Residents of Mason Hall were evacuated at 12:30 a.m. Wednesday for about an hour as a fire burned in a room on the university's east campus.

According to Assistant Fire Chief Robert A. Milliken, the fire, at 1315 E. Michigan Ave., was reported shortly after 11:30 a.m. at the residence hall.

The blaze, which was ruled accidental, spread to several other rooms in the building, but firefighters contained the fire to Mason Hall.

No injuries were reported, and the fire department was called to the scene.

A major effort to block the attack on the University of Michigan's free speech policy was blocked by a narrow margin last week.

In a letter to the editor published in the Daily Michigan Union, the university's student newspaper, MI President Fleming has described his administration's position on the issue.

The letter stated that the administration will continue to support free speech on campus and that it will not tolerate attempts to silence unpopular voices.

Fleming also mentioned the importance of protecting academic freedom and ensuring that all students have the opportunity to participate in the life of the university.

The letter was met with widespread support from students and faculty members who believe in the importance of open discourse and the right to engage in free speech.

However, some members of the university community have expressed concern about the administration's stance and have called for a more inclusive and diverse environment.

The issue remains under discussion, and the university will continue to monitor the situation and take action as necessary to ensure the safety and well-being of all students on campus.

The panelists explained that the decision to involve the U.S. in Vietnam was based on a "cost-benefit analysis," which took into account the potential benefits of the war and the estimated costs.

"You may disagree with this view of the world," Sprink said, "but one can accept the fact that this was the view of the day."

Fleming added, "I think there is hardly a single country in the world that is not involved in Vietnam."

"In our involvement in Vietnam and the present level of fighting," Fleming said, "I think we will come to realize that it was a mistake."

"President Nixon has never even tried to make a mistake, or that we are wrong in going into Vietnam," he said.

Gaining party control with precinct delegates

These students who remember the McCarthy campaign in '58 might recall that one method which allowed the Republicans to gain control of the precinct delegate positions was the use of a blackballing system. This system allowed the Republicans to prevent candidates who did not fit their ideology from being nominated.

The state of Michigan will elect precinct delegates on a regular basis. Each precinct has an equal number of delegates, and the Republican candidates are determined by the vote of the delegates.

Most important of all, these delegates will play an important part in the upcoming primary elections. The candidates who receive Michigan's vote will be the Republican candidates for the United States Senate.

Enrollment figures lack statement of relevancy

One of the most admirable things noted in President Wharton's April 25 speech is his commitment to continue to increase the percentage of black students at the university. This commitment will be a positive step in building a more diverse campus.

There are many good reasons why this disproportionate black membership is both necessary and defensible. Of paramount importance is the fact that black students bring diversity and cultural richness to our campus, and other minority group communities that are most noted by a critical lack of culture and information about African Americans.

A massive influx of black students will be necessary if the educational, business, and social communities of the state are ever to be satisfied. The satisfaction of these needs is urgently necessary both for the sake of the students and for the educational, economic, and social progress of black society.

There are, however, a few questions that arise, both of a historical and academic nature — that remain to be answered before the decision on the determination of the significance of the enrollment figures. Granted, six percent of Michigan's student body this year will be black and seven to eight per cent is an increase over this, but what of the blacks who dropped out of college last fall? There is no increase in the percentage of blacks on the basis of a high school equivalency exam — how do these figures figure into the mathematics? Also neglected in the present issue is the question of black

Alcohol versus the RA program

To the Editor:

A frequent source of confusion is the RA program, established by the Board of Trustees as a response to the 1968 student unrest. The RA program is designed to provide a source of leadership and guidance for students in residential halls.

The RA program has been successful in providing a positive influence on student behavior. However, it has also been criticized for its centralized approach and lack of student autonomy.

The RA program is currently under review by the administration. We encourage all students to participate in this review process by providing feedback and suggestions.

The latest issue of "Environmental Conflict" features two guest authors - Lewis Lapham on Alaskan and Marshall Frady on Houston Head.

Lapham's article focuses on the environmental impact of drilling in the Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge. "We must make sure that we protect our natural resources," he said.

Frady's article focuses on the environmental impact of the Houston Head oil refinery. "We must make sure that we protect our air quality," he said.

Both articles are available for $5.00 at all major bookstores.

At last, the entire story. With all the pieces in place. Accorded journalist Seymour Hersch's definitive account of the My Lai massacre.

It's a 30,000-word documentation of how it happened and why. For those who are unable to fathom the depths of the tragedy. And those who still can't bring themselves to believe.

Hersch walks you through the nightmare event, never forgetting the bitter history that brought each and every G.I. to "Nam" in that first place. He examines the men in command - as well as those in combat - their backgrounds, their inabilities, their training, their secret memories. He recounts the dramatic testimony of the Vietnamese survivors and the reports of the military brass reacted and how the story first saw daylight.

Finally, he looks at how America took the news. And how it didn't.

Seymour Hersch has already received several major awards for his work in breaking the story. Now he has it all. A major event in journalism.

Plus, in the same issue, thirty-eight pages of two major environmental conflicts, with eight pages of photographs in full color. Lewis Lapham reports on Alaska's struggle between its conscience and $900 million, two of all leases; and Marshall Frady reports on how Houston Head, South Carolina may be the first Southern town to show the secular religion of industrialization in favor of beauty and solitude and peace and nature, thanks to a strange new coalition that is being formed around the issue of ecology.

Pianist to present tuning variations

By DENISE MCGILL
State News Staff Writer

Dave Jorgenson, a pianist and piano instructor at MSU, will present a unique series of piano recitals titled "Pianist for Peace" at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

Jorgenson has been researching the different concepts used for tuning pianos over the centuries. The series will begin today, exact time to be announced.

"Each of the five pianos will be tuned differently, and according to the rules used in previous centuries before modern, equal temperament tuning was established," Jorgenson said.

Jorgenson has begun to experiment with different temperaments after the Reformations. Jorgenson said that the modifications made in early music have changed the temperament scales in the sound. Jorgenson will demonstrate the different traditional and modern temperaments used and will explore the temperaments and the way in which the current way of tuning pianos has been used and almost completely for more than a century.

Jorgenson, who has been a piano instructor at MSU for 10 years, became interested in Jorgenson's research and has been reconstructing the different tuning systems.

"Because, historically and currently, many instruments would reach these temperatures in a given temperament than in the traditional one," Jorgenson said.

Jorgenson said that few of these mechanisms have been developed to try to address the fact that the techniques of the instruments were written and performed in different temperaments.

The talk will be followed by a business meeting at ACU. Jorgenson hopes the event will be joined by the medium of the band's members will be maintained.

Emeritus, University of Michigan Law School graduate and former U.S. attorney, has been chairman of the ACU of Michigan since 1981. He became a member of the national board of directors in 1969.

EMU batmen ended with the identification of four Michigan College teams to lead the NCAA division of baseball. The Michigan College teams included the University of Michigan, the Michigan State University, the Michigan Technological University, and the Michigan College of Agriculture and Applied Science.

The split left MSU 13-3-2 for the season, while EMU, which ended the weekend with a 3-2 record, led the NCAA division of baseball games by 1-4. In the last game of the series, EMU won 8-6, with help from the Michigan College teams.

Whaley Stitt scored two runs in the final game against EMU, while Michigan College teams scored three runs in the fourth game against EMU. The Michigan College teams scored 18 runs in the series, while EMU scored 14 runs.

A lot of backhanded and, I'm sure, mischievous mistakes against students now because while they do not have a "real conception of what is happening," he said, freshmen would have been more cooperative.

In November, 1966, a referendum to lower the voting age in the Lansing city council was defeated. Lansing election officials cast 1,746 no votes and 1,061 yes. Although it was a high city vote, the students did not vote in proportion with non-student voters. Mr. Colilt said:

Vaguee said passage of the referendum would directly affect the governments of such cities as Lansing or Ann Arbor where student-council members reside. In a large city like Detroit, the election outcome would not matter if students voted because they are a small minority.

In her efforts to institute a three-part political science curriculum for those planning careers in government, Mrs. Colilt said that teachers did not know the issues or candidates because they are not here for a short time. Also passage of the proposals would greatly increase the work load of the clerks, she added.

Lansing has a liberal registration policy according to Mrs. Colilt. Student voters or those who support them are easily eligible to register.

Lansing registration follows the standard rules set by the state of Michigan. An applicant must be at least 19, a resident of Michigan for six months, a resident of the city for one month, of good moral character, and of good standing in his home district, to be eligible for Lansing residence.

If a student becomes 19, he is required to register. He will have live here for one month before the time he is over his age, she said.

Policies and the rules of the registration regulations are related. A Democrat, generally, would vote or be considered a non-registered voter.

U.S. ship awaits Apollo

Aboard 1301 OWN (ALP) - This prime U.S. emergency rescue ship is sitting off the shores of the Union and other nations along the equator, ready to go in the wake of Apollo 11's return to Earth.

Apollo 11 landed safely on the moon Tuesday, seven days after leaving Earth, but the world still awaits the return of the three brave astronauts. There will be a press conference at 2 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Washington hotel. The astronauts will probably return to their homelands on Thursday.

LET'S WHAT'S HAPPENING

BULLETIN boarded

The bulletin board on the second floor of the Natural Science Bldg. offers an array ofplus announcements. Condensed conditions like this make it nearly impossible to find what's lurking for, let alone post a notice.

Ford denies" Douglas

Ford denied rumors of Douglass's resignation, but did not rule out the possibility of the former General Motors executive's resignation in the near future.

Summer in Cleveland

Undergraduate and graduate students are welcomed to four quarters of activities and events, thanks to a grand opening of the Centennial Hotel on Main St.
