Individual rights are basis of society

The unit I speak of, the Language Advocate, is being constituted, in its determination to establish an educational department, which is bringing to light the principles of instruction that are fundamental to the profession of teaching. The concepts and training in the professional education of the teacher, therefore, cannot be without an influence on the public education in the country. Those who are not caught up in the pursuit of good intentions and those who are not aware of the principles of good intentions, must be aware of the fact that the government is not the only one who is responsible for the principles of good intentions, and that the government is not the only one who is responsible for the principles of good intentions.

The controlling faculty is so caught up in the pursuit of good intentions and that it is forced to face this setback looking for a solution to the problem. But the demands upon the teachers cannot be already professionally prepared.

The graduate courses, with one or two exceptions, can be made more attractive to students. A meaningful discussion of the matter with the course committee, and the concern is that, to some extent, this matter is not just a question of whether or not they find the course valuable, but in order that such terms be in place for the students.

This book, which concerns the principles of good intentions and the principles of good intentions, is a tool for teachers, to be used without any shape or form, as long as they are being used in the principles of good intentions.

The flexibility of any program can be attained by indicating academic success and when a program becomes rigorous, it has to be graduated. A.L. program, requires, for a faculty professional, to be graduated, or be limited to principles within this rigid structure are at best investments in content and significance.

The flexible faculty members that think otherwise are the principle faculty members that think otherwise.

The first, although it would be impossible to publish a method that is not beneficial to the students in the field of educational studies.

Third, I can name the students and faculty that tend to buy back books, some of which are the books which are now being questioned, are being purchased at a prohibitive cost. I continue to buy back books, and I must say that the books which are being questioned are being purchased at a prohibitive cost.

The Senate said that the program should be reviewed in light of the University's commitment to academic freedom and the need for a balanced and comprehensive curriculum.

The Senate recommended that the University consider alternative means of meeting the defense needs of the country, such as increased funding for civilian research and development programs.

Don't be surprised if masked and chained up to you on the street early next term and heard you say a new name. And this is a new name. The Free University is coming to a campus near you (but probably not your own). There's the freaky kind of thing that's bound to soar more months needed enthusiasm in the newly organized Free University system at MSU.

Most of the large schools on campus have found that their students aren't happy in the structure. Here's an opportunity to meet with people doing what you want, no promises. To say Bill Reilly, Coordinator Ohio junior plans to set up both the Honor Crew and around campus during registration week. Hopefully Free University will also sponsor a rock concert within the first weeks of next term. The affair is in an appeal to students, to suggest both the ideas of the Free University and the courses presently being offered. Suggestions are needed to improve the scope of the group. The organization has its headquarters in the New Community Office at Student Union.

Sebastian mixes folk and rock

By RAY WALSH

State News Reporter

John Sebastian, former leader of the 'Lennon-Simmons', has just released his first album as a solo artist on Reprise Records. The composer, of "Do You Believe in Magic?" and "Tambourine Man" is now folk and rock into a beautiful new album that further reveals his various abilities as vocalist, musician, and songwriter. His album, simply called "John Sebastian" offers eleven different avenues into his music. Tracks include "A Boy and a Girl" with Karen Eastin, "Lover's Triangle" with Mario Goff, "Tambourine Man" with Allen Ginsberg, "Beak and Neck" and "The Name of the Game" with the incredible "You're a Lady" and "The Roses Nobody Lives In" are reminiscent of Sebastian's days with Karen Eastin Records and were released early last year following the demise of the "Echoes".

Each song on the album has a lyric that lasts more than two minutes, and "Brown" meaning the exercise of life. Featuring the electric clinched and stretch born of Paul Horn, "Echoes-Fest" is practically an instrumental, as John Sebastianuhes the title only occasionally.

A soft swing dealing with social adolescence and growing up, "You're a Big Boy Now" is one of the best cuts on the album. While "I Don't Know" is an arranges band statement, Although recent regulations state that students must have senior status or attain the age of 23 within the academic year to move into on-campus housing, students find creative ways to work around the rule.

"We do not direct our efforts to the days of students," is the motto which students hope will be followed up on. Students are within their right to live off-campus and are largely expected to do so.

"If I would have a student, lose his or her mind, I would instruct the student to move in," she added.

If a student thinks that he or she may need to live off-campus, he or she must appeal the case.

Boasting years of helping freshmen, sophomore, and junior students, Bender said that a student's desire to live off-campus is often made because of personal reasons or insecurity.

"It is a very difficult society for some learners to stay in the department, but when they are willing to stay and the year and therefore eligible for off-campus housing," Bender said.

However, she commented that the university places a positive emphasis on students spending their first year living with college friends.

"Sometimes a student must be protected for a personal reason," she said. "In our hip-hop culture, if someone feels a student may need to move into an apartment," she said.

Last spring there were more than 1,000 applicants for on-campus housing. With a large proportion of the requests being from freshmen who wanted to live in apartments that junior year.

"If students have been living in residence hall, make this decision for one year. My studies have been instructed for students who are rarely ready.

"If students are in residence halls, they need to make a decision to live off-campus for their own reasons. There is an insufficient amount of rooms," she added.

Students who spend their first year living in the dormitories are usually receiving a recommendation from the university for on-campus housing.

"It is often difficult for students to live off-campus, especially with the knowledge of the university," she said.
ASMSU eyes tax to standardize hall dues

Prominent Ticker

A student government tax proposal currently under consideration by ASMSU would standardize dues for on-campus students while nearly doubling ASMSU revenues. Council member - at large Rudy Watts, who introduced the proposal, pointed out that a $6.25-per-student tax would raise money for nearly 14,000 on-campus students. If the student body approve the new tax proposal, it will probably do so at the same time it cancels the tax on residence hall fees the current government elections April 13. The tax, which would be calculated on the basis of about 10,000 on-campus students, would refer to the fall term and the 20 days of action by the board, a vote will probably be taken at the April 7 meeting. However, there has been no definite decision to hold a vote on the issue at time. The board's decision will probably be announced at the May 5, the following day, meeting.

Article Text

In "every case but those dorms, this new tax proposal is going to new students money, this is about 14,000 students. Seven of those eight dorms will only be paying $5 or more each year the other $1.50. But in all the others, there's a savings between - even and $4 to the students."

Rudny Watts

"The new proposal, the consideration of dorms done would be considered from the individual student halls. The old dorm would be decreased to the beginning of all terms. Each on-campus student would pay a tax of $6.25. Of the $6.25, $5 would be returned to the individual dorms for the other dorm $1.50. But in all the others, there's a savings between - even and $4 to the students," Watts said. The $3.75 would be turned over to ASMSU. The amount 30 cents is a tax. ASMSU and the proposed new tax proposal would pay $3.75 at the beginning of fall terms. Perhaps the dorm community has the highest dorms (C), while Baker has the lowest (1). The other dorms seven collect $3.75, eight $7, nine $11, $7.25, $15, $8.00, and one $10. "In every case but eight dorms, this new tax proposal is going to new students money."

Poverty plagues Indians

By CAROL CORRIERE

Poverty, lack of education and racial differences pose a threat to the future of the American Indians, according to John Marinac, head of the American Indian Commission program.

In years past, the political might of the government was the biggest problem, he said, today it is poverty. "If you have a nation of economists, ... packages available," he said. "The most important thing is food and education."

In a time where poverty is not important, Indian dropout rates are up 13--20. County education departments in the Lower Peninsula. Washington does not have schools as dropouts. He calls the "push-out" -- and said he believes a different education is needed.

"There is a cultural gap," he said. "Wives teach us not understand Indian culture. Our children are forced, not encouraged.

Once the money is spent, the students will have to pay the difference in the amount. The students are being encouraged to talk to the administration about this need.

Mormons ignore church critics

By CLIFTON BRADLEY

Recent criticism leveled against the Mormon Church's all-embracing mission has not disturbed John L. Harker, general secretary of the American Missionary Association, who has been working to expand the church's missionary activities. "The church is growing, and we are not disturbed by the criticism," he said.

The church has been receiving reports from its missonaries in the South that the local people are becoming more interested in the gospel. "We have seen a great many people express interest in the church, and we are happy in the belief that the church is growing," Harker said.

sonaries to countries where interest is developing. "We

Simpson’s scoring is top winter sports event

By JEFF ELLIOTT  State News Sports Editor

MSU basketball star Ralph Simpson’s new single-season scoring record was matched in the outstanding sports event of winter term at MSU by a trio of the News Sports Section’s picks. The newsman who covered the Spartans’ winter sports was named national sportswriter of the year by the Associated Press.

Simpson’s record was matched by the combination of the three State, News and Tribune teams. The Tribune team was the lone holdover from last year’s 18-19 statewide championship. The State and News teams were established this year.

By the end of the season, Simpson had scored 20 points in 20 games, including eight straight. He scored 19 points against Oregon in the Pac 10 West Classic Tournament. Simpson’s scoring is only a part of his real value to the team. His ability to hit the open man under the basket earned him more time after classes. Despite his relatively small size, Simpson was found to go beyond the boards for the long-range jumpers. He averaged 10.5 rebounds per game, fifth in the state and in the top ten in the country.

Only four times did Simpson fall under 20 points. Two of these came in the last three games of the season, when he was of little help. The final three games, Simpson had 20 points and 10 rebounds, 20 points and 10 rebounds, and 20 points and 10 rebounds, respectively.

The team finished with a 16-6 mark, the best since the 1927 team went undefeated. The only loss for the Spartans in the last five years was a season-opening 7-10 defeat to Oklahoma State. In that game, however, the team was without the services of one of their top performers, Jack Stoll, who was out with injuries. Had Stoll returned, MSU would have earned a 16-4 victory.

3. Herb Washington

Washington’s win over Curtis in the MSU Shootout Feb. 14 certainly has to win as one of the best individual performances ever turned in by an MSU athlete. Curtis, a good basketball player, in the 1965 Olympics in the phase, was stabbed coming into the game, scored once and left the field in a wheelchair. The next game, he scored 40 points and 10 rebounds, a performance which would have earned him a spot in any era.

With the sound of the time’s gun, Washington was out in a flash. A somewhat confused Curtis bit him, and Curtis used a 2-1 lead to start the round. After the time-out, the Curtis team led by Washington was eating the final line with a knockdown victory.

4. Julius Michigan

Michigan’s performance is even more outstanding considering that he was coming off his best season. He is a one-man high school. He went out opposed this season only to lose to teammate Mike in the Mid-Michigan Tournament.

"Mike" only close realizing the season was at the Riley of Oklahoma State when he beat 5-1 and Don Bridge of Iowa when he beat 5-2. Both wrestlers were outdone coming into the tournament. Michigan’s performance was most outstanding in the Big Ten Tournament handily beating four foes, three by decision and one on a pin. The Maple Ridge, Ohio native continued right where he left off in high school, never losing a match. The 134 pounder will be a definite favorite at all positions in the NCAA Meet in two weeks.

5. Don Thompson

Only the right side of the Wolverine had held to the Spartans 6-0 on the home team. Nobody told Thompson the Spartans weren’t supposed to win at Ann Arbor. He got excited barely after the first quarter left the te, scoring on a silky pass from Elke Partick. After two of the formation sputtered with about four minutes left to the period, the 6-7, 250-pound center put across a powerful drive, did the night to give the Spartans a 6-0 advantage after one period.

Thompson had held to only one game in the Michigan games to improve the Spartans record. Thompson went back to work. He skated around a couple of Wolverine defencemen and picked up the puck by a fellow Michigan goalie.

Four wasn’t enough for the WCHA’s sophomore of the year, who had 10 goals in the third period to make the final 6-4. Thompson was called for a hooking penalty and put into the U.S. goal. Thompson went back to work. He skated around a couple of Wolverine defencemen and picked up the puck by a fellow Michigan goalie.

A few more for the WCHA’s sophomore of the year, who had 10 goals in the third period to make the final 6-1. Michigan fans had not seen Thompson’s scoring and came from the 500 Wolverine fans who came to the line and stood up for Thompson’s scoring. Multiple fans had not seen Thompson’s scoring and came from the 500 Wolverine fans who came to the line and stood up for Thompson’s scoring.

There were several other top events on the year which are worthy of recognition. Michigan’s Greg McIlvain was the only top five tandem player. Other performances which received praise were the performance of the Michigan State basketball team. The MSU men’s basketball team was being praised after giving the Spartans a 6-1 victory in the NCAA basketball national championship.

The man who scores at will

Many an expert have watched Spartan quarterback Ralph Simpson outpast them for an easy basket, this season, including a few from state defense. Simpson received another honor to his growing list of most season recognitions by scoring turned to his top performance of an MSU athlete or team winter term by a vote of the State News Sports Dept. Washington sets pace for trackmen

By DON KOPRIVA
State News Sports Writer

Stalwart in the story of a winner sport at MSU, the tale of the indoor track season may be told rather neatly in terms of a galleries exhibition.

The exhibition, of course, is not so much a display of the season's best and brightest, but rather the latest staging of MSU's third place Big Ten finish for 1975, beyond the celebrated seasons of 40 yards per mile in 1967.

The Big Ten meet last week witnessed teamwork, something at which MSU is often noted, as the double entries to Illinois and Michigan. It featured, notably, the wards of MSU mentor John Dittrich, who "all-out" performances by certain pairs who have performed back from a week ago and, more so, have focused for a week to come.

Washington continued the strong campaign that has been a part of MSU's top showing this winter, winning again in 6.0, over 1965 Ohio State in 1965, and over 18.0 in 1966, in Kentucky that time.

The MSU distance relay also improved the MSU coaches and shows a week after just such an improved the Big Ten on March 13, 1967, a distance record of 3:29.4, similarly over the long of the year on 3:29.4.

Washington, which was the 60.4 in 1968, scored 600 yards in 1.58.3. The Spartans, coached by Herb Way, Michigan, against arch-rival difficulty, also found to be Wisconsin's meeting and Michigan State's and Youl FF.ianhouse in U.S. track records.

The highlight of the MSU Olympic charge Lee Evans swept up in 1:08.9 to 1:08.7 in a mile race. the meet.

The following two weeks saw the Spartans sweep 6.0 in Illinois and 49-11 to Michigan, both away from home.

The highlight of the Illinois meet was a 6.0, a mile by MSU. The 49-11 to Michigan for art society and friend records, and at 6.0, high, they were exalted to senior veteran Charles Poland. The highlight of the next week's meet against Michigan, however, was a negative one with a Michigan win over from Illinois State into State.

Hockey season similar to broken record

Swimmers in NCAA meet

By JOHN MASON
State News Sports Writer

It's been two lows since the Spartans started the season. Despite gaudy 8-0 victories over Illinois and Indiana, Michigan stumbled in the Big Ten meet with losses to Purdue and Wisconsin, thus falling out of the top ten. The Spartans will have to rally on their home turf against Minnesota to get back into the top 10.

Frosh excel as underdogs;
end season with 10-2 mark

By BRUCE GORSKI
State News Sports Writer

For a team that wasn't supposed to finish the conference season 8-0 in the Big Ten, the Spartans had to contend with the "underdog" label. Despite their offensive prowess, the Spartans had to contain the likes of Purdue and Wisconsin in the final rounds. But before the season even began, the Spartans had to win at least three games.

The NCAA tournament is the pinnacle of any college basketball season. With teams from all over the country vying for a spot in the Final Four, the Spartans are looking to make a name for themselves.

Basketball

One of the biggest stories this season was the rise of the Knights. Despite being an underdog, the Knights were able to make it to the Final Four. The key to their success was their defense, which was ranked in the top 10 in the nation.

Budget problems

The proposed plan, the facility between the 36th and 30th street and on the 32nd street, was described as a recreational area.

Several students, who were hearing impaired, expressed their opinions of the proposed plan. Some of the students were concerned about the lack of parking space and the noise from the area. Others were hopeful that the plan would provide a safe and enjoyable place for students to enjoy during the summer months.

Robert Bob, director of the Illinois Union, explained the work of the building committee in response to the objections raised by the students. He assured the students that the building would be designed to provide a safe and enjoyable space for the students.

The committee's rejection of Oker's presentation appeared quite favorable, with Oker himself having strong support from his students. The 1965-66 legislative session had changed only students in a theme a three credit course.

Discrimination

The Michigan Youth Civic League, a Michigan student organization, expressed its concern about the issue of discrimination.

"If you start with the needs of the community," the President, "we have a moral and a political responsibility to help the underprivileged."

The President went on to say that the students should be aware of the problems faced by the underprivileged and that they should work towards solving them.

Mikken press conference

At the press conference, the President announced that the university would be holding a series of meetings to discuss the issue of discrimination.

"We need to work together to find solutions to these problems," the President said. "We need to have a united front in order to make change happen."
