Lansing — Governor William Milliken expressed sympathy about the parochial schools in the State of the State message Thursday. Milliken will take over as Governor when Governor Milliken states that he wants to see the parochial schools in the State get any specific proposals to relieve that plight.

"Milliken will answer the governor," Governor Milliken said. "He would be glad if they could have a specific proposal before the legislature." Milliken also said that they would be glad if they could have a specific proposal before the legislature. LEGISLATURE SPEECH
Romney urges action to aid public schools
Governor George P. Romney says that Michigan must deal with the public school problem of the country, but he won't have a plan for the schools that he's running.

"We have a problem," Governor Romney predicted. "We have a problem that we face. We have a problem that we face. We have a problem that we face. We have a problem that we face. Students voice opinions on 10-point grading system

By KATHY CODAIR

Many students voiced the opinion that the 10-point grading system used at Michigan State University is not a fair evaluation of their work.

"It's a more precise grading system because it gives grades between A and F," sophomore Marty Strickland said. "It's easier to understand." But many said the grading system was unfair.

"It's tough to get an A," said junior Steve Brown. "I thought I did pretty well in my English class, but I only got a B."

The 10-point system is intended to be more fair and precise than the old system, which used letter grades. Under the new system, grades are assigned on a scale of 0 to 100, with 90 or above earning an A, 80 to 89 a B, 70 to 79 a C, 60 to 69 a D, and below 60 an F.

"The 10-point system is a good idea," said junior Karen Johnson. "It's easier to see how you're doing." But many said they were confused by the new system.

"It's a lot of work to keep track of," said junior John Smith. "I have to add up all my grades to see if I'm doing well." Other students said they liked the new system because it was easier to see how they were doing.

The 10-point system was adopted by the Board of Trustees in June 1969. It was implemented at the beginning of the fall semester.

"It's a great system," said junior Jane Doe. "I'm doing much better now than I was before." But many said they were confused by the new system.

ASMSU adds post for public relations

By ROSANNE BAUME, State News Staff Writer

A new vice president for public relations was appointed by the ASMSU Senate last week for the purpose of improving student government's image to the community. According to Ray Banghart, cabinet president, the post, vice president for public relations, highlights a number of the student activities in the campus community.

It has been a long tradition in the cabinet for two months, according to Banghart and was approved by the ASMSU Student Council Board Wednesday night. The role of the new vice president will be to ... particularly in the campus community.

Scrawny chickens for the other sons

George, Porgy, Paddle and pin, kissed the girls and made them cry.

Only this time he didn’t kiss the girls, he kissed the University of Michigan and kicked the rest of Michigan’s universities and colleges in the pants.

In a relatively lackluster farewell address, Gov. Romney left the majority of Michigan hitched after a speech that impressed few and excited none, and contained no surprises—except in his remarks concerning paranormal schools.

In the area of aid to parochial schools, Romney summed up his feelings when he stated that the churches out to strike to give religious training and leave secular education to the state—a statement that made widespread criticism.

Romney wails on higher education amounted to a praise of the University of Michigan, and a dabling of Michigan’s colleges and universities.

Romney said that we are "particular proud" of the University—"the University of Michigan—"that is recognized internationally as one of the foremost institutions of higher learning." While we must, of course, enhance the "overall quality of our higher education system," we must particularly protect the "unique status of the University of Michigan."

He went on to say that "it is not a reflection on our other state colleges and universities today that we can only afford one institution with the stature of the University of Michigan." It would be a tragedy if we were to deny the University Michigan the extra financial support required to maintain its margin of excellence and its well-earned international reputation.

Romney is like the father who, while having several children, cannot avoid handing special praise and privileges to one of them because of his singularly good behavior

Romney has been handed some pretty scrawny chickens lately.

Sexuality 'invention' of society

By JOE BELNAC
State News Staff Writer

In a speech entitled "Sex: A Cultural Artifact," a New York sociologist said that human sexuality is not an inborn concept but an invention of society which society limits.

Gagnon, who is a professor of sociology at the State University of New York, said that sex is an important role which society assigns.

"If sex plays an important role, Gagnon said, "it is because societies believe it has an importance." He cited a study of sex roles in the United States which showed that women are more likely to hold sex roles than men.

"Sexuality is not determined biologically," Gagnon said. "It is a social construct." He cited examples of societies that have different definitions of sex roles, such as the Inuit, who have a third gender category that is neither male nor female.

Gagnon said that the concept of sex roles is important because it affects how individuals are perceived and treated by society.

"The concept of sex roles is important because it affects how individuals are perceived and treated by society," Gagnon said. "It is a social construct that is important for understanding how people are expected to behave and how they are evaluated by others."
Oboe soloists slates faculty music recital

Object Daniel Stolper, who has been the 20th century music faculty at the University of Delaware, will present a recital at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

Stolper, an assistant professor, will be accompanied by pianist Daniel呈現er and violist Lynn Langer, the University of Delaware's two music department members.

The first half of the program will contain works by 20th century composers, including 'Introduction and Allegro' by Alois Eder, 'Suite' by Modest Khachaturian, and 'Rapsodie sur le thème des fleurs' by Jean Michel Damase. The second half of the program will contain works by Beethoven, Schumann, Schubert, and Mendelssohn.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Henry Koch, a faculty member of the music department, will conduct the recital. Koch has been a faculty member at the University of Delaware since 1969.

Cactus stars concerned about future theater trends

Some people are concerned about the future of the local theater. Bill McGovern and Janie Slaygirls are two such people. They are artists by profession and have spent entire lives in the theater, working in and around the theater world. The two have been worried for a while about the future of theater in their area. The couple appeared at MSU's St. Andrews, with which they are touring for the spring season.

Individuals are usually slow to realize the need to be concerned about the future of the theater. But, if they don't, they may miss out on some of the great performances that are coming up in the next few years.

One of the biggest concerns is the lack of support from local businesses. Many businesses in the area are not aware of the importance of supporting the local theater. This lack of support has led to a decrease in the number of performances being offered, which has in turn led to a decrease in the number of people attending these performances.

Another concern is the lack of government support. The local government has not been very supportive of the theater arts, and this has led to a decrease in funding for local theaters. This lack of funding has led to a decrease in the quality of performances being offered, as well as a decrease in the number of performances being offered.

Despite these concerns, the couple remains optimistic about the future of the theater arts. They believe that with the right amount of support, the theater arts can flourish in their area.

Thursday evening, British actor David Bedell, in a performance spanning a quarter of a century, portrayed the great playwright in a production entitled "Bound." The play was held at the State College of Oklahoma Theatre, sponsored by the Lecture Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Bedell is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma and has performed in a number of professional productions. He has also appeared in several television and film productions.

In his portrayal of Shaw, Bedell captured the essence of the playwright's character and brought the audience into the world of the 19th century. The play was well-received by the audience, who praised Bedell's performance and the overall quality of the production.

The Michigan State hockey team's biggest dreams of getting back on the winning road after dominating Wisconsin twice were shattered Wednesday by a 2-1 loss to Michigan Tech. The Spartans will have to work their way out of the corner at the Spartan Arena tonight. The Tigers, 3 out of 4 and 5 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, will again be the worst test of the season in the Bashan-Michigan basketball season.

The Spartans will also be out for their first NCAA win this weekend. The MSU skaters are widest in the league, 8-4, and are out to raise their present 5-3-road mark. Michigan Tech, 6-6, is playing its first ever game at the Spartan Arena tonight. The Tigers swept the skaters in the WesternCup last week.

Colorado defeated a strong Wisconsin team twice by 3-2 and 3-1 on Wisconsin's home ice last season. The last time the Wisconsin team played in the Bashan-Michigan basketball season, the Badger skaters' 3-1 margin was their last win. Unfortunately, their winning streak came to an end last weekend with Minnesota's 8-3 victory. The Spartans also lost 6-3.

Colorado defeated a strong Wisconsin team twice by 3-2 and 3-1 on Wisconsin's home ice last season. The last time the Wisconsin team played in the Bashan-Michigan basketball season, the Badger skaters' 3-1 margin was their last win. Unfortunately, their winning streak came to an end last weekend with Minnesota's 8-3 victory. The Spartans also lost 6-3.

Washington & Lee, a quartettoney or board about at MSU will be in the spotlight at 7 a.m. Saturday when the Leon County Lifters from the Michigan Club at B J. C. Men's College in Bloomington, Ind. will meet the Men's I.O.O.F. Lifters in the Men's I.O.O.F. Lifters in Bloomington, Ind.

"One of the reasons we decided to have this meet was to rescue Olympic weightlifting at MSU," said Dennis Buck, club coordinator.

Here is the past few years there has been a demand to begin lifting and increase in popularity of the sport within the MSU, Buck said. Therefore, the national championship the last two years and last month that they have an excellent chance at winning again.

Several of our powerlifters have been competing for Olympic lifting," Larry said, "and I have met four or five lifters who have a lot of potential.

Gary and Gary Madison Heights power is in the 167 pound class. Greg Slichter and MSU graduate, is entered in the 200 pound class and is called a potential record breaker for the club. Other club members are expected to compete in Olympic lifting, consisting of the standing press, snatch and clean and jerk. Technique in the main strength events is considered the key to success.

The meet will begin at 7 a.m. and end in late afternoon.

The meet is non-competitive, Larry said, but it is a chance for the lifters to compare themselves against others in other states.

Spartans will be the defending Big 10 relay champions. The team has won the relay in the last 10 years and is the favorite to win the event again this year.

The relay is expected to be a strong one for the Spartans, according to Coach Bob McCraw, who has coached the team for the past 10 years.

The meet will be held at MSU Saturday.

"I'm really excited," McCraw said. "It's just fantastic for us to have lifted from the state, and we're excited to see how we do compared to the other schools.

Paterno's collection of four Penn State and four Big Ten Conference awards is expected to leave a lasting impression on the team.

Rochester, N.Y. - Paterno, a former All-American running back for the Penn State Nittany Lions, is expected to make a strong effort in the 400 meter hurdles.

"I'm really excited," Paterno said. "It's just fantastic to be here. We've been working hard and I think we're ready to go.

Men's and women's track and field teams will be attending this meet. The men's team will be represented by Coach Charles McGraw and the women's team by Coach Emma Fitch.

Kush does about-face on Pitt job

Bytemark Feb 19, 2023

Pittsburgh's political landscape is about to get interesting, with some big names stepping up to take on the city's mayor after the popular incumbent, Bill Peduto, announced he won't seek re-election.

The most talked-about candidate so far is Kenny Chesney, the country music star who grew up in Pittsburgh and has established a strong connection with the city.

"Chesney is a natural fit for Pittsburgh," said local political analyst Tom Smith. "He's been here for a long time, he's an athlete, and he's a musician. He's got the charisma and the public speaking skills to be a good mayor.

"But he's not the only one," Smith said. "There are a lot of other potential candidates, including John Ratcliffe, the former deputy director of the FBI, and Bill Peduto himself, who has announced he will run for governor in 2022.

"The race is just getting started," Smith said. "We'll see who comes out on top"

City launches attack on slums
By TIM BANNISTER

The city of Lansing, facing the same urban problems which confront many other communities, is attempting to solve them with a different idea. This new approach, attacking a city's problems is called "slum clearance," and is expected to be implemented by the federal government with an application to the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development for a grant.

The purpose of the grant would be to help the city of Lansing coordinate its efforts with those of the federal government in the area of slum clearance and rehabilitation.

According to the application, a concentration of social and physical problems in the area known as "slum clearance" is the primary reason for the grant. The application states that the grant would be aimed at improving the living conditions of the residents of the "slum clearance" area.

The application also states that the grant would be used to help the city of Lansing to develop a plan for the rehabilitation of the "slum clearance" area, including the construction of new housing, the improvement of existing housing, and the provision of social services.

The application further states that the grant would be used to help the city of Lansing to coordinate its efforts with those of the federal government in the area of slum clearance and rehabilitation.

The city of Lansing is expected to receive the grant within the next few months, and the city is expected to begin work on the rehabilitation of the "slum clearance" area immediately.

The city of Lansing is expected to use the grant to help the residents of the "slum clearance" area to improve their living conditions, and to help the city of Lansing to coordinate its efforts with those of the federal government in the area of slum clearance and rehabilitation.

Pope's ban stirs dissent

By DELANO MAJOR

Religious Editor

In an effort to stem the violence and protests, the Catholic Church yesterday banned prominent religious services, including Mass and journal services. The ban, said to be the most sweeping in recent history, covers the entire Catholic Church.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops, meeting in Washington last month, voted unanimously to impose the ban "for the good of the church in this country" and "to bring about a period of peace and unity." A spokesman for the conference said, "We believe that the church must face its problems and do its utmost to bring about a period of peace and unity." The ban was imposed on all Catholic schools, colleges, universities, and religious orders.

The decision of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops was made after a long and thorough study of the situation in the Catholic Church. After months of discussion, the conference reached a decision that the ban was necessary for the good of the church.

The ban comes after a series of violent incidents in the Catholic Church. Last month, a group of students at a Catholic university in the West Coast area rioted, and a number of Catholics were injured.

The ban will be in effect until further notice. The Catholic Church will resume all religious services as soon as it is possible to do so, said the conference spokesman.

Jewish view

Dr. Nathan Goldman (left), president of the Jewish Student Union of the University of Michigan, said yesterday that the Catholic Church's ban on religious services was an attack on the Jewish people. "The Catholic Church," said Dr. Goldman, "is attacking our right to worship and to educate our children." The ban, he said, was an attack on the freedom of the Jewish people.

The ban is regarded as a serious setback to the Jewish community. "The Catholic Church," said Dr. Goldman, "is attacking our right to worship and to educate our children." The ban, he said, was an attack on the freedom of the Jewish people.

THE WORLD'S LARGEST PRIVATELY OWNED STUDENT APARTMENT COMPLEX
McCarthy yields key post to hawk

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a surprise move, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., offered Thursday the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairmanship to liberal Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who has said repeatedly that he would not seek the job.

Muskie, a Pulitzer Prize-winning author and strong critic of the Vietnam war, accepted the position that McCarthy held for nearly 10 years. Muskie said he would make a decision on accepting the chairmanship after consulting with his family.

McCarthy's official explanation, read by his aide, was that he wanted to facilitate a resolution of the committee's differences with the Senate and the House of Representatives in drafting legislation on the war.

The statement did not cover why McCarthy, in view of his strongly held views on the war, would give up the highly prestigious post on international affairs to a Democrat who has not consistently opposed the Vietnam military effort.

Muskie's acceptance of the post was announced by McCarthy, who said that the move would help bring an end to the Senate's long effort to pass a resolution condemning the war.

Muskie said he would continue to aid ant-war forces.

At a hearing last week, the Senate committee voted 10 to 1 to condemn the war. McCarthy, in his last minute, backed out at the last minute.
