Academic Council approves, but amends selection report

By MARYLON PATTISON

The Academic Council approved quickly Wednesday a revised selection report by the Assistant Director of the Student Body, John E. Taylor, to govern regulations for establishing an all-University committee for the selection of the presidency.

The council adopted several amendments to the report approved by the board. Amendments to the report approved by the council included:

- Three separate amendments establishing a committee for the undergraduate, graduate, and alumni representatives on the committee.
- A statement that the University President and the current Chair of the Academic Council must be the two members of the committee.
- An amendment that the chair of the committee shall choose its own chairman.

The report approved by the council is:

Title: The Selection Committees

Delimited to the President of the University, the committees shall be composed of 13 members, three from each of the following categories:

- Alumni
- Undergraduate students
- Graduate students
- Faculty
- Administrative staff

The committees shall be chaired by the President of the University, and shall include the following:

- A representative from each faculty
- One graduate student
- One non-graduate student

The committees shall meet at least twice a year, and shall report to the President.

Ad hoc discussion

Tom Sanet, ASMU junior member-at-large, watched Frank Pinner, chairman of the ad hoc committee, as they discussed procedures for the selection of a new University president.

"The membership of the College, Sanet said, must be able to submit its own choices to the President, who will then select the final candidate."

Pinners urges committee to select own chairman

BY RALPH WATERS

The selection process of University Presidents A.S.U. is a large group of people with a common goal. The chairman of the Academic Council must be the one that the members want.

The members can only select one person to be the chairman. The chairman must have the approval of the University President.

The selection process is a long and difficult one. It is important for the members to have the right person for the job.

ASMSU President Don Williams said Monday his group opposes the University Council's recent proposal to change the selection process for the presidency on the University campus.

"The University Council's proposal is a step in the wrong direction," Williams said. "We are opposed to the change because it would give the University President too much power.

Members-at-large petitioning begins

In the interest of clearing up the uncertainty surrounding the members-at-large petitioning issue, when and how it will continue until March 1.

Several members-at-large will be elected for the opening of the 1978-79 school year. The petitioning period will begin in the April 1 All-Union weekly election.

Under the current structure of the board, the seven member-at-large positions will include two senior state senate, two sophomores and two at-large representatives. In order to petition for a member-at-large position, a student must have earned at least 12 quarter credits by the end of the fall semester. The junior member-at-large applicants must have earned at least 15 credits but less than 30 credits at the end of the fall semester. The two minor election results.

Student wanting to candidate for the member-at-large positions must register with the AUSM election commission before they petition, or the petitioning would be invalid.

In order to get his name on the ballot, a student must have at least 300 qualified voting students sign for him or her as a member-at-large petitioner on the petition. The deadline for students filing for any member-at-large office at AUSM is March 11. The candidates filing for any office at large office, the AUSM afternoon committee has the discretion of holding a primary in order to reduce the candidates to five. If such a primary is held, the top five candidates will be chosen for the reactor candidates only.

Member-at-large positions will be discussed in a closed-door meeting after receiving all the member-at-large petitions.

Changes to improve NSA, ASMSU gap

1. By DIANE SHORT

\text{\textit{Student News Service Editor}}

The longstanding relationship between ASMSU and the National Student Association (NSA) should improve due to recent changes within the NSA structure. Robert Powell, former NSA president and ASMSU member-at-large, expressed confidence in the future of NSA and ASMSU's relationship.

Powell cited the problems arising at the state and national levels including the reorganization of service programs and the decentralization of the association structure. Powell said these changes should make it easier for NSA and ASMSU to work with one another.

The NSA President, who was unable to discuss student government problems and art programs, called the recent changes in the relationship between NSA and ASMSU promising.

Powell, a former student body President of the University of Michigan, said NSA's stance in defense of ASMSU changes that the association is doing nothing for the University, especially in the line of services programs.

Powell said that NSA had been working through ASMSU in the building of joint service programs such as the Combskie Program, which is an NSA-ASMSU handbook. The handbook is distributed to all Michigan State Students and provides information about NSA activities.

"NSA didn’t come through on our behalf with the Combskie Program," Powell said.

But ASMSU’s Collaborative Director, the University of Michigan, explained his position on the relationship between NSA and ASMSU.

"I think that NSA would have been a lot closer if it was working with ASMSU instead of at odds with each other," he said.

"It’s obvious that there’s room for improvement and that NSA and ASMSU are working closely together to bring about these improvements."

University Police have carried out a tuần action in the past few weeks to discourage students from calling the police for non-emergency situations.

"There’s been a lot of unnecessary activity in the police department," said police chief. Powell, during a press conference on Friday. "We’re trying to discourage people from calling us for things that don’t require our attention."

The police have received complaints about students calling for help when there was no immediate danger. Powell said that these calls were often related to non-emergency situations such as lost keys or locked cars.

"We’re working to educate the student body about the proper way to use the police department. In general, we want to make sure that people know when it’s appropriate to call the police," Powell said.

U’ police solve pathing cap riddle

\text{\textit{By LARRY LEE}}

University Police have carried out a recent action to solve a pathing cap riddle located on the campus last night. The riddle, which was found on the campus, was a puzzle designed to challenge students and encourage critical thinking.

According to police chief, Powell, the pathing cap riddle was located near the library and was intended to attract students to the problem-solving for fun.

"We’re trying to encourage students to think outside the box and use their problem-solving skills to solve the puzzle," Powell said.

The pathing cap riddle involved a series of clues that had to be decoded in order to find the solution. The riddle was designed to be challenging but also to be accessible to students of all ages.

"We’re hoping that the pathing cap riddle will inspire students to think creatively and use their problem-solving skills to solve real-world problems," Powell said.

Colds make Apollo delay likely

Governors denounce campus disturbance

Hesburgh said that students disrupting classes should be given credit for the inconvenience and that they should be treated as students who are co-operating with the educational program. The governor's statement reads:

"The executive committee of the National Governors Conference expects its full support for legislation on education." The governor went on to say that education was being jeopardized at a time of national crisis and that the government would be more likely to be faced with the same kind of problems in the future.

Harold Stoebeger, President of Eastern Michigan University, said in a statement that the students were being used as a pawn in a political game.

Stepter's defensive play earns Benington's praise

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

It is a safe bet that a majority of the MSU fans gathered on Pfieldhouse Tuesday night were impressed by the gold right arm of Patrick Ralph Benington.

But it was Stepter's play that won the game. The senior forward played perhaps the best game of his career, and his 23 points and 10 rebounds were big reasons why the Spartans defeated Purdue, 98-85.

"Stepter did a fabulous job," Benington said. "He was the best on him man-to-man that I have ever seen. Only four of his baskets were Stepter's fault." Before the Purdue game, Stepter's biggest offensive feat came at Indiana, where he scored 16 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

In the first half, Stepter played the entire 20 minutes. He had confidence that he could start with Benington. Said Stepter: "One of the reasons Step¬ ter was selected to the team this season was because I have worked so hard in practice and the season."

The fact he was being eased out of practice and working harder was known to the team. Ben¬ tington said: "This is the first time I have ever been on the court with him and Ralph."

"He's not back from a knee injury," Benington said. "I think that's why he's able to play with more confidence than ever before."

"But he's come back and relaxed some great basketball," Benington added. "I think he'll be a key player on that team."

The five-pointer Stepter shot was from the right side of the fieldhouse.

The Purdue game was a key to Ben¬ tington's return to the starting lineup. He had been out with an injury for about a month.

"He's a key player on that team," Benington said.

"He's been an excellent leader in the locker room," Benington added. "There aren't many players who can be so effective in that role."

Indiana will be a heavy favorite in the Big 10 swimming championship when the meet opens this weekend in Madison, Wis. Purdue is a strong contender, but the Huskies, who defeated the Boilermakers for the 1971-72 Big 10 title, are expected to challenge from the South. The Huskies and the Boilermakers will bring an Olympic contingent to the show. Coach Charlie Haskins, a 1964 Olympian, will guide the 1972-73 Big 10 Swimming Team. Purdue's strength lies in its senior class. Each team will bring a strong contingent of swimmers to the meet.
