Copoland hits dissenters, urges greater fund cuts

by JEFF SHELER
State News Staff Writer

Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Cot Copeland, arrived on campus Monday to place pressure on university officials to accept $6 million in additional money and to end cutbacks made over the last three years. In his meeting with the president and faculty Wednesday, Copeland stated that he would not stop upward pressure until any measures taken by the university were reversed. He expressed his disapproval of the university's administration and its inherent policies.

Copeland claimed that the university's administration would not release sufficient information concerning the university's fiscal condition. He further accused the administration of "arrogant" behavior towards students and faculty. Copeland declared that he would not stop pushing for higher state aid until the administration made changes that would satisfy his demands.

Copeland's statements were met with a mixed response from university officials. President Parley expressed his concern over Copeland's tactics, stating that the university was already facing financial difficulties. Faculty members were divided in their opinions, with some expressing support for Copeland's demands and others standing against it.

Copeland's visit highlights the ongoing battle between the university and the state over funding. Despite the university's efforts to address its financial problems, it appears that Copeland remains committed to pressing for additional state aid. The university, on the other hand, continues to resist his demands, citing financial constraints and the need for prudent fiscal management. The situation remains tense as both sides continue to negotiate the terms of the university's funding.

ASMSU reveals vote results

The results of the vote concerning the establishment of a campus newspaper were revealed today. The vote, which was held Monday, showed a majority in favor of the establishment of a campus newspaper. The results indicated that the university community strongly supports the creation of a newspaper.

The vote was held in response to the university's administration's decision to end the weekly newspaper. The administration cited budget constraints and a decline in reader interest as the reasons for discontinuing the newspaper. However, the majority of students and faculty were opposed to the decision, and they called for a vote to reinstate the newspaper.

Satisfied with the outcome, the university administration now plans to proceed with the establishment of a new campus newspaper. The newspaper will likely be established with the financial support of the university's endowment fund. The administration is confident that the newspaper will be successful and that it will serve as a valuable resource for the campus community. The newspaper is expected to launch in the near future.

ASMSU President John Cargo will suggest alternatives for dealing with the student status of the new program.

ASMSU's new program, ASMSU, will be a special branch of the university, with its own budget, administration, and faculty. The program will be designed to provide opportunities for students who may not have been able to continue their studies due to financial difficulties.

Cargo has been reaching out to ASMSU members, including students, faculty, and staff, to discuss the program's potential impact. Cargo is optimistic about the program's success and believes that it will provide a valuable resource for the university community.

NATO members fear war in the Mideast

ROBERT G. PEASE, JR.

A special meeting of the council of seven nations will be held today to discuss the situation in the Mideast. The meeting will be held in the National Press Club in Washington, D.C. The council consists of representatives from the United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain, France, Israel, and Turkey.

The council was called to discuss the situation in the Mideast, where tensions have escalated in recent weeks. The meeting is expected to focus on the situation in Lebanon, where the government has been struggling to maintain control over the country.

The council will try to reach an agreement on how to respond to the situation in the Mideast. The council members are expected to discuss ways to de-escalate tensions and to prevent the situation from deteriorating further. The council will also consider ways to support the government in Lebanon.

The council members are expected to reach a consensus on these issues, and they may also consider ways to provide economic and military assistance to the Lebanese government. The council will then report to the United Nations Security Council on its findings.

The meeting is expected to be held behind closed doors, and the public will not be allowed to attend. The council members are expected to arrive at the meeting at approximately 9:00 a.m. and to conclude the meeting at approximately 12:00 p.m.

The meeting is expected to last for approximately two hours. The council members are expected to have an opportunity to discuss the situation in the Mideast in private sessions before the meeting begins, and they will then meet in public session to discuss the issues.

The council members are expected to reach a consensus on the issues discussed at the meeting, and they will then report their findings to the United Nations Security Council. The council members are expected to provide a report to the Security Council on the situation in the Mideast, which will then be considered by the Security Council in its meeting on January 10th.

Edward A. Carlin, Dean of Michigan State University at Detroit, Thursday that the University College is well in the course of making the University College a reality in the Detroit area.

The program is only on the drawing board at present, but Carlin said that the University College will be ready to open its doors in the near future.

Carlin also announced that the University College will be housed in a new building on the Detroit campus, which will be completed in 1965.

The building will be a modern, two-story structure, with classrooms, laboratories, and offices for the faculty and staff.

Carlin said that the University College will offer a wide range of courses, including business, education, and the humanities.

The college will be designed to meet the needs of working professionals, as well as traditional college students.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. - AP) - A leading Australian psychiatrist says alcohol and marijuana are addictive drugs which have led to more violence and that they are dangerous and should be banned.

The psychiatrist, speaking at a conference in Australia, said that alcohol and marijuana are addictive and that they should be banned.

The United Nations has already banned alcohol and marijuana, and in many countries, the drug laws are getting tougher.

Petitioning set for SN board

Petitioners are today at the Student Government Board, which will decide on the fate of the petition.

The petitioners are asking for the removal of a faculty member, who they say has been acting inappropriately.

The faculty member in question is accused of inappropriate behavior with students.

The petitioners are asking for the faculty member to be removed from his position.

The faculty member denies the accusations and says that he has been acting appropriately.

The Student Government Board will decide on the fate of the petition.

The meeting is open to the public and will be held at 3:30 p.m. in Room 206 of the Student Union.

The petitioners are likely to be opposed by the faculty member's constituents.

Thieves take 'big boy' over weekend

The "big boy" statue on the corner of 10th and Main streets was taken this weekend.

The statue, which weighs 2,000 pounds, was stolen and left in a nearby alley.

The police are looking for leads on the theft.

The "big boy" statue has been a local landmark for many years.

The statue was vandalized several times in recent years, but it has always been repaired.

The police are asking for tips on the theft.

The statue is a popular gathering place for locals and tourists.

The police are asking for the public's help in finding the statue.

Historical rationale behind "U" autonomy

This past week the following bill was voted out of the third sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Education and will come up for a vote within a few days:

"Resolved, That the amendment of sections 5 and 6 of article 8 of the Michigan Constitution, to remove the provisions of such board of directors of higher education, and to submit such an amendment to the people of the state of Michigan at the next general election." This bill was also voted out of the third sub-committee of the House of Representatives, after similar changes were made. The results of such changes will be far-reaching and would make a great deal of insight into this matter of scholarly autonomy.

Regarding the autonomy of the university and the Board of Regents the State Supreme Court of the State of Michigan in the case of Sterling vs. Regents of the University, 110 Mich. 369, stated that, "It is true that we are unable to find definite rules regarding the nature of that convention which constitutional provision may be changed and what changes could be made in the hands of that body which would leave the control of that institution to the legislature. Indeed, it is not known whether this provision has been made the "Board of Regents" has gained its autonomy as a means of successful, the most complete and the most full institutions of learning in the world.

The court went on to say:

"Obviously it was not the intention of the framers of the Constitution to take any control over the people the government of the council. On the contrary, this body was designed to, and did, provide for its own management and control by a body of eight men elected by the people of the state. The result of the people it could and would have the opportunity to investigate needs and would have the power to select the will and to do what things could be done to promote or further the education of the people of the state.

This idea of institutional autonomy was later held to extend to MSU as well as other universities.

A report from Joseph R. Williams, first president of Michigan State University, in the Michigan Farmer, Volume XVI, Oct. 1858 the claim that, "The University should be free of partisan politics as thorough and comprehensive, as to liberate it from the influence of scientific calumny, and in every liberal education should be, it should be independent of rapacious legislatures, and of the misunderstandings on the part of any institution existing in the world.

Ten days after the election the ASMSU still does not have accurate vote. According to the ASMSU count, 87% student ballots were returned and 100% of the votes cast on the ROTC question.

Since ASMSU felt some of the ballots may have not registered due to the ballots were not marked in ink, a recount by hand was made. The final count was cast on ROTC.

The most likely outcome of the ASMSU referendum was the result of some missing ballots being around somewhere.

After the suit to student - Faculty Joint Committee and the credibility of the referendum has vanished. But one must look at the light of the events of the last two weeks to determine how it was obtained, because not all poll watchers were told how to instruct voters to mark their ballots properly.

If either unfaithful reader who did not have the most accurate information to be fairly accurate definitions of student opinion, their value is questionable. The unfair count of the students was the result of black student major voting favoring of the current status.

The time is ripe for a change to ROTC which is one of the most important declarations of the University. The time is ripe for the University to take up a side which has been compromised in the past.

As ASMSU faces the possibility of some missing ballots being around somewhere, the results of the ASMSU referendum will be the same.

African struggle outlined

By BARNEY YOUNG
State News Staff Writer

The African Freedom Day symposium program this week featured Congressman Anthony Beasley, a delegate in the anti-Zionist Israeli Liberation Front, and an anti-Zionist Israeli speaker, Mr. Mohammed El-Ammadi, an executive of the Black Liberation Front International (BLFI).

The program was sponsored by the African Student Organization in the American Jewish University (AJU), the MSU Anti-Charlottesville and the Black Liberation Front International (BLFI).

Mr. Mohammed El-Ammadi, in his prepared statement, told the audience that Africans have fought for the past 400 years to exist peacefully with the white man. He said that, as a result, "there has been no way to impact our homes burned and our children harmed..."

"There is the suppression of our memories," El-Ammadi said.

"The Inhabitants of this continent. We do not accept the idea that Africa is one of pain, blighted, death and a dying age.

The anti-Zionist front was the "Liberation Struggle in the African Struggle." He defined the diploma as some and daughters of former slaves who are descendants of former African slaves who are born on foreign soil.

Mohammed El-Ammadi said there is only one struggle for African people and other people of the whole world. He said there is no such African dilemma.

"We are African people," Mohammed said. There is no "Third World." We are African people. We need support and facilitation for the struggle against the white man. Mohammed added that Africans must totally differentiate from the American political scene.

"One of the first loyalty is to Africa. And to the land called the U.S.A.," he said.

The belief in this was said to be the belief in the struggle by Mohammed.

Rabbi Nijim, historian at the University of Judaism, gave a historic account of the Palestinian situation.

Nijim said that the Arab inhabited Palestine, but during the period between World Wars I and II, because of the imperialist, Jewish population increased from one to one in the land.

According to Nijim, Jews began to oppose Palestine and wanted to transform it into a Jewish state. Nijim said that the Jews wanted to suppress Arabs to expand.

According to Nijim and Emanuel, an Israeli member of the American Jewish University (AJU) and an anti-Zionist, the will of Arabs of Palestine is emerging at the old centers of Arab origin.

Do not say that the will of the people in Iran is similar to the situation in Iran. According to Nijim, there is no problem in Iran that is not related to the history of Iran.

There is no problem in Iran that is not related to the history of Iran. Today, Iran has the opportunity to consider allwegations from the Jews, according to Doer.

The problem has been released in Iran but only new hatred has been propagated.

Library enacts new policy on fines for lost, late books

Changes in fines for overdue and lost library books went into effect Friday, Thomas E. Allbright, librarian in the circulation department, said.

Under the new policy, no fine is charged for books two weeks overdue; only a $1 fine is charged for books three days overdue. On the fourth day, the fine is automatically increased, a student returning a book that is two days late will be charged a $1 fine. After this time, he is charged an additional $2.50 cents for each day the book is overdue.

The new rules also do not apply to periodicals on one-day late.

Books returned to the outside book boxes after being returned by students are due on the following day, according to the policy.

There is a fine of $20 per book, $15 per book, and $10 per book for the next three days overdue.

The minimum replacement cost in such circumstances is $20 per book, $15 per book, and $10 per book for the next three days overdue.

If the current market value of a lost or mutilated item is more than the replacement cost, the higher rate is assessed.

English Dept. to give awards

The Creative Writing Awards Presentation will be held at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Wurzen. The competition is sponsored by the Dept. of English and "Freeview," a student literary magazine.

Two awards, $50 and $25, will be presented to each of three categories — poetry, fiction, and essays. First place awards will be given to the student whose performances include the best student's performances in the past winning works and the awards presentation.

Money for the awards was donated by Dept. of English faculty members. Professor John Lose, professor of English, said the competition is being held at "American Literature," a group which is to be held in the future. Mr. Nijim said that the will of students in Iran is to be added to the issue of Palestine.

ắt bet your synonyms, sports fans, because it's not over yet. For the Big Ten schedule is packed with games of the utmost importance, and Ohio State would conclude its schedule with another big one today against Michigan, for the Buckeyes need to win to remain in the Big Ten title race.

Michigan has won the last two meetings, splitting the series with the Buckeyes last season. Michigan will have two of its four losses to date at home, where it will try to stop the bucking Buckeyes.

The Buckeyes will play in their third straight home game in a row, and they have been able to hold their own against the competition.

by John Visser

Not many athletic teams have two separate conclusions to their season, but the SMU rails find themselves in that boat. Despite winning the Big Ten, the team has not been able to advance to the championship game.

The team has been working hard to improve their defense, and they have been able to score more points than they have allowed.

The team's performance was strong in the second half, leading to a victory over the Buckeyes.

In the end, the team was able to claim the second place finish in the Big Ten.
