Three Trustees air doubts on discrimination report

By MARILYN PATTERSON -
State News Staff Writer

Three trustees said Thursday they have uneasy reservations about the Board of Trustees report on alleged instances of discrimination on campus.

The trustees will meet Saturday to approve actions regarding the 14-page report that was submitted to them by the Board of Trustees. The report, titled "A Survey of Allegations of Discrimination at Michigan State University," was released by Dr. James M. Shaw, chairman of the Committee on Discrimination, and his fellow trustees on Wednesday.

"We've had a meeting to discuss it," said C. John Buchman, third vice chairman of the Board. "I'm definitely against anything that discriminates against anyone in the state."

By remain on the Board, he will receive his term."

"It's definitely a sensitive matter," said trustee Robert F. Smith. "There are a lot of things that need to be investigated."

"We agree on the spirit of the thing, not the form of it," said trustee James M. Shaw, chairman of the Committee on Discrimination. "We feel that discrimination is against the grain of our society."

"We've had reservations from the beginning," said trustee William M. McDonald. "We've had reservations about the form of the report, the procedure, and the people involved."
Wallace attempts re-election

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) - George C. Wallace announced today that he will seek a seventh term as Alabama governor.

He made the announcement at a news conference that President Nixon was scheduled to attend. President Nixon has already endorsed another candidate for governor.

"I am going to make more votes than I ever have before," Wallace said. "I am going to make more money than I ever have before."

He said he has been too busy to campaign.

"I can't vote anymore," he said. "I can't vote anymore."

To be elected, Wallace must have at least four different candidates in the May 5 primary election and hold office in the Republican party.

The new Alabama governor, Albert Brewer, was appointed by Wallace to be his successor.

Wallace was made a partner in the firm of Wallace & Brewer in 1964.

Mississippi high school desegregates 'peacefully'

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) - Columbus High School, fully desegregated eight years ago under federal court order, has made the transition peacefully, although there is little mixing of the races outside the classroom.

Of the $210,000 budget, 75 percent of it is used to buy books, supplies, and other materials. The rest is used for salaries and maintenance.

The school has about 800 students, 450 of whom are white and 350 are black. The student body is about 75 percent black and 25 percent white.

The school is located in the center of the city, and the black students are spread throughout the city.

Cause of Cheney fire still undetermined

Wednesday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported that the cause of the fire is still undetermined.

The fire broke out at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch building on Madison Street.

The fire started in the newspaper's printing press and spread to the other buildings on the block.

No one was injured in the fire, which caused about $100,000 in damages.

The newspaper is a member of the Post-Dispatch chain, which also owns the St. Louis American.

Laird: U.S. using air power in Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Thursday that the U.S. is not planning to send ground troops to Laos. Instead, he stressed that the U.S. is using air power in Laos to protect the U.S. position in Vietnam. The U.S. military officials expect the U.S. will have to increase its air power in the area as Vietnam's military continues to build. Laird said the U.S. will continue to use air power in the Vietnam theater.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Thursday that the U.S. is not planning to send ground troops to Laos. McKee Report is back, but not emasculated

This coming Tuesday the much anticipated report of the Academic Council on the McKee Report is to be released. The report has been delayed approximately one month before it was due to appear before the Academic Council. The report has been out of the public eye since its appearance, and no one knows exactly what to expect.

The primary reason for the delay was the McKee Report itself. The report was not released for a number of reasons, but most people believe that the chief reason was because of the controversy surrounding the report. The Academic Council itself is not at fault for the delay, but they were caught in the middle of the controversy as well.

The McKee Report was released on January 21, 1970. The report was originally due to be released on November 15, 1969, but it was not released until December 12, 1969. The report was released under the name of the Michigan State Board of Regents, and it was released in the form of a memorandum. The report was not intended to be released for public consumption, but it was leaked to the media.

The report is 38 pages long and is divided into two parts. The first part is an introduction and a summary of the report, and the second part consists of the full text of the report. The report is written in a formal style, and it is very difficult to understand. The report is also very detailed, and it is filled with acronyms and technical jargon.

The report is not easy to read, but it is important to read it because it contains important information. Cohen foresees cure for poverty in U.S.

By JOHN A. JEL]

From News Staff Writer

Poverty in the United States could be alleviated by the end of the decade, according to a University of Michigan economics professor.

Speaking before a crowd of about 300 persons Wednesday night at the Hotel Olin, Cohen outlined his plan to combat income disparity in the United States.

At the end of 1969 there were 39.2 million people in the United States below the poverty line, Cohen said. This represents a decrease from the 39.2 million Americans were believed to be below the poverty line in 1969, he added.

"We are now able to estimate that 18 to 20 million people, by 1975, without giving us full measures, will actually swell poverty to the 70%," Cohen said.

Cohen, author of "Poverty and Welfare," has been researching poverty and welfare since 1958. His economic studies are aimed at combating poverty.

"The first thing we need to do is create the necessary monetary incentive to get people to work," he said. "The second is to attack the income disparity itself."

Cohen said that there is an "inherent tendency for the economy" to cure itself of poverty, including Negro poverty.

"We need an annual net growth in the GNP of $5 billion to $7 billion to provide a suitable tax base to expand the poverty program," Cohen said.

The second tendency in the fight against poverty is to be innovations in the assistance programs, Cohen said. Many poverty programs are designed for a certain class of population but often benefit other classes. "There is no one class of people who is adequately served," Cohen said.

A third tendency is for the government to increase the social security benefits. Cohen said. Most of the 39.2 million people who receive social security benefits monthly are below the poverty line, he added.

"In formulating a program to help the poor, it is essential that we understand the size of the problem," Cohen said.

He also said that many have work potential and can become active members of the private sector rather than welfare recipients.

The government, however, Cohen warned, must not "over-engineer" the program by making it too complicated. "Most people want to get into the market; we need a simple program which will be easy for them to understand," he said.

The government must also recognize the need for a "fair" income distribution, Cohen said. "The government must refrain from reducing income disparity because to do so is to change the pattern of the American economy," he said.

"We must have a balance between the three tendencies toward the poverty gap," Cohen said. "We need growth of the economy to cure the problem, we need fewer persons on the program, and we need a fair distribution of income throughout the country."

Cohen said that the University of Michigan is conducting research in this field and that the results of this research will be published in the near future.

U'center dedicated at banquet

MSU’s new $2 million Memorial Student Center was dedicated Thursday night at a banquet held following the center’s official opening.

The operation began October, 1966, with construction completed last June. The center, which will house the University’s Student Association, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Pharmacy, the College of Education, and the College of Architecture, will be opened to the public.

The center will provide a place for students to relax, study, and socialize, as well as a place for the university to present its programs and activities.

Senator drafts resolution to put parochial on ballot

State Sen. James D. Grun, D-Ann Arbor, is preparing a joint resolution to amend the state constitution to permit a constitutional amendment to be placed on the ballot for non-public schools.

Gray, whose resolution would add a constitutional amendment to the state constitution, said the proposal would enable the public to decide whether or not to allow non-public schools to continue.

Gray said he would introduce the resolution next week, and that he would present the proposal to the Senate Education Committee.

"We need to make sure that the public is well informed about the issue," Gray said.

Poll reveals lawmakers support abortion reform

A poll of Michigan lawmakers reveals that the overwhelming majority of them support abortion reform.

The poll, conducted by the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, shows that 87% of the lawmakers support abortion reform.

The poll also shows that the majority of the lawmakers believe that abortion reform is necessary to ensure the health and well-being of women.

The poll results are a positive sign for abortion reform advocates, who have been working to pass legislation to make abortion legal and accessible to all women.

The poll results also underscore the importance of continued advocacy and activism in the fight for abortion reform.

An even greater number of lawmakers, 94%, support the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), which would grant women the same rights as men in all areas of life.

The ERA is a long overdue piece of legislation that would ensure that women are treated equally under the law.

The poll results are a testament to the power of grassroots organizing and activism.

We encourage all women and allies to continue to support abortion reform and the ERA, and to hold elected officials accountable for their votes on these issues.

We are confident that with continued effort, we can achieve true equality for all women in Michigan and across the country.
Pentecostal meeting moves with Holy Spirit

By TOM BOWERS
Religion Editor

"In the name of Jesus, come now," the Rev. Dennis Robinson said.

And out of this woman, a slightly tipsy woman and to a free woman.

The man, perhaps 25 years old, was sitting in the front row of the service that began at noon Sunday, in an auditorium filled with people.

Among the bes were John and Nita Hall, seated in the front seat of the last row of the audience.

At the man's words, the woman smiled and her voice steady and clear, they seemed to have a sense of the man's method.

The woman was not a drunk, but she was not sober either.

The conference sponsored by the Pentecostal Church of the United States was taking place in a auditorium of about 250 people.

On stage, the speakers led in prayer, and the people in the audience joined in.

One of the speakers, the Rev. Dennis Robinson, began to talk about the Holy Spirit.

He talked about the power of the Holy Spirit, and how it can transform a person's life.

He explained that the Holy Spirit is the third person of the Trinity, and that he is present in the life of every Christian.

The speakers also talked about the gift of tongues, which is a sign of the presence of the Holy Spirit.

The gift of tongues was introduced to the audience by the Rev. Dennis Robinson, who prayed in the gift of tongues and led the group in prayer.

After the prayer, the Rev. Dennis Robinson gave a short message about the Holy Spirit.

He said that the Holy Spirit is the power that energizes the life of the church, and that it is the power that transforms the lives of individuals.

The message was well-received by the audience, and there was a lot of enthusiasm.

After the message, the Rev. Dennis Robinson led the group in a prayer for unity and for the presence of the Holy Spirit in the lives of all who were present.

The service ended with a benediction, and the people who were present left the auditorium feeling uplifted and encouraged by the presence of the Holy Spirit.

Minnesota-Duluth defeated the Illinois State Fighting Navigators 7-5 Saturday night in the MSU Ice Arena. The Bulldogs will be facing the whole Michigan tech hockey team this weekend in what might be making their first appearance before the home fans.

The Fighting Navigators, who played both games last weekend at the WCHA, and Big Ten, played one of the best games of the season last weekend. They didn’t even score any goals. Gaffney is currently considered one of the top teams in the league, and their ability to stop off-opponent’s moves before they come to the blue line.

Pawlowski defensive line is being named in three campaigns as a Spartan last. The senior winger has scored 5 goals on the season and it looks as though he’ll pass his top output of six goals from the past few years. He presently stands third point man of skating his total point output of 15 last year.

Spartan coach Arne Swenson knows that, as a clever playmaker who does right and is never wobbled. The Spartan offense soon tied up a Spartan game, due to injury, for the victory. The Fighting Navigators made 30 points before his top few points output of 15 last year. He is a valuable asset to the team.

The senior winger has scored 5 goals on the season and it looks as though he’ll pass his top output of six goals from the past few years. He presently stands third point man of skating his total point output of 15 last year.

Spartan coach Arne Swenson knows that, as a clever playmaker who does right and is never wobbled. The Spartan offense soon tied up a Spartan game, due to injury, for the victory. The Fighting Navigators made 30 points before his top few points output of 15 last year. He is a valuable asset to the team.

Medic Alert Week set

By CAROL CORRIORE
Shore News Staff Writer

Lansing Mayor Gerald W. Quinn Wednesday dedicated the week Feb. 27 through March 3 as a Medic Alert Week. During the week information on the services of the Medic Alert Foundation based in Lansing, Mich., will be displayed and mailed to citizens with new diseases or disabilities. The Lansing office of the Foundation is part of the foundation's national headquarters in the city.

The foundation's primary service is providing identification bracelets or medallions for people who have new diseases or disabilities. The bracelets are made of gold or stainless steel and inscribed with personal medical information such as name, address, medical condition, and other pertinent facts.

Applications will also be distributed to patients with diseases. People who have hidden medical problems, such as diabetes, heart disease or allergies to certain medications may ask for identification bracelets and send them to the foundation. The bracelets are made of gold or stainless steel and inscribed with personal medical information such as name, address, medical condition, and other pertinent facts.

Job law: frailty thy name is...

By SHIRLEY JOHNSON

While some continue to insist that the law restricts opportunities for women in the working force, a visit to the Lansing labor market specialist at MSU and one reason for this discrimination against women, is to be called by women who can do the work and who want to do the work.

David G. Ziniger, professor of industrial relations at MSU, says that some women may want to work in a specific field, but they can't do the work and still do the work.

In 1977, women in Michigan are permitted to work from 5:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m., according to the law. The law does not permit women to work in any field, according to Ziniger.

The law provides that women may not work in any plant of an educational or health capacity for women.

Counselor and occupational counselor at MSU, says that a woman is usually involved in a two-year bachelor's degree program. After graduation, she finds employment, then returns and drops out of a program, she says. She feels that the program is not 100 percent accurate, because of her education.

Labor turnover cannot be used as arguments for not hiring women. A recent study by the U.S. Department of Labor showed a significant difference between men and women in areas of the same job. He said that the study showed that men were 30 percent more productive, on average, by 1977.

Ziniger also cited a study undertaken by the Bureau of Labor Statistics which indicates that men are more frequently employed in the labor market than women. On average, only 7 percent of the labor force is employed in the labor market.

Krugler noted that a woman is usually involved in a two-year bachelor's degree program. After graduation, she finds employment, then returns and drops out of a program, she says, because of her education.

Unfortunately, a period of absence from work, many women are unable to acquire the additional training.

Krugler said all too often a woman would make a college education. She would volunteer her services to the poor or the aged, or to the educational or health capacities for women.

Male student still aiming for female residence hall

By DELORES MAJOR
Newspaper Writer

Whatever happened to the guy who tried to move into a woman's hall?

He's still around.

Charles Hinson, West Paul, takes it all in stride. He has even been known to arrive at the hut for a beer.

He was notified by the Dean of Students that he had an opportunity to appeal.

The Judicial Board said they did not feel that Hinson's rights were violated under the University's 1976 Academic Freedom Act. The Board of the Dept. of Residence Hall, in its opinion, promised to continue to investigate the case.

Instead, they referred him to the Dean of Students for action.

The situation is similar at the East Paul, with the residence hall for men.

Area choir presents concert

The Youth for Understanding Alumni Church is presenting a concert at 4 p.m. in the Memorial Hall, 819 Abbott Hall, East Lansing.

Seven MSU students will join the choir, performing "Carmina Burana" by Carl Orff, as the film "The Younger Generation" is shown.

Choir members include: Sr. Mary Elizabeth M., Sr. Mary Joyce H., Sr. Mary Patricia J., Sr. Mary Margaret G., Sr. Mary Jane R., Sr. Mary Margaret J., and Sr. Mary Patricia J.

The concert will be held in the auditorium of the Memorial Hall and will last about an hour.

Lansing offers immunization

A free immunization clinic will be open for residents of the west side community of Lansing from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Institute for Urban Affairs.

The clinic is sponsored by the Institute for Urban Affairs, in cooperation with the Lansing Board of Health, and the Lansing School District.

The clinic is held in the Center for Urban Affairs at 220 Washington Street, Lansing, Michigan.
