President reviews career at MSU

For the past 28 years, John A. Hannah has been to many places, including a Michigan State University. And while obviously this University is much, much greater than any one man, the profound influence of Hannah as president over almost eight decades makes the equation at least understandable.

Hannah’s appointment to the directorship of the Agency for International Development (AID) marked literally the beginning of the end of an era for MSU, as well as the start of a new career for this remarkable man. Missoula and the Great Falls-Editor-in-Chief Bill Hard brought this University, about his own past, and about the University’s and his own future.

---

When you took over as president of Michigan State College in 1940, was it a” multi-cultural university at that time?

A: The answer is no. We had only three nationalities of any importance: whites, blacks, and Japanese. There may have been a section for others, but I don’t think so. That was the world before the war. We had a wonderful period where we integrated our people.

Q: What are the important things that have happened since you arrived at MSU?

A: I think the important things that have happened since I arrived at MSU are the way the University has grown. It has grown in every way, including the number of students, faculty, and staff. It has also grown in terms of its physical plant, including the construction of new buildings and the expansion of existing ones.

Q: What was the most significant event that took place while you were at MSU?

A: I think the most significant event that took place while I was at MSU was the construction of the new library. It was a large and beautiful building that added significantly to the University’s facilities.

Q: What was the role of the faculty in the development of MSU?

A: The faculty played a crucial role in the development of MSU. They were responsible for teaching and research, and they were also involved in the governance of the University. They helped to shape the University’s policies and to ensure that it remained true to its mission.

Q: What was the biggest challenge you faced during your tenure at MSU?

A: I think the biggest challenge I faced during my tenure at MSU was the increase in student enrollment. The University grew rapidly during my time there, and we had to work hard to keep up with the demand.

Q: What do you think is the biggest contribution you made to MSU?

A: I think the biggest contribution I made to MSU was my focus on education. I believed in the importance of providing a high-quality education to our students, and I worked hard to ensure that the University remained committed to that goal.

---

Q: How do you see yourself as a leader?

A: I see myself as a leader who is committed to the success of my people. I believe in the importance of collaboration and working together to achieve a common goal.

Q: What do you think is the future of Michigan State University?

A: I believe that Michigan State University has a bright future. The University is well-positioned to continue its growth and to remain a leader in higher education.

Q: What advice would you give to current students?

A: I would advise current students to take full advantage of their time at MSU. They should work hard, stay engaged, and take advantage of all the opportunities that the University has to offer.

---

Q: What is the most important lesson you learned at MSU?

A: The most important lesson I learned at MSU is the importance of education. I believe that education is the key to success and that it is essential for personal and professional growth.

Q: What are some of the most important changes you have seen at MSU during your tenure?

A: Some of the most important changes I have seen at MSU during my tenure include the growth of the student body, the construction of new buildings, and the development of new programs and initiatives.

---

President Hannah

Q: How do you see the role of a university president?

A: I see the role of a university president as being one of leadership and service. The president is responsible for ensuring that the University remains true to its mission and that it continues to provide a high-quality education to its students.

Q: What is your advice to future presidents of universities?

A: My advice to future presidents of universities is to always keep in mind the importance of education and to work hard to ensure that their institutions remain committed to that goal.

---

Q: What do you hope to accomplish in your next career?

A: I hope to accomplish a lot in my next career. I am looking forward to the opportunity to work with other leaders and to help shape the future of international education.

Q: What is your proudest accomplishment?

A: My proudest accomplishment is the success of the MSU faculty and students. I am proud of the work they have done and the impact they have had on the world.

---

Q: What is your vision for Michigan State University?

A: My vision for Michigan State University is to continue to provide a high-quality education to its students and to remain a leader in higher education. I believe that the University has a bright future and that it will continue to play an important role in the world.

---

Q: How do you feel about your time at MSU?

A: I feel very proud of my time at MSU. I am grateful for the opportunity to have been a part of such a wonderful community.

Q: What is your most memorable moment as president of MSU?

A: My most memorable moment as president of MSU was the day I received the honorary degree from the university. It was a great honor and a momentous occasion.

---

Q: What do you think is the most important lesson you learned at MSU?

A: The most important lesson I learned at MSU is the importance of education. I believe that education is the key to success and that it is essential for personal and professional growth.

Q: What is your advice to future presidents of universities?

A: My advice to future presidents of universities is to always keep in mind the importance of education and to work hard to ensure that their institutions remain committed to that goal.

---

Q: What do you hope to accomplish in your next career?

A: I hope to accomplish a lot in my next career. I am looking forward to the opportunity to work with other leaders and to help shape the future of international education.

Q: What is your proudest accomplishment?

A: My proudest accomplishment is the success of the MSU faculty and students. I am proud of the work they have done and the impact they have had on the world.

---

Q: What is your vision for Michigan State University?

A: My vision for Michigan State University is to continue to provide a high-quality education to its students and to remain a leader in higher education. I believe that the University has a bright future and that it will continue to play an important role in the world.

---

Q: How do you feel about your time at MSU?

A: I feel very proud of my time at MSU. I am grateful for the opportunity to have been a part of such a wonderful community.

Q: What is your most memorable moment as president of MSU?

A: My most memorable moment as president of MSU was the day I received the honorary degree from the university. It was a great honor and a momentous occasion.
Nearly 7,000 students were enrolled in Michigan State College when John Hannah, as president, conducted his first meeting of new staff members. Before Hannah received his first honorary degree from his father-in-law, MSC President Robert Shaw, he had experienced an assignment as an administrative assistant to a state Board of Agriculture. His only earned degree was a bachelor's in poultry science.

Hannah seeks 'U' relevance

By W. DAVIS GRIM
State News Staff Writer

Improving MSU's academic, athletic and physical structure has been the life long goal of John Alfred Hannah, MSC's 11th president who will be visiting June 30 after nearly 41 years of service to the University. Hannah was appointed President Tues-

AVERAGE % OF RESIDENT STUDENTS ON BASIS OF FULL YEAR ENROLLMENT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Percentage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1947</td>
<td>0.506</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1948</td>
<td>0.503</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1949</td>
<td>0.502</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1950</td>
<td>0.501</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1951</td>
<td>0.500</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In 1949, Hannah said enrollment was rapidly over 50,000 to meet the needs of a rapidly growing student body. Hannah named the enrollment of MSU last year as the University, stating what he called a core of knowledge to which all persons would be exposed.

With Hannah's 25 years at the University, he considered himself a vital part of the University, and he was a part of the problem-solving process. At the same time, he was interested in the growth of MSU and its capabilities.

In 1955, MSU began its building program in 1957, to provide the physical facilities to have and to do the post-war increased in students. The program was intended to reach the 50,000 mark in the first 10 years and to reach 100,000 students in the last 20 years. The 60s, 70s and 80s have been years of significant change for MSU, and its role in the Midwest has been significant.

Hannah was a great supporter of all 11 MSU's research and educational programs.

In 1948, President Hannah visited Sparta High School in Sparta, Michigan, for the new addition and the Spartan Stadium, named the stadium "Sparks" in honor of Robert Young (right), an athletic director, and Biggie Morgan, MSU's present athletic di-more and more bright students came to MSU, and many were given an ideal opportunity. Thus the Honors College was founded in 1962 for students who showed promise of earning an A-minus or better academic record.

Shaw, in his time at the University, has been involved in the expansion and growth of the University, from its beginnings to its present size. He has worked with the administration to provide the facilities to accommodate the growth of the University.

In 1948, Hannah sought to increase student enrollment at Michigan State University. He believed that the University should be a leader in the development of educational programs.

Hannah's goal was to provide educational opportunities for disadvantaged minority groups. Shaw has been active in this area, and he has been involved in many programs.

Hannah's retirement in 1969 was marked by a celebration of his contributions to the University. He has been succeeded by a new president, Paul W. Taggart, who has continued to build on the foundation laid by Hannah.

In 1948, Hannah sought to increase student enrollment at Michigan State University. He believed that the University should be a leader in the development of educational programs.

Hannah's goal was to provide educational opportunities for disadvantaged minority groups. Shaw has been active in this area, and he has been involved in many programs.

Hannah's retirement in 1969 was marked by a celebration of his contributions to the University. He has been succeeded by a new president, Paul W. Taggart, who has continued to build on the foundation laid by Hannah.

In 1948, President Hannah visited Sparta, Michigan, for the new addition and Spartan Stadium. He visited the stadium named the stadium "Sparks" in honor of Robert Young (right), an athletic director, and Biggie Morgan, MSU's present athletic director. Hannah was presented with an engraved plate dated 1955 in honor of his work at Michigan State University, and Michigan State College became a full-fledged university.

Monday, February 10, 1949

---

Hannah--a portrait of service

By Montana Gortmaker

Hannah, a Democrat, was named to succeed in 1954 by Michigan Gov. Gerald Ford, as the governor's special assistant for international affairs. He served until 1961.

Hannah was appointed to the Commission on Civil Rights in 1961 and has served as chairman ever since. During his term, the commission has made important findings and recommendations on civil rights.

In 1966, President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed Hannah as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1968, when President Johnson appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been active in the Democratic Party and has served as chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party. He has also served as a member of the Michigan Board of Education and as a member of the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

During his years as MSU's president, Hannah has emphasized the importance of education. He has been a strong supporter of the MSU Board of Trustees and has worked closely with them to ensure that the university remains a leader in higher education.

Hannah has also been active in the community, serving as a member of the board of directors of several local organizations.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

During his years as MSU's president, Hannah has emphasized the importance of education. He has been a strong supporter of the MSU Board of Trustees and has worked closely with them to ensure that the university remains a leader in higher education.

Hannah has also been active in the community, serving as a member of the board of directors of several local organizations.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1969, President Richard Nixon appointed Hannah as special assistant to the President for international affairs. He served in this capacity until 1972, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.

In 1968, Hannah was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the President's Commission on Civil Rights. He served in this capacity until 1969, when President Richard Nixon appointed him as special assistant to the President for international affairs.

Hannah has been a strong advocate of civil rights and has worked tirelessly to ensure that all Americans are treated equally under the law.
"U' First Lady reflects on home surges during Hannah era"

BY MELISSA MULLER

For the sixth time, U.S. president has retold the story of Hannah's six-year tenure at Michigan State University. In her speech, she described a new president's role and the importance of having a new leader after six years in the directorate. For the sixth time, U.S. president has retold the story of Hannah's six-year tenure at Michigan State University. In her speech, she described a new president's role and the importance of having a new leader after six years in the directorate.

Speaking of the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

As the student body at large, she said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.

Ms. Miller, her former president, said that she expects not only to have close contact with more students and their families, but also to have a more distant relationship with those who are not on campus. She said that she believes the University should be more of a stepping-off point for students.

The University of Michigan has a long history of being close to the University. We haven't lost any privacy.