Nixon urges governors to assist welfare reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has urged the governors to assist welfare reform, and the governors have been asked to do so in a meeting held in the White House.

The meeting was held to discuss the problems of the welfare system, including the problems of the elderly and the poor.

Winston Churchill, the British Prime Minister, has been called the "Father of the Nation." Churchill was a statesman who led Great Britain during World War II, and his words are quoted around the world.

The meeting was held in the White House, where Nixon has a private suite and a special room for meetings. Nixon is known for his tough-minded approach to government, and he has been praised for his work in the White House.

U.S. says: pay now, relax later

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service reminded Monday that only about 200 tax refunds are still being held by it while many taxpayers are still without them from their 1971 returns. The IRS said they have yet to be processed.

A spokesman said the IRS has just over 200 returns left to process, and that it is working on them as quickly as possible.

The IRS spokesman said that the returns were held because of changes in tax law, and that the agency is now working to process them as quickly as possible.

However, the spokesman said that the returns are still being held, and that taxpayers should continue to check with their tax preparers or IRS representatives to get updates on their status.

Optometrist cites health training need

From UPI and Special Reporters

Michigan should give priority to other health education needs before establishing a state optometry school, a prominent Grand Rapids eye doctor and former state senator said Monday.

"We have not the manpower programs in the medical, dental and nursing fields that are already expanded before the state would consider establishing a school of optometry," said Dr. M. H. Strong, a Grand Rapids ophthalmologist and member of the Michigan Optometric Association.

The society, he said, feels that the time is not yet ripe for the establishment of a state school in this field.

"We have always insisted that we have done enough for this field, and that we should not be permitted to support or establish a school of optometry until the state is fully prepared," said Dr. Strong.

A bill providing for the establishment of a state optometry school was introduced in February by Rep. Ben Seidel, of Hastings. The society said it could not be passed this year.

The "withholding tables" assume that a single taxpayer with a $10,000 salary will receive a withholding of $5 a year, and that a joint taxpayer with a $20,000 salary will receive a withholding of $10 a year.

"The withholding tables are not the complete story," said Dr. Strong. "There are still other factors that need to be considered before a state school can be established."

FCC notice threatening radio program freedom

The First Amendment to the Constitution guarantees American citizens the right to free speech. Apparently, however, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) does not believe this holds true for rock music.

Recently, the FCC issued a notice to all radio stations, most pointedly FM stations, that the playing of records which might promote drug use may raise "serious questions as to whether continued operation of the station is in the public interest, convenience, and necessity." For playing the record, according to those receiving the notice, "someone in a responsible position..." played a song that is not considered obscene by any stretch of the imagination.

"One thing for sure is, they're not going to get me into jail for playing rock music," proclaimed Jim McCaffrey, well-known disc jockey from WDKY in Louisville, Ky., the station that received the FCC notice.

"They know the laws. And they're not going to jail me. I mean, I've never seen any law that says you can't talk about drugs. There's no law against that," McCaffrey explained.

Radio stations across the nation are expected to be receiving the FCC notices this week, and the notice mentioned last week affected stations in 21 cities. While the memo points out that a station can be cited for playing any record that could be considered "obscene," rock music certainly does fit into that category in the eyes of many.
Insect spray project launched

Scale insects and Dutch elm disease will be the first targets for the newly formed MSU Spy Committee in coordinating an early-season spray program for the campus.

Presented by Richard John, professor of entomology, the committee is composed of entomologists, ecologists and Forestry, Geography and Planning and Wildlife and the Division of Campus, Park and Recreation.

"To prevent the degradation of MSU's valuable ornamental gardens and other campus plantings, we are going ahead with the early insect spray programs," Wilson Barnes, chairman of the new committee, said.

"The difference between this program and many commonly used programs is that each spray operation is carefully studied from an environmental standpoint before it is put in a program.

Financial aid costs estimated for future

The $2,000 per student cost of financial aid and support services for disadvantaged students at MSU is not a proper allocation of campus resources, according to the Advisory Committee on Financial Assistance.

The figures, presented to a committee for the President's Commission on Administration and Finance, is an estimate of the cost of financial aid and support services which will be needed to "do a good job of meeting the needs of the disadvantaged students," by Foley, committee chairman, and Friday.

Although some financial aid and support services commonly exist, the cost does not approach $2,000 per student, Foley said.

Much of the financial aid currently available is in the form of work study jobs. Nearly half of the financial aid funds come from sources outside the campus.

Barnes said, "This means that only those species that don't have had effects on the environment get approved."

NAME

The early insect spray program was approved because the scale said it is a naturally infested area by its scale, and Dutch elm disease because of its damage, he added.

Scale insects are small, soft-feeding insects that have no tent like leaves. Is the insect attacks itself to a plant and the leaves are infested, by "eating" the leaves out of a new start. Without spraying, scale insects would actually damage or even kill new plant leafs of University students.

Spraying in the spring and fall are the only times of the year that scale insects can be controlled. The spraying of the Dutch elm disease is the only way to control the disease in the fall.

"In most cases, the spraying of the Dutch elm disease is the only way to control the disease," Barnes said.

Next year's spraying program will be based on the work done this year. For example, if the spraying of the scale insects shows a high level of infestation in one area, the spraying of the Dutch elm disease will be based on the same spraying.

"Of course, the spraying of the Dutch elm disease is the only way to control the disease," Barnes said.

Batsmen face tough Central Mich. here

By JOHN VIGES
The Michigan State baseball team is in the midst of one of its best seasons in recent memory. The Spartans have a chance to make history this year by winning the Big Ten Conference championship.

The team's performance this season has been impressive, with a winning record and strong performances against top-tier competition. Michigan State is currently ranked 25th in the nation, and there is a good chance they could move up even further with a strong showing in the conference tournament.

The Spartans have had several standout players this year, including pitcher Tim Peters, who has earned a reputation as one of the best in the conference. He has a 2.56 ERA and has struck out 93 batters in 80 innings pitched. Peters has been dominant in recent games, striking out 11 batters in his last start against Indiana.

Michigan State's offense has also been a key factor in their success. The team leads the conference in batting average (.300) and home runs (20). Michigan State has scored 309 runs this season, with 113 of those coming in the last 10 games.

The Spartans are looking to carry their momentum into the conference tournament, where they will face some tough competition. If they can continue their strong play, Michigan State has a good chance to win the Big Ten title and potentially make a run in the NCAA tournament.

Michigan State's next game is against Ohio State on Wednesday. The Buckeyes are currently ranked 12th in the conference and will be a tough challenge for the Spartans.

Michigan State has won two of their last three games, including a 6-3 victory over Michigan on Sunday. The team is looking to build on this momentum as they prepare for the conference tournament.

Overall, Michigan State is in a great position to have a successful season. With a talented roster and a strong coaching staff, the team has the potential to compete for the Big Ten title and beyond.

GRIDDERS SEEK DEFENSIVE HELP

BY RICK GUGGENHEIM

State News Sports Writer

Sherrard Lewis and George Gibson are not unfamiliar with the idea of a team coming in off a long layoff and attempting to play fast and loose, according to the speed and ability of its individual players.

In their own version of Spartan gridiron, each had posted at least one 300-yard game. Sherrard, against Idaho, had 182, and he had been voted as the team's offensive MVP in the loss to Iowa State last month, while George, against Indiana, had 316.

Their names are synonymous with Spartan football, and each has been a key in the team's offensive schemes. And now, just four weeks after the Thanksgiving game, they return with any sort of actual spring practice experience.

But you love Lewis in his position, as he is a three-year starter. Some 12 players are trying for the three spots in the deep secondary, and just to look your right now, but it appears to gain a lot more momentum.

Lewis has three players from last year's defensive backfield who were starters at one time or another. This is the first time he has been a starter in this unit, and it is a very good one. Lewis and his teammates will have to be concerned about the depth that the team has.

They are a lot more sure of themselves, and they are a lot more sure of their abilities.

Faculty audit results compiled

By KAY ELLEN FARION
State News Staff Writer

Results of a survey of faculty activities distributed full-time by the Office of Institutional Effectiveness and Research demonstrated that the higher education institution conducts an annual academic staff performance audit of all higher education institutions. The audit ensures faculty expectations for the classroom and independent classroom and independent classroom and independent tasks are being met.

The survey was taken in compliance with the Michigan Higher Education Act of 1993. Under the act, the Board of Regents is required to conduct an audit of all higher education institutions.

This is the first time the audit has been conducted. The audit will be repeated annually and will be reviewed by the Board of Regents.
