By CHAD TEMPLETON
State News Service Writer

The AUSJ (MICHIGAN STATE University) investigative arm (AUSJ) issued an injunction against MHA (Michigan Federation of Students) on Wednesday night. The right to take office as president was rendered null due to a breach of the constitution by MHA.

The investigation began when the AUSJ received a complaint from a student who alleged that MHA had not followed the constitution. The AUSJ then began an investigation of MHA to determine if they had indeed broken any rules.

The AUSJ found that MHA had indeed broken multiple rules, including the requirement to hold elections and the requirement to have a majority of votes. The AUSJ then issued an injunction to prevent MHA from taking office.

The injunction was agreed to by the AUSJ and MHA. MHA has agreed to follow the constitution and hold elections.

Lawmakers meddling on campuses

State and federal lawmakers across the country have recently been growing very vocal over the campus unrest that has been striking so many colleges and universities.

Last week President Nixon entered the scene when he appointed the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, for a statement he issued that would rouse student dissidents after a 15-minute "meditation" period. Nixon added that President Agnew was being instructed to center at the center of the conflict. The campus unrest could be brought down by state and federal au-thorities with the cooperation of demonstrators.

Even though Hesburgh's statement was perhaps the most uncoordinated statement of a campaign taken that day by a college administrator outside of the Cali-fornia system. It was soon apparent that Hesburgh's words would not be enough to bring about a peaceful resolution of the conflict.

Hesburgh favors letting the uni-versity system itself deal with the problems in an orderly fashion; his words are not likely to quell the campus unrest. It is not clear what he would have to say to the university administrators.

While both Nixon and Hesburgh are trying to find a solution to the problems, efforts to mediate have scarcely been used. Nixon for his part, has been talking to the university presidents and the campus unrest.

However, the unrest seems to have been dampened somewhat by the anger of the state and federal authorities. It is not clear what the future will hold.

Begin by taking a stance

The SSB leaflet was being passed out by a group of black students at the University of California, Berkeley. "The title was 'Why is a Black Student?''" said one of the students. "It's all right because the leaflet says we should go to class and study," she said.

"We are the first generation of blacks to have the opportunity to go to college," said another student. "We want to be part of the campus, not just sit in the background and watch what happens."

The students were part of a larger group of black students who have been organizing on the university campus over the past few months. The group was established to promote black solidarity and to raise awareness of the issues facing black students.

The group has held meetings, organized events, and has worked closely with other campus groups to address issues such as tuition, race, and academic freedom.

Although the group has been successful in raising awareness and organizing students, they have also faced opposition from the administration, other students, and the broader society. Despite these challenges, the group remains committed to its goals and continues to work towards a more just and inclusive campus environment.

Admittedly, it's difficult to form a well-rounded opinion in the face of such a complex issue given the conflicting perspectives and recent events.

In summary, the situation on Hesburgh's campus is complex and requires careful consideration of all sides. The challenge for lawmakers and policymakers is to create a balanced approach that respects the rights of all students while also ensuring a safe and inclusive environment for everyone.

Past the point of no return

The student protest has reached the point of no return. In recent weeks, the number of incidents involving the police and protesters has increased. This comes after weeks of negotiations between the university administration and the student groups, which have failed to produce any meaningful solutions.

The police have been called in to break up several protests, leading to clashes between the two sides. The protesters have been demanding the resignation of the university president and the overhaul of the police force at the university.

The situation is tense, and it seems that a violent confrontation is imminent. The university administration has called for a peaceful resolution, but the protesters have not shown any signs of conceding.

The police have been authorized to use force to maintain order. The protesters have vowed to continue their demonstrations until their demands are met. It is unclear what will happen next.

Cagers Goopher winning season

By JOHN BROWN Sports Editor

It will be one more year before the Big Ten money-grubbed Lakers wiped out Michigan’s hopes in the Big Ten. The Spartans, who were up by a half, were led by Leslie Stirling, a former Big Ten champion.

There was no shortage of text for the Spartans in this year’s championship. Despite the upset loss to Wisconsin, Michigan has shown itself as a serious contender in the Big Ten.

Missouri’s Howard lost one of his best defensive players last week when the team was defeated by the University of Michigan, 62-59. Missouri, however, was able to hold on for the win.

The Missouri defense, led by sophomore guard Tom Kinsey, has been playing some of the best defense in the Big Ten. The team’s 10-game winning streak is the longest in the conference.

Dr. Smith has expressed regret for the actions of the university in this matter and has promised to implement new policies to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

NEW YORK (UPI) — All five medalists in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field team accepted payoffs from two German shoe manufacturers. Sports illustrated magazine Wednesday in a copyrighted article. The payoffs were $100,000 each to each of the five medalists. The magazine refused to name the players who doubtless didn’t realize that.

The magazine in question was the American Track News, as it was called before it started to make any real headlines.

Future plans

This stylish combination of apartments and businesses in part of the East Lansing redevelopment plan, molding natural surroundings with everyday living and shopping amenities.

By BILL CUMMINGS

MSU students will not have to look very far to see what’s new in Lansing. It will be clear in 1969-70 it will be an exciting year for cultural and entertainment.

Parking probably will not be a problem in the Lansing area, with a proposed $20 million parking ramp program under discussion. City councilmen and city parking officials will follow the progress of these projects, and are expected to be on hand for the introduction of the new ramps.

Another moving MSU to another City temporarily but those are a few of the changes in store for the East Lansing businessman district.

Bussert termed this project the “first step of a multi-revelop-ment project that will be in place and participate in the rezoning and development of the area.

Bussert said he is not sure yet whether the office complex will be a complex of one or two office buildings.

Completion of the multi-revolved project in the Lansing area will be in the last quarter of 1970.

TRENTON MALL

Michigan’s state could have a mall in Trenton.

The new mall would be called the Trenton Square, and would be constructed at the junction of State Highway B and the Trenton Road.

The mall will have three levels of retail space, and will be the largest retail mall in the state.

The mall will be called the Trenton Mall and will be completed in 1970.

Growth of colleges hurts Greeks' system

By CYNTHIA MEAL

Several colleges and universities have been forced to make changes in their Greek organizations as these organizations have become larger. Athens College, Ohio State, and University of Michigan are among many that have attempted to stop the independence movement of fraternities and sororities.

Many of the schools which possess large Greek systems have found themselves in the middle of controversy. As the schools grow, so do these organizations that are controlled by the "independent" movement.

Sex expresses conflict

Sex is often used today as an expression of discontent and disillusionment. In general, the role of women is often manipulated, and as a result, many women have become frustrated and have sought to express their feelings. This expression has often taken the form of suggestive gestures, teasing, or sexual advances. It is important to recognize that this behavior is not necessarily indicative of disinterest or malice, but rather a way for women to express their feelings of frustration and dissatisfaction with the current social order.

DeHoCo women start anew

By KATHY BURKE
Michigan State professors and also students constitute a significant percentage of persons who have been to prison. One good institution in particular, Detroit Bureau of Corrections, DeHoCo, is trying to help them.

Why do we not go pro-

This increase of inmates in the past years has been primarily of drug addicts. Michigan State is trying to help them.

Because education is such an important part of rehabilitation, DeHoCo has an extensive high school program. It is hoped that PEP, a volunteer program will give women a base for better jobs

PEP is a volunteer program devised by Miss Richard Ward of Ahlstrom parish is Detroit who works closely with the Bureau of Rehabilitation centers in Detroit.

New from St. Vincent's High School and Mercy College is the opening of a Detroit public high school for women who have been to prison. The school is open to women who have served six months or a year in prison.

DeHoCo features a study program in which they learn English, which is particularly important for them. There is also the possibility of attending college after graduation.

The school program at DeHoCo is aimed at these types of women. Clinical psychologists provide counseling. Alcoholism is a very big problem among women who have been to prison.

Alcoholism Awareness (AA) program has been established at DeHoCo and in about 30 other state prisons. Meetings are held every week for the 16 women and those who wish to be members.

They have to keep to stop drinking. Women said “AA attendance is important. Women try to help each other in this situation. They have told us that if we keep to AA attendance, we can do the same as our friends who are attending.

The DeHoCo Institution is in the process of expanding its facilities. There is a new building being constructed.

NO IMPACT IN LANSING

Black anti-Semitism erupts

By CYNTHIA LEE
The recent condemnation by the Jewish and Black leadership of the Supreme Court of the United States decision to uphold the 40-year-old Black Panthers versus the United States is of great concern to Jewish leaders.

The demand for Black anti-Semitism to stop is strong and will not be silenced.

The problem in Lansing is that there is a lack of understanding and acceptance of the problems faced by Blacks.

DeHoCo is a new project that has been established. The women who have been to prison are given a chance to start a new life. They are taught important life skills and are given a chance to learn new things.
