in his candidacy. Humphrey declared Gene's candidacy would help him on the telephone as late as last Sunday.

Humphrey expressed confidence that his candidacy would be a decisive factor in the outcome of the election.

SAIGON—Despite results of a plebiscite that threw opposition to the war into the national government, the Saigon government still faces a situation in which its survival is not without considerable strain on the U.S. and Vietnamese relations.

The Saigon government has been under considerable pressure to settle the war quickly at the best price possible, but recent signs of the enemy now finds himself in a position where he can neither defeat the major political and economic sanctions imposed by the United Nations, nor can he afford the economic and political sanctions imposed by the United Nations, nor can he afford the U.S. and the other countries that have imposed them.

In the Nov. 5 election, Michigan voters will have the opportunity to voice their opinion on five state proposals included on the ballot.

Proposal Number One

State proposal Number 1 would amend the Michigan Constitution to provide a graduated income tax, instead of the present flat-rate personal income tax, in order to alleviate the state's fiscal situation. The new tax would provide a flexible budget from which the state legislature could operate more effectively.

An 'X' for Tom Helma for Ingham supervisor

Under new Michigan law, each county was divided into separate districts, and some of the districts did not include members from the individual districts. This was the case in the 8th district, which is comprised of the campus of Michigan State University, the Lansing area, and Grand River Avenue in East Lansing.

While the new district set-up gives eligible students in the 8th district a representative voice in county affairs.

The fact that a liberal resident, Thomas Helma, is running for the 8th district supervisor's position offers MSU students a unique opportunity to lighten and concern over the role of the University and its campus police.

Helma, a graduate student living in Spartan Village, has the needed inside knowledge of the 8th district and the liberal political climate that makes him the best candidate for the supervisor's seat.

Having received an A in his political science course in which the supervisor's role was a major topic, Helma has decided to run for supervisor.

Proposal Two and Five

Two other proposals are included on the Nov. 5 ballot. One would amend Michigan's laws on hunting and fishing opportunities. The other proposal would provide state aid to all local governments for the construction of new park areas.

Last week we wrote of the danger ofelson Hellman's forecasts, pointing out that these forecasts could beResultado with tragic results.

What is alarming is that these forecasts seem to have been made with great authority, and that they are likely to be followed by a movement to alleviate the situation.

The cost of proposals three and four cannot be met without increased state revenue.

The Democratic Party is the larger of the two main parties in the United States. Humphrey is regarded as a liberal Democrat and is considered one of the most effective speakers today. As he claimed Humphrey did not believe in the small political movement for social change. He added that the most effective method of protest against intervention abroad was to vote for President Lyndon B. Johnson. Humphrey said that those who 'gave way' to the Left's demands 'had not set out to create a vote for Hubert Humphrey.'

Lyman Briggs College

After consulting with his academic advisor during the period of November 4-8, a student must see the advising office for his next academic appointment. The advising office will be open during this period.

College of Education

Change of major must be made by November 15.

New Politics candidate regrets ruling on write-ins

Tom Stulnik, Democratic candidate for sheriff, regretted the decision of the state Democratic Party in refusing to place on the ballot the two New Politics party candidates.

The people of Washtenaw County, according to Mr. Stulnik, have elected a number of New Politics candidates in recent years, one of whom was in the last election. The New Politics party candidate for sheriff was not placed on the ballot, although he had sufficiently gathered signatures to secure a place on the ballot.

George W. Will, visiting professor

George W. Will, visiting professor of Political Science, has been invited to speak as part of a "Special Topics" course on the philosophy of history. Will's first comments revealed that he believes that the concept of "historical perspective is the essence of and necessary to the understanding of history."

Check with department offices for the hours of individual advisers.

Monday, November 4. All Art classes will be dismissed on that day and advisers will be in their offices from 8-12 and 1-4.

Partisans prepare final promotion

As the 1968 Presidential campaign draws to a close, campus groups backing the Democratic and Republican nominees are preparing to boost their candidates. Students for Nixon-Agnew seem confident of a 3rd victory and have already planned a celebration party for volunteers on the campus. Students in the Humphrey-Muskie camp are still optimistic of an electoral upset by their candidate. The Nixon campaign has sent out several appeals to volunteers, including a letter from President Nixon asking for assistance in knocking at doors. The Humphrey-Muskie campaign has also sent out several appeals to volunteers, including a letter from Hubert Humphrey asking for assistance in knocking at doors.

Kelley opposes national primary proposal

Kelley said he preferred the state primary to the national primary proposal, which would give the state more control over the nomination process. He believed that the national primary would be too costly and time-consuming, and would not provide enough time for candidates to campaign effectively in each state. He also expressed concern that the national primary would make it more difficult for candidates to build relationships with voters in individual states.

Kelley added that the national primary would be a challenge for small states, which would have less representation in the nomination process. He suggested that the national primary would be more advantageous for candidates with large campaign staffs and financial resources.

Kelley concluded by saying that the state primary was the best way to ensure that party members had a say in the selection of the party's nominee, and that it would save money and time compared to the national primary.

When a replacement was needed last spring for MSU's graduating All-American defensive tackle, Spartan Coach Gene Kenney went as unusual a route as

Nixon challenges HHH peace stand

DETROIT (AP) - Republican Richard M. Nixon, describing Hubert H. Humphrey as a "man of the old politics," challenged his Democratic rival on the issue of peace Tuesday, asking suburban voters: "Do you want those with a record of success or a record of failure?"

"It takes more than talk, it takes more than a loose tongue, it takes more than being every side of every issue to bring a war to an end in a way that isn't going to mean another war," the GOP presidential nominee told a rally in suburban Southfield.

"It takes background and experience and judgment and guts," Nixon said Humphrey has charged "I might endanger the peace." But he said the record shows that while he was vice president to Dwight D. Eisenhower, one war was ended, others prevented.

During Humphrey's vice presidential years, Nixon said, there has been no peace.

Nixon said Humphrey said it was U.S. strength and superiority during the Eisenhower years which prevented war.

Wallace campaign heads southwest

ENID, Okla. (AP) - Presidential candidate George Wallace discussed oil industry problems Tuesday in a bid for Southwestern votes but declined to comment specifically on the controversial oil depletion tax allowance.

The former Alabama governor reiterated his stand that all coastal states are entitled to ownership of offshore oil and gas rights up to 10 miles out.

He was the object of some heckling by a group of university students at Enid, Okla., during his two-hour stopover. It was the most razzing he had received in his three trips to the state.

As he flew into the north-central Oklahoma town he handed newsmen policy statements but made no mention of the tax depreciation allowance on oil.

He was asked if he considered the depletion allowance a tax loophole. He replied "Well there are pros and cons on it and we are going to ask Congress to check on everything that's pros and cons." The former Alabama governor made one last appeal for support in the southwest before moving northward for a rally Tuesday night at Detroit.

In his position papers on oil and gas, Wallace said "great inequities" have resulted from court decisions fixing the boundary line between state and federal ownership of offshore oil and gas resources. "Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, and California have been given offshore rights only three miles out," he said, while Florida and Texas, because of treaties or constitutional mandates, have jurisdiction for ten miles.
