Final hour: HHH gains lead while Nixon predicts victory

L.A. (AP) — Although Hub­ert H. Humphrey spoke on the tele­vision in Los Angeles Monday night, he said he would not be running for president — despite what his immediate political opponents have said.

Humphrey is not the only one who is considering running for president. In the final hours of the presidential campaign, many candidates are making last-minute appeals to voters.

Humphrey is running in California, where a Democratic victory could mean a “diplomatic victory,” according to a Democratic presidential candidate. Humphrey has also been campaigning in the state, and in the total of all the states, he will be running in the final hour.

As the election approaches, the media will be focusing on the outcome of the election. Humphrey is running in the Western states, but most of the campaign has been held in the Eastern states. Humphrey has said he will run in the final hours of the presidential campaign, and he is expected to make a decision in the next few days.

In the meantime, Republican nominee Richard Nixon is also campaigning in the Western states, but he is expected to make a decision in the next few days. The Republicans have been focusing on the Eastern states, and they are expected to make a decision in the next few days.

Candidates’ theories differ

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Each of the three presidential candidates has a different idea of what would or should happen if no one wins the required Electoral College majority in today’s presidential election.

Robert B. Humphrey thinks no one should win, because a presidential candidate needs the popular vote to win.

Humphrey said he would recommend that if no candidate gets the popular vote, they should go to Congress and ask for a new election.

And George C. Wallace said he would support a constitutional amendment that would allow Congress to choose the next president in the event of a tie.

Make Hobbie's Your Choice for Campaign Hunger
Today is election day. Today is the day 70 million Americans dutifully vote for tomorrow. The candidates have been chosen; the questions have been forced to a vote. Americans have cast their ballots. It is the day those who believe in American democracy have made their choices, the day those who think in a democratic way have spoken. It is a day for the people to decide who will lead them, who will make the laws, who will set the policies for the coming years.

But what does it all mean? What are the candidates saying, and what are they promising? What are the issues that are being debated, and what are the questions that are being asked? What is the future of America, and what is the role of the people in shaping it?

In the end, it is the people who decide. It is they who cast their votes, who choose the leaders, who set the course. It is they who will live with the consequences of their choices, who will be affected by the policies of their leaders. It is they who are the true determinants of America's future.

Today is election day. Today is the day America votes. And tomorrow is the day America begins.
Today belongs to the voice of the voter

Foes find 5-7 'S' flanker
no small laughing matter

By GARY WALKOWCZ
State News Sports Writer

MSU's football opponents may laugh when they see 5'2'2" Charlie Wedemeyer listed as the Spartans' starting flanker, but they're not apt to come out smiling any more often than they did last Saturday by edging Ohio State last Saturday. MSU won its third victory of the season.

Wedemeyer, whose brother Herman Wedemeyer was an All-American back at St. Mary's in the late 1960's, has been utilized as a runner at times this season.

"You just have to know how to use him," Wedemeyer said.

Frank Waters, our regular flanker, was injured out and I was asked to step up when he went down," Wedemeyer explained.

Given this chance, Wedemeyer showed he could handle the position and Waters was moved to split end to shore up the backfield.

Frank Waters, a quarter­back in high school and was named All-State's Back of the Year in 1965.

Waters returned to the backfield when Wedemeyer was injured and so I was asked to step up again," Waters said.

Waters played quarterback during his freshman year and says it has been a valuable experience so far. Waters has had only limited playing time this season.

"I'm really glad I was moved to flanker because I can play a lot more," Waters said.

Las Vegas, July 2--Las Vegas 'Greek' favors Nixon.

By sometime late tonight.

Las Vegas will have seen a lot of action, in the form of some well-staged, sharp-acted, and well-staged political performances. The city has been chosen as the site of the annual convention of the American Political Science Association.

By sometime late tonight.

The date, and it will be an eventful one. The city has been chosen as the site of the annual convention of the American Political Science Association. The convention is scheduled to begin on Monday, July 2.

By sometime late tonight.

Meanwhile, back home in Washington, D.C., President Johnson is facing a tough re-election battle. The Nixon campaign is marketing the 'Greek' as a poor choice for president, arguing that he is a foreign policy failure.

By sometime late tonight.

Despite this, the 'Greek' remains a popular figure in Las Vegas, with many locals still supporting him.

By sometime late tonight.

However, a well-respected man in the city is also a potential supporter of Nixon. The man is John G. Mitchell, the former Secretary of the Interior, who is now a lawyer and political consultant.

By sometime late tonight.

Mitchell has been active in the Nixon campaign, and is expected to play a key role in the upcoming election.

By sometime late tonight.

Despite the political intrigue, however, the city of Las Vegas is still a place of fun and excitement. Daytime temperatures in the city range from the low 70s to the high 80s, with occasional thunderstorms in the afternoon.

By sometime late tonight.

The city is known for its vibrant nightlife, with a variety of bars, clubs, and casinos. Many tourists come to Las Vegas to see the city's famous entertainment, and the convention is no exception.

By sometime late tonight.

The American Political Science Association convention is expected to bring a large number of attendees to the city, with many staying at the top hotels and casinos. The convention is expected to run from Monday, July 2, to Thursday, July 5.

By sometime late tonight.

The city is expecting a lot of traffic, with many highways and roads expected to be crowded. The convention is expected to bring a lot of attention to the city, and may even bring some new business to local hotels and casinos.

By sometime late tonight.

In conclusion, Las Vegas is a city of contrasts. It is a place of fun and excitement, but also a place of political intrigue. The upcoming convention will likely bring a lot of attention to the city, and may even bring some new business to local hotels and casinos. Only time will tell what the future holds for Las Vegas.

The McCrory Write-In Campaign headquarters in Lansing is abuzz with activity as Mitt Romney and write-in stickers are being distributed to voters. A local write-in campaign has been formed in an effort to bring attention to the importance of voter turnout.

By ANTHONY MOORE

Clerk of the Circuit Court, Lansing, Michigan, has announced his candidacy for the Michigan Democratic Party's nomination for Governor of the State of Michigan. He will face off against a strong field of candidates, including incumbent Governor George Romney and United States Representative James Oberstar.

The Lansing area is one of the most important battlegrounds in the nation this election cycle. With the Democratic Party facing a challenging election, it is crucial that voters come out to support their candidate and ensure victory.

Hart endorses Harrison, blasts Nixon defense plan

By BRIAN MOORE

Michigan's Democratic candidate for Governor, G. Mennen Williams, has endorsed the campaign of Governor Artie Harrison. In a statement, Williams said, "Artie Harrison is the only candidate who understands the needs of our state. He has a vision for the future of Michigan and will work hard to make it a reality." Williams' endorsement comes as the state faces challenges in areas such as education, healthcare, and defense.

Williams' endorsement comes on the heels of his own campaign, which has been gaining momentum in recent weeks. With the help of his team and supporters, Williams is looking forward to a successful election day.

Journalists propose formation of courts

By DEBORAH FITCH

State News Staff Writer

The proposal to create a special court system to handle cases involving artificial intelligence has been met with mixed reactions. Some journalists and legal experts believe that such a court system would be necessary to ensure that AI systems are held accountable for their actions, while others argue that it would be too difficult to create such a system.

One journalist, John Smith, stated, "While I understand the need for accountability, creating a special court system for AI would be a monumental task. It would require significant resources and expertise to establish a system that could effectively handle these cases."

Another journalist, Sarah Jones, countered, "I believe that a special court system for AI would be essential. It would ensure that these systems are held accountable for their actions and that justice is served in cases involving AI."
