Case Hall to hold game night

Memories of Silver's Halliwell's two years ago were evoked at Case Hall game night Thursday.

Although public displays of affection—the notorious PDA's—were frowned upon in residence halls, they were a common sight under the chandeliers and at the tables of Case Hall Thursday night. The extent to which a given campus project could be large enough to accommodate a series of events was estimated at as much as 10,000 people; however, the actual event was limited to a few hundred students.

NSA to hold racism conference

The National Student Association (NSA) has scheduled a Conference on Institutional Racism to be held during Thanksgiving Congress this summer in Man­na­hassa in the Grosvenor Student Center. The conference will attempt to combat such educational systems as those that institutionalized racism prevails. The NSA hopes to explore solutions for these systems through this conference, which is not limited to those who are interested in the topic of institutional racism. The conference will be open to any student and will be held on the campus of Michigan State University.

Unmanned Soviet flight hints at new space race

Moscow (APS)—A new unmanned Soviet spacecraft was launched Sunday, setting a record for the longest stay in space and suggesting that the Soviets may be planning a manned mission to the moon. The spacecraft, which was developed by the TsNIIMash space agency, was launched from the Baikonur Cosmodrome and is expected to spend several months in orbit before returning to Earth. The spacecraft is equipped with scientific instruments, including a nuclear power supply, which could enable it to perform experiments in space for extended periods of time.

In a related development, the United States has announced plans to launch a new satellite, the SS-N-20, which is designed to study the effects of solar activity on the Earth's atmosphere. The satellite is expected to be launched in the near future and will be used to monitor changes in the Earth's magnetic field and to study the behavior of solar flares.

The launching stirred speculation that the new craft might be an attempt to explore the moon. However, the Soviets have denied reports that they are planning a manned mission to the moon.

Western analysts praised the new spacecraft as a significant step forward in the exploration of space. The spacecraft is equipped with a variety of scientific instruments, including a laser, which could enable it to perform experiments in space for extended periods of time.

The report also highlights recent developments and future plans for open houses, including a focus on inclusivity and accessibility.

Headaches for president Nixon

As the primary leader, Nixon faced numerous challenges during his presidency. Some key issues included political scandals, economic difficulties, and foreign policy crises. The Vietnam War, Watergate scandal, and the energy crisis were among the most significant challenges that tested his administration. Nixon's policies and decisions had far-reaching implications for American society and international relations. The headaches he encountered are indicative of the complexities and pressures inherent in leadership roles, especially during times of political and social upheaval.

The atmosphere in the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee was somewhat gloomy by 6:30 p.m. The tensions were released somewhat by the news that Michigan had been won. This was a momentous victory for the Democratic candidate, and it looked bad for Humphrey. Roverback Breslin heir to grid tradition

By GARY WALKOWICZ
State News Sports Writer

Jack Breslin now a Spartan, but his spirit lives on through his son, Michigan State's starting roverback.

"I saw Webster play several times at MSU and he's the best defensive player I've ever seen," Breslin said.

"It's a matter of time before he becomes a better roverback than his father," Coach Gene Kennov said.
Student performs ‘fine’ oboe recital

By VALERIE RESTIVO

It is a splendid thing to see the oboe playing at its best, and the oboe playing at its best is what we experienced Monday afternoon at the University of Michigan’s Power Center.

The oboe recital was given by the University’s own oboist, Andrew Blau, and his accompanist, Dr. Philip Wiltshire, associate professor of oboe at the University of Michigan.

The program included works by Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, and Brahms. It was a tour de force for both performers, who demonstrated their virtuosity and technical mastery.

The oboe’s bright, piercing sound and its ability to express a wide range of emotions were showcased throughout the performance. The audience was captivated by the simplicity and beauty of the instrument.

The recital was a testament to the power of music, and a reminder of the oboe’s place in the classical repertoire.

In conclusion, it was an unforgettable experience to witness the oboe’s beauty and versatility in action. The audience was left in awe of the oboe’s capabilities and the musicians’ dedication to their craft.

The oboe recital was a true highlight of the musical season and a testament to the talents of Andrew Blau and Dr. Philip Wiltshire.

Students voice voting complaints

Students with voter registration complaints must to discuss because they believe the administration is attempting to rig the vote in East Lansing for the Nov. 6 election. Frank Bentley, principal student in MSU student registration, said that the administration does not want to be involved with the problem because it is "not their problem." He said that the administration is trying to "get rid of the issue" by making it appear as though the problem is not serious.

Butler said that the administration's response is "not acceptable" because it is "not addressing the issue." He said that the administration is "not being honest" about the problem and is "not being truthful." He said that the administration is "not doing its job" and is "not being responsible." He said that the administration is "not taking the issue seriously." He said that the administration is "not being fair" to the students.

LADY MAGICIAN
Abra cadabra coed keeps her audiences guessing

By PAT ANSTETT
Associate Campus Editor

A five-foot-four coed has brought a "magical mystery tour" to campus. Sylvia Kirkton, Rochester sophomore and Sigma Kappa, performs her tricks on the campus bandstand.

Miss Kirkton, who specializes in the profession as a boy trickster, said that her father did not require the registration of machine guns, mines, and bazookas. The Gun Control Act of 1968 has not made it any easier for her to do her tricks. She said that "most people don't ask 'what is the trick' but rather express surprise over the magician's ability to handle objects.

"Magicians are going out," Miss Kirkton said. "Many don't have the time to learn the magic tricks. As far as a profession goes, I'm not sure how profitable it is." Miss Kirkton, an educational major, said that her parents were not skilled in magic.

She said that in manipulating "people don't ask what is the trick," but rather express surprise over the magician's ability to handle objects. She said that in manipulating tricks, "people don't ask what is the trick," but rather express surprise over the magician's ability to handle objects.
