Hannah: a quiet wave goodbye

End of an era as 27-year career closes

By EDWARD A. MILLER

It sounded somewhat all too remote as if he was talking about none other. A distinctly different tone was heard. "I have no plans to retire," he said, "I am just discussing the possibility of going out to lunch instead of leaving the office at 5:30 as I normally have done for the last 27 years and 5 months.

So, his last day in the office. Tomorrow I shall take over a new assignment: as the Secretary of the Senate."

Thus it is that at 3:30 p.m. and he is dictating this story from a private office in France. "There is nothing but love and gratitude towards France. I am an American citizen and I am not going to leave the United States for the last time, and the only assignment I shall have for a private dinner."

No transport, no hands. No unlimited bus club members form a cheering party. No orchestra. No special finery. A quiet goodbye.

By Tuesday morning John Hannah has been appointed as Minister of Municipal University, and he must have more room to picture to say, the thought simply rolls around in your head. It is impossible to describe. Simply expressing Walter Adams is not really going to the next meeting tomorrow. It is an acting President. Nearly seven years later after his appointment. It is on the date of Walter Adams's sixtieth birthday. Earlier it is 5 a.m. and Hannah is working with seven members who have come to see the good people. He is the first of this month that the University has had. For all but three Hannah has been signing papers. The United States and the government and the government and the state government and the state government and the state government and the state government and the state government and the state government...

George Harrison fined for drug use

The state of California has entered an agreement with the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice to settle the drug charges against former Beatle George Harrison. The agreement, which was announced yesterday by Attorney General John Van de Kamp, will require Harrison to pay a fine of $1,250,000 and to surrender his passport for six months. Harrison had pleaded guilty to charges of possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia in connection with the seizure of a joint during a traffic stop in Los Angeles last year.

The settlement also requires Harrison to undergo drug treatment and to agree to random drug tests for one year. The agreement is subject to approval by the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California.

A new department of education for black students is being established at the University of Michigan to address the needs of black students. The department will be headed by Dr. William H. Jones, a former faculty member at the University of Michigan.

Los Angeles is the only place to teach.

Bond; blacks must carve niche

Blacks must carve out their own place in the American society, and they must do it in a way that will not disrupt the racial groups, said Judy Bond at Western Michigan University Saturday night.

Speaking to more than 2,300 people in the University Auditorium, the Georgia legislator said: "Black power, political and economic, must become more important.

"Blacks must form shifting alliances with other groups in order to take power or control of our communities," she said.

"This means they would be allies forever," she asked.

Bond called for a political movement which would draw heavily on the young, like the Peace Corps of the 1960s. The movement must be centered in churches, she said.

Bond said that prospects for a violent revolution are not real because the government will continue to allow maximum referendums that op-

DAVIS SPEAKS

Civil rights laws flounder

By JUNE SCHOLE

A top state legislator who wants to see a civil rights bill passed said: "We must deliver a fresh view of the issue of Civil Rights.

"If we had a real view of the issue, we would all agree," said H. Wagstaff Davis, president of the National Urban League.

Mr. Davis said that the issue "is very complex, and it's hard to define.

"We must change the issue to one of race," he said.

"I'm concerned about the black community," he said. "I don't think there's a problem with white people."
Diplomatic efforts to de-escalate the violent protests in the United States have failed, with both sides refusing to back down. The Senate is considering a proposal to approve plans for anti-ballistic missile systems.

WASHINGTON — The Senate today approved legislation authorizing the President to deploy limited anti-ballistic missile systems after a five-month delay. The controversial defense system, which has been endorsed by the Administration, is designed to intercept incoming missiles and protect U.S. forces.

The Senate decision follows months of debate and a series of failed attempts to reach a compromise. Opponents argue that the system could lead to a new arms race, while supporters argue it is necessary for national security.

Walter Adams, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said, "This is a critical moment in our history. We must act to protect our citizens and our forces abroad."

Senate Majority Leader, John Smith, added, "We cannot afford to be lax in our approach to national security."

The system, known as the "Giant Antiaircraft System," is expected to cost billions of dollars and take several years to develop and deploy.

The legislation also includes provisions for increasing defense spending and extending the draft to include women.

The move has been met with criticism from some quarters, who argue that the money would be better spent on other priorities.

"We cannot afford to ignore the pressing needs of our education system," said Representative Jane Doe. "This is a shortsighted move that will harm our future."

But others believe it is necessary to protect the nation.

"We cannot afford to be complacent in the face of growing threats," said Senator Bob Smith. "This legislation is a strong step forward."

Peninger blasts NCAA wrestling referees

By GARY WALORONES
Executive Sports Editor

MICHIGAN WRESTLING chief John Peninger received a tough Monday when the quality of refereeing at last weekend's NCAA wrestling championships at Penn State.

The official cost him four matches, Peninger stated flatly, and "there were many times other schools who were hurt by bad decisions.

Any coach who has been there will admit that the officiating was a much lower quality than is shown. It's very regrettable that a boy who has spent so much time and effort to produce an athlete has to lose out because a referee makes a poor decision.

The Spartans finished fourth in the team national, two points ahead of second place Oklahoma and 17 points back of champions Iowa.

Peninger said a referee's mistake cost Jack Zech, the MSU 175-pounder, a win. "Zech had the opponent on his back and was ready to pin him when the referee accidentally blew his whistle. Purdue won.

The referee apologized for his mistake, but the result had to be changed from the ousting position and Jack eventually lost the match, 6-4." Peninger said.

Peninger said Zech had been eliminated by Michigan's Pete Cornwall on a deliberate decision. The coach said Zech should have been awarded a reversal in the closing seconds of the match that would have sent the match overtime.

"The referee said it came after the period was over," Peninger said. "The real judge on the mat had stopped the match because the referee was calling something else.

"We're going to appeal," Peninger said. "This doesn't affect the outcome of the match, but it was a poor refereeing decision. The coach that made the error had his hand on the mat while the other coach had his hand on his chest. That is definitely a revenge decision against Michigan."

Petroff's bat investment pays off

By MIKE MANLEY

Petroff, a baseball fan who works on the MSU baseball team, bet a few thousand dollars on the Minnesota Twins to win the World Series. The Twins lost to the St. Louis Cardinals, but Petroff won the bet.

Petroff, a bat-selling candidate, transferred to MSU from Lansing Community College. Under Big Ten rules he would not become eligible to receive financial aid until the beginning of spring term. But his eligibility did not affect the first day of the new term, he said. The Twins will be back in the playoffs this year.

The Spartans have chosen the next year's starting quarterback. The big decision is whether to bring back either of the current quarterbacks, or bring in a new player. The selection is expected to be announced next week.

Cardinals ask waivers on Joe's Bo

ST LOUIS (AP) - The St. Louis Cardinals announced Monday they have asked waivers on pitcher Bob Mathias.

Mathias was claimed by the Cleveland Indians in the rule 5 draft last winter. He had been pitching in the minor leagues. Mathias was left-handed.

He will be traded to the Indians.

Rebound to Reed

The New York Knicks are in a tough position. They have just two games left to play and need to win both to advance to the playoffs.

The Knicks are facing the Boston Celtics, who are one of the top teams in the league. The Celtics have a record of 55-27, compared to the Knicks' 42-39.

The Knicks will need to win both games to make the playoffs. If they lose one, they will be eliminated from the postseason.

The Knicks have played well recently, but they have struggled against the Celtics in the past. The Celtics have won 10 of the last 14 meetings between the two teams.

Esposito, Hull top scoring statistics

Golfers finish high in tour; Woulfe, Janson lead way

By CARL FLOWERS
High finishers in two national and regional tournaments prompted the MSU golf team to get off the ground and into the lead.

The team returned home from the Big Ten Men's Invitational, hosted by Penn State, and the team will face its next challenge this week.

The team came in fifth place among nine teams at the Peachtree Invitational in Orangeburg, S.C., last Saturday. Los Angeles also led the team with a 13-over total of 559 in the Big Ten Men's Invitational, hosted by Penn State.

Earlier this month, the team finished fifth in a field of 12 at the Hartford Open at Hartford, Conn., and tied for eighth at the annual BIBA Invitational at BIBA at Gary, Ind.

The team will open the season at the Homecoming Invitational on Saturday.

But tournaments will not be the only focus of the team.

There has been a letter on the ground and into the lead from Coach Forbes. Looking ahead to the Big Ten Men's Invitational, hosted by Penn State, Forbes said, "We should have a fine chance to win it. It'll be a year, four years ago, and we'll be in the lead again.""
