BEGINS SECOND YEAR

State of World to follow Nixon's State of Union

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon began his second year in office Tuesday by reviewing the state of the nation's economy, in the president's State of the Union address. The address marked the beginning of the administration's second year in office, the first since the resignation of Richard Nixon, who served as vice president from 1973 to 1974.

The speech was scheduled to be delivered on the day of the new year, the first since the resignation of Richard Nixon, who served as vice president from 1973 to 1974.

Driscoll challenges Milliken

By JEFF SHILLER
This Week Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: James "Jim" Driscoll (Detroit Free Press) announced his candidacy for governor of Michigan, setting the stage for what is expected to be a lively race in the state and beyond. Driscoll, a five-term state representative, has been a prominent figure in Michigan politics for years and is seen as a viable candidate for the Democratic nomination.

On Friday, Driscoll launched his campaign for governor with a speech in Lansing. He is currently serving his fifth term in the Michigan House of Representatives, where he represents the 63rd District, which includes part of Ingham County. Driscoll is a member of the Democratic Party and is running as an independent candidate.

Driscoll, 57, has been involved in local politics since the 1970s, serving as a city councilman in Lansing and as a member of the Ingham County Board of Commissioners. He also served as Lansing's city clerk from 1995 to 2000.

In his speech, Driscoll emphasized his support for issues such as healthcare, education, and infrastructure. He also called for greater transparency and accountability in government, and for a stronger economy.

Driscoll is the latest in a long line of candidates who have announced their intention to challenge Governor Rick Snyder, who is currently serving his third term.

"I'm running because I believe we have a lot more work to do," Driscoll said in his speech. "We can't afford to wait any longer."

Driscoll is facing a number of challenges, including his lack of name recognition and his relative inexperience in statewide politics. However, he has been active in local politics for many years and has a strong base of support in the Lansing area.

"I believe the people of Michigan are ready for change," Driscoll said. "I'm ready to hear their voices and make the changes they need."
D.A.s blame Nixon for My Lai trial bias

PT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Defense attorneys charged today that the Army could give Lt. Calley Jr. a fair trial by sending him to a federal court, where judges would be less inclined to make a decision to charge him with war crimes.

The decision came down through the chain of command and ultimately was rendered at Ft. Benning, where Calley is now serving 11 years for his 1967 massacre on the Vietnam War.

The evidence presented at a pretrial hearing on defense motions for a dismissal of the charges.

The trial judge, Lt. Col. Fred W. Kennedy, did not act on the motion itself. He adjourned the hearing until Feb. 9. Then he will take no more evidence on the "command control" issue.

Kennedy said it would be up to the prosecution to prove the defense point that command was to blame for the massacre.

After P.T. Benning attorneys submitted written evidence that the charge of "command control" was not supported, the judge said he would decide whether to permit defendants' evidence on the issue.

Friday, President Nixon approved the deployment of Army guardsman to the Windward Islands to stop illegal sea traffic. The deployment was a part of the United Nations' efforts to disrupt international drug smuggling.

HEROIN CASE

Court supports drug regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, over the vigorous dissent of three of its seven justices, Tuesday upheld the federal law that makes possession of heroin a crime while maintaining a general presumption of the drug from foreign countries.

Justice Byron R. White, writing for the 6-3 majority, said the statute fairly could be said to cut the law's "effectiveness to a minimum" for the crime of illegal importation of heroin. The justices, however, lifted a cloud from the"liberty interest in the right to use it" described by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, author of the dissenting opinion.

The 10-foot Heroin that moved, however, was a major source of heroin and was reduced in size on the drug's importation.

Justice White noted, as a majority had concluded, possession of heroin was "a serious danger to society sufficient to cause a man for the crime of illegal importation of heroin.

What else is new, Mrs. President?

For the past three weeks, the University of Michigan and the entire State of Michigan has been awaiting the time when MSU President Clifton Wharton will step down from the board of the board of the Board of Regents. The time has come, and the president's speech was, at best, a disappointment and at worst an abject failure.

Rather than addressing himself to anything of a specific nature, Dr. Wharton focused his effort on a diatribe of satirical vituperation. Mathematical analysis it would, undoubtedly, turn up no error or, more probably, in the negative column, the University and the community as a whole is probably in need of a progressive or even radically innovative leadership, we find that our new president is truly status quo and perhaps, even a bit backsliding.

This position is made abundantly clear in the second paragraph of the first speech that Wharton says, "that our new state is not a socialist state, but a state of citizens which is not socialist in its basic constitution, and the state is the community, the body politic, and the citizens are the basic elements of the state."

To this, Wharton adds, "the state is not a socialist state, but a state of citizens which is not socialist in its basic constitution, and the state is the community, the body politic, and the citizens are the basic elements of the state."

Wharton's speech is a remarkable exception to the trend of current presidential addresses which are usually superficial and lack substance. The president's speech is a clear and concise statement of his policy and his vision for the future of the University and the State of Michigan.

Wharton's address concludes with a call to the citizens of Michigan to work together to achieve a brighter future for the University and the State. The speech is a strong and inspiring message that will no doubt be remembered by all who heard it.
Wharton focuses on education's potential

It's the props that turn light
What are we? A bank. A big one. And growing all the time. We're the Bank of the Commonwealth.

We're looking for real people.

Not 9–5 mannequins. We want self-starters. Imaginative types. Ambitious people with backgrounds in administration, finance, accounting—people working towards a master's or bachelor's degree. People who'd be excited to start out in one of the most progressive financial institutions in the Midwest. That's what we are. A bank. A big one. And growing all the time.

We're first, time and again, with better services for the people of Detroit. We're innovators. And we're looking for more. If you'd be interested in working with people who have no interest in putting you in a rut, make an appointment to meet with our representative through your place employment counselor.

House bill to help individuals fight pollution

by JOHN BORGERT
State News Staff Writer

A bill to hold individuals and businesses responsible for pollution was introduced this week.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Ronald D. Deering (D-Detroit), seeks to impose penalties on anyone involved in the discharge of pollutants into waterways.

Deering said the legislation is necessary to prevent pollution of Michigan's waterways.

The bill would create a new class of offenses, punishable by fines and penalties, for anyone found responsible for the discharge of pollutants into state waters.

The bill would also establish a pollution control board to oversee enforcement of the new laws.

House Speaker Thomas J. Anderson (D-Detroit) said the legislation is necessary to address a growing problem.

"Pollution is a threat to our state's environment," Anderson said. "We must take action to protect our rivers and lakes."

'Don’t Drink Water’ an unfunny comedy

"Don’t Drink the Water," the film version of Allan Loeb's stage play, is a satire on such contemporary social issues as the drug craze, the war in Vietnam, and the concentration of films that fail to recoup in their box office. "Don’t Drink the Water" is a comedy that isn’t funny.

I can’t think of a more worthless motion picture that I have seen. Unlike stories which can fail and still leave intelligent streams of thought, ‘Don’t Drink the Water’ is a complete failure, a feeling that is not in the least bit funny. It is a comedy that fails on all levels.

The story is a simple one. A group of young people decide to set up a scheme to make money. They will find a hooker and ask her how much she wants to make in an hour. Then, they will take her to the ladies’ room and demand that she make up a story about how much she made. The group will then sell the story to a film producer for a large sum of money.

This scheme, of course, is a complete failure. The group is unable to find a hooker, and even if they did, they would be unable to get her to make up a story. The group is left with nothing but the memory of a failed scheme.

The film is a complete failure. It is a comedy that fails on all levels. It is a film that is not funny, and it is a film that is not worth seeing. The film is a complete failure, and it is a film that should not be seen.
They’ve got just the spot for you.

Maybe you sweated four years to lose your identity. To become a bit of information stored in a computer. We’ll, congratulations.

You’re got plenty of chance to become just that in our depersonalized, do-not-fold-spindle-or-mutilate world.

What you don’t have is much chance of escaping the numbers game and holding on to your identity.

Maybe we can give you that chance.

We’re Hoover. You probably know us for vacuum cleaners. And it’s we’re the biggest in that field.

Although the Spartan men's opener is not until Jan. 21, Coach Joe McKeever and his staff are already looking ahead to the Big Ten.

"John Moek, Howard Dougherty, Kip Poppey and Bob Bridges have been the most consistent of the seniors," McKeever said. "John leads the rat race to championship status of the Pack."

Moek took fourth in the Big Ten last year and is expected to do better this season. Bridges was second to Bill Wurvehm in the 1970 NCAA rebounds.

Zindel attacks opponents

The East Lansing product will put a chance to redeem that loss this season when the Spartans meet Oklahoma State in the Big 12.

Zindel was named a 2.2 Jose Chavarria in the Big 12 Game of the Mid-South Trophies in December.

Zindel's mindless wrestling career began in the 1986-87 season when he won 17 of matches and went on to win at state.

An injury sidelined him for the following season and gave Zindel the extra year of eligibility that he's using now.

Zindel learned in a defensive manner on the Spartans football team in the fall of 1966.

After a year's break from competition wrestling and getting a trial start with the two-pegging troopers from Iowa, he's now in the middle of his second season.

With only a moderate record against Big Ten foes, Zindel was the No. 3-seed wrestler at 177 in the conference meet.

High school grades are the best, but not the only basis for future scholarships, fellowships and employment, and are in a sense their own reward in themselves.

"We can never say for one human being what grade more, but it's only the same...

Worther said most students to drill several grades of a grade the same in math and science, but it's hard to do it

"After adjusting to college, most good students graduate at grades and work to get a B. The grades come first.

All American students wouldn't always accept Worther's

"An individual is not out of school for a few years, but grade has a different human being and new career, perhaps with the same grade for college.

"Generally the G.I. comes back highly motivated. And considerable motivation is needed for the older student starting life to go back to college at a school that is better.

If a student has low grades, admission examination pass his test case to be reviewed and others why don't work in high school, Worther said.

"When a student plans to work to be the honest we can only professional.

This doesn't mean we've right all the time.

According to Worther, it has as long for academic, professional and personal training, because people who have not been in the educational system tend to be any grade, but success.

The high school student who has been accepted to college with a grade of 85, and is the student who gets a B. The grades are not as important in college as in high school.

All grades are handled individually.
