Friend of Rap Brown, another die in blow-up

HEL. ARR. Md. (AP) - An associate of college militant H. Rap Brown or his followers who identically revealed a mystery woman who was found Thursday by an explosives that sent the car in which they were riding轨轨。

Brown himself was not here to be found and was in New York City or he was out of the state on business or Vermont on travel.

A medical examiner and Brown's lawyer, William W. Nellums, said they could not tell the second dead man was Brown.

This is dispute was whether the man was a real explosive, in the car that had been opened to an arrest, or was Brown.

The chief deputy medical examiner of Prince George's County, George C. Askew, said the body was found dead, so it was not a restored body. He was not called.

Tom Cotter, the victim's father, was identified in the car by Brown's son, a friend of Brown and an associate in civil rights campaigns.

The body of the second man was found in the car on Thursday.

The two were killed when an explosives blast exploded in a bomb that had been dropped onto a car.

Police cause of death was not released because of the body had been burned.

State police said they could not rule out the possibility that the bomb had been dropped in a car and that it had been dropped onto a car.

Milliken urges dissidents to protest by legal means

by JEFF SHEVER
Lansing News Staff Writer

Gov. Milliken told a group of students Tuesday that the violent protest is ineffective and "will not alter the facts of a case."

"We thought it would be wise in my responsibility as Governor to let you all know the court case behind the whole thing," Milliken said.

"I think it will be very pleasant to you if you'll listen to me for a few minutes how I think the court case stands, and why it is so important that you follow the proper avenues of legal solution," he added.

Milliken said "it is the right of any citizen to have a fair trial and to have a fair trial he must have access to the courts."

"It will be your personal responsibility," Milliken said. "I do not advocate that you will do anything that will endanger your life or your property or anyone else's. But if you have a case to be heard by the court, you have the right to do it."

Milliken also noted that a number of demands were made out of his office, but he was unable to meet them.

Car rental agency drops connection with trip offer

By IRENE PINKERT
Lansing News Staff Writer

A Lansing branch representative for National Car Rental said Monday that his branch will no longer send student travelers to the Lansing airport.

"I think it's a matter of concern for any person presenting such trips," he said.

He reported that a number of students were planning to return to the university during the Easter vacation.

Sihanouk glad to meet Nixon

PARIS (AP) - Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's first prime minister, arrived in Paris Tuesday for talks with U.S. President Nixon.

The prince spoke to reporters Wednesday after a meeting with President Richard Nixon.

Sihanouk said he would discuss with Nixon the possibility of changes in the role of any car for public relations.

He also said that the prince was deeply concerned about the case of a car rental agency.

"I think it's a matter of concern for any person presenting such trips," he said.

Laos volunteers from America reported killed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Laos officials and the Washington Post said Thursday that 40 young volunteers from the United States were killed in Laos last year in the wreck of a cargo plane.

The Role of Leasing in Black Community Development

TODAY
3 p.m. - FREE ADMISSION
106 B Wells Hall

Mr. Wood, a president of a multinational leasing company operating in Africa, will discuss three main goals: more knowledgeable growth of African-American students in every city, the creation of a national network of the educational centers in the Lansing area, and support for parents.

The Michigan-Asian American community would be strengthened by the support of the national network with the Lansing Welfare Rights Organization.

He said that the parents were concerned about their children's future and were working to help them.

Guard protects Lamar pupils

Lamar, S.C. (AP) — Lamar has been the scene of two incidents in the past week, after older whites attacked homecoming court members. Negroes responded Tuesday to National Guardsmen and state police who showed up.

Two of the 70 were shot.

The small group of white adults were turned back by police and guardsmen as they tried to enter campus of the state high and university system. The G-4's remained as an armed camp.

Highway patrolmen, in one car and with riot gear, stood across the road. Small bands of individuals were patrolled the area, while police fired tears gas and bean bags were thrown.

The first group of pups about 6 a.m. In hours, the dogs were placed by highway patrolmen.

All those trying to be was turned back by the police and guardsmen at school in only 100.

Can't the bookstore be a student service?

It is unusual indeed to eliminate chaos by creating chaos. Parallelized as this may seem, this is just what the bookstore, the only "official" bookstore, has done by revising its used book buyback policy.

One cannot deny that during registration, lines are long. There is more traffic within the store itself, creating more confusion. Registration and the first day of classes are quite hectic for the MSU bookstore.

To alleviate this condition, MSU Bookstore Manager Mr. James Howick has declared that used books will only be bought back during registration.

This most certainly will take away from the registration traffic congestion bemoaned by the Financial Center. But it will also make things much better for the student who wishes to buy books. Mr. Howick has forgotten that books are not just something one buys at 75 per cent and sells back at 50 per cent. Books bring people back to the bookstore over and over again. Students lack the time to read books in fast students and to use their books more than ever during final week. They cannot possibly buy their textbooks, some of them for the first time.

Mr. Howick contends that students will be able to sell back their books when they are through with finals. He forgot, though, that many students, as soon as they are through with final week, will leave MSU immediately for home or Florida. People with Friday tests are not going to sell back their books Saturday to buy back books, they want to graduate.

Of course this is selfish action on the students' part. One can say that if they do not buy back books, they will stick around an extra week. This is considerably a lie. As long as the bookstore was supposedly created to serve the student body, no one in their right mind would suggest that the MSU Bookstore has always been able to buy and sell books during registration before. It is hectic, but the bookstore has always managed in the past.

Should wives be given male's residence status?

The residence regulations of this university have never been known as examples of harmonious perfection. Hopefully, however, action will soon be taken to clear up one of those glaring injustices when a committee of the university moves to consider changes concerning the residence regulations established in the past.

At the present time, a married woman is allowed to apply for admission to the university only if she is a member of the state student class. Furthermore, the state student class is defined as an out-of-state student paying the full out-of-state tuition rates. Hence the corresponding fees. Furthermore, if she has fulfilled all requirements: working and living for the last year, the student is still considered a nonresident. Worse yet, a native-born female is still considered a nonresident even though she was born in the state.

This practice is clearly discriminatory. Essentially what it means is that a woman is being penalized for being married and having children. It is not by any means hypocritical considering our current student body. I am certain that the current policy is valuable to changes of parity male chauvinism since it is the woman that is forced to change her residency.

The answer, we feel, would be to remove all considerations of marital status in the determination of the person's residence with respect to the university. A woman's residence status should be judged solely on her own qualifications rather than as a function of those of her spouse.

We urge the administration to continue consideration to this problem and to implement remedial measures at the earliest possible time.

POINT OF VIEW

Israel's military ties to the West

"The media have been enamored of Israeli hardliners who propose building a defensive sanctuary along the Lebanon border. But the hardl..."

James Howick

Unfortunately, Mr. Howick's argument that buying back books only during finals week is the only plausible solution does not hold water. We hope that you will consider including registration and the first couple of days of classes in the used book buyback plan.

In case Mr. Howick fails to heed this advice, we suggest all students take their used books to other places. The New Community is running another book exchange in the Shaw Lower Lounge during finals week, registration and the first week of classes. It is probable that one will be able to get more than 50 per cent for his books there anyway.

The bookstores in East Lansing will buy back books at any time as a service to the MSU students, in case one cannot sell his books at the exchange.

The MSU Bookstore needs to realize that they are a student service in order to be a valuable used book exchange. This conclusion stems from Mr. Howick's neglect to properly manage the bookstore in such a manner that it is, in fact, a service to the students, we suggest in addition to be outside of the bookstore altogether in order to evaluate its procedures.

Michigan Indians demand equality

The Indian district council of the University of Michigan has demanded equality rights for Indians in India. The council has stated that the university's policy of not allowing Indians to serve in the Peace Corps, unless they are of full-blooded Indian origin, is discriminatory and violates the spirit of the Peace Corps.

The council has also demanded that the university recognize the Indian district council as a legitimate representative of the Indian people, and that the university provide equal opportunity for Indians to participate in all university activities.

The council has stated that the university's policy is inconsistent with the goals of the Peace Corps, which is to promote understanding and cooperation between people of different cultures.

The council has called on the university administration to take immediate action to remedy the situation and to ensure the rights of Indians are respected.

Brubeck's change in style brings 'Gates of Justice'

By SHIRLEY JOHNSON

Dave Brubeck, one of the most popular and influential musicians of his time, has reinvented his style of music and composition.

While the gradual loss of an audience and decreased listeners often follow the performer who changes style, Brubeck is a noted exception to this trend. The Dave Brubeck Trio will perform Brubeck's latest composition, "The Gates of Justice," at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Auditorium.

The composition, a 53-minute concerto, will be performed at the MSU Auditorium for all students at 1:00 p.m. in the main auditorium by his trio. This is the farewell concert before tonight's concert.

The concert was done partly from the Old Testament and partly from the New Testament, partly from the Bible, partly from the writings of Saint Paul, partly from the writings of Saint Mark and partly from the writings of Saint Luke. The three brotherhoods of men under one God, is a plea for peace and a strong message in behalf of the Jewish and black people.

The style of music through its concerts, featuring DI and BSS, appeared and stood. The different segments of his concert are included by use of imagination and a musical arrangement in the two styles.

Chevrolet in October, 1969. At that last performance at the Auditorium, the audience "swayed, jumping, leaping and singing to the rhythm and remembering to shake down the roof on which the church group stood."

The concert requires two soloists. The soloists will be Harold O'Connell, tenor, who possesses prophetic values and ideas.

Hollywood. Broadway or an internationally conceived band. Brubeck will ring the concert soloists in the performance of three international vocal competitions and as an accomplished pianist. He has sung for the President of the United States and appeared on the national radio network as the singing discovery program. The concert will feature an introduction and a benediction will be given.

MSU's 40 member State Singers will provide the chorus and 31 members of the Japanese ensemble will be heard.

EDUCATOR DEFINES NEEDS

Police goal: serve community

by JOHN N. ROIG

Police departments can shift the emphasis from law enforcement to community service through the infusion of college campus leadership, A. S. Bruder-Martin, chairman of the Police Department's Commission on the Future of the Police Department, told the symposium. The public expects police departments to provide the background music for the community. Police departments have locked the kind of thoughtful, interested leadership that college training can provide," he said.

Bruder-Martin, one of the eight members of the commission, said that local police departments have stated repeatedly that adequate personnel with background in community relations and secondary schools to discuss the problems and influence of work during a period of mental health. Local police departments have been attempted in the New York area and community leadership have been found locally in Michigan.

Bruder-Martin and the lack of adequate evaluation of these programs has hindered their acceptance nationally.

He noted that over the past three years there has been a "dangerous" decline in community relations and people major in police administration.

"A large percentage of these people are in law enforcement," Bruder-Martin said. "There are too many people speaking in the wrong language with the wrong people at the wrong time with the wrong people at the wrong time."

The first City Police Department operates an internship program in cooperation with the school of Criminal Justice, providing a job situation that is not to the public.

Bruder-Martin will be reported by law students to police administration in police departments for use in future police training. These departments are looking at the community relations approach to community relations for the State of New York. Many of these programs are now in their infancy.

Also at the symposium was a group of students who were taking in the local police. The local police were found to be the respondents in the report. Albion H.S. stays closed; white, black pupils clash Albion, U.P. — Albion High School remained closed today in the wake of a battle between Albion High and Albion Central students that forced a shutdown of classes Tuesday. School officials said they did not know if they would reopen classes Wednesday unless police protection and parent consent would be available to maintain order.

Several students were injured, but no hospitalizations resulted in the confrontation Monday. The Albion High School students were arrested for carrying "dangerous weapons," but all were released after questioning by police.

Four officers and two students were picked up in a car filled with juveniles and the other eight cars filled. The three cars filled with juveniles arrested. After the arrest of juveniles Friday, district court judges were called and the students were released.

Robert Mezey views arts, life in America

By SUSAN DORMODY

"A lot of people believe that what a poet does is simple," says Robert Mezey. "There's nothing further from the truth. A poet does everything, everything one might imagine, and more. It's almost a human being."

Mezey learned how to write poetry by simply remembering. He sat with his father and wrote down every word he heard. He learned that poetry is equivalent to music and that it is also a kind of dance.

"I started writing poetry when I was 12 or 13," he continued. "As I grew older, I learned more about how to do it. Although I've never been formally taught, I've learned a lot from my own practice."

Mezey's work is characterized by its careful attention to detail and its use of simple language. He considers his poetry to be a form of dance, and he often uses movement and rhythm in his writing.

"My poetry is a form of dance, a kind of movement," he said. "It's very much a part of my life, and I find it very fulfilling."

Large beast for sale:
the bids ain't 'dragon'

If you were bidding for a dragon as big as you can throw your horse, you wouldn't think you'd get two such competitors. But for Democratic nominee Walter B. Reuther, a three-foot-long and four-foot-high -- has become one of his biggest hits.

"The big business has to be when people start asking for a price" on it, Mezey said. For many, the beast's head was a symbol of the Quayle Family at 210 Abbott Rd. When the "beast" went out of business recently, Mezey, who bought it in the former location of the Quayle family, thought he'd have it at an "easy 800."

Apollo news

In a recent article in the Student Union, Gail Grant, a professor of biology at Michigan State University, reviewed the Apollo 11 moon landing and the subsequent expedition to the Moon. Grant's article emphasized the significance of this event in the history of science.

"The Apollo 11 landing was not only a milestone in space exploration, but also in human history," Grant wrote. "It was a triumph of technology, ingenuity, and determination."

Mezey, 62, has been a poet for nearly half a century. He currently teaches at the University of Iowa and is a member of the Iowa Writers' Workshop. His work has been published in numerous literary journals and has received several awards.

"I don't think I'm a political person," he said. "I'm more of a poet. My work is more about the human condition, about love and loss, about the beauty of the world."

Mezey's work is often characterized by its use of imagery and metaphor. He draws on his own experiences and those of others to create a sense of depth and complexity in his poetry.

"I try to make my poetry as accessible as possible," he said. "I want people to feel like they can relate to it, even if they don't necessarily understand every word."

Mezey's latest collection of poems, "The Universe," will be released later this year. He is currently working on a new book of essays, "The Art of Poetry."

President Thorton admitted Monday that he is not in a position to identify and articulate the opinions of competing groups within the university — students, faculty, alumni, etc., to groups concerned with the university's public image and public opinion.

"The student's subculture, change comes to the extent that you accept it," Thorton said. "My students are more aware of the importance of higher education to about 250 graduates students is owned by the students."

Many of the graduate student's questions were addressed in the classes for social determinants for the students. Thorton has told students about the need to make decisions, but not to make decisions, for the students.

Benington Fund nets $23,000

By MIKE MANLEY
State News Sports Writer

Mrs. Barbara Benington, with her family and friends, was presented a check for $23,000 by Dr. John Benington who died last September in a heart attack, at the Big House, in East Lansing, Michigan. The check represented all the money raised to date in honor of the late Dr. Benington. This included people who died and people who were treated for their problems. The check was presented by the family and friends of the late Dr. Benington.

"It has been a long process to decide the best way to do the thing," said John Benington's widow, Barbara. "We were very happy to see the final figure." The fund has been established by the late Dr. Benington to help people who were injured in the course of their work. The fund has also provided money for scholarships and other educational purposes.

Johnson overcomes injuries to break foes

By GARY WALKOWICZ
Executive Sports Editor

It's been a long, tough road for right-hander Greg Johnson, but after entering the final half of the season without a prior start, Johnson is in the midst of one of the best seasons of his career. Smith's juniors have not had a prior start, and when he won a match in the third round of the state tournament, he pulled out his right arm, putting him on the bench for the rest of the season.

Johnson will face a challenge in his upcoming game, but his efforts have not gone unnoticed. He has been named to the All-State first team and is the leading vote-getter in the state for most valuable player.

Spartans' Thompson named WCHA's best sophomore

MU's Don Thompson, who scored five goals in one game for the Spartans this season, has been named to the Collegiate Hockey Association's (NCAA) All-West Team. The freshman was also named to the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's All-Star Team last year.

Thompson, a 6-1, 218-pound forward, and the Spartans team is one of the most exciting teams in the country. Thompson was also named to the NCAA All-West Team last year.

The team's selection came in annual all-star voting by league coaches, associate head coaches and athletic directors.

Before the season is over, Thompson will be named to the WCHA All-Star Team. He has scored 22 goals and 44 points in 30 games this season.

Thompson scored seven goals in the last four games for the Spartans prior to the Michigan game due to a knee injury.

Thompson is expected to be named to the NCAA All-West Team. The NCAA All-West Team members were picked by senior center Murray Mitchell, who is listed among the most valuable player award in the nation. Thompson was also named to the NCAA All-West Team last year.

Maravich, Lanier head up UPI team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Maravich and Bob Lanier, the two best players in the NBA, have signed contracts with the UPI, the news agency.

Maravich, most prolific scorer in the game, produced, in his first two years, 440 points in 82 games, and Lanier, who has played in 1,000 games, said Monday he will use his salary to fund a scholarship fund for UPI.

The second team consists of Orlando's Nate McMillan, UCLA freshman Glenn Robinson, Denver's Anthony Mason, and Lennie虱e.

Lanier, who was named the Most Valuable Player in the NBA last season, said Monday he will use his salary to fund a scholarship fund for UPI.

The truck — hard bag — of Maravich, the star on a team coached by his father, battled, in the second season, for the championship. The two players have scored 2,000 points in the season in a variety of ways.

Maravich, 11 foot giant from St. Johns, N.Y., averaged 30 points in leading the Boilermakers into the NCAA Tournament.

Faculty News 'ignored'

By BARBARA PARNES

From News Staff Witten

Communication and dialogue are the essential elements of M.I.U.'s Faculty News, according to its editor Dave Ruffin. However, feedback from the University community has been sparse, and the editor feels the paper is neither fulfilling its purpose, Ruffin said recently.

"We tried to get some feedback and to bring the Faculty into this," Ruffin said Monday. "But we're having trouble."

"I think there is a tendency for people in the community to think that because they're not being talked to, it's not always the case. In this business of news, it's not good news, I suppose the worst kind of newspaper can suffer is to be ignored," he continued.

The Faculty News is distributed to all individual faculty and an average of three copies of the original idea for the publication came from Gordon A. Stubble, vice president for special projects. Publication began last summer.

The Faculty News is essentially the voice of two individuals - Ruffin and Beverly Twigg, an M.I.U. graduate working as a graduate assistant in January.

"There has been occasional news where we have had to check facts, but we've really only had serious problems in one instance," Ruffin said. "However, sometimes it makes a considerable effort to be on top of this place."

"We are working on this continually. It has never been applied to, but the results can be seen in the problems of the administration in recent weeks."

"I don't even know if this page is necessary," Ruffin said. "If we act on it, it will continue."

"There is a future, but it has to be shared with the Faculty News. We're not sure how to do it, and this is one of the things that is left to the administration in the absence of a Faculty News."
Financial director predicts priority system for funds

by ROBERTA SMITH

With the expected outreach fund cuts, the Financial Aid Office is undoubtedly concerned with how to prioritize funds for the 1970-71 academic year. While the financial aid office has not announced any specific plans yet, they have identified at least four key areas in which funds will be allocated.

1. Students with exceptional financial need
2. Students with special talents or achievements
3. Students who have demonstrated academic success
4. Students with a strong commitment to giving back to the community

Higher education loans are a type of aid that are not based on need and are determined by the Financial Aid Office. Students who meet the criteria for this type of aid will be offered it, regardless of their financial situation. This includes loans for undergraduate and graduate students.

Financial aid offers are extended to students who meet the criteria for financial need, as determined by the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). These offers are based on a variety of factors, including the student's financial need, academic performance, and participation in extracurricular activities.

Applications for financial aid are due by April 1 of the previous year. Students are encouraged to complete the FAFSA as soon as possible to ensure that they receive their awards in a timely manner.

The primary goal of the financial aid system is to provide students with the resources they need to attend college. The Financial Aid Office is committed to ensuring that all students have access to the financial aid they need to succeed.

University of Michigan

The university has recently announced that it will be increasing financial aid for students in need. This includes an increase in grants, scholarships, and loans, as well as an expansion of the FAFSA application deadline.

The university is committed to ensuring that all students have access to the education they need to succeed. This includes providing financial aid to students who may not otherwise be able to afford college.

Bill hits phosphites, predicts priority system for funds

The bill, sponsored by Terry, would make phosphites mandatory in all agricultural applications. It is hoped that this will help reduce the negative impact of phosphorus on the environment.

The bill would require all farmers to use phosphites in their applications, with a few exceptions. These exceptions include small-scale farmers and those who are unable to afford the cost of phosphites.

The bill would also include provisions for research and development of new phosphite products. This would help ensure that the bill is effective in reducing the negative impact of phosphorus on the environment.

The bill has received widespread support and is expected to be passed by the state legislature.

The bill's provisions include:

- Mandating the use of phosphites in all agricultural applications
- Providing research and development funding for new phosphite products
- Creating a phosphite advisory board

The bill is supported by a coalition of environmental groups, farmers, and scientists who are concerned about the negative impact of phosphorus on the environment.

The bill would also include provisions for education and outreach. This would help ensure that farmers are aware of the benefits of using phosphites and how to properly use them.

The bill is expected to be voted on in the state legislature in the near future.
