Students fill Harvard stadium, majority passes 3-day strike

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—As Harvard students, in a familiar mass meeting Monday, voted to strike for three days and more if need be, they left for the first time in more than a month that classes continued on campus.

The action in Harvard Stadium after a crowd which at one point was estimated at more than 10,000 decided to walk off classes.

Two separate votes were taken at the assembly, open to all, to continue the strike indefinitely until the demands are met.

Gun duel across Suez aided by air dog fights

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Egypt fought with jets and guns around the Suez Canal Monday and each claimed the downing of a fighter bomber.

The Egyptians claimed that they shot down four, but the official communiqué did not mention any claim.

The Israelis said they shot down one.

The official communiqué claimed that in the fighting the Israelis lost seven tank and one half brigade three of their tanks carrying anti-tank rockets. Five observation planes and an administrative aide were shot down.

The Egyptian firing position was 10 miles to the north and a pocket position were silenced.

Since Egyptian air attacks have been over the canal, the Israeli air attack was the first against Egyptian troops around Port-Said.

The Israelis reported one soldier killed and two wounded in the ground fighting, bringing their total estimate to 130 men killed and 50 wounded. The Israeli killed was shot down near Port-Said.

The Egyptians, more than once, have accused the Israeli forces of firing at Egyptian citizens.

The Israeli air attack began with what an official police source described as a tank barrage against Israeli troops around Port-Said.

Wilson toughens budget, prepares to meet strikers

WILSON/ROBERTS—President Nixon gave Congress Monday what he termed a "heads-up" to a national economic crisis, continuing high taxes, higher prices and a "<TUMBLING TIDES/>" unemployment rate. He also asked for a new, more effective program to aid the poor.

"To say that we are in a national economic crisis is no exaggeration," he said. "It is not a term of art.
We are faced with the gravest economic..."
University should not sanction ROTC

Old tactics lose battles

William Hinton comments in his keynote address at the Inaugural ROTC ceremony that at last the mandatory program was doomed in name, if not in implementation.

In his address, Hinton refers to the reluctance of ROTC to respect the autonomy of its local chapters, particularly at MSU. He argues that the program is not integral to the educational mission of the university, and that its presence on campus undermines academic freedom and academic integrity.

Hinton calls for a change in the program's structure, which he believes would allow for more flexibility and autonomy at the local level. He suggests that the program should be restructured to allow for more input from the faculty and students, and that it should be more closely aligned with the university's academic goals.

Hinton's address reflects a broader debate within the academic community about the role of ROTC in higher education. Some argue that the program is a valuable tool for preparing students for leadership roles in the military, while others believe that it undermines academic freedom and diverts resources away from other important priorities.

Hinton's proposal has been met with mixed reactions. Some have praised his call for greater autonomy and flexibility, while others have criticized his approach as too lenient and insufficiently critical of the program's goals.

It remains to be seen whether Hinton's proposals will be adopted and how they will be implemented. However, his address has sparked an important conversation about the role of ROTC in higher education and the potential for reform to improve the program's alignment with the university's academic mission.

'Staircase' leads to success

By STEVE ROBIN
State News Reviewer

It's a long time between "Staircase" performances, but the "Staircase" series is one of the most popular in the Lansing area.

The production was well-received by the audience, with enthusiastic applause and响亮的 laughter. The play's humor and clever writing kept the audience engaged throughout.

The cast was strong, with a mix of experienced and up-and-coming actors. The actors' performances were commendable, and the chemistry between them was evident.

The set design was simple yet effective, with the staircase serving as a crucial element in the play's plot.

Overall, "Staircase" is a success, and I highly recommend it to anyone looking for a laugh and an engaging performance.

NEWS SUMMARY

Wasserman, 21, Muscleke, was arrested in December on a burglary charge. The charges stemmed from the use of certain four-letter words in the student newspaper, The Lantern.

To reduce the threat of student violence at Michigan colleges and universities, Rep. Lauren A. Anderson, R-Pontiac, introduced a bill that would make it a crime to possess and use a weapon on campus. The bill, which is supported by the major university administrations and legitimate student organizations, was proposed in response to the shooting at Kent State University.

Anderson said any school having violent confrontations would be required to make the weapons policy part of its general code for the whole school. Only the damage to the buildings but also the loss of students and faculty and the fear of that problem spreading is being recognized. Regular meetings with representatives of the students and administrators would ward off future disturbances, Anderson said.

About 18 rebellious students seized a Boston University dean's office Monday, held it for about three hours, and then left behind a small token group. There was no violence and no threats of police action. A spokesman for Students for a Democratic Society said the takeover was planned Sunday night.

A new effort is under way to establish the ROTC program within the University of Michigan in order to supply the growing demand for qualified pilots and cadets by expanding the University's educational opportunities. The new effort is being spearheaded by the Michigan National Guard, which has agreed to provide financial assistance to the University in developing and operating the ROTC program.

The ROTC program will provide students with an opportunity to gain practical experience in military leadership and to receive academic credit for their military training. The program will be administered by the University's Department of Military Science and will be open to all undergraduate students.

The program will also provide students with the opportunity to serve their country as officers in the U.S. Army, Navy, or Air Force, and to receive financial assistance in the form of ROTC scholarships.

The program will begin with an initial class of 50 students, and is expected to grow to a total of 200 students within the next two years. The University is seeking additional funding from the state of Michigan and from private sources to support the program.

The new effort is being supported by the Michigan National Guard, which has been actively involved in the development of the ROTC program. The Michigan National Guard is committed to providing the University with the necessary resources to support the program, and to ensuring that the program is successful in meeting the needs of the state.

The University is committed to providing a high-quality education to all of its students, and to preparing them for successful careers in a variety of fields.
