Board restructured; tax increase fails

By CYNTHIA NEAL

WASHINGTON (AP) - The military has dropped plans to cut as many as 10,000 staff jobs in January, draft boards were ordered to submit to military service at least 50 percent of the number of available men in the draft lottery. The Pentagon spokesman said the order would be effective as of January 1.

A Pentagon spokesman said the order was in response to a request by the Department of Defense for more people to be available for service. The order would require draft boards to ensure that at least 50 percent of the eligible men in their area are available for service.

The order comes as the military faces a shortage of qualified volunteers, and the Pentagon has been considering other measures to increase its available pool of recruits.

Another order that was issued was that all eligible men must be available for service. The order is effective as of January 1.

It is not clear how the order will be enforced or how it will be implemented.

Harvesters from Cuba meet their replacements

By MARILYN PATTERSON

The National Union of Students, an organization that represents students at all levels of education, has called for a national strike on March 8 to protest against the government's policies and the lack of democracy in Cuba.

The union has been demanding better wages and working conditions for students, as well as the right to free speech and assembly.

The strike is expected to last for three days and is being organized across Cuba.

Group protests delay of events building talk

By J. MILLARD BARTON

A group of students from the University of Michigan has protested against the delay of an event that was scheduled to take place on campus.

The students are demanding that the event be held as scheduled, and they have organized a protest to draw attention to their concerns.

The event in question is a lecture by a prominent scholar, who has been invited to speak on campus.

The lecture was scheduled for next week, but it has been postponed due to a conflict with another event. The students are angry about the delay and believe it is unfair to them.

Board members condemned the occasion of the report as an abuse of power and stated that it should be handled with the utmost of caution.

No one could say exactly how many students had been affected by the delay, but the group estimated that it was at least 1,000.

The students also expressed concern about the impact of the delay on their ability to participate in the event. They noted that the delay would likely cause many students to miss the event, which they consider important for their academic and professional development.

The students called on the university administration to address their concerns and ensure that the event is held as scheduled.

Cuba given aid increase from Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Soviet Union has sharply increased its military aid to Cuba, with officials saying the move gives the Soviet Union a major advantage over the United States in the Cuban crisis.

The aid increase is seen as a significant move by the Soviet Union to strengthen its military position in Cuba and to counteract the influence of the United States in the region.

The move comes as the United States continues to exert pressure on the Soviet Union to withdraw its military personnel from Cuba.

The aid increase is expected to be welcomed by the Cuban government, which has been seeking increased military aid from the Soviet Union to bolster its military capabilities.

The aid increase is also seen as a move to counteract the influence of the United States in the region, which has been seeking increased military aid from the Soviet Union to bolster its military capabilities.

Taxi!

Campus drivers have found themselves performing a unique taxi service due to the limited availability of public transportation. Some might groan and just drive by, but others don’t want to miss out.

A student who recently searched for taxi services on campus said, "I really enjoy the taxi service initiated by the initiative and see it as a positive. We hope that Mr. Dossin will continue the initiative and see it grow even more."
Adams opposes grievance bill

By LARRY LEE
State News Staff Writer

Former President Walter Himelright has written the House Committee on Colleges and Universities that he believes a proposed student grievance bill would narrow rather than broaden student participation at MSU.

"I suspect that if the bill is passed, a number of students will be less willing to participate," Himelright, a former member of the Board of Trustees, wrote in a letter to the committee.

The Judiciary Committee of the House moved Thursday, the Student Faculty Judiciary Board's request for a hearing and suggested that he be placed on the Agenda of the House Student Affairs Committee for a hearing.

Himelright supported the student's bill to create a grievance system for on-campus matters and opposed the current system of the state board of trustees.

"Students are increasingly coming to realize that they are at the mercy of a board of trustees that doesn't have to be voted out if it does a bad job," Himelright said. "I believe that this [student]...

Rogers stern on African requests

A bill that would reduce Michigan's Civil Rights Commission to a secretive, investigative body was approved Tuesday by the House Thursday by state Rep. Stanley P. Powell, D-Auburn Hills.

Powell said that under present conditions the Commission often investigates its own allegations of discrimination.

"This is not a proper function of the Commission as I see it," Powell said.

Blood donors sought as drive closes today

The annual winter blood drive sponsored by the Red Cross closes Monday, but donors can again be accepted through Thursday.

The drive is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The number of donations through Dec. 12, 85 tickets had been collected.

The drive was originally scheduled for six weeks, but the shortage of blood was so great that it was extended two weeks.

National News

The Army has taken command of the 31st Infantry Division in the Middle East after the departure of the 3rd Marine Division.

"The division is composed of African and Middle Eastern troops and is stationed in the desert area near the Suez Canal," a military official said.

Bureaucracy increased by grievance committee

A recent Michigan House position to Representative George F. Montgomery, Detroit, calls for the establishment of grievance committees "manus of other than one student at a time institutions of higher learning, junior and community colleges. While Rep. Montgomery's position is progressive and positive in theory, this can only be accomplished by the apathy of administrators and legislative meddling in student affairs.

Through the development of the Academic Freedom Report and the descendant student judicial structures, students at MUJ have taken the lead on constructing a committee system with the help of dealing with grievances. The channels for presentation and redress of grievances (although not exactly the same) are similar in private universities and colleges in Michigan.

In the academic nature of the committee system at school is that it is an organized, confusing and organized, is such a way, to turn students completely off to student government. An additional grievance committee as suggested by Rep. Montgomery would only contribute more to the already powerful bureaucracy of committees.

Part of the proposal stipulates that findings and recommendations of the student grievance committees shall be advisory to authorities such as the college president, chancellor or director and the state department of education. A committee with such "non-power," i.e., advising, would not increase student confidence in the central governing body, thus would only widen the gulf of misunderstanding there is between the students and the administration. Rep. Montgomery deserves praise for his originality. However, students with committees established in private universities and colleges is crucial, at this time, to regain control over committees which might exist but without which the grievance committee would only exacerbate that unfortunate mistake.

"Just tell 'em — It could have happened to anybody!"

POINT OF VIEW

TV teaching economy a necessity

The former days I have been enjoying myself tremendously in my new role as a member of the Student Activities Committee. Some of my duties include attending the monthly meetings, serving on the program committee, and helping with the planning of the upcoming activities. I have found these activities to be quite enjoyable and fulfilling.

I am currently working on a project that involves researching the potential benefits of incorporating television into the educational system. My goal is to determine the feasibility and effectiveness of using television as a teaching tool in schools across the country.

Through this project, I aim to explore various aspects of television's role in education, such as its impact on student engagement, the potential for improved student performance, and the cost-effectiveness of using television in the classroom. By examining these factors, I hope to provide valuable insights into the potential benefits of incorporating television into the educational system.

I believe that the use of television in education can offer significant advantages, including increased accessibility to educational resources, the ability to reach a larger audience, and the potential for teaching in innovative and engaging ways. However, I also recognize that there are potential drawbacks to consider, such as the need for appropriate content and the potential for technological issues.

Overall, I am excited to continue working on this project and exploring the potential benefits of incorporating television into the educational system. By doing so, I hope to contribute to the ongoing conversation about the future of education and the role of technology in shaping it.

Nothing but lip action from the Honors College

There has been much talk recently about the future of the Honors College. Unfortunately, it seems to be more of a distraction than anything else.

Currently, the Honors College is primarily focused on serving students who have some unique academic promise. However, there is a strong argument that the Honors College should be expanded to include all students who may benefit from its programs.

The Honors College has often talked about the need for change, which is a common theme in the academic world. Unfortunately, the Honors College has not made any significant changes in this regard.

I am therefore left to rely on my own observations and experiences with the Honors College. While I cannot speak for all Honors College students, I can say that there have been some positive changes in recent years, such as increased resources and a stronger focus on student engagement.

As for the students taking economics courses, they have expressed some concern about the quality of instruction. However, my understanding is that the instructors are well-qualified and have a strong commitment to teaching.

As a student myself, I believe that the Honors College has the potential to provide a unique and enriching educational experience. However, further action is needed to ensure that all students have access to its programs and benefits.

Alcatraz Community needs aid

The Editor

To the Editor: Many Americans are "disenfranchised" and are unable to receive a quality education at the present day. In order to improve the situation, it is necessary to provide a better understanding of the issues in this article.

The article states that the use of television can help to improve educational outcomes. However, this viewpoint is not universally accepted. Many believe that face-to-face interaction is more effective for learning.

Furthermore, the article suggests that the use of television can reduce costs. However, this may not be the case in all situations. The cost-effectiveness of using television in education is not a straightforward issue.

In conclusion, while there are potential benefits to using television in the classroom, it is important to consider the various factors involved. By doing so, we can better understand the role of television in education and make informed decisions about its future use.

I am DAVE BESCH

When you hear people saying that we should have a free press, please take into account that the media is controlled by a select few. The media is not a neutral force, but rather a powerful tool that can shape public opinion and influence policy decisions.

It is essential that we have a diverse and independent media that can hold those in power accountable and provide truthful information to the public. Without such a media, the democratic process can be undermined and the voice of the people can be stifled.

In order to ensure a free and democratic society, it is crucial that we support and promote independent media that are not controlled by corporations or political interests. By doing so, we can help to guarantee that the voice of the people is heard and that our democratic institutions remain strong.

Black Panthers: the toll has risen to 200

While students sit in classroom studying proposals to expand states and localities, the Black Panthers are fighting for their rights. The Black Panthers, a group that was formed in the 1960s to fight against police brutality and to advocate for civil rights, are still at work today.

The toll of the Black Panthers’ struggle has risen to 200, with many more people affected by the violence and police brutality that they have faced. The Black Panthers continue to fight for their rights and for a more just society.

The Black Panthers were formed in response to the violence and police brutality that was inflicted on African Americans in the United States. The group was founded in 1966 by Huey Newton and Bobby Seale, two African American activists who were fed up with the way that the police and the government were treating black people.

The Black Panthers fought for civil rights and against police brutality, and they were often met with violent retaliation. The group’s members were arrested, beaten, and even killed for their activism. Despite the danger, the Black Panthers continued to fight for their rights.

Today, the Black Panthers’ legacy lives on in the work of many organizations and individuals who continue to fight for civil rights and against police brutality. The toll of the Black Panthers’ struggle may be high, but the fight for justice and equality must go on.

Support the bus drivers!

The recent past complemented with books and articles found in the Library, the recent McNab, a "bus," McDonald Hall, have thrown themselves into organizing a project. It presents to everyone a tale of this particular bus driver, who is so far as we know, the only one. A tale that oddities, but not the bus, but the actual drivers. They have gone to great lengths to encourage the drivers to do their work. The following is a brief summary of what they have done:

Protest planned

The demonstration, according to the President of the McNab, has been scheduled for Thursday afternoon, in the presence of the administration. A meeting was held where the students and the administration were present. A protest was planned to be held on campus, and this has been approved by the administration.

Pulling one on the students

The students have been informed that the bus driver will be the one to notice their complaints and suggestions. They have been asked to make use of the bus drivers as they are, not as they are now.

No parking one

While the bus drivers remain "at it," the President is not satisfied and does not stop them.

Three suggestions for the bus problem

To the Editor:

The present "Hobie" bus drivers at MSU offer an extremely inconvenient transportation situation on campus. Many of our fellow students take the bus on a regular basis, sometimes every day.

1. Bus drivers are not always aware of the location of the university buildings.
2. Bus drivers do not always follow the schedule.
3. Bus drivers do not always respect the wishes of the passengers.

We urge the administration to take these suggestions into consideration. For example, the administration could assign a bus driver to each building on campus, and have a schedule for each bus run.

Tests ‘rape’ blacks--Williams

By JEANNE SADDLER
Associate Features Editor
Robert L. Williams, chairman of the association of Black Psychologists (ASP), said that his organization was seeking for a man on all psychological testing of blacks.
Williams, a group of professors and students at a symposium "Black Psychology" held in Detroit, Michigan, said that not only were these types of tests unfair to blacks, but that the Community too has been affected by white racism for the years.
The ASP, which grew out of the 1968 convention of the American Psychological Association (APA), is now an independent organization that seeks to broaden the number of psychological tests and to develop a valid psychological test for the black race.
Williams added that the results of all the tests are based on the fact that the black race is not related to the white race.

Chicago Seven: conspirators or idealists?

News Background

The trial which ended in the acquittal of the Chicago Seven last week was a legal milestone. It was one of the first high-profile trials to be held under the new civil rights laws. The case involved seven defendants who were charged with conspiracy to incite a riot during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. The defendants included leaders of the anti-war movement, student activists, and members of the Black Panthers. The trial lasted for over three months and was considered a landmark case in American history.

The defendants were acquitted by a jury of 12 federal judges, who found that the evidence presented by the prosecution was insufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendants had conspired to incite a riot. The acquittal was seen as a victory for civil rights advocates and a repudiation of the government's efforts to suppress dissent.

The trial was a significant event in the history of the anti-war movement, and it helped to galvanize support for the movement. The acquittal of the Chicago Seven was seen as a symbol of hope for a new era of protest and social change.

The trial also highlighted the role of the media in shaping public opinion. The trial was the subject of intense media coverage, and it was followed by millions of people around the world. The trial was also the subject of several films and books, which helped to keep the story in the public's consciousness.

The Chicago Seven case is widely regarded as one of the most significant events in American history, and it continues to be studied and debated for its lasting impact on the civil rights movement and the history of the United States.

ANOTHER SCHISM? Celibacy may rift Church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has put a foot in the door toward调解 growing division within the Roman Catholic Church over the issue of the celibacy of priests by issuing a study calling for a rethinking of a requirement that all priests live as monks.

Two leading newspapers said the move threatened the Church with another schism. From the Rhine to the Rhone, the Pope’s words were echoed by the world’s bishops and faithful who saw in it a move toward change in the Church, which until now has been absolutely against any talk of reform.

The speech was a pointed rebuke to the Vatican’s proposals for reform, which have been met with resistance. Many priests and Church officials see the proposals as a threat to the institution.

By MATTHEW GARRETT

When Children's Art Fair comes to East Lansing this fall, featuring over 650 drawings and paintings the young artists made under the guidance of local art instructors, October 22 at East Lansing's Michigan University, the children will be able to view the special exhibit that starts with a time hook and the children's work.

Each of the children will be able to paint a picture of themselves in one of the themes. Field trips are planned and several children can participate in the special exhibit and the children's work will be displayed at the Children's Art Fair

Cagers seek winning road at Iowa

By MIKE MANLEY

State News Sports Writer

Most crowds around the Big Ten play with considerable fear when they think about Iowa. It's a prime team in front of Purdue in the league, and seems to have a formidable defense. The Hawkeyes are scoring close to 100 points a game in the league and almost 100 points against Wisconsin.

There are several reasons for the Hawkeye's smooth play. Good defense and the idea that they've been thinking about it for weeks. The best factor is the ability of the team to shut out the opposition and keep the offensive attack in a position to beat Wisconsin. The defense is determined to continue to shut out the offense and keep the Hawkeyes from scoring in the Big Ten.

John Schowengerdt, who coached the team from 1965, has been in charge of the radio broadcasts that call, the shots. Johnson is, "the greatest basketball player in Iowa history."

On the court Johnson doesn't just about everything except hand out the towels during the timeouts. He is the leading scorer, a top perhaps defensive player and is the main man on the team. He is always in a position to pass the ball.

Ralph Miller, a former Iowa star who played the lead role in Iowa's 3-11 game, is, "a great defensive player."

The only new face in the lineup is a 6-8 guard named Brown from Iowa's 3-11 game. A passer defensive player and a great passer, he is a key member of the Wisconsin team. He has a lot of ability and is able to blend into the lineup.

Earlier in the week, the Hawkeyes under the leadership of their experienced players, showed off a high scoring Hawkeyes.

If you heard Merle Haggard singing "Okie from Muskogee" and hated it...

Perhaps you're not the only one. Merle Haggard himself has expressed his dislike for the song, saying it's not what he intended it to be. However, many people enjoy it for its unique style and the way it captures the essence of a rural lifestyle.

Bo to return to job angered by report to contrary

"There's no way anybody could keep me from going back to my job," Michigan Football Coach Don Michener said after the game. "We're going to make sure that he's back as soon as possible." The team's decision to replace him was made after a report to the contrary.

"He's been on our first day of spring practice," the coach said. "He's never been as good as he is now. He's not the kind of player you can keep out of the game for very long." The coach also said that he would not be on the field for every play in practice, and that he would not be back as soon as possible. The coach ended by saying that he would be back as soon as possible.

"I don't think we've seen our best yet," the coach said. "We'll keep working on it until we do."

Zindel back as ‘S’ meets Sooners

By GARY KALONICZ
Executive Sports Editor

The MSU wrestling team will get a chance to erase one of their most humiliating losses ever when Oklahoma invades the MSU Arena at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Spartans met the then—possibly—powerhouse Sooners in Norman, Okla., last season and only a victory by Jeff Bittner at 176 pounds could save any face. MSU was whitewashed at 92-0, 2-5. This Oklahoma squad won’t be quite as up to par in the tradition of Oklahoma wrestling.

The Sooners squad has been hurt by injuries and inexperience in the last year, but they still have the talent of the 12 dual meets, including their loss to Oklahoma last season.

OU has lost to Oklahoma State (27-5), Cal Poly (29-11) and defending national champion Iowa (21-10). MSU beat Cal Poly 18-12 last season and lost to Oklahoma State by one point, 16-15. MSU senior Keith Benesh would favor MSU, but OU wrestlers don’t feel as easy, and that anything could happen on Saturday.

"Any time we have a match we want to win and that is the key to trying to do what we can in the match," said OU Coach John McWilliams. "We have had our moments the past two years.

The Spartans have had trouble success against Sooners teams in the past. Last year’s MSU

Mrs. Wharton a traveler, art buff

BY JACOB MILLER

Michigan State News Staff Writer

Mrs. Clifton Wharton enthusiastically discussed her visits to foreign countries and the interest in art as a means of learning about those countries during an informal coffee hour in the Union Main Hall on Thursday.

Emeritus Professor of English and head of the English Department, Mrs. Wharton, said that she was the first to travel to Asia and Europe to bring back works of art for the University's collection.

"I felt very much at home in Asia," she remarked. During their six-year stay in Singapore, Mrs. Wharton said she had visited Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, and Indonesia.

The art collection she displayed today, which was before the large-scale fighting began in 1970, Mrs. Wharton said it included over 50 works of art from her visits to the area that are now on display.

Artists, poets see love differently

By KATHY MORAN

State News Staff Writer

Since 1900 A.D., love has been the subject of many novels, short stories, songs, poems, and films. Philosopher Immanuel Kant declared that it is the "sublime" of human emotion. And novelist D.H. Lawrence wrote, "Love is a force that changes everything it touches."

In an effort to explain the philosophy of love in numerous ways, "The Prophet" is the latest novel by the poets. The novel is for those who have a longing for love as a radiant light, a person who has a need to be loved, or a person who loves to be loved.

A contemporary poet, William Carlos Williams, says love is a "delight of the soul," a "joy of being someone else for a while."

"It's not how much you love, it's how much love you give."

In a world where the social media is a constant reminder of love, "The Prophet" is a reminder of love's true meaning. In a world where love is seen as a superficial emotion, "The Prophet" is a reminder of love's true meaning.

When love turns sour, there is a tendency to blame the other person for being unlovable. "The Prophet" is a reminder of love's true meaning. In a world where love is seen as a superficial emotion, "The Prophet" is a reminder of love's true meaning.
