Nixon remark may affect trial

Appearing before reporters on short notice Monday in a Los Angeles federal courthouse seeking to have his trial free of all legal constraints, President Nixon said that he plans to appeal to a higher court the ruling that his statements could be used as evidence against him.

"This is a man who was guilty, directly or indirectly, of eight murders without reason. He is a man, yet, who, as far as the coverage was concerned, appeared to be a glamorous figure," the president said.

Asked to respond to the president's comment, Ziegler said: "The phrase he used could lead to some misinterpretation." - AP Photo

Michigan News

State Sen. George Kuhn, R-Birmingham, has filed a complaint with the Michigan Campaign Practices Commission that his primary opponent has been using "negative and unfair" campaign ads.

Kuhn, in a letter to Commissioner Charles A. Black, said there are several differences between Kuhn's political and his political players. He also accused Pursel of using the names of individual Republican party leaders and of the Republican party itself in his campaign and of a "character assassination campaign."

Cheryl Cupp, said Monday it opposed by the Nixon administration a scheduled reduction in the new car tax law, "particularly unfair." She said the legislation is scheduled to be reduced from six percent to five percent over the next three years.

"Continued support of this discriminatory penalty on the new car buyer who is already shouldering the cost of government-imposed standards is quite unjust," the company said in a statement.

"We should have been aware of the need to reduce the sales tax on new cars in the future."
Dormitories seek to better living

By John BORGER

The dormitories have been called out of service several times in the past few days by the residents who have complained about overcrowding. In some cases, dormitories have been closed for long periods of time due to overcrowding and sanitation problems. The administration has been forced to take action to improve the living conditions in the dormitories.

The dormitory is a place where students can live and learn. It is a place where they can make new friends and gain valuable experience. However, the current conditions in the dormitories are not conducive to these purposes.

The students who live in the dormitories are forced to share small spaces with many other people. This can lead to conflicts and a lack of privacy. Additionally, the dormitories are not well-maintained, and the sanitation problems are a major issue.

The administration has been working to improve the conditions in the dormitories. They have added more staff and increased the cleaning schedule. However, more needs to be done to make the dormitories a better place to live.

In conclusion, the dormitories need to be improved in order to provide a better living environment for the students. The administration needs to take more action to address the overcrowding and sanitation problems.

Migrant housing

By Charles Stellman

The state of Michigan has been providing housing assistance to migrants for several years. This program has been successful in providing temporary housing for migrants who are in need of it.

The housing assistance program is funded by the federal government. It provides migrants with a place to stay while they are looking for work or waiting for their visas to be processed.

The program has been successful in providing temporary housing for migrants. However, there are still some challenges that need to be addressed. The program needs to be expanded to cover more areas of the state.

In conclusion, the housing assistance program has been successful in providing temporary housing for migrants. However, there is still work to be done to expand the program and address the challenges that exist.

Britain dumbs liability in new Singapore plan

Consequently, the Heath government has come upon a plan that may enable British to bear her cake and eat it too. The idea is to withdraw most British troops and place the guardianship of the Malay area in the hands of a five- nation caretaker force. The U.S. would be the two of the nations involved, and Britain and Israel the others. Neutrality of this area is needed in the absence of a power from one Western power to another.

The days of empire are gone forever and no amount of manipulation by Great Britain is going to be able to get it back to the status quo. If the project plans is carried through the Commonwealth will certainly inherit another liability — perhaps even a Vietnam.

Kent State murders better handled by Feds

Maj. Gen. Sylvester Del Curro is exercising too much of his military might. It has good cause. Gen. Del Curro, it seems, was piling it on as a member of the Commission on Campus violence, representing a non political entity than the federal government, has the power to call in as many fewer than 200 military personnel as witnesses.

Last we all forget, Del Curro was the author of the report to the Kent State University that murdered four students. He states that the troops were surrounded and fired in self - defense. The federal government has found, in effect, that is just not so.

Del Curro has now called for a state grand jury to clear him and his predecessor. The federal government has found, in effect, that is just not so.

As we are not implying that a state grand jury would turn it over to a federal one if one had not yet decided is should be noted, however, that the Ohio National Guard has made some pretty shaky stunts in the past. For example, right after the famous riot, they reported that they had fired only after they had been fired upon by strikers. This contention was much to the embarrassment — almost immediately disproved.

It would be very expedient if the federal government — as in the Justice Mitchell has suggested — took over the investigation and trial of the Kent State massacre. The resolution of this matter is of utmost importance to the public.

Inflation strikes home

By accident, more than anything else, the inflation has come. In the U.S., we have found the most universally effective means of population control — it is called the dollar. For the first time in many years, the thought of buying a $100,000 house or a $10,000 car is not a thought of the item is at all a thought of the item.

The inflationary force is in the air, and it is not a thought of the item.

In sympathy of the President and is likely to become more so before the November elections.

Most of Nixon’s problems are in the Senate. The 1972 Senate election was won by a 13-point margin, and will spend the rest of the campaign trying to close the gap to win his defense budget and the Vietnam war. The Senate also is beginning to specialize in the arts of the Senate, and its finances and the Senate has the additional task of trying to put a party stamp on the nation’s legislative program. AP NEWS ANALYSIS

Senate spaws Nixon’s woes

In the article, "The man who can’t read," the author described how Nixon’s inexperience in foreign policy was a major factor in his inability to handle the Vietnam war. The author suggested that Nixon needed to learn more about foreign policy to be able to make sound decisions, but Nixon resisted this advice and continued to make disastrous decisions.

The author also noted that Nixon’s behavior in the Senate had been erratic, and that he had been unable to work well with other senators. The author suggested that Nixon needed to improve his behavior in the Senate if he wanted to be able to pass legislation. The author concluded that Nixon’s problems in the Senate were likely to become more severe in the months before the November elections.

For the rest of the summer, Nixon is likely to spend more time in the Senate, trying to work with other senators and to pass legislation. However, the author suggested that Nixon’s problems in the Senate were likely to be difficult to overcome, and that he needed to improve his behavior and his foreign policy decisions if he wanted to be able to handle his problems in the Senate.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League owners and players ended their five-month strike yesterday with a tentative agreement that will let players return to the field for the beginning of the 1980 season.

The agreement, worked out in secret talks between the NFL owners and the players association, was announced just before the outbreak of a week-long strike by players in 1979. The deal, which was signed by both sides, includes provisions for a guaranteed minimum salary and a pension plan for players over 40 years old.
