Wharton to form admissions commission

By JIM CRANE

MARTHY PATTERSON

President A. B. Wharton announced yesterday that he intends to form a permanent admissions policy and procedures commission to study Wharton's role in creating the admissions policies of a changing society.

"We are in a position to develop an admissions policy that will be fair and equitable," said Wharton, who also teaches in the economics department. "We believe that within 10 or 20 years the school will be rethinking a few high school graduates who are thoroughly qualified." He added that the commission would also investigate each individual's attitudes about open admissions. People have a continuing and vital interest in higher education.

"The pressures are not necessarily economically disadvantageous but economically disadvantaged are likely to have lower IQs and higher IQs and higher achievement," he said. "This is a trend that we should be concerned with.

Students will have the opportunity to attend an international conference in Washington this summer. The conference will be held at the Washington International Trade Center, and is being sponsored by the Student Peace Congress. The conference will focus on the role of young people in international affairs.

The conference will feature keynote speakers, panel discussions, and workshops on topics such as global peace, human rights, and international law. Students will have the opportunity to network with other young peace activists from around the world and to learn from experienced peace advocates.

The conference will take place from June 25 to June 28, and students interested in attending should register early. The cost of attending the conference is $250, which includes accommodations and meals. Scholarships are available for students who demonstrate financial need.

For more information, please visit the conference website at www.studentpeacecongress.org.

A team of gunship and scout helicopters of the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division pounced on North Vietnamese news Tuesday in the jungles north of Saigon, scattering them in a series of brief actions. Reports from the field said 11 North Vietnamese were killed. No American casualties were reported. Cobra gunships and observation helicopters were watching an area near Long Binh, 43 miles northeast of Saigon, where they spotted a group of North Vietnamese soldiers in a jungle clearing.

Prime Minister Golda Meir was quoted Tuesday for an end to bloodshed in the Middle East. Speaking in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, Mrs. Meir said: "Once again we see the Arabs - not out of weakness - and ask you to put an end to bloodshed and talk peace." Mrs. Meir suggested reciprocal observance of the cease-fire Mrs. Meir reiterated Israel's position on the war: "We say that Israeli's operations on the East front are in reprisal for Egyptian operations.

Government troops were moving on the west side of the Plain of Java in an orderly fashion Tuesday, stable sources said. Air strikes were apparently avoiding a North Vietnamese advance. The government's front moving on the plain has been going on for six days. Reports Tuesday said in southeastern Java, 12 rockets were fired at Pakar airfield Monday. The reports said a choice of 12 killed and three wounded. Nine civilian homes, a monastery and rice fields were damaged.

Israel jets bombed two Egyptian military bases within 20 miles of Cairo Tuesday, and shock waves rattled windows in the capital. An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv said the planes struck at depth storing Soviet-built SAM missiles. Both targets were close to the neutral city of Alexandria, he said. The spokesman said the planes steered clear of civilian centers around Cairo in his fifth day's attack on a civilian factory which Israelis say was involved.

President Nixon said Tuesday he is ordering a military part of the Vietnamization program on schedule. He made the comments after a 90-minute long report from Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, who has just missed a trip to Hanoi.

The success of the Vietnamization program, under which South Vietnamese forces take on U.S. combat roles, will be determined in war, is one of the factors on the horizon that determine the future of Saigon and possible U.S. troop withdrawals. Nixon said the nonmilitary aspects of the situation are "magnificently encouraging.

The visit was being done in order to prepare for the national convention in Dallas this week, in which Richard W. Nixon will conclude Sunday meeting with Pres. Nixon. The three-day gathering will include speeches by those presenting the real stake in this movement, a group of North Vietnamese generals.

A media alert will begin Wednesday with a seminar which will include details of the convention's schedule, format changes and distribution of newsmakers. The media alert will be followed by a " Universität" of organization and environmental trends.

MACHINERY OF DEMOCRACY IS HARDLY ‘INSIGNIFICANT’

The inefficiency of student government and the lack of delegate representation has been demonstrated by last Thursday’s elections. More than 1200 voting cards were used without inconvenience in voting because ballot boxes were not placed in either east or west Fee Halls. Furthermore, the ballot cast at Snyder Hall was very much lower.

It depends upon whom one is listening to as to whom the blame lies. ASMSU claims that each residence hall is supposed to determine its own election procedures. Snyder Hall president Dan Himelrick, on the other hand, that the distribution of ballot boxes was pretty shabby. In actuality both parties are likely justly guilty.

More discouraging is ASMSU’s attitude toward delegate representation. Elections have been contested successfully in the past for this reason. Yet ASMSU has written off the whole thing as insignificant, thus the results of the election have probably not been affected.

The fact that 1200 were seriously inconvenienced in voting cannot be so easily rationalized away. The residents of Fee Hall could have voted at Hubbard Hall, but most of the residents of Fee never found out until the voting was over. Although extremely unlikely, a mass movement in Fee could have reversed the results of the election.

The main reason that ballot boxes were never placed in Fee Hall was that ASMSU did not contact M. P. Hoffman, President Tom Lacey, before leaving town. Even then, ASMSU must have known that they didn’t have enough time to get organized. Apparently the thought was lost because setting up ballot boxes in the learning lines restored their minds.

In the Snyder fiasco, Peters claimed that ASMSU had not given him any information about voting procedures. Apparently Peters thought that ASMSU would pick up the balls while ASMSU thought he had them there. What is it all if ASMSU did not know what a well planned campaign was.

All of the point the ballot boxes should have been distributed to all residence halls at registration. In this way everyone would have an equal chance to vote and the less than 20 per cent participation that occurred in the last election will be avoided.

Conant supports education reform

Computer combats course redundancy

by SHIRLAM STENTISH

State News Staff Writer

The redundancy of course offerings is being combatted by University's Division of Instructional Systems (UDIES), a computerized management information system. The project's objective is to provide a personalized course outline and a summary of educational interests for any given group of students.

Developed by John F. Franzkich, associate professor of education, the computer programming computer, operated by faculty, administration and students to determine the similarity and redundancy in their respective educational programs.

UDIES supplies students with personalized course outlines and restrictions for course selection. It also helps students obtain a personalized course outline, and a summary of educational interests for any given group of students.

This system will provide a faculty member with a better insight into his students' needs. The system's objective will be met when the computer is in full operation. In order to complete the personalization of all data, the educational objectives of faculty, students and administration are obtained through a survey questionnaire.

The computer provides these data in an easy to read format. The data is then used to create a personalized course outline and summary of educational interests for any given group of students.
Students press 'U' reform

A proposal to abolish the admissions policy has been tentatively approved by the University Committee on Admissions. The policy has been under consideration by the University Committee on Admissions for approximately one year. The proposal, which was recently approved, will be sent to the Board of Trustees for approval.

The proposal, if approved, would result in the elimination of the admissions policy. The policy, currently in effect, requires that all applicants to the University of Michigan meet certain minimum requirements in order to be admitted. These requirements include a minimum GPA of 3.0, a minimum SAT score of 1200, and a minimum ACT score of 27.

The proposal, if adopted, would result in a significant change in the admissions process. Instead of requiring applicants to meet certain minimum requirements, the University would be able to consider each applicant on an individual basis.

The proposal has been met with mixed reactions from the University community. Some members of the faculty and administration support the proposal, believing that it would result in a more merit-based admission process. Others, however, are concerned that the proposal would result in a less diverse student body.

The proposal will be sent to the Board of Trustees for approval. If approved, the next step would be to present the proposal to the University Senate for consideration.

"The proposal, if approved, would result in a significant change in the admissions process. Instead of requiring applicants to meet certain minimum requirements, the University would be able to consider each applicant on an individual basis," said University President John B. Hennessy.

"We believe that this approach would result in a more merit-based admission process. While we recognize that there may be some concerns about this proposal, we believe that it is in the best interests of the University to consider such changes," he added.

Draft resistor

Davie Dowdy, State News Staff Writer

City All-Sports High School coach Lloyd Towle announced yesterday that his school would host a draft resistor orientation meeting this week.

One of two Catholic high schools in New York City, I.B. City High School traditionally has had a highly visible presence in the city's political and social scene. The recent orientation meeting, however, was the first of its kind in New York City.

Draft resistor orientation was introduced at I.B. City High School to inform students about the direct consequences of conscription and to encourage them not to resist the draft.

"We believe that our students should have a clear understanding of the implications of the draft," Towle said. "We feel it is important for them to have this information so that they can make an informed decision about their future."
State abortion reform seen hopeful

By ARN HODGE

An assistant to Michigan senator Gilbert Bursley, R-Auburn, dismissed the chances of a pending abortion reform bill in House of Representatives Monday evening.

Mrs. Marquis, a 1970 graduate, who was unable to attend because of illness.

"When Sen. McCray (Sen. McCray, D-Wayland) brought me the bill, I sat there and asked, 'is this bill any worse than what we've been discussing up to this point?" she said. "And I said no. I mean, I don't know what it means. It's just so that we can vote on it."

The bill was sponsored by Sen. McCray and Sen. Wagner, R-Midland, and would provide a way for the state to get out of the abortion business.

"I'm not sure if it will have any effect on our constituencies," she said. "But I do know that if it does, it will be a plus for us."

‘Putney Swope’ needs guidance

The chairperson of the advertising agency board into whom the company-based mass media is blown to the wind, and the viewer feels that the real world is falling apart. ‘Putney Swope’ is the latest addition to this trend of absurd, surreal, and metaphysical cinema.

The film opens with a montage of print advertisements, set to a jarring new wave soundtrack. The viewer is immediately plunged into a world of slogans, jingles, and slogans, all played over a constant drumbeat. The camera then zooms in on a single advertisement, which is shown in slow motion and then explodes into a million fragments.

The film follows the story of Putney Swope, the head of an advertising agency, played by Al Pacino. Swope is a man of great ambition and a love of power, and he uses his position to manipulate and control his employees. The film depicts Swope’s descent into madness as he becomes increasingly isolated and paranoid.

‘Putney Swope’ is a film that is often described as a critique of the advertising industry and the media in general. It is a film that is not for everyone, but those who are willing to engage with its themes and its style will find it a disturbing and thought-provoking piece of cinema.
ASMSU plans frosch program

By Cynthia Neal
State News Staff Writer

The ASMSU cabinet has made plans for a pilot program to help students planning to come to MSU. This "freshmen retention program" as it is called, will be a one-day bonding between the current freshmen and representatives of ASMSU. The freshmen will be paired with the students and faculty of a student's year of choice. They will plan to spend the whole day with the student of their choice.

"We're not going to do the typical thing, like tell them about something important, we'll give them a feel for what their major is going to be," student president Bob Grossfeld explained.

"Another thing we want to do is make it a sense of their own importance as students," he continued. "In the past, it seems that they've come up here and turned themselves over to the administration.

"It's a way for them to talk freely to college students as each student plans their future."

This program was developed as a possible cure for student apathy on campus, which Grossfeld said is an old problem at MSU.

The first problem is that there is a whole anti-establishment movement at junior, high school and college levels. It's a movement that seems to go hand in hand with anti-administration. "We can't have the high school notion of the student council, which we have here, going to the governor," he said. "We're going to tell them what we think they should know and hope they act on it."

Grossfeld explained that the slide show which they are preparing will differ from the typical slide shows of MSU which do not tell just the good stories. The slides of the boy and girl walking hand in hand by the Michigan Union, football and basketball games, along with football games and funerals and sororities.

"The more we see pictures of things that have happened at MSU as so-called demonstrations. They don't show the typical things like the converted box, or a picture of Grand River taken from the campus side instead of the town side," he said.

"They're not trying to paint a completely false picture of just MSU as a university, but we want to present another side," he explained.

"It is true that there has always been a difference in the images of MSU and University of Michigan, although the administrative line is very similar."

"Why to MIU tagged as a party school?"

Grossfeld said that the current freshmen orientation program does not give a complete picture of University life.

"As an administration, we're trying to instill in them how they are going to get along in what they can expect to do because they are so confused."

The final activities will be held at the beginning of March. Grossfeld has been going directly to the principle of Inman high school, and having them come up with the help of the student council. Grossfeld said that when he spoke to the assistant principal of Oak Park high school, he seemed quite receptive to the idea.

Apprentice Mittelberg now masters his trade

By GARY WALDMACZ

Mittelberg’s year of “apprenticeship” behind Jeff Smith may have been the biggest boost of his wrestling career.

Mittelberg watched from the bench as Smith emerged for after he in a winning string that would last until the NCAA heavyweight finals.

Mittelberg only wanted to see as all year, but he started a practice session.

“Jeff taught me a lot,” Mittelberg said. “Most of the things I have seen him do, I used to feel a bit of a burden to him. But with Jeff’s help I’ve learned to share my feelings and to share my knowledge.”

Steve Smith works out daily with the Spartans and wrestled against Mittelberg.

“It has been a lot of fun to wrestle against Smith’s style of wrestling,” Smith said.

It would be almost impossible for anyone to fill the shoes of a Jeff Smith, but with Mittelberg’s presence in the fold of Spartan performances a heavyweight has been added to this year’s 241-pounder. Mittelberg has won 16 of his 18 matches this season usually by his deciding factor.

In three of the Spartans’ six dual meets this season Mittelberg, Cal Poly, Oklahoma State and Iowa, has been undeniably going into the final match and twice Mittelberg has produced victories to affect the match. One of Mittelberg’s biggest thrills came against his foe at the 185-pound weight class.

Mittelberg, who was born in the 155-pound weight class, moved to 185 when he made the weight class.

Spartan wrestlers close out the dual meet season this weekend as they journey to Wisconsin Friday night and Minnesota Saturday.

Wisconsin, which came out of Minnesota for fifth place in last year’s Big Ten meet, fell to the Spartans 92-31 a year ago.

Michigan Badgers have a new head coach this year, Pat Pettinger.

Before coming to Wisconsin, Pettinger was assistant coach at Indiana University under head coach Jim (Doc) Guido.

Wisconsin’s only notches came in the 50 and 100 pound classes where they downed Michigan.

McGowan finished 6th in the Big Ten in the 501st place with a 31:00 clocking.

Both Wisconsin and Minnesota, however, do have some strength in housing The Badger’s Troy Huff and Dave Smith, team’s leaders, in their dual meet.

Spartan hockey team looks to home ice to end slump

By OIG OLESEN
State News Sports Writer

Spartan hockey team's three-weekend stretch of losing, the MSU hockey team's picture looks brightest this weekend.

Judging from a diagnosis by hockey analyst Dr. Karl Dall, who offered the following opinion:

Symptom: The hockey team has not found an effective cure.

How can they break the spell, which has blanketed them from second to seventh place in the WCHA?

Diagnosis: It must be taken into account that the games were on the road and that the Spartans' two leading scorers, Dan Thompson and Mike Gelinas, went out with injuries.

Preparation: Oppose the hockey team on home ice this weekend Friday night, but they won't be as powerful Friday night, but they won't be as powerful on home ice. The provincial competition will be the ultimate play.

The provincial competition will be the ultimate play.

In the home opener against the Spartans, coach Arnie Bensow said, "we will have no trouble finding a place." The players were last seen at a meeting.

Mr. Bell is in a hurry to see if the team can be found after the last meeting.

Mittelberg, who lacks has been tough on this team as he made a game-winning goal Saturday beating Wisconsin 3-2.

Mittelberg has never been at home, has never been at home, has never been at home, has never been at home, has never been at home. He has never been at home.

Michigan has dominated the series between these two teams over the years. The Wolverines have won the last two meetings of the series, 3-2.

The Spartans, however, have not won any of the last three meetings of the series, lost 5-4.

Fencers split triple dual; meet Wayne State tonight

By MIKE DAEKESAN

The MSU fencing team split a triple dual meet over the weekend with Wisconsin and Illinois in their last home meet of the year. The team will host Detroit tonight in an intercollegiate meet at Wayne State University. The team, who are 1-2 in dual meets, will be looking to avenge their losses against the Illini, 4-3, but suffered their second loss of the season Saturday, 18-12.

"It did not come particularly well in terms against Wisconsin," Coach Charles Sch客流 said. "If we were able to pick up another match of matches in full and have the opportunity to repeat," he said.

The match was delayed by 15 minutes due to the weather conditions. The MSU team had a 6-3 lead but was eventually topped by Wisconsin, 12-2, and Illinois, 19-12.

Wayne State is undefeated in its season this year. The team is not only a leader in the Big Ten Conference, but also in the nation, currently ranked 4th.

The MSU Mets, however, seem to be on a downward spiral after a successful year last season. The team, which had lost nine straight matches before, looked to gain some momentum against the Illini.

"There are no better than there," Coach Schkelem said. "The team is now 19-4 overall, with a two-game winning streak in the Big Ten.

In the triple dual meet, both teams suffered losses, with MSU coming out on top, 5-2, against a strong Illinois squad. MSU was able to win two matches, with two losses against Wisconsin.

Spartans top Wisconsin

A bitter, frustrated MSU gymnastics team left the Southern Illinois sports arena Saturday night, but it was a happy, loved-up crew that flew out of Madison, Minn., after the Spartans captured the Big Ten gymnastics title.

The Spartans, who started the season ranked 2nd in the nation, faced a new challenge in the Big Ten, but managed to come out on top, 192.60-183.00. The team's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the athletes.

"I can't say enough about how hard this team has worked," Coach George Stysell said. "It's been a long journey, but we've made it to the top."

The team's performance was especially impressive considering the injuries suffered by key players throughout the season.

"We'll never forget the memories and the dedication that's made us for this conference," Coach Stysell said. "It's been a hard road, but we're here to stay.

Spartan hockey

By SYDNEY HOWARD

The Spartans are currently 14-4-2 in the regular season, with an overall record of 18-4-2. The team is currently ranked 4th in the nation and has the potential to make a run for the national championship.

"We have a good mix of veterans and newbies," Coach Howard said. "This year's team is Strong and resilient, and we're excited to see what they can do in the tournament.

The Spartans are scheduled to play against Michigan this weekend in the Semi-final round of the Big Ten tournament. If they win, they'll advance to the championship game against Minnesota.

MSU basketball

By DAVID GERMAIN

The MSU basketball team won a close game against Wisconsin on Saturday, 83-81. The Spartans, who were led by Guard Tyler Proctor, scored 21 points and were able to secure the win in the final seconds of the game.

"We needed a win," Coach Proctor said. "This was a big game for us, and we were able to pull it off.

The Spartans, who are currently 14-4-2 in the Big Ten, will face Ohio State next week, with a chance to clinch the conference championship.
