Violent, non-violent actions eyed at 'Chicago 7' teach-in

By MARILYN PATTERTON
and JON BORGER
State News Staff Writers

Both violent and non-violent protests of the Chicago 7, a group of anti-war demonstrators scheduled to be tried here on charges of conspiracy and inciting to violence, were being organized for the trial beginning this week.

The Chicago 7, who are making their 200th appearance in American courts, are accused of attempting to disrupt the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The trial, scheduled to begin Monday, is expected to draw national attention to the issue of free speech and the rights of political protesters.

The trial will be the first major test of the Supreme Court's 1969 decision in the case of United States v. O'Brien, which held that federal courts could not prohibit the possession of cult literature.

A 40-year-old anti-war demonstrator, who asked not to be identified, said that the demonstration would be "a necessary first step in the process of bringing about a change in this country's policy.

"We must confront the issue of violence," he said. "We must show the world that non-violent action is the path to peace.

"We must be prepared to take a stand against any attempt to suppress our right to speak out against the war," he added.

"We will not be intimidated," he concluded. "We will not be silenced. We will continue to fight for our right to express our beliefs."
Israel cracks down on Arab terrorists

By Associated Press

Israel imposed a curfew on Arab East Jerusalem and the city's northern district of Shuafat on Tuesday to a halt in Arab terrorism which has caused a great deal of concern among the Israeli public. Meanwhile, a demon- stration was organized in front of the Knesset by Arab terrorists and damage to their property has been severely criticized by both sides of the conflict.

At least 18 people were killed in Jerusalem, a major city of 1.8 million people, by gunfire and rocket fire. In addition, several people were wounded in the east Jerusalem.

Tens of thousands of Arabs have been killed in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict in the last decade, and the number of those killed is not known. The violence between the two sides has escalated in recent months.

The wants read on across the entire page of the American News and the Arab News. One is regarded as a bar of Arab terrorist action and the other as a bar of Israeli terrorist action. Any attempt to prevent the violence is not possible.

The American News, the student newspaper at Michigan State University, was published every other day as a four-section, plus Midweek edition in September. Subscription fee is $1.00 per year.

STATE SCHOOL AID

House votes bill

BY LARRY LEE

The House approved yesterday the $3.2 billion state school aid bill, H.R. 12460 (S. 365), which was passed by the Senate last week.

House Speaker David M. Ryan, D-Mass., signed the bill into law yesterday and today.

The bill provides $3.2 billion in aid to state and local school systems, which is $500 million more than the amount requested by President Nixon.

The bill also includes provisions for teacher retirement, which will cost the states an additional $100 million.

The bill passed 311-99, with 61 Democrats voting against it.

The bill was signed into law by President Nixon.

Milkmen waiting for report on dissent

The bill, which was passed by the state legislature, will provide $150 million in aid to milkmen, who have been facing a crisis in the dairy industry.

The bill was signed into law by Governor Milliken.

The American govt. may oppose genocide

Nixon's most notable move during his presidency will definitely not be his appeal to the American Bar association to mean a war of opposition to a treaty banning genocide.

It seems the treaty has been around since around the 60s, already approved by 75 countries, and passed once by President Harry Truman, although the Senate did not ratify the treaty.

The Bar Association is considering its opposition on fear that the treaty could put American men fighting in other countries at risk.

Laws could be considered genocide (and we don't understand what that means, but we consider as such, the U.S. past opponents of the treaty) and facing international bloc, although it is not clear why.

Another lawyer, Alfred J. Tregge, claimed recent changes in the treaty which would keep a ban on extermination of political groups would have the Soviet Union immune to genocide charges, but makes the U.S. bare feet.

What Schweppes seems to be saying is that the Communique is liquidating political and governmental groups in the U.S. and we suggest that the U.S. should not be threatened that the political exile might be happening in our Justice Department, and the Soviet Union might very much be the source of such threats.

This whole affair also shows the political positions of the B.A. but Nixon has urged the Bar to accept its proposal, and if it does not, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will consider the treaty, which Nixon has asked the Senate to ratify. The implication is that this is a big policy, but the ABA has enough political power to kill a treaty. No one, neither a Senator, a President, a corporation, or a professional body, should have that much weight to push a treaty of such importance.

Actually, however, the entire debate is of course, absurd. By no means we can possibly agree with it, if it endorses genocide. But then, if the death penalty is abolished, what few are left of them, could testify to their refusal to ratify a treaty as well.

OUR READERS’ MIND

Readers speak out on Thursday's violence

Use persuasion to attain peace

To the Editor:

I was one of the approximately 2,000 Michigan State University students who took to the streets on Thursday to protest against the Vietnam War. Our demonstration was a peaceful act of civil disobedience, as intended by the Founders, to express our opposition to a war we believe is wrong and unjust.

We were determined to get our message across peacefully, and we sought to use persuasion rather than violence to achieve our goal. We believed that by calmly stating our views and expressing our concerns, we could influence others to see the injustice of the war and support our stance.

We made sure to carry signs and banners that clearly articulated our position. We were respectful of those who disagreed with us and even engaged in conversations with them, offering them our perspective and listening to theirs.

In conclusion, we believe that peaceful protest is the best way to voice our opposition to the Vietnam War and to bring about the changes we seek. It is a more effective means of communication and can help to de-escalate tensions rather than fueling them.

Law not absolute anywhere

To the Editor:

I am a student at Michigan State University and I believe that the recent protests on campus were unnecessary. The university has the right to maintain order and enforce its rules, and students should respect that authority.

Some students have expressed a desire for absolute law and order, but this is unrealistic and unattainable. Every institution and society has its own rules and regulations, and it is important to understand and abide by them.

We should strive for a balance between freedom and responsibility, and recognize that there are legitimate reasons for enforcing certain rules. At the same time, we should also work towards creating a more inclusive and open environment where all voices can be heard.

Sincerely,

Intellectual not essence

To the Editor:

I believe that the recent protests on campus are a reflection of the broader intellectual and social atmosphere. The university is a place where ideas are exchanged and debated, and it is important to foster a culture of intellectual inquiry.

However, it is also crucial to recognize that protest and activism are essential tools for effecting change. By bringing attention to issues that are often ignored, protests can help to create a more just and equitable society.

We need to strike a balance between intellectual pursuit and social action, and recognize that both are necessary for a vibrant and dynamic academic community.

Sincerely,

Revolution absurd

To the Editor:

I was not able to attend the recent protests on campus, but I believe that they were unnecessary and counterproductive. The university has the right to maintain order and enforce its rules, and students should respect that authority.

However, I do believe that there is a need for reform and change within the university. By engaging in peaceful protest and demonstrating through the proper channels, we can help to bring attention to issues that need to be addressed.

In conclusion, I believe that a revolution is not the solution, but rather a constructive dialogue and a willingness to work towards a more inclusive and equitable society.

Sincerely,

Fight injustice

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my concerns about the recent protests on campus. I believe that violence is never the answer, and that peaceful protest is the best way to voice our opposition to injustice.

We should strive for a culture of respect and understanding, and work towards creating a more inclusive and open environment where all voices can be heard.

In conclusion, I believe that we can effect real change through peaceful protest and constructive dialogue.

Sincerely,

Novice debaters rake in awards

By KATHY MORAN
State News Staff Writer

Nearing the end of their season, the Michigan State Debate Team is taking a look back at its year. The team has a long history with more than 35 years in its existence.

The team has two categories. One is for novice debaters, who are usually sophomores or juniors, and the other is for experienced debaters, who are typically seniors. The novice category has been more successful this year, with many debaters advancing to the state and national tournaments.

The team's success is due in part to the hard work of its members, who spend long hours practicing and preparing for competitions. They also benefit from the guidance of their coaches, who provide feedback and advice to help them improve.

The team's next goal is to continue their success and advance even further in the national tournaments. With dedication and hard work, they are sure to achieve their goals and bring home more awards in the future.

Christo Rey Center offers human services

By SHIRLEY BRUNNER
A woman needs medicine immediately for her sick child. Welfare won't give it to her. They say it isn't their job.
A family desperately needs food. They haven't eaten in two days.

Christo Rey Community Services, a 21-year-old operation in North Lansing, now receives 21 such calls for assistance daily and quickly, "No matter who comes in, no matter what religion or color, we take care of them. They have a human need," said Ms. Ruby Davids, director of the center.
"People say, 'you're so wonderful,'" she added. Christo Rey Community Services was established in 1961 as a project for the Lansing skyline the area north of 11th Street. The center is part of the Christo Rey family, speaking people in Spanish- speaking residences as well as the world needs of the residents of the North Lansing area.
Christo Rey was the area's first Spanish-speaking people's center. It provides counseling and activities especially needed but not always provided in the general community.
"The center asks questions and enforces the problems of poverty and discrimination by being the agency of people, and working to improve the conditions and institutions. The atmosphere of the center is homely and informal.
Spanish-speaking people of the Lansing area. It served this function for five years, until it was replaced by another group. The new building was needed to make this function possible.

New building

In the spring of 1968 the new Christo Rey Community Center building at 1112 Belvidor Street was completed. The idea was that this building would serve as a central base for the Lansing area to meet the social and spiritual needs of the Spanish speaking residences as well as the world needs of the residents of the North Lansing area.

Christo Rey, located at the access of Lansing, was decided that it was necessary to meet the needs of the area. The center was established to meet the needs of the area. The center was a Spanish-speaking people's center. It provides counseling and activities especially needed by the community. The center asks questions and enforces the problems of poverty and discrimination by being the agency of people, and working to improve the conditions and institutions. The atmosphere of the center is homely and informal.

It wasn’t the kind of basketball game that gives your adrenaline boosting. Illinois’ matchup offense and pressing defense ground MSU’s offense down to 10 points below normal. And of course, many MSU fans who watched the Illinois/Michigan State game and the Cordova game between the Spartans and the Illini may have thought that this was a game that Illinois had in the bag.

In the second half, Illinois found the range early and Rudy Bowman got the Illinois starters going. He scored 3 points in the first eight minutes of the half but MSU closed the gap.

Illinois played well the first half of the game but got off to a cold start in the second half. The Illini scored 4 points in the first 11 minutes of the second half and were outscored by MSU.

Former MSU star, Dee Brown, said, “I don’t think the Illinois players were up. I think they were down to the scoreboard.”

The Illinois coaches couldn’t believe it. They thought that their team was going to win this game. But the Spartans were not going to give up. They were going to fight for a win. And they did.

The Illinois team was defeated by the Spartans, 83-82.

Last year's NCAA rule change which permitted freshmen to compete in varsity competition didn't figure to affect wrestling very much.

A few outstanding wrestlers got off to a fast start in divisions as freshmen. They, along with others like them, are the crop, needing to be polished after a less than extensive high school wrestling program.

The dates include seven meets on a tour of the Midwest, as well as 12 regular

The Spartans will play Oklahoma City, Dayton, Byrd, Pike, Anderson, Georgia Tech

Doctors connect 'the pill' with depression, suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days after a student was stabbed to death by a fellow student at a college in rural Pennsylvania, a Pennsylvania state senator has introduced legislation that would nullify a state law that requires doctors to provide information on the contraceptive pill to women who request it.

Sen. John F. Dehler, a Republican from Bloomsburg, said he plans to introduce a bill that would prevent doctors from being required to provide information about the pill to women who request it. The bill, which is similar to one introduced by a New York state senator in October, would allow doctors to refuse to provide such information if they have moral or religious objections.

The bill has not yet been introduced in the Pennsylvania Senate, but it could be considered if the state legislature reconvenes next month. In the meantime, Dr. John W. M. Johnson, a psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania, said he believes the pill could be connected with depression and suicide.

"We are just beginning to see the connection between the pill and these issues," Johnson said. "It's a growing concern, and we need to make sure women are aware of both the benefits and the risks."
