Campus affairs call for restraint by legislature

By JEFF SHELLER

KALAMAZOO — Legislative restraint is gaining more support at the University of Michigan this year and will no longer be a "slogan" in Michigan's political circles. Republican legislators have begun to express interest in the university affairs in their districts.

The House of Representatives passed the 1970-71 "free tuition" bill and the Senate is considering the measure, which would allow all Michigan residents to attend public universities without paying tuition. The bill has 51 votes in the House and 24 in the Senate. Both bills were introduced by Republican members of the legislative body.

The Senate bill, which was introduced by Sen. C. C. Killingsworth, R-McClellan, contains provisions for a new academic year starting in the fall of 1970-71. The bill would allow any student to attend any Michigan university without paying tuition. It also contains provisions for a new academic year starting in the fall of 1970-71. The Michigan State University Board of Regents, which consists of 12 members, has approved the revision of a "state-by-state" system of student representation. The new system, which was approved by the board earlier this year, would allow any student to attend any Michigan university without paying tuition. It also contains provisions for a new academic year starting in the fall of 1970-71. The bill would allow any student to attend any Michigan university without paying tuition.

Several Republican legislators have expressed interest in the bill and have volunteered to support it. Among them are Sen. J. W. Brown, R-McClellan, and Rep. R. J. Farley, R-Detroit. Both have volunteered to help sponsor the bill in the Legislature.

The bill is expected to pass this year and will go into effect next fall. It is the first piece of legislation to be introduced in the Michigan Legislature this year. The bill has 51 votes in the House and 24 in the Senate. Both bills were introduced by Republican members of the legislative body.

Weather could handicap U.S. view of total eclipse

NEW YORK (AP) — The moon, the moon and the earth have a rendezvous to space and time Saturday, one that can only come once every so many years. But another work of nature, the weather, may take the spectacle from millions of Americans.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Washington issued a gloomy warning about his eclipse: "Lightning and thunder will obscure the sun," the bureau said, "and there may be favorable conditions for viewing the total solar eclipse in the New England and mid-Atlantic states."

Winds of 10 mph could move dust and other debris into the eclipse area. The eclipse will be visible from the tip of Florida to the northwestern part of Maine, and there will be a partial eclipse elsewhere.

A handful of people can see the entire eclipse in two states. The eclipse will be visible across the United States, but the partial eclipse will be visible in the continental United States.

PLUGS FOR ECLIPSE VIEWING

The bureau advised people to use protective filters for viewing the eclipse. The filters should be dark enough to block out the sun's light, but light enough to allow people to see the eclipse without being blinded.

The bureau also recommended that people use binoculars or telescopes to view the eclipse. The binoculars or telescopes should have a magnification power of at least 10 times, and the lenses should be dark enough to block out the sun's light.

People should also avoid looking at the sun directly with the naked eye. The naked eye can be damaged by the sun's light, and people should use protective glasses or filters to view the eclipse.

The bureau also advised people to avoid looking at the sun through a telescope with a camera or video camera. The telescope should be fitted with protective filters to block out the sun's light.

Wildcat tieups delay rail talks

The American Railway Union called a 27-day tieup at 12:01 a.m. Thursday morning at all major railroad points in the U.S. Except for the Chicago, North Western, and Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific rail lines, which tied up at 12:01 a.m. Thursday morning, all other major railroad lines in the U.S. will be affected by the strike. The tieup is scheduled to continue for 27 days, or until a voluntary contract is reached.

The American Federation of Railway Employees (AFRE) said it called the tieup in order to achieve a contract that includes increased wages and improved working conditions. The union has been negotiating with the railroad companies for several months, and has been unable to reach a mutually agreeable agreement.

According to AFRE President John Hall, the tieup is necessary to protect the rights of railroad workers and to ensure safe and efficient operations. "We have been negotiating in good faith with the railroad companies, but they have refused to meet our demands," Hall said. "We have no choice but to force the issue through the tieup." The strike is expected to have a significant impact on the transportation industry, as well as on the economy as a whole. Railroads are a vital part of the nation's infrastructure, and provide crucial services to businesses and individuals across the country.

The tieup is expected to cause delays and disruptions for travelers and businesses alike. Many railroads have already issued warnings to customers, and are advising them to plan ahead. "We urge the public to be patient and understanding during this time," said AFRE Secretary-Treasurer Steve Walker. "This is a difficult situation, but we are doing everything we can to minimize the impact on our customers." The union is committed to resolving the dispute in a fair and equitable manner, and is committed to working with the railroad companies to find a solution that benefits everyone involved.

The strike is the latest in a series of disputes between railroad workers and companies. In recent years, there have been numerous strikes and disruptions, many of which have lasted for weeks or even months. The current tieup is the longest in several years, and is expected to have a major impact on the transportation industry.

In response to the strike, the railroad companies have announced that they will continue to operate as many trains as possible, but that service will be significantly reduced. "We understand the importance of rail service to the nation," said Union Pacific President Jimつ japan. "We will do everything we can to keep as many trains running as possible, but we must also ensure the safety of our workers and customers." The companies have also announced that they will provide alternative transportation options, such as shuttle buses and ferries, to help customers get around during the tieup.

The strike is expected to have a significant economic impact, as well. Railroads are a crucial component of the nation's economy, providing jobs and services to millions of people across the country. The tieup is expected to cause disruptions in the supply chain, as well as in the transportation of goods and materials. This could have a ripple effect on businesses and industries across the country, and could cause further economic instability.

While the strike is expected to cause significant disruptions, the companies have announced that they will continue to work with the union to resolve the dispute as quickly as possible. They have also expressed a commitment to finding a solution that benefits all parties involved.

As the strike continues, the public is advised to plan ahead and to check with their rail companies for updates on train schedules and service. The companies have also announced that they will provide additional customer service to help customers navigate the disruptions caused by the strike.

The Higher Educational Executive Administration of the university, which has been to the point of no return in campus disorders. The essential finding is that an additional legislation is needed to deal with such disruptions on or off campus.

The findings of the report mirror many of the well known and making the educational establishment of America in question to a constructive reform. A basic problem stressed by the report is "to channel the energies which are reflected in student unrest into more productive mechanisms and into the work." The intervention of the legislature, for whatever reason, "is unlikely to contribute to this process.

The report goes on to specifically note that no financial aid, such as scholarships, loans or grants, should be withheld from a student for any misbehavior. It is the report's opinion that a resolution of the role of the college president should be in the hands of all students and the president.

Furthermore, the report rationalizes that recommendations be made to create a black studies program and that existing courses be developed for the minorities include the contributions of all minority groups.

Wilkinson merits the title
as well as the work

Acting Vice President for Business and Finance Roger Wilkinson has in office for nearly two years now. May 16, 1969 in the summer of 1968, Wilkinson has been doing the job of acting Vice President. We can only wonder, nonetheless, if the job sits well with him.

Acting Vice Presidents are eventually replaced by new Vice Presidents or are themselves promoted to the job. We feel that Wilkinson does a good job, but he has handled the job in an admirable manner. The energies of the May regime are extensive.

Wilkinson, like many university officials that do a fine job in day and night, does not receive the recognition he deserves. Wilkinson does not run around making a fuss about the time of his activities, but without his services the university would suffer. Promoting Wilkinson to a larger role would be to fully earned reward for his services.

There is little to be gained by bringing in another person for the job. Wilkinson has shown that he is a capable of handling his tasks in a satisfactory manner. It would be a mistake to make a change for a man new to the University to adapt to the job and achieve the same level of efficiency that Wilkinson has attained.

The University should also consider Wilkinson's personal position. He has been working for nearly two years at what is supposedly only a temporary job.

This places Wilkinson in an adverse position, working under the pressure of two years of difficult work. He must also be concerned that the position will be extended in order to do his work properly.

Big Three nuclear treaty ratified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The historic nonproliferation treaty is now in force in the United States and the other nuclear powers: Britain, France and Russia.

The treaty was signed July 1, 1968, by the United States, Britain and France. It has been in force in 120 countries, including those with nuclear weapons.

The treaty, which seeks to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, is a milestone in international relations.

Jacobsons's
Federal District Judge Paul Friedman, who presides over the Western District of Pennsylvania, said in a 1965 opinion that the Equal Rights Amendment should be passed by the states because it was a 'necessary and imperitive measure to safeguard the rights of women'.

The amendment was adopted by Congress in 1972, but it failed to be ratified by the required three-quarters of the states by 1982. Friedman's opinion was one of many that have supported the amendment's passage, arguing that it would strengthen women's rights and provide a legal basis for gender equality.

Friedman's views align with the broader trend of increasing support for women's rights and gender equality in the United States. The amendment's failure to be ratified highlights the ongoing struggle for gender equality and the need for continued advocacy and action.

In conclusion, Friedman's opinion provides a historical context for understanding the ongoing struggle for gender equality in the United States. It underscores the importance of legal and political action in advancing women's rights and ensuring gender equality.

The Ethics of ‘gay’ acts differ

By PAULA BRAY
State News Staff Writer

Are homosexual acts sinful? Different Christian denominations answer this question in different ways. The Bible says that homosexual acts are sin, but many modern church leaders consider them contrary to traditional teaching, a professor of religion said.

"This is essentially the view set forth in the Old and New Testaments and the writings of the early Church Fathers, both of the East and the West," he said.

But some Dutch Reformed theologians are arguing more liberal lines. Dutch continued. One such theologian has stated that true homosexuality is not a sin but a sin is its rejection by someone who, through no fault of their own, is unable to reject it. The rejection by some persons of the opposite sex is a sin.

According to Dr. Ansell, a "New Testament" states that "true sin is the rejection of true homosexuality by someone who, through no fault of their own, is unable to reject it. The rejection of true sin is a sin of the opposite sex." He added that the old argument that the act is wrong because of the sin of the opposite sex is a sin of the opposite sex.

Of course, the sex of the opposite sex is a sin of the opposite sex, and of course, it is a sin of the opposite sex. As Dr. Ansell pointed out, to one person it is a sin of the opposite sex, and to another, it is not. This is the difference between right and wrong, and it is the difference between the morality of the situation, the morality of the situation, the morality of the situation, the morality of the situation.

There is no morality in morality.

Therefore, although a homosexual is not sinless, he is not sinless. He is not sinless. In the New Testament the most universal and best known: condemnation of homossexual practices is in St. Matthew, 14:28, 29. No section of the United States has been condemned in the New Testament. What is true of the American law and customs, may not be true of the American law and customs.

That's human nature, and it is not surprising that it is true.

Although the male is sinless, and by being the dominant sex, and the homosexual is not sinless, except for the male, he is not sinless. To the male, the sex is not sinless, except for the male, he is not sinless. He is not sinless. The male, the sex, is not sinless, except for the male, he is not sinless. The male, the sex, is sinless but the sex is not sinless.

Sources and critics point to a rising number of ministers, priests and rabbis who are working to change the face of the American church, more than a century after it was founded. The religion of this country, they say, is changing, and it is changing for the better.

Dr. John Bachmann, a professor at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School in New York, has been involved in the movement for more than a decade. "We've been seeing a lot of change in recent years," he said. "The American church is becoming more diverse, more inclusive and more accepting of different perspectives."}

Lutheran Church to study adoption of liberal views

The Lutheran Church in America will study adoption of liberal views on homosexuality and sexual orientation. The proposal was presented to the church's board of directors last week, and it will be considered at the church's national convention this summer.

The proposal, which was introduced by the Rev. Robert Shaw, a pastor in Michigan, would allow churches to perform same-sex marriages and to ordain gay and lesbian ministers. It would also allow for the ordination of women in the clergy.

"We believe that all people should be accepted and valued for who they are," Shaw said. "This proposal is an important step towards creating a more inclusive and welcoming church."
Weekend presents kaleidoscope of talent

By ROBERT KIPPER

"They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" at the Spartan last week, was a real two-picture package. The better picture was the black and white and trenchant story of a hard-luck couple and their long journey through war-torn Europe, which is well portrayed by Rock Hudson and Barbara Stanwyck. The second picture was "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," a well-written script, beautifully directed by George Roy Hill, and superbly performed by Paul Newman and Robert Redford. This film is a must-see for all fans of Westerns.

On Campus Film "Sound of Music," a second classic from the producer of "The Sound of Music," is being shown at 8:15 p.m. It is a musical film that tells the story of the von Trapp family and their escape from Nazi Germany. The film is beautifully directed and features the music of Rodgers and Hammerstein.

For the fans of comedy, "The Best of Mr. Belvedere," a series of shorts, will be shown at 3:30 p.m. The shorts feature bloopers and behind-the-scenes shots from the hit TV series "Mr. Belvedere." The performers are pink. It's a great way to enjoy a weekend.

The Lansing Area Films will be showing "The Molly Maguires," a film about the Molly Maguires, an 1800s labor union that fought against exploitation.

The MUSI international film series presents "The Firemen's Ball" (Greek). The film is about a group of firemen who come together to celebrate a fellow member's retirement.

Ensemble featured
Band concert set

The MUSI's West End Ensemble and Symphony Band, conducted by Barry Beigel, will present a combined concert at 7 p.m. the first weekend of March at the MUSI's Auditorium. The concert, open to the public, will feature a variety of music, including choral music, orchestral music, and solo performances.

The West End Ensemble will also perform "Thems' and Variations," an arrangement of Bizet's "Carmen" by Arthur Scherber and Dall's "Espressivo." The program will highlight the symphonic sound of the orchestra, showcasing the talent of the musicians and their dedication to the art of music.

The Calico Queen
For the fans of Westerns, "The Calico Queen" is a great movie to watch. The story follows a group of women who decide to take on the role of cowboys and prove their worth in the Wild West.

Directed by Paul Newman, the film is beautifully shot and features a great cast. The performances are top-notch, and the script is well-written. The film is a must-see for all fans of Westerns and classic films.
Horses’ depicts human despair

"They Shoot Horses, Don’t They? is a dramatically fascinating work that somehow manages to be at once overwhelming, mighty stirring, deeply disturbing and the essence of the Vollinger tradition, as it depicts the lives of restless, dreamy women and the vicious and ruthless marriage of the Depression era."

By the turn of an improbably difficult, difficult, difficult, and ultimately the only way to truthfully depict and the essence of the Vollinger tradition, as it depicts the lives of restless, dreamy women and the vicious and ruthless marriage of the Depression era."

The emergence of authenticity and unassuming, inconspicuous scenes of grace and for a $1,000 prize, the couple come to realize the exploitation of the performers, the existence of the audience and how to compensate their outside town with a hoped-for victory on the inside.

But, rather than protecting them from their outside performances, the bailees come to realize they are needed for a collective and collective agency.

New theater provides original experiences

The newly formed New Playwrights’ Theatre is responsible for presenting some of the freshest original theatre experiences on campus. The two plays in the series are very well received by their creators. "And I’m Not Talking About Sex," written by Tevia Abrams, is a short play that explores the theme of sex and sexuality. "Service in Time of Love," by Dr. Clifford Wharton, is a satire that parodies religious institutions. Both plays are performed in the Michigan State University Theatre on March 7 at 8 p.m. for $50 cents admission.

The Ailey troupe mirrors life

By SUZAN DORMANDY
State News Reviewer

When the silent film went out in the early 1930's, a number of the stars - many of the big names in Hollywood at the time - went out with their careers. Some of these stars have gradually faded from the popular memory, but others have left a mark on the film industry. Among those who have left their mark is the man who is now considered to be one of the greatest dancers of all time - Alvin Ailey. Ailey has been a force in the dance world for several decades, and his legacy continues to this day.

In the 1930's, Ailey was a member of the studio of Mitchell, one of the leading choreographers of the time. He started his career as a dancer and quickly rose through the ranks, eventually becoming a soloist with the company. He was known for his powerful and dynamic performances, and his style continued to evolve as he moved up through the ranks.

Ailey was a true dancer, and he continued to dance until his death in 1989. He is remembered for his passion and dedication to the craft of dance, and his legacy continues to inspire dancers around the world. The Ailey troupe, which is named in his honor, continues to perform his works and showcase his talent for future generations to enjoy.

The Ailey troupe mirrors life in its performances, as Alvin Ailey himself did. He was a man who was deeply rooted in the culture of African Americans and sought to bring that culture to the world through his dance. The troupe continues to do so today, and its performances are a celebration of the rich history and culture of black America.

The Ailey troupe is a testament to the power of dance to connect people and to bring about social change. It is a group of dancers who are passionate about their craft and who are committed to sharing their passion with the world. Their performances are a reflection of the struggles and triumphs of black Americans, and they continue to inspire people to this day.

The Ailey troupe mirrors life in its performances, and its legacy is a reminder of the power of dance to bring people together and to seek justice. The troupe is a shining example of what can be achieved through art, and its continued success is a testament to the importance of dance in the world.

Big man for cagers just one test away

Ever since the first score began to fall in East Lansing last season, the state's basketball scene has been obvious that MSU needs a big man in this game...even more evident at times. Jim Gibbons has carried the burden at center all year and has answered the question about help with surprising, excellent performance.

The only big man MSU has had in recent memory was Matt Miske, who didn't return this year. With Matt in the middle, the Spartans finished second in the conference. Lee Miller played the center last two years, but Jim Gibbons, he was natural forward.

For over a year, Jim Gibbons was the center of an intense search. Without Matt in the middle, the Spartans couldn't afford to lose their tallest player. Gibbons decided to switch to center in his final year this season to give the Spartans a center capable of filling the void left by Miske.

Gymnasts seek second in Big 10

By JOHN VIGES

Michigan State Sports Writer

An oddity in the conference finals could potentially eliminate the powerful Michigan gymnastics team from NCAA competition and, even more oddly, it could bring the Big Ten team a second place finish in the National meet. The Spartans had only a handful of weeks to prepare for the winter track meet.

To determine final standings and the representation to the national tournament, the winner of conference meet is added to points given for the position in the conference meet (6 points for 1st, 3 for 2nd, etc.). If Michigan finished first, the conference points would be 1st, 3rd, and 6th. And if Illinois finished third, Michigan would be left out of NCAA men competition despite a perfect dual meet season this year.

A third place finish by Michigan is possible but not expected. Illinois was soundly handled by the Spartans and finished third in the season meet at U, Michigan was without the services of George Nissen, perhaps their best man on the long jump vault and floor exercise.

A second place finish in the conference meet is exactly what the Spartans are shooting for and a second for the first standings would be just on the cake. Illinois won Big Ten South, second Michigan, Iowa, MSU and Minnesota if the MSU squad is to end up second.

Coach George Nissen's squad will all go as an effort to prove that they are better than their recent results.

"Even though our mood isn't as good as we hoped it would be, our squad is certainly heading into the meet with a great attitude," Nissen said.

The Spartans are not in the best physical shape heading into the final. All around man Marky Lanning will only work in the parallel bars and Charlie Horse will be fighting the effects of a sprained wrist. Tom Kallman, who will take Marky's all-around spot, is recovering from a knee injury which he picked up at Indiana when he slipped and fell into the mat.

One Spartan who has avoided the injuries and turned in an excellent season is MSU in the only winter on the squad, Nienberg.

Murahata has been especially good on the low beam vault and floor exercise. In four meets he has finished first in vaulting and three meets have seen him take the top floor exercise spot. Nienberg has averaged 9.4 for the 5.77 while Denny leads the Spartan floor team with a 9.88 average.

Nienberg will be counting on two good scores in three events (squats, parallel bars and floor exercise). Bob Gabblers, on ring and Al Sander on the high bar. Sander won the event against Indiana and Iowa, a promising freshman has had good success in the meets.

Gymnast team captains Michelle Montgomery was one of 11 Michigan State gymnasts named to the 1980 Woodrow Wilson National Invitational competition.

McLain 'paints' himself out of corner, leaves company

DETROIT (UPI) - Denny McLain, the Detroit Tigers pitching ace, has removed himself from the pain business.

Edward F. May, general counsel of Denny McLain Dyne Paint, Inc., of southeast Detroit, announced at the firm's best and possibly last annual meeting Wednesday night that McLain has asked that his name be deleted from the company's articles of incorporation.

McLain, 25, is listed as president of the corporation, which he started in 1967 with $30,000 of start-up money.

The firm is one of the ventures which have pulled McLain into financial trouble.

His personal debts are estimated at between $50,000 and $150,000, and Dyne is more than $150,000 in debt. Four creditors have sued the company for a total of $700,000, and a package of federal liens has been assigned over the company's property.

In addition, the Michigan Securities Exchange Commission is investigating Dyne and two other McLain businesses for possible violation of the state's securities laws.

May said Dyne may be placed in receivership and possibly sold to a new company made up of McLain's creditors, a decision to be made later this week.

He said McLain will not receive a settlement for the business.

McLain was suspended indefinitely by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Feb. 20 while the Commissioner's Office conducts a further investigation of the Zigano brothers' alleged links with a bookmaking operation in New York.

Lolich is now No. 1

Detroit Tigers pitcher Mickey Lolich works on evening outs as he throws from the mound during spring training camp in Lakeland, Florida. Although the Tigers' 19 game winning pitcher coach Mike Hargreaves, reserve Jim Fear, Lolich, John Miller, Fred Lasher and Tom Tevisenman. With Denny McLain suspended indefinitely, Lolich is the Tiger's No. 1 pitcher.

Run For Your Life, Gabblers clash Sunday in All-U finals

It's a rematch of last year's All University championship when the Gabblers and Run For Your Life meet Sunday night for the 1980 All U basketball crown. Game time is 7:30 in the US Sports Arena.

Both teams earned semifinal wins Thursday night - Run For Your Life beating West Shore 9, 20-11, and Gabblers topping Omega Phi, 18-9.

SFYL led 26-21 at the half and held a 38-30 lead when their star showed a comebacker, sparked by the shooting of Jim Hornick and Gary Angeld. Shaw scored 12 straight points to take a 46-38 lead with just under four minutes to play.

Run For Your Life, this year's independent winners, suddenly came alive in the second half to regain the lead and the win. Doug Beazie (15) and Mark Van Drachal (14) paired the winner's attack while Marshall's 16 and Angeld's 15 were high for both teams.

Shaw, who won the men's half, defeated their first loss of the year after two straight wins.

'Georgia Phi' led most of the game but the Tigers' smooth and flashy backcourt was led in a top spot by Bob Fober to earn a 77-76 lead with nine minutes to play.

Software?

Systems programmers at RCA get somewhat involved with hardware.

There used to be a theory that systems programmers didn't talk with hardware engineers. This was like a husband and wife living in two separate houses. We believe in interface—programmers and engineers work out their problems together.

The results seem to be proving us right. We call it "total systems architecture."

We believe the programmer must get involved with the total problem—software and hardware people synergize with each other.

There are conflicts, but it's producing results. For instance, we are already a generation ahead of the major competitor in time-sharing systems.

There are other benefits. We are not a narrow specialized company. We are a medium-sized, human and highly concerned with the future. We will rub elbows with scientists, engineers, psychologists—people from numerous disciplines and backgrounds.

After all, the computer is going to be involved with all the problems of the next 30 years of this century.

If you are working for an advanced or undergraduate degree in Computer Science, we would like to talk to you. Contact your College Placement Director, or write directly to: RCA College Relations, Dept. E, Cherry Hill, Camden, New Jersey 08101.

We not only believe in equal opportunity employment—we practice it.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS
Legislative restraint

The Governor and today's legislature are dealing with the problem of non-Muslims.

Specifically, the report calls for granting non-Muslim students the same academic assistance that students of other faiths might receive. "In further calls for continuation of the Governor's initiative," the report says, "the Governor wants to assure students that they are safe on campus and feel safe in a religious community of their own choice and denomination, and not just on the religious campus of the University of Michigan, as a form of protection and assistance."

In further calls for continuation of the Governor's initiative, the report says, "the Governor wants to assure students that they are safe on campus and feel safe in a religious community of their own choice and denomination, and not just on the religious campus of the University of Michigan, as a form of protection and assistance."

While students support this initiative, it is not clear how they will be protected.
