Senate rejects recommittal on Carswell nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave President Nixon's nomination for Supreme Court justice, A. W. Scranton, to the Judiciary Committee.

The vote was 10 to 14 to reject a recommendation that would have allowed the Senate to test the nominations of several nominees. The vote, which came after a long debate, would have allowed the Senate to test the nominations of several nominees.

But Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said the vote would not change the Senate's decision.

The Senate has until late Friday to vote on the confirmation. The Senate must act before the vote on the nomination.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor Committee approved unanimously today a new minimum wage bill proposed by President Nixon to create a nationwide minimum level of earnings for workers.

The committee chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., introduced the bill, which would provide for a $1.25 per hour raise in the minimum wage over a period of five years.

Senator Proxmire said the bill would help poverty-stricken workers and their families. He added that the bill would also benefit employers by reducing the cost of living and helping to maintain the nation's economic growth.

The committee will consider the bill further on Thursday, Oct. 21, and the full Senate will vote on the bill next week.

Senator Proxmire also introduced a bill to strengthen the nation's rail system. The bill would provide the railroads with $2 billion in federal funds to upgrade and expand their systems.

Senator Proxmire said the bill would be an important step in ensuring the safety and efficiency of the nation's rail system. He added that it would also create jobs and boost the economy.

The committee will consider the bill further on Thursday, Oct. 21, and the full Senate will vote on the bill next week.

Dear State Member,

I hope this letter finds you in good health and spirits. As the new year begins, I want to take this opportunity to discuss several important issues that are currently facing our state.

Firstly, the ongoing conflict in Cambodia has raised concerns about regional stability. As you know, the recent coup attempt by the Cambodian government has sparked a tense situation in the region. The army's tight grip on the country has raised questions about the future of civilian rule and the possibility of a return to democracy.

COMPETITIVE DAY-IN-AND-OUT

There’s something happening here; what is it isn’t entirely clear.

Stephen Ralls

'When we last left off, Judge J.J. Hoffman...'

We received the news back within two weeks. Ditto Erickson Hall. Check the Ad Building some day; a couple of windows are not the same. But driven go down Huntington instead of going in front of the building. The reason — someone was shooting at a bus from El Cerrito one day with an air rifle. In addition Jacobsen lost his windows. Pat 17. What in the hell is coming off? We have no idea. Most pupils of high school type are getting their damned college letters. More high school kids do write "Viva la revolucion!" for letter words like more of them. It’s called the advent of the glorious revolution against the ubiquitous establishment which has opened up a new front, I mean. Of course the same old arguments can be repeated. Vandalism serves no purpose. It is imposed on the rights of others at us expense.

But actually it serves something. It will bring repression from the authorities and with it the leftist movement as a whole. People can get mighty upset about a few broken windows; in fact they can get more upset about a few windows than about pollution, race or war. Things will happen. The heat will be turned on.

The leftest movement will be discredited because of the slogans that are being painted and the crime of some of the sculpture. These slogans will in turn be used by others to think that such actions are representatives of all leftist people. Supporters of the left might want to think that any vandalism only supports the left.

Chances are that all of the events of the past few days are unconnected. Chances are that these actions are simply a result of an isolated mind out for kids. The actions of a few are, and should be, a reprehensible thing.

Well we all also have seen the last of vandalism on campus. It’s easy to see that some vandalisms will occur in instances, but we have had a bit too much. Judge Hoffman, whatever he thinks, has become "popular". I mean we all know that anybody on campus will be a lot better off if it would.

POINT OF VIEW

SN ROTC editorially misinformed

The writing of the editorial entitled "Propel proper ROTC needs to be re-defined" on page 5 of the Michigan State University News, is an example of what is called "editorializing" which is intolerable, and unconstructive. There is no reason for the writer’s bias and hate filled hate mail to be printed.

First, the writer fails to make a distinction between ROTC programs, and "perhaps...', which is one of the many appeals made. My experience is that there are three types of Air Force ROTC. Those who take the program to fulfill their academic requirements, those who have been inducted into ROTC and feel it is necessary to fulfill their academic requirements, and those who have been inducted into ROTC and feel that it is necessary to fulfill their academic requirements.

This is an important distinction for those who are interested in the constitutionality of the Air Force ROTC program. There is no question that the program is constitutional. The writer implies that the program is not constitutional, and further states that it is a "hate mail to the writer’s bias and hate filled hate mail to be printed."

Second, the writer makes a number of statements which are not based in fact. The writer states that the program is not constitutional, and further states that it is a "hate mail to the writer’s bias and hate filled hate mail to be printed."

President's failure prompts candidacy

Disappointed with the Nixon Administration's treatment of McGovern, Hubert J. Humphrey, the Democratic party candidate for the Presidency, has announced his intention to run for the office in his own right. The unprecedented action by the former Vice President of the United States and a member of the American Civil Liberties Union, the Academy of Political Science and Urban America. Humphrey's campaign for the Presidency is expected to provide the "third force" necessary to make the election a "choice for liberty and justice for all."

This administration is now under attack for its failure to make the same kind of progress it promised. Humphrey said that the adoption of his plan would initiate a "nondiscriminatory approach to unemployment, a bold and imaginative action on the question of immigration policy."

Adventurers’ lacks quality

By ROBERT KIPPER
State News Reviewer

"The Adventurers" has enough character, settings, bloodshed and maybe for some, plot. Unfortunately, it doesn’t manage to realize its promise. The story is of a South American revolutionary hero who has been left behind to ensure the future of the oil industry in his homeland. His return finally ends the fighting; he is nothing more than a bitter reminder of the man who has betrayed them all.

The plot, such as it is, is a series of episodic events. The first involves a revolution, the second a battle and the third a decision made by his father. Each of these events is handled differently by the director, but they all fail to be convincing. The film is not as upper-class as one might expect, but it is still a weak attempt at making a political statement.

The acting is generally poor, with only a few exceptions. The main character, the revolutionary hero, is played by a star who is clearly not up to the task. The supporting cast is also weak, with only a few exceptions. The film is not as upper-class as one might expect, but it is still a weak attempt at making a political statement.

In conclusion, "The Adventurers" is a poor attempt at making a political statement. It fails to be convincing and the acting is generally poor. It is not as upper-class as one might expect, but it is still a weak attempt at making a political statement.

GROWERS HIT MIGRATION RULE

Many growers, who have been hit by the new labor rules, are expressing fear and concern about the future of their businesses. The new rules, which went into effect on January 1, have caused a sharp decline in the availability of migrant labor, forcing many growers to consider alternate strategies.

The new rules, which were designed to address safety and health concerns, require growers to maintain records of their workers and their working conditions. The rules also mandate that growers provide housing and other amenities to their workers, including access to medical care.

Many growers have expressed concern that the new rules will make it difficult to maintain their operations, especially in areas where they rely heavily on migrant labor. Some growers have reported a significant decline in their harvests, while others have had to lay off workers or cut back on production.

A grower in western Michigan said, "We've been hit hard by the new rules. It's going to be a tough year for us." Other growers have said that they are considering hiring local labor or using technology to replace the migrant workforce.

The grower association is planning to meet with state officials to discuss the impact of the new rules. Growers are also considering legal challenges to the regulations, which they say are overly burdensome and will ultimately hurt their businesses.

The new rules are expected to have a significant impact on the Michigan agricultural industry, and growers are facing a uncertain future.

WASHTENAW — A group of Michigan fruit and vegetable growers, fearing that the new labor rules will cause a shortage of migrant labor, have met with state officials to discuss the impact of the new regulations.

"The rules are going to have a significant impact on our industry," said a grower from the western part of the state. "We're concerned that we won't be able to find enough labor to harvest our crops.
