Legislation to broaden public action on pollution

By JEFF SHELTER

State News Staff Writer

The day when a bill to add a public-interest provision to the Michigan environmental law, long sought by environmentalists around the state, was finally introduced in the Senate Monday, April 28, brought the realization that the battle of the Legislature for 1970 would be a tough one. The bill was introduced by the Michigan lawmakers, who have placed it on the ballot for the May 29 election. The bill, if passed, would provide for broad public participation in the decision-making process. The bill is a major step forward in the battle to protect the environment. It is a bill that will allow the citizenry to have a say in the decision-making process. The bill will allow the citizenry to have a say in the decision-making process.

The bill provides for the establishment of a Citizens Advisory Committee, which will be made up of representatives from various environmental groups. The committee will be responsible for making recommendations to the Senate on the development of the environmental laws. The committee will also have the power to investigate any matter related to the environment.

The bill also provides for the establishment of a Citizens Hearing Board, which will be made up of representatives from various environmental groups. The board will be responsible for hearing and determining any matters related to the environment.

The bill further provides for the establishment of a Citizens Review Board, which will be made up of representatives from various environmental groups. The board will be responsible for reviewing and evaluating the effectiveness of the environmental laws.

The bill also provides for the establishment of a Citizens Monitoring Board, which will be made up of representatives from various environmental groups. The board will be responsible for monitoring the performance of the environmental laws.

TRUSTEES AWAIT 'U' FUNDING

"School officials are currently talking about the possible addition of a billion dollars worth of new buildings," the university's provost, John O'Connor, said. "There are also plans for the construction of a new dormitory, a new science building, and a new library." The university is currently facing a budget crisis, and officials are looking for ways to fund these new projects. One possibility being considered is a large increase in tuition fees. Another possibility is a fundraising campaign, with the university seeking donations from alumni and other supporters.

PAPER EMPHASIZES NURTURE OVER NATURE

The editor of the university newspaper, The State, argues that "education is not just about providing students with facts and figures. It's also about teaching them how to think critically and creatively. We need to focus more on nurturing that in our students, rather than just teaching them to memorize information." The newspaper also publishes several articles about the importance of nature and the environment, with many of them written by students. The university has recently established an environmental studies program, and many of its faculty members are active in environmental conservation efforts.

HUBER RENEWS ATTACK ON 'BAG'

The mayor of East Lansing, Huber, has renewed his attack on the campus paper, The State. Huber has said that the newspaper is "a radical mouthpiece for the left-wing students on campus," and has called for its closure. However, the newspaper's editor, John O’Connor, has responded that "the magazine is an important voice for students on campus, and we will continue to publish our opinions and perspectives." The university has also defended the newspaper, saying that "it is an important part of the university’s commitment to free speech and academic freedom." The university has yet to take any action against the newspaper, and the issue remains a contentious one on campus.

ROMNEY RENEWS VOW TO DEFEND W. BERLIN

The governor of Michigan, Romney, has renewed his vow to defend West Berlin, saying that "we will do everything we can to protect our allies in the capital of Germany." Romney has been a strong proponent of this position, and has publicly stated that "we will not allow any threats to our allies in the West to go unanswered." The governor has also called for increased military spending, and has stated that "the United States must be prepared to defend our allies in any situation." Romney's stance has been met with mixed reactions, with some calling it "progressive" and others calling it "reckless." The issue remains a polarizing one, with many on both sides of the political spectrum expressing strong opinions.

North Vietnam claimed Sunday the United States acknowledged some of its objectives in the military invasion of Cambodia.

A broadcast dispatch of Hanoi's official Vietnamese News Agency said: "That is why a campaign of defection has been conducted in the past few days."

The news agency also said the statements by the South Vietnamese and Cambodian heads of state, the United States' victory were engineered by President Nixon.

The Organization of American States reached a virtual agreement Sunday to consider political kidnappings in current crises which "can only be resolved by opposition to the forces against humanity."

It said that if the death of the crane operator on the nuclear power plant at Fabacher last Thursday was "diplomatic, and other than the nuclear power plant at Fabacher, there was the death of a crane operator in a nuclear power plant at Fabacher, and this death was not related to our industry."

A state of emergency went into force for three million citizens in the Barranza State Sunday in a general strike to halt violence during the nation's presidential elections.

President Eduardo Frei, who is not running for reelection, ordered all military police forces onto alert status in a wave of student outbreaks that have for the past five days killed two people and wounded 200. At least 50 arrests have been made.

National News

The Senate, meeting to end nearly two months of debate over U.S. involvement in Cambodia, on Sunday offered a new plan to curtail combat in Vietnam. The House initiative intended to scale down fighting, according to the White House. The Senate plans to restore the White House plan of reaching a peace agreement.

Offered to the White House 10 days ago by Sen. Curtis M. Mathias, R-Md., it calls for the creation of a special joint panel to write the plans for negotiations.

National Guard Maj. Gen. Edward A. Miller, who was removed from his post by President Nixon, said: "I think this is a kind of a bad idea let's get this whole thing straight on the table."

Yes, Gerald R. Ford, the president-elect, predicted Sunday that U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam will be accelerated. He sent his congratulations to President Nixon. The National Guard may offer an explanation for this, as the Senate plan "is not a bad idea to have some kind of an agreement."

Inflation, a top economic adviser to President Nixon, said Sunday government spending is "too high and must be cut at inflation's end."

Moreover, he added, taxes are exorbitant, and must be cut in half to stop inflation. But do to government spending the "real thing" must come down."

He said he favors cutting funds from agricultural aid, energy projects, and urban redevelopment projects to balance the federal budget.

"Doctoring" the news: a matter of morality?

Newspapers have nearly run out of rooms to dodge Robert Huber. Troy Republican and all-around smartypants. But in light of his immature attack on the Doctor King column - a column we found a few deficiencies in - let's have a balanced, prudent and public - yes, consistent.

Huber, pretentious rotter that he hasn't read, has attacked the Senate floor on various medical columns written by anomalous genius who holds a medical degree among others. Since Huber is also a board certified psychiatrist and an ass, professor of psychiatry. His beautiful words are unpronounceable, he is well - qualified to criticize the work of an expert.

Now enter one heckuva surgeon who is thoroughly dealing as a distinguished, unorthodox and immoral. It's true. Huber believes that Warren's medical advice is immature.

Huber did not say exactly who appointed him as a medical gynecologist. Certainly the R-Republican newspaper doesn't even think of him as the candidate for U.S. Congress. And we doubt that God gave him a special surgical clue.

No one, obviously. Huber's criticism springs from his own home grown pomposity.

Weekly feature

The Tribune's Doctor's Bag has been a weekly feature in the State News for nearly three years. Most of the readers have chosen to attack it when it is directed to himself. He also thought that Huber, which he knew to be a major non-medic, would not dare to call the column a "fake". And he thought that God gave him a special surgical clue.

Once more, however, no one, obviously. Huber's criticism springs from his own home grown pomposity.

In a television interview Friday, Huber mentioned something about Dr. Warren's written work on mental anguish. The passage wasn't clear, but we did like the word "military" and felt the writing was much better. And Dr. Warren expressed the opinion, which we do not share, that "the military" is the only profession that has the right to write about mental anguish. But Dr. Warren is also a psychiatrist, like Huber, and no doubt he shares the same views as the writers of the weekly feature.

TRB FROM WASHINGTON The Middle East, head on

America needs a war in the Middle East like a hole in the head. Every day it comes nearer. As we have said before, there is no way to stop it, but to turn our backs on the Middle East. And we have to turn our backs on the Middle East, because of the policies of our government and the policies of other nations. The Middle East is our backyard. The Middle East is our sphere of influence. And as long as we have a strong military presence in the Middle East, there will be no peace in the world.

We need to understand the situation in the Middle East. We need to understand the policies of our government and the policies of other nations. We need to understand the role of the United Nations and the role of other international organizations. We need to understand the role of the United States in the Middle East.

In the meantime, we need to do what we can to help the people of the Middle East. We need to provide aid to the people of the Middle East. We need to help them build schools, hospitals, and other necessary facilities. We need to help them develop their economies and their industries. We need to help them become self-sufficient and independent.

But we cannot do this if we have a strong military presence in the Middle East. We need to understand the situation in the Middle East and the role of our government and the role of other nations. We need to understand the role of the United Nations and the role of other international organizations. We need to understand the role of the United States in the Middle East.

Jondahl discusses war-economy issue

LYNN JONDahl

Jondahl, who has stated his views, and "peace mediators" he.

Jondahl met with the student group to explain his views on the current strategy for the primary issue. He said, and the United Nations, he added, that the United States and its allies had been allowing the situation in Southeast Asia to become a "demonstration sport".

"The current situation is one where the United Nations is not engaged in any active role in the conflict," he said. "We should approach this with the same kind of strategy, if not more serious, than that being used in Vietnam."

Jondahl also discussed the idea of a "total war," and the necessity of the United States and its allies to become more involved in the conflict.

Group discusses unrest

Nearly 200 parents, teachers, and administrators are meeting at Wacker Hall to discuss the growing problem of unrest on the campus. The meeting is being held as a result of the recent disturbances on the campus, and is being chaired by the University's Special Committee on Disorders.

Many of the parents are concerned about the lack of discipline on the campus, and the increasing number of incidents of vandalism and destruction.

AUAUP president hits faculty salary raise

A letter to the board of regents from AUAUP president, L. H. Storck, president of the Association for University Professors (AUAUP), says that the faculty salary raise of 6 per cent for 1970 is "equivocal!"

The letter states that faculty morale and student morale would be expected to improve if the raise were to be increased. The letter also criticizes the administration for the way in which the raise was handled.

Three-Pronged Effort to VC launch new attacks

SAPIEN (AP) — Enemy forces attacked three important points near Phnom Penh on Sunday and the Cambodian military responded and one of the attacks may be a preparation for a major campaign against the capital itself.

The Cambodian government said a major attack by the Viet Cong, under the direction of a local Viet Cong faction, was underway in the northwestern part of the capital. The Viet Cong have been building up their forces in the area and it is possible that they are preparing for a major attack on the capital itself.

The attacks occurred after weeks of heavy fighting in the area and it is possible that the Viet Cong are preparing for a major attack on the capital itself.

Spartan's Vass wins state amateur crown

By JEFF ELLIOTT

Three weeks ago, Denby Vass was in a nip-and-nail playoff with four of his teammates. Vass flubbed out.

Saturday, the Broadmoor Hills junior forgot all that as he sagged a quivering five-footer from the fringe of the 60-yard par-5 17th hole at Memorial Park to win the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament at a score of 210, earning a trip to Spalding at the end of the year.

On the 10th hole Vass went one up when he plonked his second shot on the green, a 90-foot pitch that he coaxed a one-foot putt to the hole to give him a 3-up, two-hole lead. But in the final round at the Broadmoor Hills junior Allied Qualifier, a one-of-a-kind test on this year's amateur schedule, Vass played better than any of the 98 players who teed off in the 13-hole, finals cut.

The excitement increased as Vass headed the thirteenth hole, the par-4 chestnut on the Broadmoor course, and Vass followed through an 80-yard approach shot to the green. He then knocked the ball five feet from the pin, and Vass made the five-footer to pund out a 3-up, two-hole lead and di with the 13th, 14th and 15th holes to finish 7-under par.

Vass calmly put his final two-footer into the hole, then settled back to study the match and the title that had eluded him.

When he did, he gained a greater awareness of the magnitude of his achievement. "I never figured I'd win," the Spartan junior said after the match, "I knew I'd win.

Three weeks ago, Vass was in a 72-hole playoff with Rich Winter, Jim Prentice, and John Vandelinde for the remaining three spots on the Spartan golf squad that was to compete in the NCAA championships.

Two upsets at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — The outlook for the All England Lawn Tennis Championships has changed after a pair of upsets seriously eliminated defending champion Rod Laver and No. 9, and Arthur Ashe.

Laver of Australia, a four-time winner, was defeated by American Bob Ramann in four sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, while Laver and Ashe were a popular pick to meet in the final, and it looks as if their fierce battle before a capacity crowd of 16,000, tennis buffs still will be talking about one of Wimbledon's great matches in the 44-year history of the tournament.

The loss of the $20,000 prize was one of the main consequences to Laver and Ashe. It was the only time the pair which had tried for so many years. Double faults played a key role in their first meeting, and Ashe's double faults played a key role in their second meeting.

On the other hand, both Bob Carroll, who won the 1967 French Open with Ken Rosewall, and Gimmeson were the only two American men to reach the final eight of the doubles, and Gimmeson was the only American man to reach the final eight of the doubles.

Gimmeson has made quite a name for himself with a power game and a powerful serve, while Gimmeson, who won the men's singles championship in the United States Open, is still a force to be reckoned with.

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Landerley triggered a five-run sixth inning with a two-run double to draw even for the Detroit Tigers in a 5-2 win over the New York Yankees.

Landerley and Belgard went all the way to the end, with the final score being 5-2 to the Yankees.

Detroit will play the Yankees in their next game, an 8-2 loss to the Yankees.

Theme beneath surface beauty of 'Women'

In the present episode of "Women in Love," the film by the British director Ken Russell, the relationships and almost blinding beauty of love, passion and emotion are presented in an entertaining and absorbing way.

The title role is played by the young British actress, Julie Christie, and she portrays the character of a woman named Roberta. The film is set during the late Victorian era in England.

Roberta is a woman of great sensuality and emotional depth. She is depicted as a woman who is deeply affected by the love and passion of the men around her. The film explores her relationships with her husband, her lover, and her friend, and the ways in which these relationships affect her sense of self.

The film is a showcases the power of love and the beauty of desire. It is a film that will appeal to anyone who has ever felt the intensity of love and passion, and who has ever been touched by its power.

Rioting flares in N. Ireland

An article in the Michigan State News noted the recent riots in Northern Ireland and the tensions surrounding the issue.

The article quotes an expert who says that the riots are the result of a complex mix of factors, including political and social issues, historical grievances, and economic disparities.

The expert says that the riots have the potential to escalate if not dealt with effectively. He suggests that the international community should work to find a peaceful solution to the conflict.

The article also notes the role of the British government in the situation, and the challenges it faces in trying to maintain order and stability.

Peru's new president

An article in the Michigan State News reported on the recent election of a new president in Peru.

The new president, Alan Garcia, is a former leftist revolutionary and has promised to tackle the country's economic problems.

The article notes that Garcia's government will face a number of challenges, including corruption, poverty, and political instability.

The article also quotes experts who say that the new government will need to work closely with the international community to achieve its goals.

The article ends with a note about the role of the United States in the region, and the importance of working multilaterally to address the challenges facing Peru and the wider region.

MIAMI (AP) — A special military unit will be sent to Cuba to protect over 1,000 Americans who are expected to leave Cuba under an agreement with the U.S. government.

The agreement was announced Monday by U.S. State Department officials, who said the U.S. government had reached an agreement with Cuba to allow up to 1,000 American citizens to depart the country under new conditions.

Under the agreement, the U.S. government will provide transportation, accommodations, and medical services to the American citizens who wish to depart Cuba.

The agreement also includes provisions for the safe and orderly return of American citizens who are currently in Cuba.

The U.S. government has been pushing for a peaceful resolution to the ongoing conflict in Cuba, which has been ongoing for several years. The U.S. government has been under pressure from both sides of the conflict to find a way to de-escalate the situation.

The agreement comes after several weeks of negotiations between the U.S. government and Cuban officials. The U.S. government has been pushing for a peaceful resolution to the conflict in Cuba, which has been ongoing for several years.
