Mrs. Romney fails to gain Michigan GOP backing

By LARRY LEE
State News Staff Writer

Michigan Republicans have one more chance to gain a consensus candidate for U.S. Senator following Mrs. Romney's fallacious effort to gain such a candidate. They will meet no later than March 1, the third and final attempt to achieve a nonpreference Republican ticket. Mrs. Romney herself is the only candidate on the ballot.

Mrs. Romney is the only candidate on the ballot. She has been the subject of intense criticism from both Republicans and Democrats. Her campaign has been marred by allegations of corruption and unethical practices. Despite these allegations, Mrs. Romney remains a strong contender in the race.

Republicans have been divided on the issue of a consensus candidate. Some believe that a consensus candidate would be the best option for the party. Others believe that Mrs. Romney is the best candidate for the position.

The Republican party is facing a difficult decision. They must choose between a strong candidate who may not have the support of the majority of the party, or a consensus candidate who may not have a chance of winning. The decision will have a significant impact on the outcome of the election.

In conclusion, the decision to support Mrs. Romney or to support a consensus candidate is a difficult one. Both options have their strengths and weaknesses. Republicans must carefully consider the implications of each option before making their decision.

On the other hand, Mrs. Romney's campaign has been beset by controversies and allegations of corruption. Her campaign has been plagued by instances of unethical behavior and has been criticized for its lack of transparency.

Despite these challenges, Mrs. Romney remains a strong contender in the race. She has the backing of many Republicans and has a clear path to victory. The decision to support Mrs. Romney or to support a consensus candidate is a difficult one, but Republicans must make a choice.

Nigerian lauds education as key

By KAREN FITZGERALD
State News Staff Writer

The Nigerian Representation to the United Nations, I. A. Sagle, addressed Michigan State University students Saturday that "There is no substitute for education." in developing the dimensions of both men and women.

Delivering the keynote address of Pan-African Solidarity Day, a commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the assassination of Mahatma K. Sagle, gave a history of the Pan African movement in which he emphasized the difficulty with which most African countries obtained independence.

"African country has been given freedom on a platform of gold, after it had a lot of bloodshed and a legacy of bitterness." he said.

The late struggle of the 54 million people of Nigeria and the truth learned by the 230 million people of Africa, the Pan Africanist of the Nigerian Embassy in Washington said, should be to build a nation once imperialism has been conquered.

"In this matter we have learned that the book is not the only way, it is imperative to learn the discipline," he said. "If you love people you must do this."

Sagle's speeches were made in response to statements by Robert O. Sagay, the Center for Urban Affairs, and Renal Mikhter, Savannah, Ga., scholar.

The African ambassador said he was impressed by the speech of the students and several other speakers who preceded his address.

He also spoke out of the audience that prevailed into the Michigan State University Hall assembly room following a report from the Union Rig, where the morning sessions of the morning assembly was held.

"I saw more eloquence of grief and resolution in the faces of those silently than any rhetoric can express," he said.

Sagle also said he had learned more of the character of blocks in America from the masses than from 20 months in Africa.

He conveyed conflicting feelings at the right of the students.

"I am happy to see black students learning to be leaders, and to think of the great black brotherhood struggle," he said.

Sagle and other leaders also made an appeal to students, students, and some of political leaders, tăng, called a dozen names.

The campus vandalism costs increase over 68-69 total

Vandalism across campus is becoming increasingly expensive.

The most recent incident, a broken window in the Chicago Campus 7. While East Lansing reminded that a window breakage as primary financial loan, campus police found that vandalism damage was done on the campus in the month of February.

The most costly damage this year occurred at an estimated $6,500 in material and labor to repair broken glass.

"We reported that the cost of this incident, the cost of vandalism this year exceeded the total of the many small breakages during the 1962-63 period," East Lansing stated.

Stations from the dorms to the libraries have increased, the number of incidents of vandalism.

"The reported instance has increased last year 117 incidents were reported, as compared to 68 reported in the past two years," East Lansing said.

"The Department is responsible for all reported cases, not for vandalism across campus, according to Richard S. Brown, director of public safety, and window breakage and damage to personal property, such as reports, may be submitted to the Department by all students.

"Any student made for crime of vandalism may be sentenced up to 60 percent of the total amount assessed to the student," he said.

"Pars for making wages and handing paid off of campus holdings come from one campus program, the public welfare association, which pays 25 percent of expenses on and shall distribute all fines to.

American B-52's bombed North Vietnamese supply bases in eastern Laos Sunday in an effort to stall a growing offensive in southern Vietnam. In Vietnam, the U.S. command reported 3 Americans killed and 22 wounded in four enemy attacks ranging from 35 to 50 miles northwest of Saigon to 44 miles south of Danang. It marked the second straight day American losses had outnumbered those of the enemy. Informed sources said waves of B-52's dropped 450 tons of bombs on North Vietnam, with storage areas in the Mekong delta in eastern Laos, just across the border from a Stalingrad in southwestern North Vietnam.

Stalling on Brooker Report is hard to justify

We really wish that the Board of Trustees would treat our sentiments on this accordingly. A case in point is the report on University Anti-Discrimination Policy and Procedure, otherwise known as the Brooker Report. This report has recently hit the shelves, and we do not think it is fair for the Board to stifle this report without even acknowledging it.

Legal aid is non-political

Whenever you end up in jail it is a matter of life and death. If a student, more often than not, you will not have bail money. You may need help if you are not released from jail for nothing.

Violence stereotypes movement

The most recent violence involving the police has brought the issue of violence to the forefront. The anti-police sentiment has been growing, and it seems that the police are often seen as the cause of violence.

Terrorists toy with fire

The outrageous actions by Arab terrorists are not only seen as an attack on Israel, but also a threat to all of humanity. The actions are often seen as a way to gain attention and bring about change.

Reflections on police restraint

The police have a difficult job to do, and they often have to make decisions in split seconds. The recent events have shown that the police are not always the villains, and they need to be understood and respected.

CAPITOL BARRIED

But decided not to march to the Capitol Friday, because the legislature adjourned by the time they arrived. They planned a similar march Monday.

In the disturbances Thursday night 30 cadets were injured and 13 were arrested. Nearly all students injured in the disturbances are still hospitalized at Ohio State General Hospital.

Nearly a hundred students around Thursday were injured. Sergeant Maj. John L. Myer who was injured in the disturbance that caused a window to break in the Capitol said that 14 people around Thursday, 11 of whom were MSU students. Bond was posted by the Associated Students of the University of Michigan.

Dehnostel said that ASMSU would have posted bond of $1000, but that MSU contacted friends and relatives of those arrested first. This was done because there was no indication of harm from the total arrest. While this did not happen, and most of those arrested were charged with unlawful assembly and had more serious charges, which friends or relatives could easily pay.

ASMSU 'agreed' that the legal council provided a means of communication to students and others for arrest, where they were arrested, was prepared to bond them out of jail.

Nearly $500 was collected from students at a meeting Friday at the Otsego, Grossfeld said. He said the money would probably go into the Legal Aid Fund for use in similar situations developing in the future.

ASMSU recommends peaceful demonstration

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following statement was issued by President Wharton in response to Thursday night's violence which flared out of a peaceful protest over the Chicago School trial.

The student demonstrations Thursday night caused damage to the East Lansing community, especially along Grand River and at the East Lansing City Hall. The only known damage in the campus area was a damaged window on a dormitory building, broken windows and a loud noise. These and other developments resulted in the arrest of some eleven students and three non-students.

At approximately 11:00 p.m. (2:00 a.m. central time) Friday, Michigan State University public safety officers arrived on the campus and asked the students to leave the campus. The students were asked to leave the campus and were not allowed to leave.

The damage done to the property is not the result of any specific action taken by the students. It was the result of the actions of persons who were not associated with the students.

President Wharton and ASMSU leaders met in Lansing on Friday afternoon to discuss the events that occurred on the campus.

On behalf of the University, I apologize to the East Lansing community for the acts of violence and to those who have been injured by the actions of others. We believe that the actions of the students were not the result of any specific action taken by the students. It was the result of the actions of persons who were not associated with the students.

Compromise. 11-1. One of the "probables" and one of the "skeptics" duked it out for the MSU track mark. Dick Murphy, 23, a 2:08 man, was enough to prove the Spartans from 2:10 to 2:12 man at the hands of the Illini. Headman for University of Illinois, Michigan State’s Michie ran for the Illinois win, 51-44, handing Michigan State an 80-55 victory that finished off Illinois in 8:10 minutes. Charles Fastabben, getting started in the 100, ended every, but his last stanza, 50.4, in winning the 220- and 1:40 and 2:08 times. The Illinois’ 200-yard team placed second, with Illinois second in the first place. The 440-yard event was won by Illinois, 2:08.4. Michigan State finished second in the Illinois 50-yard dash, 5.4.

INTERFACE.

It's where dignity is a right, not a gift.

The senior research chemist who's helping us develop a safer fuel for jet airplanes happens to be black. The one working most closely with him is white. The project couldn't go on without either of them.

Which may explain why people in the interface of companies affiliated with Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) are colorblind.

We couldn't afford to judge people by the color of their skin, or their creed, or their national origin. Even if we didn't have a deep conviction that dignity is a right, not a gift.

Because of our conviction, we gave thousands of dollars last year to the National Urban League and the United Negro College Fund. And we actively recruit and employ qualified graduates of all races, at all degree levels.

Our interface brings together some of the best minds in all engineering, scientific and business disciplines. Creates challenges and insights beyond those of a single company. And offers petty thinking and petty minds.

'Happy Ending'--*?! relief when marital blahs finish

The best thing about "The Happy Ending" is the ending.

The ending is memorable not for the skating performance, but because of the relief it promises. Being a large, superficial chick makes look at ready marriage is on end, and forth the viewer is indeed gratified.

Briefly done, "The Happy Ending" is the type of story that is long, original or differently. In them is that marriage is no guarantee for shared happiness which romantics hold so dear. In marriage becomes a commodity, a necessary arrangement that replaces what once might have been love. And in their marriages, service and respect and affection.

To display this trend revolution, and this all is we need another film about the character and quality of marriage, the happiness and the costs involved.

DIVISION CHAIRMAN
Professor heads chemistry group

Miss T. Rogers, research professor of chemistry, has been officially named chairman of the American Chemical Society's Division of Physical Chemistry.

The division, which meets once a year, is the largest scientific organization of chemists in the world with 112,000 members. As chairman, Rogers will preside over the executive meeting of the division's chemical education division.

Rogers, a noted authority on molecular structure, is doing research on quantum chemistry, the study of absorption of light by molecules.

The division of physical chemistry organizes 200 to 300 chemical papers at the meeting, and an officer of the division presides over the meetings during the year.

Rogers has been a member of the society since 1941, as an officer in the physical chemistry division since 1932.

He received his B.S. and M.A. in 1927 at the University of Alberta in Canada, and his Ph.D. in 1931 at the University of British Columbia.

Rogers has done extensive research in the field of chemistry in the United States, Canada, and Europe. He has studied in England as a research assistant in the National Physical Laboratory. He is currently a member of the Physical Society.
